

A Journal of the Gesellschaft Deutscher Chemiker

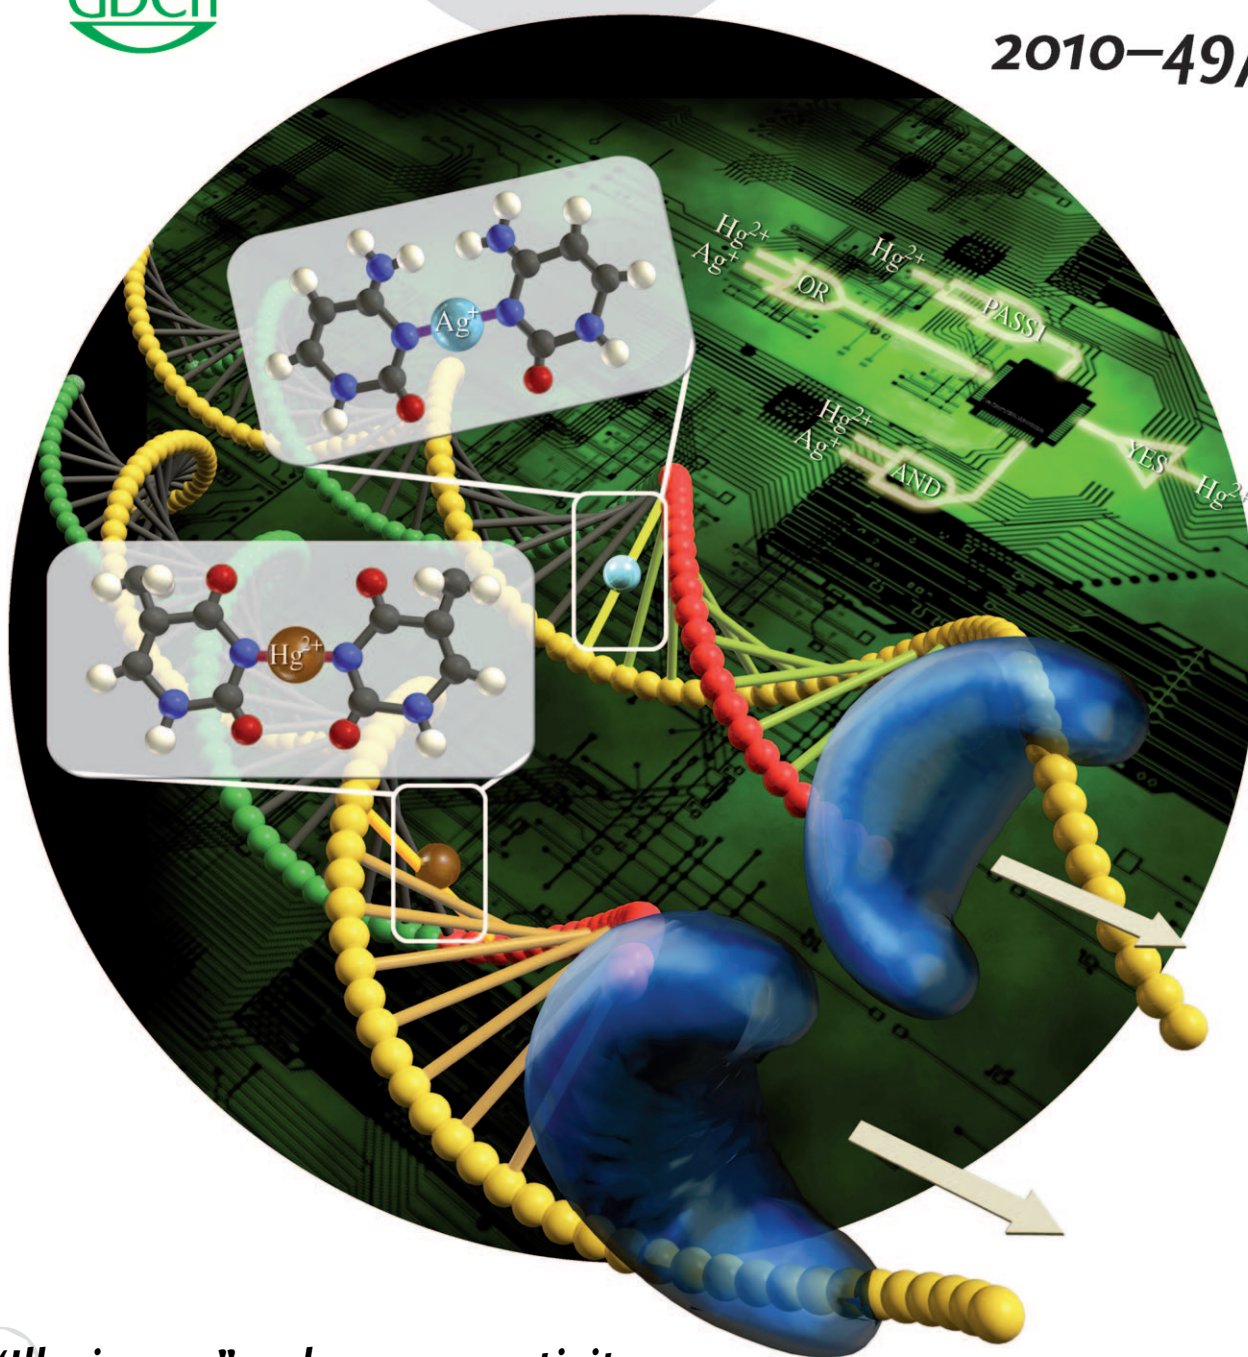

Angewandte Chemie

International Edition

www.angewandte.org

2010–49/50

“Illusionary” polymerase activity ...

... was proved to be intentionally triggered by Hg^{2+} and Ag^+ ions through their interaction with the mismatched base pairs T–T and C–C to result in a nonnatural amplification reaction. In their Communication on page 9757 ff., H. G. Park and co-workers describe how rational design of the primers and selection of the type of DNA polymerase was used to construct molecular-scale logic gates.

WILEY-VCH

Inside Cover

Ki Soo Park, Cheulhee Jung, and Hyun Gyu Park*

“Illusionary” polymerase activity was proved to be intentionally triggered by Hg^{2+} and Ag^+ ions through their interaction with the mismatched base pairs T–T and C–C to result in a nonnatural amplification reaction. In their Communication on page 9757 ff., H. G. Park and co-workers describe how rational design of the primers and selection of the type of DNA polymerase was used to construct molecular-scale logic gates.

