

---

About the authors

Cheryl Tatano Beck, BSN, MSN, has worked in the postpartum and newborn nursery area at Yale-New Haven Hospital as a staff nurse. She received her BSN from Western Connecticut State College and her MSN in maternal newborn nursing from Yale University along with a certificate in nurse-midwifery. She has taught maternal child and obstetrical nursing. She is currently a full-time doctoral candidate at Boston University.

Kathryn Suggs Chance, RN, MS, is a doctoral student at the University of Alabama School of Nursing, Birmingham. She is also Assistant Professor in Nursing at Georgia State University, Atlanta. She received her BSN from the Medical College of Georgia, Augusta, and her MS in Nursing from the University of California, San Francisco.

T. Neal Garland, BA, MA, PhD, is currently Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Akron and is pursuing research on health care delivery systems. He received his BA in English and his MA in Sociology from the University of North Dakota and his PhD in Sociology from Case Western Reserve University.

Joseph P. Maloney, RN, PhD, Lt Col, is affiliated with the Army Nurse Corp, Department of Nursing, Walter Reed Medical Center, Washington, D.C.

Joanne Marchione, BSN, MA, received her BSN from Case Western Reserve University. She received an MA in Educational Psychology from the University of Santa Clara and an MA in Anthropology from the University of Washington where she was a nurse scientist focusing on maternal child nursing.

Kathryn L. McCance, Clinical Instructor, BS, MS, is currently a PhD candidate at the University of Utah College of Nursing. She received her BS from Arizona State and her

MS from the University of Utah in Physiologic Nursing.

Kathleen McCormick, BSN, MSN, MS, PhD, is currently Assistant for Research to the Chief of Nursing, The Clinical Center, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland. She received her BSN from Barry College, Miami, Florida; her MSN from Boston University; and her MS and PhD from the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Linda Dell McNeely, BSN, is currently affiliated with the Clinical Center, Office of Clinical and Management Systems, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland. She received her BSN from Vanderbilt University.

Gayle Eliason Reiber, BS, MPH, is the Director of the Bureau of Chronic Disease Control at the Utah State Department of Health. She received her BS in Nursing from the University of Utah and her MPH from the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Carol Ann Romano, RN, BSN, is currently a Clinical Nurse Expert with the Heart and Lung Nursing Service, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland. She received her RN from the Geisinger Medical Center School of Nursing, Danville, Pennsylvania, and her BSN from the University of Maryland.

Nancy C. Sayner, RN, MS, DNS, is currently a member of Duke University School of Nursing. She received her BS in Nursing from the University of Michigan and her MS and Doctor of Nursing Science from the University of California, San Francisco. Dr. Sayner's major interests in nursing are cerebrovascular disease, patient decision making, and surgical intervention. A relatively new member of academia, she has spent most of her nursing career in service settings.