

Announcement

The Publishers recognize the need of journal users to access articles through a variety of channels, and are committed to providing a wide range of options in the future. The Publishers are also aware that new communication media increase the threat to authors' own rights through unauthorized distribution, alteration or attribution. To enable the Publishers to make the published version of articles available as widely as possible, while protecting authors' rights to be associated with their work, it is essential that a Copyright Transfer Agreement form is signed for every article which is to be considered for publication in the journal. The form can be photocopied from the journal, or copies can be obtained on request from the Publisher. Inclusion of a signed form with the manuscript at the original submission stage will speed up processing and eventual publication of the article.
