

decisions. She was the one who worked out countless details on innumerable papers. She soothed authors and "protected" both Editors and reviewers. She was quietly competent and a delight to work with. I worked with her for most of the last ten years and will miss her. I wish her and her husband a happy retirement in their new San Diego home. Let there be no nervous Editors, angry authors, or incessant phone calls in her future.

There is one more retirement which should be properly recorded in this particular journal—that of Ralph Ragan as Vice President-Publications. After two consecutive terms as VP he has earned his relief. We of the guidance and control community, however, owe him a particular vote of thanks. It was his leadership, combined with Henry Kelley's perseverance, that made this journal possible. Without Ralph I am not at all convinced that we would at this time be so far into this new venture on so successful a basis.

Finally, as is our custom each year, I would like to express my appreciation to those anonymous people without which the archival system would not work—our reviewers. A list of those who have donated their time this past year on behalf of the Journal of Guidance and Control follows.

Donald C. Fraser
Editor-in-Chief
