

AOL's "You've Got Pictures" makes sharing pictures safe and fun. Works with film and digital cameras! Instantly view photos without downloading e-mail attachments. It's simple to get started.

- Learn about AOL's "You've Got Pictures"
- Find a photofinisher -- where to get your pictures processed
- Digital Camera Users

For more information about this exciting service, go to AOL Keyword: Pictures.

Here's how it works:

Digital Camera Users

Transfer photos from your digital camera to your computer.

*Refer to your camera's instructions to get started

Access "You've Got Pictures"

*Found on AOL's Welcome page or go to AOL Keyword: Pictures

Upload to "You've Got Pictures"

*Click on the Upload Pictures button and now you're ready to have some fun

Film Camera Users

Drop off a roll of film at a participating retailer and check the AOL box on the film processing envelope. Make sure to provide your AOL screen name.

Pick up your prints and negatives at your retailer as usual. Then sign onto AOL and click the new "You've Got Pictures" button on the Welcome Screen to view your pictures, or go to AOL Keyword: Pictures.

Enjoy your pictures! Once your pictures are online, you can instantly email them to friends and family on AOL or the internet, organize your photos into albums, invite friends to view your albums, order gifts and prints, and MORE!

Once your pictures are online with AOL's "You've Got Pictures," you can:

Instantly share pictures to friends and family without attachments. All you need is an e-mail address.

Add captions, a title or backgrounds to dress up your photos.

Share one picture or an entire album - it's up to you.

Order reprints and photo gifts online -- you don't even need the negatives! Friends and family can order their own copies, too.

[\[top\]](#)

Home | Search | Service & Support | Careers

Copyright © Eastman Kodak Company, 1994-2003 and Privacy Practices (updated 14-Sep-2001).