THERESA CHRISTY AWARD

The Lynchburg College Department of Nursing established the Theresa Christy Award to recognize a graduating nursing major for excellence in academics and clinical practice. The award was established in 1982 to coincide with the graduation of the first nursing majors from the baccalaureate nursing program. In 1982 the recipient of the award was Mary Sumpter of Lynchburg, Virginia, and the 1983 award was given to Sydney Graff of Evington, Virginia. The faculty of the nursing department thought that it was most fitting to give a one-year periodical subscription with the award. Advances in Nursing Science was selected as the journal of outstanding quality that would give due recognition to an outstanding graduate.
