

A Journal of the Gesellschaft Deutscher Chemiker

Angewandte Chemie

International Edition

www.angewandte.org

2012–51/20

Air-stable primary phosphanes ...

... that are highly fluorescent are presented by L. J. Higham and co-workers in their communication on page 4921 ff. These primary phosphanes (RPH_2) can be used to prepare tripodal phosphanes which form rhenium complexes that retain a desirable photophysical profile and have potential applications as mimics of technetium imaging agents.

 WILEY-VCH