WEAPON

TWO COPS - BOTH LETHAL

A multi-level shoot 'em up based on aspects of all three LETHAL WEAPON movies. You can choose to be either one of the two high fire-power cops... each having his individual strengths - and weaknesses! There are many missions to complete including the rescue of a kidnapped girl, the pursuit and arrest of drugs runners, finding and arresting a police murderer, plus many more. You choose the level to suit your objectives within the game-play.

10 TRUE STORIES

More hot news than you can shake a stick at. (What does that mean?) Get full details of the Amiga Christmas bundles, find out how to join the James Pond Fin Club (no really), check out some seriously weird joysticks and get the latest gossip on everything that's happening out there.

16 THE GALLUP CHARTS

Find out what's hot today and what's going to be sizzling tomorrow etc. Or is that Cinematraxions? Well, anyway...

63 COMPLETE CONTROL

Top tips this month: how to beat Lure of the Temptress (part two); how to play Fascination (part one); how to beat Fire And Ice (levels three and four); how to make a silk purse from a sow's ear. As last month, one of these is a fib.

76 FES PREVIEW

Everything you need to know about the utterly fab Future Entertainment Show: Where it is, how to get in, who you'll see and how you could win £10,000.

82 MINDSCAPE INTERNATIONAL

Just who do those Mindscape people think they are? What on earth are they doing? What's this Wing Commander? We've been to Sussex and back to find out.

110 TALKING HEADS

Has the Amiga been pushed to its limits? Can it be pushed any further? Why can't you get toothpaste back in the tube? We asked some top programmer and industry people what they thought.

113 DO THE WRITE THING

It's a simple deal: You write us amusing, thought provoking, argumentative letters and we print them. At least that's the way we'd like it to be.

105 THE BOTTOM LINE

Your essential guide to the full price games of the last year. Don't be fooled by all the fancy boxes - check this column out first.

128 BACK ISSUES

You liked it so much you bought the company. Well, actually, you can't really. But you could do the next best thing and buy loads of back copies of this most excellent magazine.

130 IN THE STYLE OF

Those Sensible boys indulge in a bit of shameless self-promotion and xenophobia as they present the classic Sensible Soccer in the style of their forthcoming Cannon Fodder (sort of).

NEXT MONTH...

...starts on 19th November (That can't bring you reviews of Road Rash, Pinball Fantasies, Humans and more besides. Make a note in your diary or you'll miss out.

We're sticking with our promise to bring you only top quality playable demos on our coverdisk. You still won't find slideshows, old PD games or non-playable demos. This month we've got complete levels of a couple of games that'll charm your socks off.

AND THIS IS DISK 19

DOODLEBUG

Read the review in this very issue and then check out one level of this platform cutey for yourself. Take Doodlebug to safety through a colourful world with only a crayon to protect you. It's fab.

METAMORPHOSIS

An entertaining game if ever there was one. If, like us, you don't understand all that chemistry stuff, then this is the game for you. Now you can learn all about the four (four?) states of matter – solid, liquid, gas and, er... bouncy. You take control of a lump of, well, 'matter' really, and make your way through a world fraught with danger by choosing carefully which state you'd like to be in. It's a gas (and a liquid and a solid and a bouncy thing) – you'll love it.

GOT A FAULTY DISK?

● Oh no! Are you sure? Before you go any further try the procedures described in the panel over the page. If, after all that, you do have disk problems, simply place it in an envelope, along with an SAE and an explanatory letter, and return it NOT TO THE AMIGA POWER OFFICE but to: AMIGA POWER Disk Returns 19, Tib plc, 36-50 Adelaide Street, Bradford BD5 0EA.

THOSE DARN DISKS

HEY! YOU! THIS IS WHERE WE EXPLAIN HOW TO LOAD THE DISKS, SO PLEASE DO READ VERY, VERY CAREFULLY

- Metamorphosis is one meg only.
- To load either Metamorphosis or Doodlebug, switch off your machine, insert the disk, and switch your machine back on.
- An options menu will load.. Simply press F1 or F2 depending on which game you wish to load.
- If you own an old A500 machine, then you will then have to type either MORPH (Return) or DOODLE BUG (Return) to continue loading. The '.' character can be typed by holding down SHIFT and pressing the '-' (minus) key on the top row of your keyboard. Sorry for the inconvenience.
- Please keep the disk you are playing your game from in the drive at all times, and remember – switching the machine off for 20 seconds or so before loading up a new program will help prevent disks being infested by stray viruses.

AND IF (HEAVEN FORBID) THERE SHOULD BE ANY BIZARRE COMPLICATIONS?

- First, try the process again, once again making sure you've removed extra peripherals the program may not 'like'.
- If it's only one of the programs on your disk that doesn't work, not the whole thing, try phoning our COVERDISK HELPLINE. Call 0274 736990 and ask for Sam Hiah.
- If your disk fails to load, then pop it in a padded envelope, along with a letter explaining the problem, to: AMIGA POWER Disk 19 Returns, Tib Plc, 36-50 Adelaide Street, Bradford, BD5 0EA. Give the nice people at Tib a couple of weeks, and you ought to receive a shiny, working new disk.

Whatever you do, please don't bother sending any disks to the AMIGA POWER offices. We're about as technical as three fruits marmalade on warm soggy toast, so it's unlikely that we'll be able to help at all. We really do throw any disks returned to us straight in the bin. It's not that we don't care – we just don't understand.

Author: Adrian Cummings

It's got doodles in it! It's got a bug in it! It's got doodles and bugs in it. It's Doodlebug! Are you getting fed up of this intro yet?

Stuart reviews this corking little platform game over on page 36, so why don't you go on over there and give it a bit of a read, then come back here and we'll discuss what you've learned, okay?

SOME TIME LATER

Ah, you're back. Well, you should pretty much know everything now, so that'll save us some time. This luscious little demo contains the first world of Doodlebug.

"Mine!" "Well, yes, it's yours if you want it."
"No, fool, it's a MINE."

that's three sub-levels AND the end-of-level boss. Don't say we're not good to you. Having read the review you'll know that your objective is simply to get to the end of each section, indicated on these levels by a cute little Wendy house. On your way you'll have to sort out loads of bad guys, a task which you can perform by leaping into the air, pressing fire to send Doodlebug into a fast and lethal spin, and then crashing into them. Easy, eh? Bye.

WHAT ABOUT THE SECRET ROOMS?

Trains, drum majors and Doodlebugs. Sounds like a good title for one of those John Hughes movie, if you ask us. Not that you did. (Oh shut up! – Ed)

Publisher: Flair
Author: Peter Johnson

THE COMPLICATED BIT

Metamorphosis is a bit funny about working on A600s with built-in hard drives, but it can be done, so don't panic. The first thing you're going to have to do is switch the machine on as normal, but hold down both mouse buttons while it's booting up. A menu screen should appear after a couple of seconds, at the bottom of which will be a little bar marked 'Advanced Options'. Click on this box and another menu screen will appear, containing lots of techie-sounding words in little boxes. Don't worry about these, you don't have to know anything about what they mean. All you need to know is that all the boxes down the left hand side which have the word 'ENABLED' in them have to be clicked on so that they read 'DISABLED', except for the very top one (which should have 'DF0' displayed very close to it), which should be left at 'ENABLED'. Once you've made all the other ones read 'DISABLED', bung your coverdisk into the internal drive and click on the box at the bottom of the screen marked 'USE'. Now click on the 'DF0' box on the menu screen which appears next,

Like a rubber ball, he'll come bouncing back to you. But he'll need to metamorphose soon or he'll not be able to get any further.

Drip. But it won't be watery for long, as soon as it gets to the fire it'll be steam.

Oh yeah, there are some secret rooms.

BUT HOW DO YOU GET INTO THEM?

If you come across any floor blocks which look as if they might be hiding something interesting, jump on them. They just might crumble away and lead you somewhere interesting...

WHAT ARE THE SWITCHES FOR?

Pull them and find out.

Down at the bottom of that there screen, you'll see an icon bar. And in that icon bar there are some icons showing what pencil power-ups are available.

It's a bizarre juxtaposition of cute bugs, demonic pillars and hunchbacks.

Why Doodlebug? Because he's a bug that doodles. It took us ages to figure that out.

AND THOSE FUNNY LITTLE BLOCKS WITH THE FACES IN THEM?

Headbutt them and a prize of some sort will come out. You can also stand on the blocks, but only before you've headbuted them or who knows what might happen.

WHAT DO ALL THE ICONS DO?

Look, did you read the review or what?

That should be just about enough information to get you going. Except for the controls, of course...

CONTROLS

then press F2 as normal. Theoretically, Metamorphosis should now load.

AFTER ALL THAT...

Phew. Now all you have to worry about is the game. It's a simple enough one in theory, all you have to do is get your, er, creature to the exit on each mazy-platformy level. Of course, it's not as easy as it sounds, because there are lots of obstacles in each stage which your, er, creature simply can't get past. Stuck? Not a bit of it, guv - all the resourceful little, er, creature does is change into another, completely different, er, creature. Each different type of, er, creature available to you can safely pass one of the game's obstacles, so it's up to you judiciously to

SOFTY

He's meaty, he's beaty, he's big and he's bouncy. He's a soft and squishy rubber ball, with all the properties that entails.

NEW AMIGA BUNDLES - WILD OR JUST PLAIN WEIRD?

Once again, it's all happening in Amigaland, with some interesting developments at Commodore.

● Yes folks, Commodore has unleashed two Amiga 600 bundles just in time for your Christmas lists to Santa. The first pack of goodies is entitled The Wild, The Weird and The Wicked. It will be available in the shops on the 1st of October at £349.99, a significant drop from the last years' £399 price. It includes an Amiga 600, Deluxe Paint III from Electronic Arts, and three games - Grand Prix from Microprose is seen by Commodore as the 'wicked' part of the package, Putty from System 3 is the 'weird' element and Ocean's Pushover is the 'wild' bit.

Although Commodore say they have gone for quality games, there is definitely an absence of star names - The Simpsons, Lemmings, and Batman all featured in past Amiga packs.

If you've got a bit more lolly to splash out with, then you might consider the Amiga 600 HD pack. Priced at £499.99, it will also be available on the 1st of October. It includes Ocean's Epic, System 3's Myth, Millennium's Rome and the Amiga language lab, containing Trivial Pursuit in three different languages, English, German and French (you can actually play them in three different languages at the same time), a multi lingual dictionary to help you out and Amiga text, a basic word processing system.

Commodore's UK Managing Director, Kelly Sumner, told us, "If you look at the two packs you can see they're designed for two entirely different types of person - Wild, Weird and Wicked is aimed at the younger purchaser while the Epic pack is aimed at the more serious kind of guy." This is underlined by the type of software in each pack - the Epic pack for example has more strategy, with an education angle on it too.

Both packs were put together in January, at a time when Epic was supposed to be one of the best things since sliced bread. Indeed Kelly Sumner commented that they "Were worried that Epic had had a few false starts on the way to actually getting there". It certainly appears that Commodore at least are now happy Epic has got its act together.

● Following the A600 price drops in early August there've been some interesting results for Commodore. Sumner told us how they'd "envisaged about a two-and-a-half fold increase in sales, but what actually happened in the first week was a four fold increase in sales". In effect, sales have gone up about four and a half times since the price drop.

● Further news from the Commodore head honchos is the Scottish connection. They now intend to produce all Amigas in Scotland. SCI, an associate company of Commodore UK, who've produced Amigas in the far east will undertake the Scottish job.

● AMIGA POWER's roving world news team can announce that the A4000 has been officially launched by Commodore at the USA World Of Commodore Show in Pasadena. The high-powered multi-media work station has impressed crowds with some incredible displays. It's the first Amiga to make use of Commodore's 'Advanced Graphics Architecture' chip set. This is perhaps, the most exciting aspect of the machine providing the user with a palette of 16.7 million colours. 256,000 of these can be displayed on the screen at any one time. The A4000 has been firmly placed at the top of the Amiga hierarchy - its central processor is the Motorola 32-bit 68040, clocked at 25MHz. In terms of memory you'll find that the standard configuration is 2Mb of chip or graphics RAM and 4Mb of Fast RAM. At the moment there is no official word from Commodore about plans for the A4000's UK launch. But stay tuned to AMIGA POWER for the news as it unfolds.

BETTER THAN SENSIBLE SOCCER!

Did we tell you how good Sensible Soccer was yet? Oh, we did. Well, forget it anyway, because it's not that good any more. Nope, it's even better. Sensible Soccer 1.1 is a new upgraded version of the game which scored an astonishing 93% in AP15, and it features fully up-to-date team data from the current season, including all of the 412 new nations created by the disintegration of the former Eastern Bloc. Not only that, but the gameplay's been tweaked too, with the goalkeepers, for example, now able to catch the ball in a dive, or parry shots round the posts for corners. The best news of all, though, is that owners of the old, merely brilliant Sensible Soccer can get hold of this positively stupendous new version by sending just £3.95 (and their original data disk) to Renegade, who will then return the original disk along with the new one, so that you've got a choice of two Sensible Soccers to play with. If, for some stupid, perverted reason, you don't actually have a copy of this fabulous game yet, you'll be able to buy the new updated version on its own in specially-marked packs from good software stockists all over the country, from early October (ie now). What are you waiting for?

One of the best games in the world just got better. SS1.1 should be in the shops right about now. If you've already got Sensible Soccer then why not upgrade?

JOIN JAMES POND'S FANTASTIC FIN CLUB

Remember the days when comic characters had their own clubs, with special gifts and stuff? Well, Millennium obviously do, having just launched the FISH Secret Service, a club for fans of that legendary piscine hero James Pond. Membership to the club costs £8.95, which will get you a special Secret Agent's pack containing an identity card, James Pond stickers, secret codes, secret mission and even – yes! – a James Pond boardgame. WIN!

FREE MEMBERSHIP TO JAMES POND'S SECRET SERVICE!

Those wonderfully generous (if slightly deranged) people at Millennium have stumped up for 10 free memberships to the James Pond Club, AND 50 Aquatics Games posters for you lucky AMIGA POWER readers. Generosity? Pah, they've got tons of the stuff.

The catch? Ah, yes. There's always a catch. This time we want you to come up with sentence of no more than 20 words, including as many crap fish gags as possible, explaining why you want to win.

Easy, huh? Simply scribble your answer down on the back of a sealed envelope or a postcard, and send your entry (before 30th November) to Smoke Me A Kipper, AMIGA POWER, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath, Avon. BA1 2BW.

Good luck, and remember: may the fish be with you.

Produce plenty of piscine puns and you could be a member of this fantastic fan club.

Streetfighter 2 – Amiga style. The programmers have certainly captured the visual side of the game, with lush backgrounds and huge, detailed sprites. Could this be the first really good martial arts game on the Amiga.

STREETFIGHTER 2 – CHRISTMAS NUMBER ONE OR WHAT?

Here it is – Streetfighter 2 on the Amiga! As you can see US Gold are going all out to make this look exactly like the arcade original.

Whether or not it will play like it, we don't know. Some noises are being made which suggest that US Gold are developing a special joystick, to enable the player to perform all the complex martial arts as featured of the arcade game. Watch out for more Streetfighter 2 news next month and, just maybe, more screenshots.

Above: Some of the fearsome characters yet to be added. Main pic: Streetfighter 2 is the ultimate martial arts game in the arcades. Will it really play as good as it looks?

MOTORHEAD IN VIRGIN SHOCK

With a headline like that you're probably expecting a story about how Lemmy and the boys have been caught in some back stage antics, but sadly no. Virgin (the company) have scooped what must be the most unlikely license of the year, if not the decade. November sees the release of Motorhead, the video game based on the exploits of one of Heavy Metal's real character bands. In it you have to help top warty rock god Lemmy get a band together in time for some big gigs as his boys have been kidnapped, probably by some music lovers. Travelling through sections such as Karaoke land, Nashville Land, Gothic Land and Hippy Land with bonus sections like Grab A Groupie, Hippy Bashing and Trash the Hotel Room you can probably guess the tone of the proceedings. A limited number of the early release will be bundled with a copy of Motorhead's latest 'epic' CD March or Die. Watch out for a full review next issue.

GREMLIN ON A CRUSADE

Gremlin have announced their release schedule up to Christmas. In October they're planning to release the expansion disks to the popular Space Crusade. The exact date and price haven't been finalised yet but you can expect more missions packed with alien scum just waiting to be blasted. In much the same vein, Hero Quest 2 is also on the way, which is about all we know at the moment, but more news soon. November sees the long-awaited Nigel Mansell game. In the recent spate of racing games this faces some serious competition from the likes of Vroom and F1GP but Gremlin are confident that our Nige can take on and beat all comers. The world champion will come in at £29.99 (hey, that's nearly as much as Williams paid him this year) and when you think of Gremlin's racing pedigree, it should be worth looking at.

JUST KIDDING

We just thought you might like to see how Krisalis' potentially massive Soccer Kid is coming on, plus we've got some early shots of Arabian Nights into the bargain. Actually scheduled for release before Soccer Kid, which has now been delayed until next Spring, Arabian Nights Football becomes a martial art. Head the ball at the roller skater to get rid of him.

With practice you'll soon be doing great overhead kicks and stuff.

The end of level boss is an American football player who throws balls at you.

The snake charmer notions you closer - "Bring me 65 Jewels and you can buy the snake" uses the same ultra-fast scrolling platform game engine as Soccer Kid. Unlike Soccer Kid though, Arabian Nights has something of a strategy bent, with puzzles to solve and the occasional bits of text. Needless to say, both games look very consoley - and might well be the fastest, smoothest platform games yet seen on the Amiga. Watch out for review of Arabian Nights in the next month or two, and more news on Soccer Kid in the new year.

JOYSTICKS OR TOY STICKS

You can always trust those chaps at Cheetah to come up with something completely new and different when they design a joystick. Their latest innovation is the Character Stick. Instead of just the plain old stick with a fire button on it you can choose from your favourite movie characters, including Bart Simpson, the Terminator, the Alien and Batman.

With the resounding success of the Bug (still the fave stick in the AP office) it looks as though Cheetah have come up with another crowd pleaser. Cheetah's own Howard Jacobson has even been heard saying that this is the "biggest tie-up in film licensing and computer game hardware history". Er, yeah.

Anyway, you can join in the fun of wrenching the Alien's head around in a tough game of Crazy Cars III for £12.99. While we're on the subject of freaky joysticks, Spectravideo have come up with the strangest of the lot. Nigel Mansell's Freewheel is a steering wheel controller that isn't attached to any bulky plastic stand. You just hold it and turn it to get your car to move. Obviously it's only really useful on driving and flying games but after trying it out at the recent ECTS we can safely say that it's, er, different. It's going to be priced at £29.99 and when we get one in for a review we'll let you know exactly what we think of it.

SILMARILS' BEWILDERING BOB TAILS

Silmarils' forthcoming Bunny Bricks is a cartoon-style, arcade game featuring a bob tailed star called Bunny. With the aid of a baseball bat, the floppy eared hero must pass through a series of animated features and destroy every brick he sees.

He's hindered by other characters – Sharky, Naf Naf, Cocky the Villain and the Angel Einstein. Secret bonuses, puzzles and riddles are set to bewilder this rampaging 'Rambo' rabbit, but multi-bats, a machine gun, and superbat are just some of the options available to help him in his task.

We expect Bunny Bricks to be a cocktail of cartoon style arcade action in the style of Tex Avery. Indeed Richard Hennerley from Daze Marketing, Silmarils' distributor, thinks that Bunny Bricks will make you happier than a bunny in a carrot patch! Er, quite.

Bunny Bricks will be available on Amiga at the beginning of November. Meanwhile... from the creators of Storm Master and Ishar comes Transarctica, a fantasy strategy, simulation set in the aftermath of a terrible nuclear winter.

On the 24th December 2022, 'Operation Blind', an experiment to save the world from the Greenhouse Effect drought, took place. It 'backfired' and the world was thrown into a horrific nuclear winter. Civilisation perishes under huge ice mountains.

The game is set centuries later when life is mean and tough for the survivors. In this snow world the only means of transport are huge trains. A huge corporation, the 'Viking Union' control both the trains and their source, coal, the world's only currency.

You play an idealist, the captain of a great train, the 'Transarctica' who inspired by ancient writings believes he can 'bring the sun back to life'. Unfortunately, however, not everyone wants to see the ice retreat – the Viking Union will do anything to protect their monopoly. From what we've seen so far the graphics are beautiful. If its game structure is anything like Stormmaster and Ishar then this could be Silmarils' best to date.

A superbly demonic train from one of the static screens in Transarctica.

There's this rabbit, you see. And he breaks bricks with a baseball bat.

MICROIDS' FRENCH FRENZY

French coders Microids have two new releases to tickle your fancy. The first is Super Sport Challenge which is loosely connected with the you-know-what games. In SSC there are 12 events ranging from sprinting, throwing, jumping, and swimming events. Each event has numerous viewing angles which are used for extra realism and playability (it says here). Super Sport Challenge should be out as you read this.

To follow SSC comes a completely different type of game. Dominium is a strategy war game, which, for once, doesn't look half bad – loads of attention has been paid to producing some excellent graphics and easy playability.

You control a planetary system which is under attack from a local warlord and you have to save the world – normal kind of thing really. The price has yet to be decided, but a review should be appearing soon.

TITUS GO CHEAP

CCII – just one of the re-release from Titus.

French publisher Titus have announced their intention launch their very own budget label. The new label will be called Fox Hits and is set to hit the shelves at the end of September at a competitive price point of £9.99. The first batch of games will be Crazy Cars II, Fire and Forget I and II, Wild Streets, Arachnophobia, Off Shore Warrior, Dick Tracy, Duck Tales, Galactic Conqueror, Prehistorik, Knight Force and Dark Century, and, as if that wasn't enough, more are promised after November. Titus are also looking at the possibility of placing new products directly onto the budget range but primarily they will be using Fox Hits to air their own back catalogue.

DMI GO CHEAPER

Another software house launching a budget label? Times must be hard. DMI are launching Global Software sometime before Christmas at the ultra low price point of £7.99, with titles like Adrenalin, Final Countdown, Gem'X, Ooops Up, The Power, PP Hammer and White Sharks. These comprise a lot of DMI's back catalogue but they assure us they're planning to release new titles on the budget label as well to increase its appeal. After Christmas they will be releasing up to two titles every month, and all titles will now be fully compatible with the A500P and the A600.

AMIGA POWER

RECOMMENDS

Okay, so last month was a bit, er, quiet. Blame the 'waiting for Christmas' syndrome, but don't miss these corkers that DID show up...

PUTTY (SYSTEM 3)

There've been a few false starts on this one, but if ever a game showed the benefits of a proper amount of development time being spent on it, it's this one. The best original arcade-type game since Wizkid, and featuring probably the Amiga's best-ever soundtrack (as in sound, not music), Putty is an absolutely beautiful game that's clearly been a real labour of love for its programmers. Metamorphosing blue blobs, belligerent Scouse sausages, fluffy bunny rabbits and the amazing Uncle Ted are just a few of the new chums you'll meet in this fabulous platform classic, and they'll be your friends for life.

ZOOL (GREMLIN)

You've waited long enough for it, but now it's finally finished you'd better beware – you're going to be playing it for as long as you were waiting. Zool's had a lot of hype to live up to, but for once everything that was promised has been delivered. It's big, it's action-packed from the word go, it looks lovely, it's stuffed with puzzles to solve and great secret stuff to find, it's got selectable difficulty levels, selectable speed levels, selectable inertia levels, and probably selectable spirit levels as well, it's everything you could ever want from an arcade platform game and a bit more besides. Sonic The Hedgehog, Shmonic The Hedgehog, we say.

TRODDLERS (MIRAGE)

Take all the best bits out of Amiga legend Lemmings and not-really-very-legendary-at-all-but-still-really-really-good arcade platform puzzler, Solomon's Key, and stick them together into one new game and what you might expect would be a bucket load of lawsuits of almost American proportions. Instead of that, though, Storm have come up with a stunning game with a character all of its own, boasting dozens of brain-blending levels and enough different play options to keep you and a chum entertained for about a hundred years. Well, quite a while, anyway. It's a bit spiffing, it really is.

SENSIBLE SOCCER (RENEGADE)

'Oh no, not again!', we hear you all cry, but wait! This isn't just boring old ordinary Sensible Soccer we're trying to flog you now. No, this time it's Sensible Soccer 1.1! Yes, our joint highest-rated game ever just got even better with the addition of up-to-date team and country data and, more importantly, some significantly-improved goalkeepers (the only thing in the original game which anybody found any real fault with). Available approximately now in the shops, or for just four quid if you've already got the original (and you still get to keep your old version as well), but one way or another you really ought to have this by now.

SENSIBLE SOCCER

Nothing has managed to top it yet. For a record smashing fourth month Sensible Soccer tops the charts. With the release of version 1.1 coming up it looks as though it's here for keeps. Renegade are over the moon about the success of their game. This is one record that will prove very hard to beat, and with Christmas looming some big names will be pulling out all the stops to do it. Time will tell.

PREMIERE

Core's Premiere, er, premiers in the charts this month at number seven. Richard Barclay, Core's spokesperson commented "This goes to show our policy of aiming products at gaps in the market is proving successful. Corporation, Heimdall and now Premiere are the latest in a long line of such products."

We figure you must have some idea how the charts work by now, so briefly: they're © ELSPA, they mix budgets and full prices together, games are rated in stars, and now they're sponsored by Penguin!

CAPTAIN DYNAMO

Despite our unbelievably tight review last month Code Master's latest platform game leaps into the top twenty. Code Masters now have nine titles in the charts, more than most software houses could even dream about. They now have three titles poised to break into the top ten. Look out for them next month to see if they do it.

JACK NICKLAUS GOLF

Jack drives his way into the top 20 this month and leaves himself just a chip and a putt away from the top ten. Being in the top ten is par for the course for big Jack and now he's been re-released on budget he looks as though he'll get there again.

'RE RIGHT R ZONE.

Are some of these favourable reviews a tad too enthusiastic? Are some of the negative ones a gnats' too critical?

There's only one way to find out. Play the games yourself in the Gamesmaster Zone.

You'll find one in every Comet store. A themed area where you can play before you pay on a selection of the latest and greatest titles.

(There are over 250 available in all.)

The Gamesmaster Zone is the biz when it comes to hardware too. With a huge stock of all the big names in hand helds and consoles.

Buy any of them and you'll qualify for a Gamesmaster Zone Discount Card. Valid till April next year it will cut the cost of

LEMMING

Game: Lemmings 2
Publisher: Psygnosis
Authors: DMA Design
ETA: Christmas

Briefly: Well, it's just the same as Lemmings really, isn't it?

The creators speak: "No! No! It's not the same as Lemmings at all".

screamed a near-apoplectic DMA Design when I suggested to them that this eagerly-awaited sequel was, shall we say, not really all that radically different from its legendary predecessor. After all, a cursory glance at the screenshots on these pages doesn't really suggest, as Ian Hetherington of Psygnosis claimed in our giant feature on the company in issue 12, a game that seems to be "quite a different product - we probably shouldn't even call it Lemmings 2 at all". In Lemmings 2 you're still controlling hundreds of tiny lemmings (the bigger characters that everyone seems to have been expecting aren't there), and the aim is still to get them to an exit at the end of a scrolling level. The levels now scroll vertically as well as horizontally, and there's a weird plotline involving lots of different tribes of lemmings, but the core of the gameplay is more or less the same. But hang on a minute. Despite what certain other publications appear to believe, you can't judge a game from screenshots alone, so let's take a slightly closer look at the game they HAVE decided, after all, to call Lemmings 2.

"There's a lot more to it than Lemmings"

"I don't know where everyone got the idea that Lemmings 2 was going to be quite so radically different to the original," says DMA's Dave Jones. "All this stuff about bigger graphics and a completely different game style was just a vicious rumour. We did have a few ideas about how we were going to tackle the sequel, and bigger characters were suggested at one early point, but the idea never made it off the drawing board. Or maybe Psygnosis just had different Caber-tossing and tube-shooting are probably high on these lems' priority lists.

The Circus tribe of lemmings have all manner of Big Top-related scenery to admire ideas about the game than we did..."

LEMMINGS 2

But get past the screenshots and there's no denying that this IS a very different game.

"For a start, there are now over 60 different kinds of lemming, although obviously they don't all appear on the same levels. There are ballooning lemmings that you can blow around with a fan, archer lemmings that fire arrows to burst other lems' balloons or build bridges (arrows stick in the landscape and can be fired into each other to provide complex structures), human cannonball lemmings who'll light the fuse on a cannon then climb into it to get fired across the screen, and the old blockers have been replaced with musical lemmings who play tunes which force any lem in earshot to stop in their tracks and dance." (Shades of Uncle Ted...).

It's a lot harder to get your little charges killed in Lemmings 2, too – only a really long fall will kill them, with shorter plunges stunning them.

Some lems get ready to kick the bucket (sorry...)

"You couldn't actually get them killed at all until very recently, but the game's still evolving even as we write it," says Dave. But isn't there a danger that people will be disappointed when they first see it? "They may be, but then the same thing happened with the first Lemmings – it didn't initially look like much, but it didn't take long for it to get its hooks into you. I think it'll only take a few minutes to find out just how much there is under the surface of this game – in that respect I think it's on a par with the likes of Super Mario World."

Is the vastly-increased depth of Lemmings 2 perhaps an admission that the original game was actually very repetitive once you got into it?

"I don't think it was, actually, the structure of it was such that it changed a lot within its framework as you went on, but with Lemmings 2 what we've done is write something that's less of an out-and-out puzzle game and more of an arcade thing. Some people might prefer the first game, because it was maybe a bit easier to get into, whereas with this one you're always being forced to learn new skills."

Just one small corner of a strange and foreign land that's forever Lemmings.

So how does Dave rate Lemmings 2's chances as we come up to the big battle for Christmas Number One?

"Well, clearly this isn't a completely original product, but I don't see why it shouldn't be just as big a hit – there's a lot more to it than there was to the first game. What anyone's seen so far is just a tiny fraction of what's going to be in the finished thing, there are so many features that nobody knows anything about. Street Fighter II is the game everyone seems to think will be the one to beat, but I'm not sure how well that's going to translate to a one-button Amiga joystick. It remains to be seen how good a programming job they do on it, but yes, I do fancy our chances whatever happens. Lemmings 2 has been in development for eighteen months, and when you buy it I think you'll realise why."

Some daredevil lemmings perform the amazing 'living waterfall' routine.

Verdict so far: So there you have it. Lemmings 2 might indeed look almost exactly like its illustrious forebear, but it promises to offer a quite tangibly different gameplay experience. Personally I'm going to miss the squeaky 'Oh no!' of an exploding lem and the sudden rush of panic you used to get when you realised that a whole pack of the little blighters were about to plunge to their death over a cliff that was just a pixel too high, but in every other way this looks like a significant improvement on one of the best games of all time. After the relative failure of Oh No! More Lemmings, though, it's going to have to be. There's a lot riding on this one.

Game: Gunship 2000
Publisher: Microprose
Authors: Kevin Buckner, Mark James, Mark Langerack (Amiga)
ETA: November

Briefly: Chopper buffs will no doubt realise that Gunship 2000 is the successor to the original heli-sim, Gunship.

MicroProse's new chopper sim offers the player even more multi-copter options – you'll be able to choose up to three types of helicopter from the seven offered. Furthermore, you can take up to five on any one mission. You'll be flying your chopper solo or leading a squadrons on search and destroy missions through Central Europe and the Persian Gulf. But this doesn't mean that you'll be limited in any way in mission choice – Gunship 2000's game structure enables you to designate any preferred mission.

Among the options offered you'll find a useful training section and the facility for single and multiple helicopter missions. But the main attraction for any serious 'copter freak is the campaign game. This features a useful combat map showing the main tides of the battle. During the campaign game you're almost certain to come across the mission builder. It's one of the most innovative aspects of the game enabling you to design and edit your own missions.

A great deal of attention has been paid to the graphics – landscape detail is surprisingly realistic. Such realism has been achieved with the aid of a new landscaping system dubbed Topographical 3D. You'll find terrain with depressions, such as river banks and valleys and elevations such as mountains and buildings. There are bound to be comparisons drawn between the ground detail of Gunship and DI's Tornado. True, Gunship doesn't look as detailed as Tornado, but it's still fairly impressive for an Amiga conversion.

The creators speak: All conversion graphics and programming have been carried out in house by the MicroProse team. Kevin Buckner and Mark Langerack who both worked on the Knights Of The Sky conversion for the Amiga, are now at the helm of the Gunship conversion. Jonathan Oldham, is Project Manager for the Gunship 2000 project. He explained how the Amiga version had been converted from its PC stablemate.

"To achieve the frame rate of the PC version we simplified and speeded up routines. With the line of sight routine for example, we used a mathematical formula instead of the PC's imaginary bullet routine. You'll also find that we've improved the artificial intelligence of the wingman."

So does the Amiga version include any additional features?

The entire landscape of Gunship 2000 is mapped out in painstaking detail, with rivers mountains, valleys, the works.

Of course, this being a hi-tech game, it's possible to set an auto height adjuster. Handy for avoiding large mountains.

"Yes it does. Unlike the PC version we now have a waypoint facility on the map in the second level to improve navigation. We're also trying to make the missiles act more realistically in the Amiga conversion."

The Amiga conversion team have also touched up a few of the PC problems, such as the TADS (Target Acquisition Display), which proved a little too unreliable at times.

Verdict so far: It's critical that a heli-sim achieves a feeling of speed. Unfortunately Gunship on the Amiga is a lot slower than its PC counterpart. But don't be downhearted, there's still time for improvement. After all, MicroProse's track record for flight sim conversions has been very good – Knights Of The Sky being the obvious example. Indeed the latter proved to be far better on the Amiga.

A first glance at Gunship doesn't reveal enough to warrant full appraisal, but it does seem to be shaping well against its acclaimed PC stablemate. Lack of pace is critical and although ground detail is there, we'd like to see it move faster.

● MATTHEW SQUIRES

"Landscape detail is surprisingly realistic"

The real beauty of flying in a helicopter is the ability to skim the ground in spectacular style. Here, we see the 'copter about to swing down into the safety of a valley.

Game: The Chaos Engine
Publisher: Renegade
Authors: Steve Cargill and Mike Montgomery (code), Simon Knight and Eric Matthews (design), Dan Malone (graphics), Richard Joseph (sound fx)

Briefly: The Bitmap Brothers turn their attentions to multi-directional scrolling, multi-player shoot-'em-ups, with a game not unlike Speedball 2 meets Total Carnage. Two players, or one and the computer (more of that later), each get to select a gun-toting mercenary, then fight through 16 levels spanning four H G Wellsian worlds, in an effort to destroy The Chaos Engine – a machine which is disrupting the fabric of space and time, and has (coincidentally) transformed the previously pleasant inhabitants of the surrounding area into ravenous mutants.

THE CHAOS ENGINE

And so... ahem... chaos ensues.

The Creators Speak: The mixture of sci-fi and the steam age is suspiciously similar to William Gibson and Bruce Sterling's 'cyber-steam' novel, The Difference Engine. But, as Eric Matthews says, "It's coincidence. We've been working on The Chaos Engine for two years now. The idea actually came about in an effort to devise a scenario a bit more imaginative than the usual 'defend the earth from the aliens' plot."

"Destined to be up there with Lemmings 2"

Perhaps the most astounding technical feat of Chaos is way the computer guides a second mercenary in one-player mode – it actually feels like playing alongside a human counterpart. It makes a refreshing change from lonely solo modes and worthless computer drones.

Eric Matthews explains: "It took an incredible amount of time to achieve, but we're happy with the results. We actually tried bringing people into the office, sitting them alongside another person holding a joystick, then challenging them to guess whether the other fighter was under player or computer control."

The strategy element in The Chaos Engine is heightened by the use of character statistics, which can be gradually improved as the game progresses. In one-player mode, the computer-controlled mercenary has a statistic governing his mental ability. As the levels get progressively more complex, so your money can be spent boosting the secondary player's intelligence.

"We actually refined the intelligence routines to the point where the computer could complete the game for you," reckons Eric. "Obviously we had to pull back, we didn't want to make it too easy."

In play The Chaos Engine echoes such classic violent arcade blasters as Total Carnage (the successor to Smash TV), with its scrolling levels, bonus objects, and apocalyptic power-ups. But, as usual, there is a number of clever things going on in the background.

Eric: "There's a fair bit of problem-solving and strategy required in the game, but everything can be achieved with a gun."

The idea is to make it instantly playable, but offer hidden rooms, alternative pathways, and other neat touches – to give the player new things to do each time."

And, as is par for the course in Bitmap products, the game world will adjust subtly to suit the player's abilities. Fare badly, and the mutants won't be quite so ferocious, but act cowardly and it'll be evident in the scores.

Verdict So Far: It looks like The Chaos Engine will be up there with Lemmings 2 this Christmas – critically and commercially.

less than it deserves.

MIRACLE

Robert Maxwell's 'accident' was bad news for thousands of pensioners. But not for Amiga players, for his demise inspired coding veteran Delvin Sorrell to form development team Miracle Games at the beginning of this year. He was soon joined by another old hand, Graeme Ashton, and now the outfit is a dozen strong.

The team's portfolio includes many budget

C64 titles for the now defunct Telecomsoft to conversions of such delicacies as Teenage Mutant Hero Turtles for the Amiga and Xenon 2: Megablast for CDTV. Their philosophy is simple: produce quality product on time. "On time's the important point," says Delvin. "We're not going to stick to any one style either - it totally limits what you can do." Gary Penn investigates...

features the bonus stage shoot-'em-up. Spry's Funk is played against the clock, with indestructible junk blocks appearing at the bottom of the pit (the two player version is competitive, with the familiar GameBoy Tetris twist of feeding each other indestructible blocks by competing lines). Finally, there's Shazza's Soul race against clock in which the timer is extended by completing levels.

The Creators Speak: "The idea was mine and my wife

Debbie's," says Delvin. "We wanted something fun to play so this is it.

And would you believe I've only just got to see Columns."

Verdict So Far:

Could well be as successful as Klax, Tetris and others of that infuriatingly addictive ilk.

ZYCONIX

Publisher: Accolade
Authors: Delvin Sorrell (Design & Coding), Debbie Sorrell (Visuals & Design), Jeremy Ashton (Front End Visuals), Henry Jackman (Sound & Music)
ETA: November 11th

Briefly: Zyconix is yet another one of those arcade puzzlers, only this one seems to be thrown up as a result of digesting Arkanoid, Columns and Tetris and a few other titles of those ilk.

In Zyconix, coloured blocks fall down the screen into a pit and are picked up and dropped to form lines, which disappear. Special features make an occasional appearance and include a ball which is used with an ad hoc bat to knock out the blocks below. There's even a shoot-'em-up section to be played for bonus points.

Zyconix's action is accompanied by four impressive pieces music which correspond to the variations of play on offer. Each version (for one or two players) is named after a character to suit the mood. Louis' Jazz provides the basic theme, while Dazza's Rave

"The result of digesting Arkanoid, Columns and Tetris"

APOCALYPSE

Publisher: Virgin Games Software
Authors: Strangeways (Original Design), Frank Szendzielarz (Code), Dokk (Visuals), Henry Jackman (Sounds & Music)
ETA: Easter 1993

Briefly: If you were to put your hand into the bag of tricks that is Apocalypse you'd pull out fragments of Defender, Choplifter,

Fort Apocalypse and other like-minded Commodore 64 favourites of old. Apocalypse is so-called because its action is reminiscent of that stunning bit in the Apocalypse Now film where entire villages are wasted with napalm.

The action takes place on the insignificant island of Majipoor, home to a heavily-armed enemy force holding captive hundreds of prisoners of war. The player's on a rescue mission in a top chopper, braving flak, missiles, rockets and bullets (you don't see those - just the muzzle flashes) to pick up PoWs and deposit them in a safe zone.

A seldom seen scene of Dokk's atmospheric animated introductory sequence.

without sacrificing playability for the sake of a perfect flight simulation.

The chopper's firepower is boosted with rockets, heat-seeking missiles and napalm - all acquired from supply boxes on the ground. The hardware is used to destroy enemy outposts, soldiers, and even the PoWs. Only the flora and fauna remains intact. And yet, somehow, through the chaos comes order enough to provide the necessary playability.

The Creators Speak: "We've basically taken over Apocalypse where Strangeways left off," says Miracle Games boss Delvin Sorrell. "There's still the three scrolling layers of parallax - the silhouetted scenery in the background, the graduated skyline and the foreground objects for added depth. And you can still destroy practically everything.

"We've got loads of special effects - machine guns, multi-layered explosions, screams, flames... We're now trying to fit it all into half a meg."

Verdict So Far: Apocalypse is certainly living up to its name. The wholesale destruction packs a mean punch in every department but it remains to be seen whether the four levels will provide enough scope for appreciating the action, even if they do repeat with added difficulty.

The first of four explosive-mendous levels is a dense (duh?) jungle.

GAMES

DICK SPECIAL

Publisher: TBA

Authors: Gordon Leggatt (Design), Delvin Sorrell & Graeme Ashton (Code), Jeremy Ashton (Visuals)
ETA: TBA

Briefly: Miracle Games are looking to produce a fully interactive animated cartoon with a main character of 108 pixels high. That character is Dick Special, a private detective out to recover and reassemble his mutilated teddy bear (aah) and bring the chummy (villains) responsible to justice.

As the bad guys are discovered (there's no telling where they might be hiding, so don't forget to check the wardrobe, vicar) and captured and taken to the local nick, the respective Wanted posters inside Dick's portable office (a whole furnished room which springs up from a suitcase) curl up and fall from the wall to the floor.

Dick Special combines elements of arcade adventure, and slap-stick and situation comedy with cartoon and comic book quirks (Dick 'converses' with the player through thought bubbles).

Nothing is what it seems. During the search for villains there are dozens of puzzles to solve, most of them bizarre (strings of sausages and dehydrated and inflatable people are three of the more peculiar objects to be found) but all of them logical. Clues are often staring the player in the face, and because Dick has a character of his own, he won't do anything foolish if he doesn't think it's a good idea.

This is the third attempt at bringing Dick Special to the Amiga (it almost resurfaced through Activision as The Captain Is Dead, but it was swallowed up when the company ran into problems and changed hands in 1991), and it looks as though this time he will make it.

The Creators

Speak: "It's a completely new game. All that's the same is the character's name," says Delvin. "We're redesigning the Dick character at the moment."

"We haven't approached many publishers yet. We're still looking but we're concentrating on making it primarily a console product."

Verdict So Far: Dick Special looks and sounds different, that's for sure. It could carve a niche of its own. Or it could end up like the wooden car with wooden wheels and a wooden engine. At this early stage it's fair to say that Dick Special is very interesting and certainly one to look out for.

THE BOUNCY BAT GAME (WORKING TITLE)

Authors: Delvin Sorrell (Design & Code) & The Miracle Games Team
ETA: TBA

Briefly: A tribute, if you will, to the likes of Mario and Sonic The Hedgehog. The Bouncy Bat Game (so called because the hero is a bat-like creature who can - no! - bounce, among other things) is at a very early stage in its development, which is why it currently involves little more than running around a contoured landscape and collecting coins. The sky's the limit as far as features are concerned though, and Miracle Games have plenty of fun ones planned, so they say.

The Creators Speak: "We've got it running at 50 frames a second, which is as fast as it can go. It's as fast as Sonic, but everyone seems to be doing Sonic-type games so we want to go for something more like Super Mario World."

We're using the Amiga's hardware for the parallax scrolling. The foreground and background have eight colours each, and the sprites have 16 colours, which is more than enough for a colourful game.

"We're looking to have 100 levels or so across different worlds, with loads of hidden rooms and bonuses. We did have a Candyland and an Iceland and some other graphics but since Zoo's come out with that sort of stuff in it we've scrapped all the scenery and started again. It's a product that has to stand up on its own merits and not everyone else's."

"We'll certainly have some full screen, fully animated Boss characters. The link between the levels is tubes. The bat curls up into ball and spins through the tubes, with the scrolling running at 16 pixels at 50 frames a second. That's very fast indeed. The product will probably end up being one meg only because we're putting so much in it. We still have to find a publisher for it, though."

Verdict So Far: Technically, The Bouncy Bat Game wouldn't be out of place on a console or even in an arcade. There's huge potential for a run 'n' jump romp to beat them all. Let's hope the design will live up to the expectations set by the technical achievements. ●

The animation frames for the star of The Bouncy Bat Game. At the moment he has 90 frames for one direction only and catering for movements such as running, jumping, headbutting, throwing fruit and flying. The bat will also be able to interact with other characters - say, riding docile creatures - and swim underwater.

In the midst of the game, we are in death. Ashes to ashes, bouncing bats to dust. These are the animation sprites for the death of our brave hero.

REACH FOR THE SKIES

Game: Reach For The Skies
Publisher: Virgin
Authors: Rowan
ETA: October

Briefly: Imagine yourself as a pilot in the Battle of Britain, the most terrific fight for air supremacy seen in the Second World War. Here's a game that offers you the option of either pilot or controller. As a controller you set up the attack or response to attack, and then, as pilot, you lead your squadron into battle at the flight controls of any of a number of World War 2 planes.

You can fly for the Luftwaffe or the RAF. As controller of the Luftwaffe your aim is to reduce the RAF strength to three quarters of its original level. To achieve this you must use certain strategies – destroying aircraft in the air, or knocking out aircraft factories. The aim of the RAF controller is to stop the latter.

As pilot, your aim is simply to stay alive during battle and to work your way up the aces table, not unlike Microprose's Knights Of The Sky. Piloting on either side enables close aerial manoeuvres, and demands controlled flight strategy.

Reach For The Skies certainly has a well structured game scenario, but what about the mechanics? Here you have the choice of control via mouse, keyboard or the more authentic flight analogue

"The fun is in the close aerial combat"

Take part in real events – and change the course of the War.

effort on creating the artificial intelligence. There are many, many possible interactions between aircraft and aircraft, and aircraft and controllers. This joystick. An autopilot recentralises your flight path if you happen to go off course and gets you back into the thick of the action by redirecting you to the combat target. It's also possible to do this manually by referring to the map screen.

Well executed external views give you just about every angle you require to find the target – zoom in and out or rotate horizontally and vertically.

Reach For The Skies features eight different, historically and technically accurate aircraft, from Spitfires to Heinkels. You'll find that true to life, the planes vary in speed and power – Rowan took into account the technical specifications of each different plane and fed it into the game.

The creators speak: We talked to Rod Hyde, who not only designed the game, but is also project manager. What was the most important aspect of the game's development?

"The fact that we wanted to get a lot of aircraft in the sky, meant we had to concentrate our means that not only can you have two games in one, but you're also able to move between aeroplanes."

So how did you achieve this multi-interaction?

"Basically the method is to send information packets between aircraft. The fun of the game as far as we're concerned is close aerial combat."

How did you achieve the historical and highly detailed authenticity?

"We went to RAF Hendon's research library and the Imperial War Museum to go through photograph and sound archives. Our artist, Mark Shaw, actually got into the cockpits of aircraft at Hendo, to sketch the cockpit instrumentation. It was so dark the video didn't work so we had someone illuminate the cockpit with a torch."

Verdict so far: It does look on course to be one of the better flight combat sims – plenty of variety is provided through the Luftwaffe/RAF and Pilot/Controller options. Strategy and planning are left to the player, while controls and handling are as authentic as you could imagine. Rowan have gone one better than the ever-popular Knights of the Sky.

JUST WHO DO WE THINK WE ARE?

MARK RAMSHAW

Young Mark's weight remains his most pressing concern. It's just that now he's worried about how much weight he's lost since he took over as editor. He can't win.

Mark's favourite smells are cinnamon bagels, Play-Doh and strawberry body lotion.

STUART CAMPBELL

Stuart's expensive dental work continues. The rest of us think this is great, not because we wish the lad any pain, but because he can't talk when he gets back from the dentist's.

Stuart's favourite smells are girls, vinegar, strawberries and napalm in the morning.

TIM NORRIS

Tim's been tending to his garden this month. Each morning he gives us detailed reports on how well his grass has grown since we last saw him. Thanks, that's fascinating.

Tim's favourite smells are Coco (by Chanel), creosote, coconut pyramids and bananas.

GARY PENN

Gary spent most of the month resting after the rigors of having to write the Autumn Preview and Where Are They Now? for last month's issue. When he was properly rested he counted his money.

Gary's favourite smells are pesto, fresh juice and fresh sweat (before it goes all yucky).

JACQUIE SPANTON

Disappointed by the lack of offers to be made bionic, Jacquie's been taking things easy this month. She tried bursting a tennis ball with her bare hand but it hurt her wrist.

Jacquie's favourite smells are Orange Twixes and Dettol. Clean and wholesome.

SALLY MEDDINGS

Another landmark for daughter Eliza – this month Sal's been laughing at her learning to walk. At least she was until she realised that it looked like her when she was drunk.

Sally's favourite smells are freshly baked bread, Espresso coffee and Sainsbury's coconut soap.

RICHARD LONGHURST

More family fun for Richard who took a spot of paternity leave for the birth of the latest Longhurst. So he's just been taking the time to enjoy playing with his children. Bless him.

Richard's favourite smells are maternity wards and NappySan. It could have been worse...

ADAM PETERS

Adam has been making up for Mark's poor performance in the nutrition stakes and has devoted his spare time to eating and becoming fat. Not much of a life for a young man.

Adam's favourite smells are strawberries (that old favourite) with mangoes a close second.

JONATHAN DAVIES

Jonathan's been working terribly hard to get the first issue of our new sister mag ready. It's for SNES owners and it's called Super Play. Is that a good enough plug for you, JD?

Jonathan's favourite smell is fresh mown hay.

And the scary thing is that we believe him.

MATTHEW SQUIRES

It was Matt's stag night this month. Very little actual damage was caused, no one was particularly badly hurt and insurance claims are expected to be uncharacteristically low.

Matthew's favourite smells are garlic, liver and onions, and freshly baked chocolate cake.

LES ELLIS

Les's life really seems to be coming together. Not only has he got a great job with the best-selling Amiga games magazine, he also got engaged.

Congratulations, Les – the drinks are on you.

Les's favourite smells are ice cold Coke™ and his mum's roast dinners. Refreshingly normal.

DAVE GOLDER

"I hate this bit – I've never done anything interesting." Make something up then. "I went to the moon, will that do?" We're not sure anyone's going to believe you but it is interesting.

Dave's favourite smell is freshly baked bread (he waxed lyrical on the subject for ages).

RICH PELLEY

Rich hasn't actually contributed anything to the magazine this month, but we enjoy using this photo. Oh, and he did very well in his A levels. Congratulations, Rich.

Rich's favourite smells are Old Spice, rum and pieces of eight. Yo ho ho.

RONNIE RANDALL

This month Ronnie was taken by limousine to the airport, and flown (by private jet) to Switzerland to meet Dieter Meier (of Yello's) dog. And, for once, we didn't make that up.

Ronnie's favourite smells are limousines, alpine breezes and flea spray.

Sob... the summer was over, but we're not down-hearted, oh no. What it means is that we've got loads of great new titles to play and – yes! – even write about. We just couldn't be happier.

And you, you lucky reader...for you, we've still got a magazine packed with more great stuff than you can shake a hand-carved oak stick at.

So read on for reviews of Archer Maclean's follow-up to Snooker – Pool; a platform funster – Doodlebug; a cyber-punk arcade adventure – BAT2; an utterly fabulous shooty fighty wonderful adventure – Assassin; and tons, frankly, more.

We've got the latest budget releases as well as PD and shareware beyond the dreams of the most incredibly tight-fisted. What more could an AMIGA POWER reader possibly want? (Apart, that is, from love, peace, happiness and obscene quantities of cash.)

Pool – Archer Maclean does it again.

Red Zone – great, or a crashing bore?

THE AMIGA POWER SCORING SYSTEM (AND HOW IT WORKS): AN EASY-TO-USE BEGINNERS GUIDE

The AMIGA POWER reviewing philosophy is an absolute doddle to understand. No, really, it's simple. But if you're reading this at all you must want to know at least a little bit more, so here, in all its glory, is The Way We Do Things At AMIGA POWER....

- 1) We're all aware of how much software costs, which is why we believe a game has to be really good to be worth buying – or worth giving a good mark. Happily, there's more than enough top-notch stuff around if you only look – we mark as hard as we do to prevent you from wasting time (or money!) on the bad ones. You'll thank us for it in the end...
- 2) We believe rating systems should be simple and easy to understand. That's why we just give one mark out of 100, a few summing up sentences, and that's it. What more is there?
- 3) A third point? Good point.

3D perfection in Archer Maclean's Pool – they'll be cue-ing up for this one.

Game: Pool
Publisher: Virgin
Author: Archer Maclean
Price: £25.99
Release: End of October

Three pages? THREE PAGES? For God's sake, Mark... Okay, okay, calm down, Stu. You're a professional journalist, you can cope with this. I mean, how difficult can it possibly be to write three pages of review on a game which everybody in the world already owns in a slightly different incarnation? I mean, think of all the shared experiences you'll be able to draw on. Observational humour's the big thing these days, after all. Um...

INSPIRATION STRIKES!

Americans, eh? Don't you just hate 'em? (Oh no. – Ed) Oh sure, it's all very nice to have someone to fly over to the Middle East at a moment's notice and defend oil prices – er, democracy. And in these post-Cold War days, who else are we going to get to shoot our soldiers when the Army needs a bit of pruning? And I don't know how we ever survived all those years without having our chocolate bars called days you can't avoid 'em. Still, at least this one's not called Snooker 2.

Sequels, eh? Love 'em or hate 'em, these great things like 'Snickers'. And what we'd have done without The Cosby Show to brighten our evenings and teach us good proper God-fearing morals I can't even begin to imagine. But basically, let's face it, they're crap. Why? Well, my granny always used to say that you can judge a nation by its sport, and I agree totally. Let's take a few examples.

Scotland: Football. The people's game. The most beautiful sport in the world. Enough said.

England: Cricket. Ludicrously over-complicated, unbelievably boring, goes on for days and days to no apparent purpose.

The 'trick' here is to whack the cue ball as full strength without hitting any other balls.

Australia: Australian Rules Football. A gigantic punch-up for lots of drunk bodybuilders in vests. With a ball.

Ireland: Hurling. Australian Rules Football with big sticks. Incredibly dangerous. Also features a ball, but it seems to be completely incidental to the proceedings.

Spain: Bullfighting. Ritualised torture and murder of unarmed dumb animals for no readily apparent reason. Probably something to do with General Franco, I should think.

Germany: Invading Belgium (I think that's quite enough national sports. - Ed)

Now let's take a look at the Americans. Oddly, the Americans don't really have one particular national sport, but several. Let's have a look at a few.

First, there's American Football, a game where it's perfectly possible to have a 20-year career as a top player without ever touching a ball with your feet. Or indeed touching a ball at all.

Basically, American Football is rugby for people who weren't actually skilful enough to play rugby. Then you've got baseball, ie a version of rounders with simplified rules for people who couldn't remember the proper ones. (Are you spotting the theme here yet, kids?) And as for wrestling...

And finally there's pool. Simple snooker. What's wrong, boys, I'd have thought snooker was the perfect game for you - lots of scope for ad breaks there...

Actually, I'm just kidding. I don't really hate Americans, or anybody else just because of where they were born. After all, Dr Johnson once said 'patriotism is the last refuge of the scoundrel'. Mind you, he was an Englishman, so what the bloody hell would he know about anything? But you've got to admit, they've got some pretty stupid ideas about sport. Which, in a sudden burst of relevance, brings us back to Pool. (What do you mean, 'back'? - Ed)

REVIEW STARTS HERE

Now you're all sat there thinking 'Yeah yeah, but it's just exactly the same as Jimmy White's Whirlwind Snooker, innit?' Well, sort of. I mean, there's no point in me sitting here brazenly trying to tell you it's a completely different kettle of chalk when it's patently obvious from the evidence in front of your eyes that it's not. You could probably make your own pool game simply by using Snooker's trick shot editor to set up a pool-type ball formation (using reds for one colour and the colours for, er, the Archer Maclean's Pool - The Complete Playing Guide in three easy lessons.

Fig.1 Start with a table arranged in a manner not at all unlike this...

other colour) and then playing on from there. Of course, you'd have to ignore everything the computer said about foul shots and whose go it was and stuff, but it would (as far as I can see) actually work. So what have you got to gain by buying this instead?

Well, for a start, obviously, you'd be getting to play pool on a properly-sized table instead of something more like a football pitch, but there's a bit more to it than that. For a start, Pool gives you 20 opponents compared to Snooker's four. Not only that, but the top players in Pool are a considerably more talented (and more interestingly-named) bunch than their Snooker counterparts - two-cushion rebounds and three-ball cannons are well within the capabilities of Cross Eyed Chris, Jimmy Brill, Alex Smartarse and the rest. Also, and perhaps most interestingly, you get three completely different kinds of game to play. Well, not completely different, they're still pool, but you can play UK bar rules pool, American 9-ball (a strange and fascinating game where the objective is simply to pot the 9 ball regardless of what else is on the table, but you always have to hit the lowest-numbered ball), and American 8-ball which is essentially similar to the UK game but with a few tweeky little differences just to make it a bit more interesting. (Someone hasn't done their research properly around here, and it isn't me. - Ed)

Fig. 2 Now do lots of really clever ball-potting stuff, which will undoubtedly involve looking at tables like this rather a lot.

Completing the line-up of differences is a little technical one - you now get tons of save slots on the game disk where

Fig. 3 End up with something looking a bit like this. Hey presto! You ARE Archer Maclean! Probably. Alternatively, you're playing one of the computer opponents...

If you're not careful here, you're going to miss the cue ball altogether. All kinds of spin are catered for, except, inexplicably, Bolivian Nostril Spin.

34

As with JWWS, Pool lets you get right down on the baize for a cue's-eye view of the action. Of course, you can't really see anything useful, but it's nice anyway.

I hope there aren't many more pictures to go, I don't think I can keep this up very much longer.

Phew, made it! The last screenshot! One more caption and I've done it! Thank God! Y'know, I really didn't think I was going to make it then.

Snooker only had one.

So all very fine and dandy then, but is it worth buying if you've already got Whirlwind Snooker? Don't be daft, guv'nor. There are very tangible and worthwhile differences, but be honest with yourself – how much use do you really have for 20 save game slots? And do you really WANT to be thrashed by a computer opponent which can flawlessly pull off the cleverest, most perfect snookers you can land on it, and then go on to clear the entire table in two shots? I certainly don't, mate.

There are quite enough depressingly horrible things that you've got no control over going on in the world without paying out good money to get yourself all frustrated and annoyed over a computer game. Not that that stops it from being a great two-player game, of course, but when you're already paying out 26 quid for a game you shouldn't have to supply someone else to play it with if you want a decent difficulty curve as well. Even the worst of the computer opponents in Pool are disturbingly proficient at the game, and that's a little offputting.

Taken in isolation, this is a fabulous bit of software, but there's no escaping the fact that to all intents and purposes it already exists. If you're new to the Amiga, or so crap at knowing a good game when you see one that you don't have a copy of Whirlwind Snooker, then this is undoubtedly the better of the two to invest a few bob in (if only because Pool is essentially a better and more exciting game than Snooker), but for everyone else, and that has to be the vast majority, this is an unnecessary luxury, and there's precious few of us can afford those these days.

● STUART CAMPBELL

AND HERE ARE A FEW TRICK SHOTS I PREPARED EARLIER...

Left: Oh no, more pictures! Mmm, here we are in trick shot central, where it's possible to make things as hard as you want.

Right: Take this shot, for instance. It need a keen eye and Maths degree.

Left: Alternatively, why not pretend you're on a game show, and set up ludicrous shots like this?

Right: The aiming line comes in mighty handy, particularly over distances like this.

UPPERS The same beautiful game engine as before, but now tweaked, refined, improved and attached to a zappler game.

DOWNERS Well... it's still not exactly all that different, is it? And maybe it's just me being crap, but I can never seem to get the view of the table I really want (a nice simple overhead one where you can judge angles properly and see where everything's going), either. And the gliding striped balls are a bit crap.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Great stuff, but not for owners of Whirlwind Snooker. It's an obvious conclusion I know, but then so are the endings of the Shakespearean tragedies and nobody complains about them. So get off my case, okay?

Cute platformers starring insects seem to be in vogue

Game: Doodlebug
Publisher: Core Design
Author: Adrian Cummings
Price: £25.99
Release: Out right now

Cute! Console-esque! Platforms! Quite good! Etc! Will that do? Thought not. One day they'll let me get away with that, y'know. One day they'll realise that there's really nothing to be said about this kind of game that you can't instantly work out for yourself simply by looking at the pictures on the pages and the percentage box at the end. It's a cutesy platform game, in that style that we jokingly refer to as 'console-esque' for no other reason than consoles are the flavour of the month and if we make something at the moment. Here's the latest from Core.

Doodlebug tries out his Richard Branson impression – or is he being levitated by the spooky bald dude?

The third level is guarded by the Black Knight who bounces about in a most alarming manner.

Our insectoid hero jumps for joy as he reaches the end of one of the stages of Toy World. Oh, and we'd prefer it if you didn't ask how we managed to get 999 time units and nine of everything else. Thanks.

ALL AROUND THE WORLDS, I'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR YOU

Although, as an insect, he should have three times as many feet as anyone else, Doodlebug still doesn't have to wear them out by walking everywhere. Not when there are all these handy vehicles to be used...

The forest level is populated by, amongst others, this cute little gnome dude...

...who'll quite happily sell you a powerful baddie-proof buggy to trundle around in.

The Creepy Castle's Arthur Daley is a wizard. Or is he just the gnome in a hat?

In Toy World, 10 gold pieces will secure this Yellow Submarine (altogether now...)

The ice world (I hate those) boasts... insert your 'chopper' gag here...

As with all the vehicles, inside the helicopter you're totally invulnerable.

Is there intelligent life on Earth, or is this alien only visiting?

EBUG

sound like it could have come from Nintendo or Sega, you lot are much more likely to actually go out and buy it. The fact that 90% of real console games are actually crappy beat-'em-ups or scrolling blasters goes conveniently un-noticed. Truth of the matter is, games like this are about as 'computer-esque' as it's possible to get – from Miner 2049er back in 1973 or whenever it was, platform-leaping has been the staple diet of the computer gamer. These days, if you're an 8-bit computer owner, it's practically impossible to buy anything else. Maybe we should just call this sort of game 'Spectrum-esque', hmm?

MEANWHILE, BACK AT THE RANCH >

But (as usual), I'm getting away from the point. I suppose you want me to talk about Doodlebug now. (Yes, please. – Ed)

Doodlebug is subtitled Bug Bash II, which for those of you with short memories refers to a game reviewed in our PD column way back in issue six (three stars, if you're interested). It's got next to nothing in common with that game, though, as Bug Bash was a simplistic and pretty dull scrolling shoot-'em-up, so forget I mentioned it. Or just try not to think about it. Actually, come to think about it, there was something I was wondering about the name. How much is there to be gained from associating what you're trying to push as a big, bright, sexy, 'console-esque' platform game with a frankly not much cop PD shoot-'em-up from about two years ago? (Bug Bash was a £15 'budget' game before it became a sort of PD thing, y'see.) It doesn't seem like particularly smart marketing to me. Then again, what would I know about it? But I'm digressing again.

The game is made up of five levels, each with three sub-levels and a big boss screen. The graphics, as befits a game allegedly set in the kingdom of Cartoonia, are cartoony and colourful and all that sort of stuff, and depict the usual kinds of worlds that are found in this kind of game – forests, icy wastes, creepy castles and so on. There's some rather nice parallax scrolling, lots of cutesy sprites, and plenty of incidental stuff that you can see for yourself in the screenshots. Soundwise we're also in familiar territory, with bouncy little nursery-rhyme tunes and twinkly effects, and it's all very pleasant.

In the gameplay department, though, there's a distinct suggestion of some new stuff. While the majority of the game is spent running around picking up treasures and killing baddies by jumping on their heads, Doodlebug has a novel theme at its centre. By selecting one of five icons along the bottom of the screen (by the convenient method of simply pulling down on the joystick to cycle through the list), the game's eponymous hero can throw out one of five different colours of magic pencil (assuming he's collected some, that is). The pencils will kill baddies if they hit them, but more importantly, if their flightpath is uninterrupted they'll swiftly draw one of four useful devices that Doodlebug can use to help him on his quest. An umbrella saves him from death by long fall (yes, after a long absence the Platform Game Where You Can Die By Falling A Long Way is back in vogue), a balloon gives him a quick lift past some tricky obstacle or other, a magic potion renders him completely invulnerable and a clock stops the time limit from counting down for a while. The fifth pencil (not actually a pencil at all, but an eraser) fulfils a smart-bomb function. What these little doobies do is not so much make your life easier (it's possible, as far as I can tell, to complete the game without using any of them) but add a neat extra element to the gameplay which gives you a bit more to think about than where the next baddie to jump on's coming from. It's a double-edged sword, of course – they also tempt you to venture into dangerous places where you'd otherwise not go in search of that useful extra smart bomb – but then that's part of the appeal of all great games, the balance between risk and reward, the gambling on your own skills.

So there you go. Everything you need to know about Doodlebug that you hadn't already ascertained for yourself from playing the demo that's impossibly handily sellotaped to the front of this very magazine. Except, maybe, that while later levels do get nastier (more baddies, needing more hits to kill and so on), they never really get viciously nasty or horrendously long, so if you're a real gaming hero you might get through this a bit quicker than you'd expect. That said, I reckon the difficulty is going to prove just about right for most average players, so if that sounds like you and you're a bit fed up of games that you never get to see the end of, this might be just what you've always been waiting for. It's certainly enough fun to make it worth trying.

● STUART CAMPBELL

"The difficulty is just about right for most players"

Doodlebug gets in some training for the later worlds. Yes, I know, I'm fired.

Luckily, Doodlebug comes equipped with an automatic aqualung

Aw, come oan, Doodlebug, screw the nut, eh? (That's a Scottish joke, by the way.)

The game comes with an 'ST mode' cheat, which switches off the pretty backdrops.

UPPERS It's cute, it's playable, and the control system works a lot better than you might expect it to. The pencil power-up concept is really sweet, too, and there are lots of nice touches, like the various vehicles you can buy from other characters to aid your progress.

DOWNERS It's possibly going to be a bit on the short side for dedicated platform fanatics, and the loading gaps between major levels are pretty massive. Dying when you fall a long(ish) way seems ridiculously out-of-date these days. Oh yeah, and I HATE slippery-slide inertia-heavy 'ice-world' levels – they're not big or hard or clever, they're really obvious and lazy and I'm completely sick of them. There, I've said it.

THE BOTTOM LINE

It's not really up there with Zool and The Addams Family, but it's not that far behind either. It reminds me of Fire And Ice, and it's good fun in a not-at-all-dissimilar sort of way.

BAT II

The Biodirectional Organic Bioputer (BOB) is exactly the sort of gadget James Bond will have in 22nd century. It monitors your agent and his immediate surroundings. BOB's main feature is a programming module which is terribly complicated, but you don't have to use it if you don't want to. Still, it's nice to know it's there.

If you're after an ambitious sci-fi adventure kind of affair, then you've come to the right place.

Game: BAT II
Publisher: Ubi Soft
Price: £30.99
Authors: Computer Dreams
Release: Out now

Here's a weird one. A vast science fiction RPG-cum-adventure game that has built-in flight simulators, a pseudo racing game, an Arkanoid clone, a little puzzle game and even a spot of Chinese checkers. The more technically minded among you, can even get a spot of programming done during the game as well. Well, I did say it was weird. But is it any good?

Seven games in one, eh? Hmmm. How does it all fit together? Better make sure the glue's pretty good or the whole thing's going to fall apart at the seams and you'll be left with a misshapen blob on your screen. Thankfully, the glue in BAT II is damn good stuff, because not only does it hold all the bits together, it creates one of the most involving adventure-gaming experiences you're ever likely to come across.

Despite the fantastic futuristic plot – something along the lines of a company having a monopoly of a substance called Echiatone 2, the king being a robot and you having to sort out the mess – the game is remarkably easy to believe in. Computer Dreams have gone to great lengths to create a complete

When you enter the bar (the action in this screen is in the bottom right corner) the quest for realism extends to your being able to buy booze and drink yourself unconscious.

OK, ready for action. The first step is to make a rendezvous in a seedy hotel with a voluptuous BAT agent called Sylvia. Holy Moses, this must be the place.

Wander through the hotel's room and the screen divides into quarters. It's odd, but it works well once you get used to it – usually after a couple of hours.

And here's Sylvia with some unhelpful directions. Click on the red words to get more information, but don't expect too much. Time to take the via express.

Get ready for the experience of a lifetime. If you didn't know, BAT stands for Bureau of Astrological Troubleshooters.

game world and it's surprising how quickly it begins to absorb you. Yes, you know it's in the 22nd century, when people can travel through black holes and do other absurdly unbelievable things, but the day-to-day life in Roma II is so involving that you believe that's how things will be 200 years from now.

IT'S CHARACTER BUILDING

All RPGs seem to start with character creation, and BAT II is no exception. It consists of adjusting pretty standard RPG statistics, including strength, charisma, vitality and intelligence. But as with most parts of the game there's a neat twist – you can define your desired combination of characteristics and use an in-game computer to trawl through the available agents to find your perfect match.

The first impression you get when you start the adventure proper is that you don't know what the hell's going on. Walk up a street and the screen splits in two. Go in a building and the screen divides into three. For the first couple of hours it's nigh-on impossible to tell where the Sam Hill you are, and where you'll be when move off the screen. The manual waffles on gaily about the Dynorama system, which enables 'images to come and go at will'. In theory it's a really good idea, but in practice it can often be downright confusing.

When you get used to the system, though, it does have many benefits. Because many locations only fill a quarter of the screen, they take up less disk space, and as a result you get more places to visit. It's also quicker to skip between four quarter-screen locations than to load four full-screen versions. See? It all makes some sort of sense in the long run, you've just got to be patient.

The sound effects, often an afterthought in many RPGs, add immensely to the game's atmosphere. Stand in the street and you can hear spaceships taking off and landing, wander over to the arcade and you hear suitable pinging and whizzing noises. Step inside and they get louder. It seems like a small point, but it really does make it easier to believe that you're wandering around a real city – play the game without the effects and you lose half the atmosphere.

The sub-games also add to the realistic effect. The simulators are used to travel from one place to another – you can go on autopilot if you want – and you can gamble on the arcade games to win badly-needed extra cash.

With all these extras, the game world seems so much more complete. You find yourself living a virtual life in the form of your BAT II agent. After all, he has to eat, drink and sleep (he can even be merry if you want, but that's another story), which means you have to frequent the shops, bars and nightclubs, and find places to spend the nights.

"Adventure is ultimately what BATII is all about"

RAISING CASH DOWN THE ARCADE

In the left-hand corner of the arcade you can play a rather tedious game of Chinese checkers. You should really only choose this one if you fancy a kip.

The best game is Quattro, a four-sided Arkanoids clone complete with power-ups. Play on here for hours, or until you lose all your money.

Tubular, a peculiar little puzzle game. You have to open and close taps to make each bucket contain the same amount of water. Very odd.

UPPERS A large number of locations and a wide variety of game elements creates an involving atmosphere. The adventure's that much more entertaining because it's easy to believe in the game world, and lose yourself in its intricacies. Enthralling plot adds to the excitement.

DOWNERS A really tough adventure to get into, and it's not helped by the split-screen layout, which is very confusing at the start. Conversations can sometimes be frustratingly useless.

THE BOTTOM LINE BATII draws on so many different styles that it could have turned into a molten mess of incoherent gameplay. But the combat and simulator sections work well, and the exciting adventure is heavily backed up with RPG-style elements. It's an unusual hybrid, but it works, and there's plenty of excitement to be had.

Game: Assassin

Release: Out now

There are many good fighters, but few top-ranking contenders. Many fall broken, battered and bruised by the wayside in their attempt to get to the top. But a small number do make it to the world arena – some through the amateur ranks, others on the streets, brawling and prizefighting. If you were to ask a member of the boxing fraternity about such fighters, they might well tell you of Sugar Ray Robinson and Marvin Hagler, both World Middleweight Champions during the 1980s. Both were in a class of their own, but at the top there was only room for one.

In the world of Amiga console-esque fight-'em-ups many, too, have come and gone. Some reach the Amiga from the sweat and bustle of the arcades, while others have been created solely for this, the most uncompromising of game machines. Like Hagler and Sugar Ray, they all have one goal – to be the best. Leander and use a boomerang?

commando daggers? Then why not

First Samurai were both 'able' contenders in the highly competitive field of wannabe Mega Drive games.

To survive such fierce competition, a game must have something special. Assassin's creators, Broadhurst and Dalton, brought you Dojo Dan, so they know the genre well. Team 17, publishers, see Assassin as their 'best creation to date'. But is that, in itself, good enough?

Assassin does have all the standard features of its genre – colourful, energetic graphics, multiple scrolling, lots of collectables and an end-of-game baddie. And for inspiration, just for a change, we're not in a world of ninjas and samurai – Assassin looks to the Aborigines of Australia in several ways, not least the choice of an armoured boomerang as weaponry. (But don't ask what the others are. – Ed)

You are the assassin, living in a land torn apart by the abuse of the evil tyrant, Midan. He hides deep underground in a highly complex lair system. World security demands that his evil reign be ended. One man is needed to enter the lair and destroy him. A highly versatile and athletic hit man, you're dropped behind enemy lines. You must now end the reign and survive to tell the tale.

The game is made up of five different levels, with an unrelenting flow of baddies and evil in all shapes and sizes. Your adversaries vary from snipers and mad construction welders to killer robots and pit bull terriers. The pit bulls introduce

MISSILE COMMAND – LEVEL THREE

In Missile Command you must reach the launch computer that holds all the codes. While you're running in between rockets watch out for nasty little creeps hanging from above. They produce killer fire from their backs.

Just listen to the squelch as you run over the mutant flesh. It's a mad mutant doctor. Don't let him get you and watch out for those green chimps.

How low can you go? Down in the sewers you'll find some hidden bonuses. You might even have to use your soul for a mega fireball.

There are lots of bonuses to collect, wherever you are. If you get lost, just look out for a little man to show you the way.!

THE GENETIC ASYLUM — AVOID THE CHIMPS AND DESTROY MIDAN'S MUTANT BABY.

themselves at the beginning. They're bound to bring a tear to your eye as they use the elements of surprise and terror — you never know when or where they're going to attack you. It's almost as bad as the real thing, but you'll be damn glad it isn't when you see where they grab you. Blood spurts out between their vicious jaws and it takes some shaking to get them off. For an enemy to be so convincing and terrifying in any game is some achievement. I defy anyone to be attacked by these vicious creatures and not cringe!

The strength of your enemy will depend on the skill level you've chosen, which you'll find among the endless options at the start of the game. Each of the three skill levels, Rookie, Arcade and Ultimate, are designed for different player abilities. In Rookie level you can only see the first two levels, but this enables you to get used to the game structure within the confines of an easier time limit. In Arcade mode you begin with three lives by default and play the complete game. Ultimate provides the toughest mode, rewarding you with the highest bonuses and strongest enemies.

Coming back to that Antipodean factor there's also a Boomerang selection mode, offering manual or automatic options. In manual mode you can select the effect of any boomerang power-up by firing at it with your boomerang. You'll →

ALWAYS TAKE THE WEAPONS WITH YOU!

Square 'Mega weapon' power-up capsules are very useful, not only are they very destructive, but they produce some impressive visual effects too.

With this you have the power to use the Robo-Walker mega-weapon. Two small robotic walkers are despatched damaging the first enemy in their path.

Enables you to use a set of Proxim-Mines. These cause heavy damage to un-armoured enemies.

Gives you the ability to use the Heat-Seeking Missiles. Three are sent forth to destroy as much as possible.

This means you can activate the Flame-Storm mega-weapon. Huge bolts of fire leap from your soul (Yikes! — Ed), destroying all nearby enemies.

This enables you to use the Flame-Path mega-weapon. A wall of fire which spreads outwards.

This is the first level, 'The Landing'. Watch out for the crusty hippies from hell and their Pitbulls.

I have only one burning desire — let me stand next to your fire.

Here in the Construction Zone you'll find that R2D2 isn't half as friendly as in Star Wars.

Boomerang power-up capsules. These are round and can be powered up more than once. Here's how you recognise them.

This makes your boomerangs move in a wider arc when thrown.

Gives your boomerang the power of multiplying to five.

This increases the actual power of the boomerang – the weapon will take on a different graphical form.

Boomerang speed is increased and the effect is thus improved.

This will increase the distance your boomerangs are thrown.

earn such a power-up by destroying an enemy and collecting the round capsule that remains. To change the effect of the power up capsule, you simply shoot it. Alternatively, in automatic mode it's impossible to change effects, but this does make a much faster game.

Even at the beginning of this game, then, you'll find that its variety and scope seem limitless. Another source of variety is the choice of lives on commencing the game – one, three or five. Greater bonuses are given for starting with one life, less for three and none if you start with five.

Assassin's energy system is very sensitive – you'll find that an uncontrolled fall will drain your energy just as much as a bad hit from enemy weaponry. Just as enemy strength varies, so too does the amount of boomerang power needed to kill them. Much destruction can be wreaked with your boomerang, but different enemies will require more hits than others, and in some cases a very precise strike will be needed to secure a kill.

At the beginning of each level an intro screen will tell you your objective and where you're going.

MY BOOMERANG WON'T COME BACK.

Midan's metallic labyrinth is the final section of the game – and as you might expect it's the hardest.

Your aim is to get as far into the base as you can. You'll begin after being dropped by helicopter in the woods. Fighting your way through the woods, you'll eventually reach a dome shaped building – the entrance to the lift shaft, level two. Make your way down the lift shaft to the construction zone. Here you must deactivate the crane to get into the third level, missile command. After reaching the launch computer enter into a mutation of flesh and evil doctors. If you manage to overcome the green putrid poisons and legless vomiting chimps, you're nearly there, but level five is no straightforward affair. Quite the opposite, it's Midan's labyrinth, and here you'll be treated to some Terminator-like beasts and weird chanting. Finally you'll get to meet Midan himself – you'll be both shocked and surprised, I promise. Assassin is nothing if not unpredictable.

As if the enemies and obstacles of each level weren't enough, there's a time limit too. Once a time limit is reached your assassin will really need a guardian angel watching over him, as reinforcements and stronger enemies attack him.

Like any good console style fight-em-up, Assassin offers you a wide variety of power-ups and collectables. Stars are just one example – there are loads to collect on every level. Get 99 and you'll be rewarded with a bonus life. There's so much to do in this game – at times it all seems too much.

Each level is packed with a variety of bonuses, and with so much going on it's possible to miss almost all of them (if you really try). You must search for these hidden extras. As you progress, power ups and collectables will enable you to gain more agile boomerangs, but that's not all. You'll score points bonuses, time bonuses and ultimately you'll build up special 'Mega-weapons'. You'll find these in the form of capsules in secret locations, which appear after you've destroyed a seriously BAD enemy. You can also find 'continue' bonuses, which enable you to continue the game from where you finished previously.

So that probably gives you some idea of the game's complex, but endlessly playable structure. Now you're probably wondering how the whole thing handles. My answer to that is simple – sweet as a nut (whatever that means). Everything is joystick operated, but within three modes.

Firstly without the fire button pressed down you control the assassin's movement around the scenery. He will interact with all scenery grabbing hold of anything to climb or swing from. It's this climbing and swinging action that will bring comparisons with Strider and First Samurai, but that's all there is to compare.

The movement is both smooth and powerful and the effort needed to control and activate the character's movements is minimal. General handling and controllability is very impressive – by pushing the joystick diagonally when your

ON THE OTHER HAND

Assassin is just an updated version of Turrican and Strider. The levels seem to be just too big. They could be scaled down quite easily and still manage to keep that arcadey feel. The style of play seems to be a little dated, so I'd have to say that it's good, but, not that good. I would knock the mark down into the mid to high 70s. It just doesn't feel as good as Switchblade 2, and that's two years old now.

● LES ELLIS

character hangs by his arms, a somersault can be performed resulting in a leap to the edge above. Holding the fire button down activates the boomerang in the direction you're facing. Boomerangs can be fired standing, crouching or hanging. If you've collected any of the pods press and hold the joystick button to access the impressive 'Mega weapons'. Look at the bottom of the screen to see which weapon is highlighted. Precise detonation can be achieved by holding the joystick up – this pauses the detonation. The handling and control are possibly the most satisfying aspects of Assassin.

With so much in there, it's impossible to cover it all, but the artwork and animation can't go unmentioned. Wild, innovative, brash and sometimes crude, they shock, impress and blend perfectly with Allister Brimble's sound effects. It all comes together to give Assassin a wonderfully tense atmosphere.

More than anything else, its sheer size and unpredictability will hit you. You never know what's going to get you next or where it's going to come from. Assassin performs with the arrogance and showmanship of Sugar Ray, but packs a punch like Marvelous Marvin. It's perhaps not as tight as, say First Samurai. But this is Team 17's finest moment yet.

● MATTHEW SQUIRES

"More than anything else, it's sheer size will hit you"

This skeleton nasty brings to mind Terminator, but apart from that the game brims with originality.

UPPERS Beautiful handling, effortless controllability, limitless scope and variety, stunning animation, brash artwork...I could go on forever.

DOWNERS Well if I really have to find something wrong with this game.....er yes, I know ...there's too many options and vegetarians might find the pit bull blood-spurting sequences a bit disturbing.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Here, I reckon, you have a game that's not far off perfect. This is a contender with class – the trouble is that when a game reaches this kind of standard it has no competition. Assassin has effortlessly climbed and somersaulted to the top of the heap.

Pathway To Power

Release: November

If you started as a slave in AD78, do

From what I've heard life as a leader of the mighty Roman empire was a good way short of perfect. Let's face it, all they did all day was plunder and pillage and then spend the night relaxing by the pool with wine, women and, er, some more wine and women. The only shortcoming in this ideal career was that they did tend to suffer from the habit of getting bumped off by disgruntled citizens every time something went wrong. Even though it was rather short-lived, it was still a position that just about everyone wanted. Even the slaves fancied a bash, and that's where you come in.

You are (or rather, the character you control is, seeing as you weren't actually around when the Romans were kicking some serious European butt), Hector. Hector is the lowest of the low. His nickname is Doormat because everyone walks all over him, in fact he's even lower than a Staff Writer on AMIGA POWER. (And don't you forget it. - Ed) This guy has been a slave all his life (also like a Staff Writer on AMIGA POWER, strangely enough) but is suffering from delusions of grandeur (just like...) (Snip! - Ed.) Hector wants to become the Emperor of Rome. A nice

ROME

FROM THE DIRECTION OF THE FORUM, HECTOR HEARS THE FAINT SOUND OF AN ANNOUNCEMENT BEING MADE:

Oh yez, oh yez. Get off your butts and come and watch some slaves get fed to the lions in the arena you squares.

Oh no! Somebody has stolen my clothes!!!!

Oh no he hasn't. Oh yes he has. Oh no he.... that's enough of that. A bit of gratuitous theft is the order of the day.

you think you could take the place of the Emperor Domitian?

dream maybe, but this guy is serious and he'll need more than a little luck.

The general idea is that you complete six quests which represent the transition from low-life scumbag slave to regal Emperor. To give you a general idea, at the start you're based in Herculaneum which just happens to be situated under a certain volcano that's about to erupt. You have to escape from here and go to Rome, save the Emperor from assassination, lead an army, conquer the world and become Emperor yourself. From imminent death in chains to ruler of most of the civilised world, eh? No problem...

Before we go any further I would like to commend Millennium on a completely new, revolutionary idea. Interesting and funny manuals for their adventures! What a crazy idea, it just might work. It was a most entertaining read. Unfortunately, it's a lot more entertaining than the game.

Taking a look at these screenshots you could be forgiven for thinking this is just a reworking of Robin Hood, the other Millennium game that used this graphics system. Well if it works once why not use it again, y'know? Of course, this means we have to put up with microscopic characters and jerky screen movement. But the strength of games like this lies in the gameplay, or so I've been told. Saying that, not all the graphics are bad. The buildings on screen can be quite ornately detailed at times, especially when you start reaching the higher levels, and there are loads of static screens that appear when something major happens, like an announcement in Rome or when you finish a level, or more importantly when you die (which will happen a lot at the start).

What adventures are all about, of course, is exploring. You can take your

IT'S MORE THAN MY JOB'S WORTH TO LET YOU THROUGH. UNLESS, OF COURSE...

Talk is cheap and so are these guards by the looks of it. So much for morals and incorruptibility, just bribe 'em.

Pssst, see those two over there. I heard a rumour that they have silly names like Incontinentia Buttocks and Naughtius Maximus.

have to do to get this extra cash you get very little time to do it, and if you do it on the higher levels you get killed for it. Quirks like this in the gameplay can put a lot of people off – if it wasn't for the fact that I'm being paid to play it I certainly would given up.

It's a shame, because when you start playing it's quite fun. Running around mugging people in Herculaneum for money or playing dice in Rome to earn enough to get a slave of your own, or even the fights when you get an army – all top stuff. After a few hours though, you realise there just isn't enough to the game to make you want to stick with it. With a few more elements it could have been so much better. But there aren't, so it isn't.

Yes, it's a challenge to become the Emperor of Rome all right. Some of this challenge is in the game but most of it comes from trying to keep your interest going long enough to complete it. With little action it won't appeal to arcade nuts, but it isn't a strong or deep enough game to attract all the strategy fans either. Millennium have tried hard to make it appealing by adding a lot of humour (and it is funny) and making it easy to control. With these two factors and some interesting gameplay it would have been a killer game but as it stands this is a wimpish slap on the wrist when it could have been a knockout.

time to explore the land thoroughly and check out all the buildings and people if you like, but each stage of Rome AD92 is timed. The first stage is limited by a volcano erupting, the second by an assassination etc. This means all you have to do is learn the important places and items, get them and finish the stage, so trial and error will solve the game faster than brain power. This may not be a bad thing for new players but most people will be able to solve the puzzles straight away.

Playing through the levels, you'll notice something else creeping into your mind. Rome AD92 suffers from 'Ohmygodwhenissomethinginterestinggoingto happen' (said while yawning exaggeratedly) syndrome – you can wander around locations for days without having the foggiest idea about what's going on. Talking to people is suggested as a good way to suss out what's happening. This doesn't work since most of the people seem to be as thick as two short planks. Ask them for information and the best you'll get in response is 'I'm out for a walk.' Thanks a lot.

The gameplay soon gets very repetitive, and mistakes aren't easily forgiven either. There's a classic example right at the start – you deliver a message and get paid for it. The amount you get paid is enough to save your life and leave the island. But, if you do take the chance to leave, you can't do anything at all on the next level because you don't have enough money, and there's no way of going back to get any. Once you realise what you Cheap at twice the price, especially when you cheat. Cheat too often however and these likely lads will do a jig on your head.

Is that one of those silly fake names like on The Life of Brian, it certainly sounds daft. But console yourself, it could be worse.

UPPERS Attractive static screens set the atmosphere of the game nicely (and gruesomely too in some cases). Initially compelling gameplay with some fun aspects. Even the manual is interesting and funny, and for this type of game that's virtually unheard of. It'll hold you for a while as you try to get to grips with it.

DOWNERS The graphic style seems a little out of date (Populous viewpoints are old hat) and the small characters and jerky screen scrolling don't help much. It's short on action too, and what there is offers as much excitement as watching paint dry.

THE BOTTOM LINE

A fair attempt at an adventure that only just misses the mark. You can't help feeling that if a little more was put into the action, ie more things actually happening, then this could have been so much better. As it stands, though if you do buy it you should prepare for a bit of a snooze.

Delve into the deepness of space with the ultimate in flight simulation.

Game: Shuttle

Outer space. It's a pretty big place. But it means a lot more to mankind than an endlessly expanding blackness peppered with a few mildly interesting stars. It's the Final Frontier. It's about flashing down the Death Star trench with Luke Skywalker. It's the massive shoot-out at the end of Moonraker. It's 2001 – A Space Odyssey. It's Flash Gordon. It's a terrifying journey on the Nostromo with the Alien. It's about going light-speed in the Millennium Falcon and warp-speed on the USS Enterprise. Outer space, not only is it big, it's damned exciting too.

And then there's Shuttle. With all this intense action going on all around, with fictional alien races just waiting, if not begging, to be destroyed, what do we get? A simulation of a jumped-up glider that takes twelve hours to launch (if all goes well) and can barely put a satellite into orbit without causing palpitations at ground control in Houston. It's hardly the stuff the Close Encounters of the Third Kind are made of, but then if you want a realistic simulation of man's first re-usable spacecraft, you certainly came to the right place. The only trouble is, you might end up regretting you ever turned up.

I WANNA TAKE YOU HIGHER

Don't expect too much excitement from Shuttle, after all the craft was only designed to transport cargo into near-Earth orbit (that's between 100 and 217 nautical miles up, fact fans), not to repel alien invaders. You can just imagine the tension as earth comes under attack from swarms of well-armed extra-terrestrial craft, and the shuttle is our last line of defence. "Er, can you just hold on a minute. Roll-out's going to take seven hours, then we've got five hours on the gantry, so, all being well, we should be able to fight you in about 12 hours time. Is that a date?"

See those buttons? They're all for pressing they are. Take a peek at the shuttle's cockpit and the enormity of the task you're about to undertake becomes apparent.

This game, and I use the word in the loosest not-very-much-fun-to-be-had-here-at-all sense, is all about the nitty-gritty and tedious realism of piloting the space shuttle. And yes, if you do have a burning desire to experience the ultimate in mind-numbing simulation, you can sit back and watch for seven hours while the shuttle moves from the hangar to the launch pad.

The game does its best to break you into the gargantuan simulation by giving you a bit of a dolly for the first mission – the shuttle's riding piggy-back on a 747 and you just have to land it. But even so, there are a good few buttons to push as the ship cruises in, and it's all too easy to miss the runway and trash your multi-billion dollar glider. The game's sensible structure means you have to complete a mission successfully before you're allowed on to the next one, so you have to master the Hmmm. I can't help feeling a little disappointed. I thought the view from up here would be better than this.

Now I don't want to build your hopes up unnecessarily, but I think I can see your house from here.

No, I tell a lie, it's not your house, it's a big white glider strapped on a load of fuel tanks and stuff.

Well cut my legs off and call me Shorty if it isn't one of those Space Shuttle things.

LE

Thankfully, like a benevolent school teacher, the game only makes you re-sit the parts of the exam that you failed first time around, so you don't have to go through the lengthy rigmarole every time you slip up on landing.

I've never been a great fan of polygon-based graphics, and Shuttle shows their worst side. Total the ship on landing and you're treated to a not-so-spectacular display of grey-black smoke with occasional bits of shuttle flying from the darkness. And when you do manage to make it into space, the supposedly awe-inspiring view that has given astronauts more religion than Billy Graham ever could, is a decidedly sad three-colour set-up, with black sky, blue seas and green land. It's all rather disappointing really.

But when you've stopped admiring the lack of decent views, it's time to press a few more buttons. Messages from ground control tell you what the hell you're supposed to be up to, and on the easier skill levels the simulator automatically switches to the correct panel for the next button push. This is important at the start because there are eight panels to keep you entertained (I think it's one for each of the seven dwarfs and an extra large one for Snow White), all of which have more than one screen's worth of buttons. And depending on the mission, you have a variety of different buttons to push and clocks to watch.

And so it goes on. (Hang on a minute! What's all this 'Snow White' rubbish? - Ed)

More missions, more buttons, more realism, more cock-ups, more explosions.

Some of the trickier missions, such as repairing the Hubble telescope and attaching a crew module to a solar panel, provide more scope for manual interaction, but they're all pretty slow. Don't expect anything to happen quickly. Apart from the lack of speed in what's being simulated, the game grinds at the disks every time you switch to another control panel - playing on a single-drive machine is an absolute joke.

The space shuttle is such a complex beast that the simulator is necessarily tough to get to grips with (it makes MegaFortress look like a shoot-'em-up). Astronauts have years of training before they're even allowed to covet the hallowed shuttle shape, but somehow Vektor and Virgin expect you to climb aboard and fly around without a tutorial. Sure, the manual explains all the menus, and what all the buttons do, but it's stuffed full of acronyms, initials and jargon. The game will keep you going for ages, but that's partly because the shuttle's so complicated and the manual does such a bad job of explaining how to control it.

I CAN SEE FOR MILES

Never having flown a real space shuttle, and never having been into outer space, it's hard to say how well the game recreates the out-of-atmosphere experience. One thing's for certain though - the Earth, moon, seas and continents aren't made out of polygons, so the view would be a lot more inspiring. As an exercise in by-the-book button-pushing simulation, Shuttle scores top marks. If it's knobs and switches you want, you got 'em in abundance, but don't expect a game - this is too much like hard work. Ultimately it might be rewarding for Shuttle fans - there's everything they could possibly want, apart from the experience of trying to eat pureed microwave chicken curry from a foil packet in zero gravity - but for the majority of the Amiga-owning population, there just isn't enough fun.

There's certainly no shortage of confusing buttons, knobs, dials and things to twiddle with...

...nor of information on the Shuttle itself. Whatever you want to know, it's in there somewhere.

● RICHARD LONGHURST

UPPERS The best simulation of the space shuttle currently available for the Amiga. Realistic in practically every way, the attention to detail really is astonishing.

DOWNERS Not much fun to play, the presentation is poor, the manual's unhelpful, disk accessing is a pain.

THE BOTTOM LINE

If you're a big NASA fan and have always wanted a shuttle simulator, buy it now. If you think it might be worth a look for novelty value, think again. If you like to enjoy yourself when you're playing games, steer clear.

58 PERCENT

Never offer to take the Shuttle out on a date. It'll take it twelve hours to get ready, and cost you more than the Gross Domestic Product of a small Third World country.

BOEING, BOEING, GONE

Mission number one is a bit of a doddle. Start on the 747 and end on the runway. Easy.

I told you we'd be able to hitch a lift if we landed on this jumbo. Oooh, hang on, it's nearly time to get off. Next stop please driver.

Don't forget to turn on the head up display. Hey I really dig you, head up display. (You're fired - Ed.) Alternatively, just flick the two switches.

Next, put on your landing gear. It's yellow lycra hot-pants with a see-through plastic scarlet bodice for me. Alternatively, just flick the two switches.

And ease the shuttle down for a smooth landing. What could be easier? (Knitting fog - Cynical Ed.) Now it's time to find more buttons to push.

After a particularly merry lunch, someone in the Shuttle office said "Let's test launch it off a 747!"

SHADOW

around a space station for a bit in this sequel to the hit RPG, Shadowlands.

Publisher: Krisalis
Price: £25.99
Authors: Teque
Release: Out now

It's been explained on more than one occasion that, here at AMIGA POWER, the reviewer's opinion is what counts in the end. The rest of the team have their say, of course, but ultimately, if a reviewer really doesn't like a game, he's completely at liberty to say so. Whatever anyone else might be telling him.

In the case of Shadowlands, however, Mark's been intolerable. "Look at those shadows – aren't they terrific?" he said. "What a great weapons system," he said. "What do you reckon to those puzzles, eh?" he said. "You'll probably be giving this a pretty high score, won't you?" he said. "Say, about 88?"

In fact, to escape the pressure from above, I've had to take my Amiga, my copy of Shadowlands and my word processor, and withdraw to an undisclosed location on the outskirts of Bath. From here, I hope to be able to tell you just what I think of the game.

Shadowlands is the sequel to Shadowlands, which was reviewed by Mark back in AP11. (He gave it 87%.)

While Shadowlands was set in a traditional fantasy role-playing environment, replete with wizards, warriors and magic potions, Shadowlands plumps for a more universally appealing sci-fi setting with an Aliens-like plot. Having picked your team of four soldiers from the selection available – there's no 'character creation' facility like in the original – you're put in a dark, deserted space station and told to discover what's happened to its crew.

Finding the solution will involve solving puzzles, fighting baddies, and masses and masses of exploring and mapping. You'll have to wrestle with door switches and teleporters, and at some points you might even find yourself down on the surface of the planet the space-station is orbiting. Integral to all this is the 'Photoscoping' system, which gives a nice graphical effect and means you'll have to use torches and flares to find your way around the space station.

Now, Mark covered the good points of Teque's light-and-dark RPG system in his Shadowlands review. He pointed out how objects have weights, and characters have strengths, and these all work together to give a realistic, intuitive 'game world'. He extolled (at some length) the virtues of the much-simplified role-playing system, which cuts out all the wisdom/dexterity nonsense and replaces what numbers remain by simple bar-graphs. He got really rather excited about the way the lighting effect doesn't just look nice, but is involved in the solutions to some of the puzzles, too. And he thought the help system was just wonderful.

Now, seeing as how that stuff's already been covered, and how I'm not quite such a big RPG fan as Mark, I'll use what space remains for a different purpose – the other side of the story.

One: The characters are so stupid. One of the game's selling points is the way you can make characters walk around in formation, to save moving them all individually. But trying to get a formation of troops to walk through a narrow doorway is farcical. They jostle each other around for ages, then a couple of them might eventually get through, with the others getting jammed somewhere behind the walls, unable to figure out where to go next. And one character's quite happy to shoot another who gets between him and a baddy. You really don't want to have to worry about that kind of thing in the heat of Your team is picked from a list of, er, about twenty characters. (I forgot to count. Sorry.) In this instance I've gone for GT3290 – a token member of the animal kingdom; Stevens – useful for his ability to breathe helium and speak in a squeaky voice; Angel – who has a habit of suddenly starting to shout about helicopters and Viet Cong guerrillas; and Yoko – she embarrasses the rest of the team by walking around naked with flowers in her hair.

ORLDS

The first few rooms of Shadowworlds serve as an 'entrée' (as it were), introducing you to the game's workings.

a frantic battle.

Two: The control system. It's meant to be really simple to use. But to get a character to, say, move from one point on the screen to the other involves the following steps: First you need to select the character you want to move by clicking on one of the pictures at the bottom of the screen. Then you have to move over to the generic figure in the middle and click on its leg. Finally you click on the point on the screen you want to move the character to. If you just want to dodge a laser bolt, this is plainly ridiculous. Why not dispense with the first step by having a full figure for each character? Plus, it's really hard to see which character is currently selected, or which character is which on the screen. And battles are made even trickier by the limited range you can give orders over. If you've got one of your characters and a monster at either end of an otherwise empty screen, you've got to walk your character to within a few feet of the monster, through whatever it might be throwing at you, before you're even allowed to take aim. Very irritating. With all that business with the controls to worry about as well, you really haven't a chance.

Three: fluid levels. The one hang-over from fantasy RPGs in Shadowworlds I could really do without is the need to keep checking on your team's fluid levels, topping them up if they run low. If you let them run out, your team dies. (Fluid, in Shadowworlds, is a nutrient solution that combines food and drink.) Consequently, I found I spent far more time worrying about fluid levels than solving puzzles or shooting baddies. I don't remember seeing Sigourney Weaver, locked in mortal combat with an Alien, suddenly turning to her colleagues and saying, "Sorry, lads. I haven't had a drink in twenty minutes. You'll just have to manage without me."

I could go on. Shadowworlds is full of similar flaws – flaws which could easily have been eliminated by slightly more thoughtful playtesting.

And now for the exciting twist at the end. You might have got the impression, from my opening comments and the rather dejected tone of the paragraphs that followed, that I wasn't terribly impressed by Shadowworlds. Well, you couldn't have been further from the truth. I thought it was fab. I've had enormous fun reviewing it, and I suggest that you rush out and buy it immediately, even if you don't normally go for this sort of thing. It's just that its (relatively minor) shortcomings annoyed me so much that I'm going to have to knock a couple of points off the devastatingly high score I'd otherwise have given it. I hope Mark doesn't mind.

BIG, BIG GUNS

Above: Here's the kind of rubbish Potente carries around with him – everything from first aid kits to flame throwers.

Right: You can choose your team's formation by moving the dots around in here. You can even split them into two teams.

Spells are a thing of the past (literally). In Shadowworlds, combat takes place with guns. Your party sets off on its quest unarmed (for some reason), but soon comes across a variety of weapons. The simplest are light sabres, and small arms like pistols, which take up one slot in your inventory. Best of all, though, are two-handed weapons. These are found in halves – barrel and stock – and can be mixed and matched to make custom artillery. Fix a cannon barrel onto a laser stock and you've got a laser cannon. Swap the cannon barrel for a machine barrel, and you've got a rapid fire laser. Simple, huh?

UPPERS All the advantages of a role-playing game – enormous size and depth, character interaction, lots of variety – without the penalty of complexity. So everyone will enjoy this. The puzzles are really cunning, too – if a little unlikely at times.

DOWNERS While the lighting system works beautifully, creating buckets of atmosphere and tension, overall the visual side is a little dull. The action frequently gets ahead of the control system. Character intelligence is limited – you have to take care of literally everything.

THE BOTTOM LINE

It's got all the advantages of its predecessor, while bunging in enough new stuff to make it worthwhile. It did hack me off at times, though.

AQUATIC

The latest James Pond

Game: The Aquatic Games
Publisher: Millennium
Authors: Vectordean
Price: £25.99
Release: Out now

Fun, frolics and sponsorship in Penguin juggling – kipper load of that.

1 THE 100 METRE SPLASH

As James Pond, waggle that joystick like crazy (you're actually running across water, so go too slowly and you'll sink!) and, er, that's it. If you can avoid knocking the seagull out of his boat early on, he'll fly along and give you a speedy lift towards the finish line. You're in competition with F-fortescue Frog, but he's useless so don't worry about it. You can also headbutt the toucans which perch (Right, that's it, you're fired – Ed.) on the bunting along the course a few times for bonus points, and getting all three brings the seagull back even if you sank it earlier.

Fishy Fun Factor: ★★★

5 FEEDING TIME

The most manic event in the game, Feeding Time sees you playing Freddie Starrfish as he tries to save some of his sweet-toothed aquatic buddies from the clutches of some nasty fishermen.

Freddie's job is to tip tasty titbits from his bucket in order to stop his comrades from being tempted out of the water by the sugary confections lowered on the end of the bad guys' fishing rods. As the bucket empties, he has to rush from side to side to fill it up at the dispensers at the edges of the screen, but while he's doing that, the liquorice allsorts are getting closer and closer... When two fish are caught, the event is over, so keep 'em out of trouble for as long as possible.

Fishy Fun Factor: ★★★★★

2 KIPPER WATCHING

You play Ceceelia the seal, and you have to avoid having your sleepy seal friends woken up by the beach balls which some unfriendly swine's chucking at them (you can just see it, can't you? Some callow youth wandering along a tropical beach, spots a load of seals sleeping, thinks 'Hey, wouldn't it be a great laugh if I scared them all off?')

Bloody other species, should all go back where they came from anyway, and starts lobbing a convenient nearby infinite supply of large beach balls at them. I love plots, me). You do this by leaping around and nutting the balls before they hit your mammalian pals and wake them up, at which point another hit before they drop off again will send them scurrying off the beach in fear.

Occasionally some swine will set off an alarm clock which wakes all the seals up and makes things really hard for you, so you should stop him (by jumping into the clock) if you possibly can. Lose two seals and it's all over, and you win medals by surviving for as long as possible before it happens. You can also grab bonus points by leaping into the angel fish which appear at the edges of the screen occasionally, yielding increasing scores from 100 points up to 10,000. The toughest thing about this event is trying to avoid falling asleep by about halfway through, especially in multi-player mode when it can take over quarter of an hour to play to the end.

Fishy Fun Factor: ★

6 SHELL SHOOTING

This is the most co-ordination-testing and potentially frustrating event of the lot. Again, you play the part of sub-aqua superhero James Pond. You have to jump on the edge of limpet shells as they meander across the screen (slightly faster than in real life – limpets aren't generally known for their fleetness of foot or whatever it is they move about on) flip them up into the air, catch them as they come down and then throw them back up the screen to burst a series of balloons. Tough enough, without the spiky limpets which you can't jump on, and the fact that if you let a limpet walk into you on the ground, it knocks you over and stuns you for a while (and which point another one runs into you, then another one, then etc etc). Quite tricky and very frustrating.

Fishy Fun Factor: ★★★

CROSSING THE EVENT HORIZON – SO WHAT D'YOU DO, THEN?

GAMES

uting invites you to the Sole Olympics. (That's fintastic - Ed.)

The latest (and hopefully last) of this year's multi-event joystick-waggling sports sims is one that takes a bit of a different approach to the previous efforts. Unlike Carl Lewis Challenge and España - The Games '92 (both reviewed in issue 17, with 56 and 38 percent respectively), The Aquatic Games isn't an o-fish-ial licence of (Hold it right there! One more piscine pun in this review and you're fired. - Ed.)

Ah. Er...

● STUART CAMPBELL

"The liquorice allsorts are getting closer"

BONUS EVENTS

If you qualify for a silver medal or better in an event, you also get the option to take part in a bonus event. You have to sacrifice a few points for the chance to enter, but if you succeed in the bonus event you get a lot more points back, as well as a Shield Of Merit. The ultimate aim in The Aquatic Games is to complete the whole thing with eight gold medals and six (the maximum) Shields Of Merit.

The bonus events give F-fortescue Frog an encore appearance in a long-jump contest that's just a simpler version of the Hop, Skip And Jump, and bring the previously-unseen PJ Penguin into the action as a juggler in another time-survival event, and while they're a nice extra, they're both too easy to provide much interest after the first try.

UPPERS Cute graphics, lovely bouncy tunes, lots of statistics (although some of them are a bit confusing - how can you have a lead of 1200 somethings in the 100 Metre Splash?), some funny bits (try standing still at the start of the same event), um...

DOWNERS The same failings as every other joystick-waggling sports game, ie it's super-repetitive, and it's dull and pointless if you're playing it alone. Some of the events drag on for too long. And as with the original James Pond, the area of the screen used for action is pretty titchy.

THE BOTTOM LINE

It's the best joystick-waggler of this year's crop by quite a way. It works reasonably well, and it's nice to pick up every now and again, but there's only about half a day's entertainment (three-quarters if you've got your mates round) in this at best.

60 PERCENT

3 HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

This is a triple-jump contest straight out of the Hyper Sports coin-op. Waggle the joystick like crazy, hit fire when you get to the 'Jump' sign, continue to waggle the joystick like crazy, hit fire again shortly afterwards to determine angle of jump (the game stops and a little graph moves up and down at the appropriate moment), and hope you've managed to propel F-fortescue Frog far enough to qualify. Pretty easy, really, but it's nice to get back to a bit of good old honest frantic joystick destruction after the repetition and boredom of the last event.

Fishy Fun Factor: ★★

4 THE BOUNCY CASTLE

Time for a spot of gymnastics now. You (as James Pond himself) have to bounce up and down on the sponges (by way of a simple rhythmic combination of joystick moves) to gain enough height to execute various mid-air manoeuvres.

There are six different ones (including some tricky combination moves), each of which you have to do six times within an overall time limit to win a medal, preferably without falling off the trampolines and smashing your head in. It's pretty difficult to tell whether or not you're going to land safely on the sponge after you've done a move, and the mysterious jack-in-the-box which sometimes shows up in the middle of the screen and propels you miles into the air without having to bother with all that tricky joystick stuff seems to appear and disappear completely at random, which is a bit disconcerting. Some of the combination manoeuvres are a bit too awkward joystick-wise for my liking, too.

Fishy Fun Factor: ★★

7 TOUR DE GRASS

After the Shell Shooting, the next event is a bit of a relief. You play Mark The Shark (an ex-circus unicycling shark from Finland) (Of course he is, how foolish of me not to have thought of that myself - Ed.), and your task is simply to get to the end of an obstacle-littered horizontally-scrolling course against a time limit. The difficult stuff comes in when you realise that to keep him cycling, you have to keep rotating the joystick in a clockwise direction, which is trickier than it sounds when you have to co-ordinate fire-button presses to jump obstacles and collect bonus point objects as well. Still not all that tricky, though.

Fishy Fun Factor: ★★

8 LEAP FROG

The 100 Metres Splash with obstacles to jump. A bit of a doddle, and something of an anti-climax after everything else.

Fishy Fun Factor: ★★

SABRE TEAM

Launch your very own assault Middle Eastern terrorists in Krisalis's latest strategy game.

The computer movement screen, one you'll see a helluva lot of.

It sure sounds like a recipe for success.

A 3D SAS game loosely based on the classic Laser Squad?

Game: Sabre Team
Publisher: Krisalis
Authors: Dean Lester, R Theather, M Furniss, P Hackney
Price: £25.99
Release: October

Ah, the SAS. After that memorable raid on the Iranian Embassy in London in 1980, the SAS were forced into the public eye and what a shock it was for most people. The most secret of the secret services showed just how big and hard and clever they were by wiping out a load of terrorists without losing a single team member to 'friendly fire'. Then down the local for loads of drinks and tall stories about how tough and butch they all were. Not bad for a night out with the lads eh? So what has all this to do with a team running around with sabres? Well, actually, a Sabre Team is a four man SAS attack unit, trained to kill and keen to do it. Great, eh?

Krisalis have put their heads together and come up with a combat/infiltration strategy simulator (God, if I have to see just one more combat/infiltration strategy simulator this month...) that puts you in direct control of one of these crack teams. And of course, since it's computer controlled, you won't have to go through the arduous training or suffer eating live worms on a wet weekend on Dartmoor, either (Hey, we said that they were tough, we didn't say anything about them being smart.)

So what does it take to become a cool commander of the toughest hombies in the world? Well, it takes three things - muscle, brawn, patience and brains. (Art - Ed.) Patience? Yes. Patience because this is a strategy game so you aren't going to run all over the place with your finger twitching on the trigger, but before all the action nuts start to turn the page looking for an arcade game review, read on - you might just like this as well.

Sabre Team is a mixture of strategy with a little simulated combat thrown in.

"Aside from the speed there's no problem with it"

Okay, a lot of simulated combat. After all, this is the SAS and if they can't fight they're about as much use as a pacifist in the Los Angeles Police Department.

Unlike some strategy games, Sabre Team is very pleasing to look at. The 3D view works really well, and for once common sense has come into play. After all you can't see what's in a room until you enter it and you can't see who is standing behind you unless you're facing them, can you? It also helps create a fair amount of atmosphere - imagine the scene as you face a closed door. Your energy's low and your gun's almost out of ammo. You've heard a noise in the room but you don't know whether it's a hostage, a terrorist or even one of your own men. Will you open the door and go in or wait for the rest of your party to catch up? You get old heroes and you get bold heroes but never old, bold heroes. The choice is yours.

You get five missions to guide your team through and they're by no means easy. Although you get three skill levels you're still going to be put to the test. The strategy side of the game can be as intense as you want it to be - you can fuss around deploying your strongest men at strategic points and hunting down the terrorists, or you can just send your team in guns blazing to wipe out anything that moves. Both strategies could meet with a surprising amount of success,

One asleep on the job and one to be gunned down, all in a days work for a hero.

He shoots, he misses by a mile, it would help if he was facing the right way of course.

Someone's left a mortar lying around. How many times must they be told to put things away after using them?

EAM

Before you try and sneak up on someone, don't forget this loading gun business.

or on the other hand...

I must admit I did enjoy playing Sabre Team at first, the graphics are surprisingly good for a game like this. The controls are very easy to use and you think there's a lot to it. After all any game where you can shoot a suspect in the back without asking any questions and then go and stomp on the body and nick any weapons worth having can't be all bad can it? No, it isn't (all bad, that is).

One major, major

problem though, is the speed. I know it's a strategy game and so you don't expect to see 50 frames a second, but when the computer is working out its moves it can take absolutely ages. We've been assured by Krisalis that it's as fast as the Amiga can handle it but I feel sure that it could have been done differently – look at the legendary Laser Squad if you want proof. As it stands it's a major hold-up and gets really annoying after a while.

Aside from this, though, there's nothing wrong with Sabre Team. The clear display and good graphics are attractive and easy to use. You'll find it no problem to send your team wandering all over the place. Combat is just a case of spotting the enemy and deciding how much ammo to use on him – too much and you'll waste it and have to use up action points reloading sooner, but not enough and he won't be dead, and then you'll be sorry. When the enemy are making their moves they can attack you as well but providing your men have enough move points left over, and their reactions are fast enough they may get a free shot called an Opportunity Move.

ON THE OTHER HAND...

Yeah, it's pretty bloody slow, but this is such a beautifully atmospheric and accessible game that it's worth putting up with a bit of hanging around. And I disagree about finishing all five missions, too – the different actions and positions make it a totally different game each time. Battle Isle was slower than this and we still gave it 78 percent, that's more in the area of where I'd mark this.

● STUART CAMPBELL

The ideas in the game work really well and it is quite entertaining to play, if it wasn't for that damn slow computer thinking. If you like games that will make you think but are easy to get to grips with then start looking at this. If however you don't like to be kept hanging around for ages doing nothing while the computer works out a move then look in the opposite direction before you turn to stone. Although the speed lets the game down badly there are some interesting elements of gameplay that will hopefully attract both strategy and arcade fans. This is nice.

● LES ELLIS

UPPERS The graphic style is attractive enough to make you think 'wow that looks the business'. The controls are pretty easy to get to grips with and basically it's dead easy to get into.

DOWNERS The computer is hideously slow (anything up to three minutes) at making its moves which totally destroys the logic system. There are only five missions, although they are very tough, and once you've completed them you won't want to go back (although the locations and actions of the enemy and hostages will be different every time). The static screens are pretty awful as well, but not as awful as the game speed.

THE BOTTOM LINE

I know I keep on about the speed but it really is slow and spoils what could have been a really good game. Destined to be banished into the realms of strategy, which is a real shame.

Face to face at last, time to try out that new combat shotgun your granny gave you for Christmas.

There's someone in there with their back to you, definitely the best time to shoot.

And while you're doing that this guy still finds time to go to the loo, these guys are well 'ard.

CURSE OF ENCHANTIA

In a continuing attempt to try every genre, Core go for the humorous adventure.

Game: Curse of Enchantia
Publisher: Core Design
Authors: Rob Toone, Billy Allison, Rolf Muhr, Stuart Atkinson.

Price: £34.99

Release: Late October

I've heard some ridiculous storylines in my time but nothing has ever come quite close to this. Are you ready? A boy is playing baseball with his sister. He winds up to smash a pitch into the stands when he's suddenly zapped into another dimension by an evil witch who just happens to be watching through a crystal ball. When Brad wakes up he has to return to his own dimension, presumably in time for the ninth inning. With such a corny story behind it it's probably just as well that Curse Of Enchantia has turned out to be a cracker of a game.

It seems to be the fashion over the last few months to make RPGs less boring, some have even attempted to inject humour into a traditionally humourless genre. The French were having it almost all their own way with the likes of Silmarils and Coktel, and only Monkey Island 1 and 2 stood in their way, but now they face new opposition. In Curse Of Enchantia, Core Design have come up with one of the funniest games I have ever played. It makes a very refreshing change to be able to say to someone that you really enjoyed playing a game and it kept a smile on your face throughout with its wacky humour and hilarious on-screen antics. Well, that's what Core have managed here. Well done lads.

Looking at these screenshots, you can probably see that the graphics in Curse are very similar to those in the Monkey Island games. The dark and shadowy effects create a hell of an atmosphere, especially when you are trekking around the underground caves trying to find your way out. Even Brad, who is your character, looks and moves like Guybrush Threepwood, but before anyone starts shouting 'rip off', though, don't bother. This style is just about the only thing that will make this kind of RPG playable, and it works, so why change it?

It's a breathtaking view, and a frightening drop, he slips over the edge, hits the water and...plop. (This and various other captions © Dr Seuss, 1992)

Although good graphics help a game like this along (and this one does have good graphics), let's face it – in an RPG it's the game that catches you, and while Curse is a cracking game it won't quite match up to the Monkey Islands of this world. The main reason for this is simple – some of the puzzles are just too obscure. I like games to make me think as much as anyone but there are some cases in Curse where you can't actually see items that you need to solve a problem, two classic examples being the seaweed that you need to fool the monster and the gold coin (look, just trust me, okay). Some of the other solutions would take you a lifetime to think up because some of them just aren't logical. Funny yes, but logical, no.

As I mentioned before, humour plays a big part in this game and it's this humour which makes up for the strange way some of the puzzles are laid out. Call me easy to please (You're – oh, forget it... – Ed), but for some reason I found the ugly monster throwing himself down the well when he saw Brad take off his disguise (oops, almost gave you a clue there) and saw that he was pink and dry quite funny. If that doesn't tickle your fancy then the underwater antics of the shocking shark might... Whatever you normally find funny you'll definitely get a few chuckles from this game.

Size isn't always a guarantee of quality (or so I've heard anyway), but in Curse Of Enchantia you get both. There are over 200 different locations to visit and most of them contain puzzles or items that will need picking up and manipulating. The control system that you'll be doing it with is different from most other games of this genre as well – none of this 'point at an object and choose a word to see what it'll do' stuff. The French RPGs like Fascination suffer really badly when you're stuck because all you have to do is move the mouse over the screen to see what objects become highlighted.

This always strikes me as pointless because it makes it possible finish the game more by trial and error than actually thinking about it. In Curse Of Enchantia you don't get this so you have to really apply your mind to using the objects. This makes it harder but a damn sight more satisfying to play.

Just a quick mention of the sound effects now. You can choose which sound option you prefer at any time which is a nice user-friendly touch. Keep an ear out for some of the samples though. As you would expect they're pretty funny. My own personal favourite is in the dungeon right at the start when you call out for help and the ogre comes in and tells you to keep quiet in no uncertain terms.

So what have we got? Curse Of

In through the door, with a shout and a leap, he'll leave you in chains, while you wail and you weep.

I'm pleased to report, I'm glad to declare, that we've found a nice clue, in the cave over there.

"Enchantia has turned out to be a cracker of a game"

Enchantia is a definite winner as far as I'm concerned. The difficulty curve is set just right, although some of the puzzles are so obscure you start to wonder whether you'll ever solve them. Getting stuck is easy but getting out of trouble just requires a little straight thinking and exploration. As with most adventures examining objects normally reveals clues. Accomplishing even one of the easy tasks gives you a great sense of achievement which makes you feel maybe the whole thing is worth persisting with. And when you suss out one of the tougher problems, well you feel like telling the whole world.

Curse Of Enchantia may not be the biggest RPG ever but it's certainly not small, and with the amount of wandering around you have to do it seems a lot bigger than it is. With the ultra-laffastic approach that Core have taken with it, it can hardly fail to be a hit – most of the time it's even funnier than Monkey Island (1 and 2), and from someone who's as big a fan of those as I am, that's really saying something. (Bop bop shoobie doo waa. – Ed)

Rarely has a game made me want to spend hours and hours trying to solve puzzles – most of the time I'd have been reaching for a solution, but not here. Core Design have come up with a classic adventure game that deserves to be a huge hit. Just watch this one crash into the charts.

● LES ELLIS

UPPERS Wow, where do I start? Fun throughout, with the finely detailed graphics adding to the overall atmosphere. With its mixture of puzzles and humour this could make a monkey out of Monkey Island.

DOWNERS Some of the solutions to the puzzles are very obscure which may make some people give up after a couple of hours. Having objects that you can't actually see (like the seaweed) seems to be pointless. And the price tag is disgraceful.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Core have come up with a classic adventure which with a few tweaks here and there could have easily beaten the Monkey Island and the like. A worthy addition to any collection and will stand as a challenge to any adventurer.

THE WORLD'S CARTRIDGE IS

NOW WITH A MASS IN ROM OFFERING MK III

JUST LOOK AT THE UNMATCHED RANGE OF FEATURES

● SAVE THE ENTIRE PROGRAM IN MEMORY TO DISK

Special compacting techniques enable up to 3 programs to fit on one disk. Now saves directly to disk as Amiga Dos - reloads independently of the cartridge - even transfer to hard drive! Works with up to 2 Megs of Ram - even 1 Meg Chip Mem (Fatter Agnus).

● SUPER POWERFUL TRAINER MODE -

now with DEEP trainer. Even better than before - allows you to generate more or even infinite lives, fuel, ammo. Perfect as a Trainer Mode to get you past that "impossible" level. Easy to use.

● IMPROVED SPRITE EDITOR

The full Sprite Editor allows you to view/modify the whole sprite set including any "attached" sprites. PLUS A RANGE OF IMPROVED FEATURES.

● VIRUS DETECTION

Comprehensive virus detection and removal features to protect your software investment. Works with all presently known viruses.

● BURST NIBBLER.

Now this super disk copier program is built into Action Replay Mk III. Just imagine a superfast, efficient disk copier program at the press of a key - no more waiting.

● SAVE PICTURES AND MUSIC TO DISK

Pictures and sound samples can be saved to disk. Files are saved directly in IFF format suitable for use with all the major graphic and music packages. Samples are displayed as screen waveform.

● PAL or NTSC MODES SELECTABLE -

Useful for removing ugly borders when using NTSC software. (Works only with newer Agnus chips).

● SLOW MOTION MODE

Now you can slow down the action to your own pace. Easily adjustable from full speed to 20% speed. Ideal to help you through the tricky parts!

● MANY MORE INSTANT CLI COMMANDS - like Rename, Relabel, Copy, etc.

● RESTART THE PROGRAM

Simply press any key and the program will continue where you left off.

● FULL STATUS REPORTING

At the press of a key now you can view the Machine Status, including Fast Ram, Chip Ram, RamDisk, Drive Status, etc.

● POWERFUL PICTURE EDITOR

Now you can manipulate and search for screens throughout memory. Over 50 commands to edit the picture plus unique on screen status "overlay" shows all the information you could ever need to work on screens. No other product comes close to offering such dynamic screen handling of frozen programs!!

● JOYSTICK HANDLER - allows the user to select Joystick instead of Keypresses - very useful for many keyboard programs.

● MUSIC SOUND TRACKER

With Sound Tracker you can find the complete music in programs, demos, etc. and save them to disk. Saves in format suitable for most track player programs. Works with loads of programs!!

● AUTOFIRE MANAGER

From the Action Replay III preference screen you can now set up autofire from 0 to 100%. Just imagine continuous fire power? Joystick 1 and 2 are set separately for that extra advantage!

● IMPROVED RAM EXPANSION SUPPORT.

Now many more external Ram Expansions will work with all Action Replay III commands.

● DOS COMMANDS

Now you have a selection of DOS commands available at all times - DIR, FORMAT, COPY, DEVICE, etc.

● FILE REQUESTOR -

if you enter a command without a filename, then a file requestor is displayed.

● DISK COPY

Disk Copy at the press of a button - faster than Dos Copy. No need to load Workbench - available at all times.

● BOOT SELECTOR

Either DF0 or DF1 can be selected as the boot drive when working with Amiga Dos disks. Very useful to be able to boot from your external drive.

● PLUS IMPROVED DEBUGGER COMMANDS - including Mem Watch Points and Trace.

● DISKCODER

With the new "Diskcoder" option you can now 'tag' your disks with a unique code that will prevent the disk from being loaded by anyone else. 'Tagged' disks will only reload when you enter the code. Very useful for security.

AMIGA POWER

The magazine with the right attitude.

WHY?

Because we never review them until they're completely finished

You'll see reviews in other magazines of games months away from completion, all in a vain attempt to bag an exclusive. You'll see these games praised and awarded accolades. How can they possibly rate a game which hasn't even been finished yet? It's a ridiculous state of affairs, and it stinks to high heaven. The public are being cheated, and AMIGA POWER will have no part of it. We'll always bring you up-the-minute reviews, but we won't write 'reviews' of half-finished software, or try to con you into believing that a PC version is really an Amiga game. We're here for you, and we're here to review games. Complete games. For your own benefit, trust only AMIGA POWER.

AMIGA POWER POLICY OF TRUTH

- We won't review unfinished games just to claim an exclusive.
- We don't pander to games publishers - we say what we really think.
- We only use experienced, professional reviewers.
- We won't bore you with mountains of technical-jargon-hardware tedium.
- We take games seriously, because you do too.

"I really hate being beaten. I especially hate being called crap. That makes me mad, really mad. Ian Baker had a lap time of 37.09. To me, that's pole position. I don't like not having my customary pole spot. Quite recently I had cut my lap time to 37.22. I was satisfied until I was insulted. I got mad. I informed my pit crew of the new tyre pressures. I got my time down to 37.14. It wasn't enough. I then told them to fit the soft compound to my right front wheel. First lap: 37.30. Second: 37.19. I thought I was done for, but then, driving at 110%, it came: 37.03 seconds at an average of 243.05 mph. I'd done it. SECTION TWO The Village (Continued)

1 Once you've released Goewin follow her to the herb shop. She won't believe you're Diernot because you're still in disguise as Selena – the ungrateful wench! Anyway go for a walk and enjoy your last moments as a woman. It won't be long before the spell wears off and you change back into your old manly self.

Once you're bursting with manliness again, go back to Goewin's herb shop and talk to her. She'll thank you and you'll get all sloppy and want to fall into her dreamy big eyes etc, etc, but there's no time for that – you've got a job to do. Now head back into town to the monastery. You'll see a notice posted outside, saying that the monks have lost their big book, and that a carved statue will be awarded to the lucky blighter who recovers it. Sounds like a job for... guess who?

2 You could try 'Booksearch' but you'd be better off talking to the village characters. Who's the dodgiest character with a finger in every pie? Mallin of course. Talk to him – he'll give you the book and ask you to take it to Morkus. Don't bother, he's the traitor in the village as you found out from the Skorl when you were disguised as Selena. Take the book to the monks and they'll give you the reward and tell you about the dragon, and more importantly tell you about the herb mixture to gain control of him.

3 Once you've been to Goewin's herb shop and found out that she has all the ingredients except Cowbane, your search is on again. Luthern's dear old mum might be able to tell you, if you don't get bored stupid by one of her weird old stories. Once you've found the elusive herb take it back to Goewin who'll mix up the potion for you.

Now you'll have to find out where the dragon lives. Go and have a chat with Grub in front of the Magpie pub. He'll tell you to look for it in the caves of the Weregate, but be prepared for a fight with the deadly creature that lurks in the caves. At the Weregate, all you'll find is a couple of stony gargoyles and a closed gate. Go and have a chat with Ultar in the Severed Arms.

4 Up until now all Ultar would tell you is "simple – turn brain boxes," which isn't much help. Now he'll tell you the names of the gargoyles – Fengael and Hammawen – to whom you must talk in order to gain entry through the Weregate. They tell you that their creator ordered them only to allow women through the gate. But what about Ultar, you ask. Well, he put on a pair of rubber breasts, they tell you – seems everyone likes dressing up as women in this game!

In order to get through the gates you're going to need a woman. Why not try that cute babe at the herb shop? Goewin seems quite moody about the whole idea, but in the end she agrees to meet you at the gate. Once at the gate, talk to her about the gargoyles and she'll call out their names, upon which the gates will open.

5 Goewin will follow you through the open gates into the entrance cave. In front of you there are two skulls. Look at them both, and then pull the right skull. The door opens allowing you to enter into the green cave. Goewin follows.

6 Look at both skulls again – Goewin will not be able to pull them unless you have looked at each skull. Goewin can take a while to follow you in. Once she's with you, tell her to go back to the entrance cave, pull the left skull and then pull the right skull. Then she must come back into the green cave. As she reluctantly carries out your instructions, the door opens and you're able to enter the blue cave.

7 Pull the left skull to let Goewin through. Now tell her to go back to the green cave, pull the left-hand skull and then the right-hand skull. This allows you to pass through the last door and into the dark cavern.

8 Walk up to the top of the cavern and go through the exit at the top right. This takes you into the lair of the beast. He'll kill you if he can, so it's time for combat. Fortunately for you it appears an axe was left lying around. Use this to fight

LURE OF THE TEMPTRESS

Matt Squires butchers the beast and gives the Skorl a dose of their own medicine, your enemy. I found the best tactics were to advance quickly and go straight onto the offensive. No girly defence tactics – just use middle body shots which lunge quickly at the much slower beast. Keep up the continuous thrusts into the beast's flesh and you'll be victorious. Whatever you do, don't let him get so much as one hit. Once you've sliced him to bits, stand back and admire the gore. Use the tinderbox to light a fire and roast his putrid flesh. Yum! Barbecued beast, you can't beat the taste. (Er, or don't bother. I might have been making that last bit up).

9 Walk through into the dragon's lair and use your potion on him. The game will say that the potion doesn't appear to have worked, but don't worry it's lying. He'll do anything you say – just you see. Command him to help you. He'll spill the beans about the evil demon who has possessed Selena. Our Dragon friend turns out to be very helpful ally and gives you a magic eye. What use is this? Wait and see (Arf – Ed.), we'll come to that bit later. Now leave the dragon, go back through the caves turning the left skull of both blue and green caves to open each door. Grab Goewin and make your way back to the village.

10 Go to Ewan's shop in the market place. Wait outside until one of those mutant meathead Skorl enters the shop. Go up to the window and look through. You'll overhear the ugly dogbreath slimeball (I say, steady on Matt – Ed.) complaining about how he and his friends haven't got enough food. He wants Selena killed, and he wants old Ewan in on it. The thickie Skorl tells Ewan to get into the barrel to be smuggled into the castle, and to be ready when he and his thickie friends come back later. Here's your chance to get into the castle. Wait for the Skorl to leave and then enter the shop. Tell Ewan you'll take his place in the barrel – he's very happy with this and helps you into the barrel. The Skorlies then come and smuggle you into the castle.

SECTION THREE The Castle

11 From the cellar go into the kitchen. Here you'll meet a boy called Minnow. Have a chat with him – you're going to need his help. On the wall near the carcass you'll find a pair of tongs. Use these to pull out the bung on the cask in the cellar. Now tell Minnow to tell his Skorl master that someone is in the cellar. The blithering mound of rotten flesh (You really don't like these chaps, do you? – Ed) will come down and drink the wine overflowing from the cask. He'll fall asleep like the rest of his cronies. That's the meatheads taken care of.

12 Your quest to get to Selena in the tower is nearly completed. Get the lump of fat from the carcass in the kitchen and make your way through the banqueting hall to the gate house. Use the fat to loosen up the rusty lever. Tell Minnow to pull the lever, and at the same time, you must operate the winch. Leave the gate house and make your way back through the drunken dozing Skorl and up the stairs to the top floor. Exit onto the draw bridge which is now (conveniently) down and ready for you to get to Selena's evil pad in the tower.

13 It's not all over yet! There's a slimy killer beast standing between you and Selena's tower. Using the same tactics as before, go straight into the attack with middle body blows. If you keep it up, the slow old toerag won't get a look in. You can barbecue his remains if you like, but I wouldn't advise it. Killing him is your last task of the game. It's all over. Game Over. The Big Finale. The end of the quest. The closing of the storybook.

Anyway, you've made it this far, so just sit back and watch the end sequence. We won't spoil it for you, but there's a bit of a twist in the tale. ●

THE Temptress

Tempress – The Conclusion.

outwitting the evil Selena in Lure Of The

1. FINDING THE VIAL

On the flight to Miami a guy called Fayard Nicholls dropped dead at your feet. You now have his brief case. Your first location in the game is the hotel room. After your long and stressful flight you may well need a shower to freshen up – you'll find out exactly what it's like to be in a woman's body (Steady on, this is a family mag. And besides some of our readers are female anyway, you daft clot – Ed.)

Your first task is to find the vial, a tube containing a dangerous and highly secret substance. There's a number of objects in the room and it's wise to have a look at all of them – at some point they'll all be of some use to you.

Open the briefcase – use the combination AARGH. You'll find quite a bit of kit in the case. There is a pair of pyjamas and, being curious, you'll find that in the pocket there's a packet of condoms! A typically French touch. Most important is the electric tooth brush, but you'll need to plug it in to make it work. It won't fit into the fridge socket – you need an adaptor.

Go over to the desk and open the drawer. You'll find an adaptor. Take it out and plug it into the refrigerator socket. Now go back to the case. Take the toothbrush plug, and plug it into the adaptor.

Switch the tooth brush to 110v and turn it on. Surprise, surprise – it opens up to reveal the vial. Take it and leave the room. Go down to the hotel lobby.

3. BACK IN THE ROOM

You now need to find a good hiding place for the vial. What about the fridge? Take the vial and open the fridge. Put the vial into the ice tray. What about some ice? Take the jug of water on the table and pour it into the ice tray. Now you need to switch the fridge on. Take the adaptor out and put it back into the drawer. Now pick up the refrigerator cable

Oh! Good morning, Miss Dora. Delighted to hear from you... I heard what happened in your plane. Poor old Fayard... Fortunately, you have the vial. Above all, keep it somewhere safe! Don't carry it with you! I'll explain the whole business... Then we'll think things over... Come and meet me at my office...

The entry code for the building is C5873.

and plug it into the socket. Now you have ice.

Next call Jeffrey Miller on the phone using the telephone number you noted down in the lobby. Note the entry code number of his flat. Just as you leave the room, old Romeo Robaire de la Cafetiere calls. He's in from Mexico and it would appear that you're having a bit on the side with him. Erm... Interesting game – it's no wonder really, Fascination is the idea of French woman, Muriel Tramis. Leave the room and go to the pool, where you'll see Lechy Rob, dizzy Prisca and Shazzer, the barmaid.

In the first of our three part Fascination tips, Matt Squires joins that old French

2. HOTEL LOBBY

Click on the newspaper. Underneath is a girlie magazine. Have a quick flick through if you like – you'll not only find a few scantily clad babes, but more importantly one of the corners is ripped off. Part of the telephone number

Jeffrey MILLER - 05/19/27

QUANTUM Unlmted Lab.
Special . 6th gen.
cerebro-chimical pdts.
Welghs: $500 million
Personal Line: 888-1111

for a Lou Dale (the chap responsible for each photo) is missing. Make a note of the remaining number. Underneath the girlie mag is a Who's Who directory. Open it. Here you'll find Jeffrey Miller's personal number at the Quantum lab. Make a note of his telephone number.

Look around the lobby and you'll see a key ring on the table. Take it to Isalinda, the receptionist. It's a key tag for a locker in the changing booths by the pool. She'll give you the missing key. Look around again and you'll see an ash tray on a small coffee table. In the ash tray you'll find a token. This could come in handy so take it. Now go back up to your room.

4. SWIMMING POOL

Go into the booths. Use the pool key to open the locker door. Inside you'll find a broken walkman. Open the battery compartment with the token. Take the battery, it could be useful. Leave the booth and go outside to the pool. Speak to Prisca, your chief hostess. Dirty old lech, Robaire already knows her from a party in Rio. Anyway, what's more important are the items Prisca got from Nicholson when he had the heart attack – a torch and a pendant. You already have a battery so take the torch, it will come in useful later.

Where's the pendant? It would seem that dizzy old Prisca has dropped it somewhere. Take the hat hanging at the side of the pool. Give it to Prisca. Under the hat there is a light switch for the pool. Switch it on. The light reveals the pendant at the bottom of the pool. Take it from the pool. Ask Sharon, the barmaid, for a coffee. Take a sugar and keep it. Drink your coffee and leave the pool. Now exit to QUL.

After that you can either attempt to work your own way through, or be lazy and wait until next month. ●

THE LAST RESORT

with Jonathan Davies

Stop toying with that electric carving knife, and let Jonathan Davies shine his guiding light in your direction.

New series! Vintage The Last Resort intros. This month: the classic 'Mothership' intro from issue 12.

'Is that mothership proving more troublesome than you'd anticipated? Have you just arrived at the Temple of Krall after days of journeying, only to find they won't let you in without a password? It's typical, isn't it? Well, that's where I come in (apparently). My appointed task is to take your problem and wrestle the solution from it with my bare hands, whatever the cost. Failing that, I'm placed in the humiliating position of having to pass your gaming dilemma over to the AMIGA POWER readership in the hope that they might know the answer (which they're bound to). Either way, you can't lose. Oh, and more fortunate readers might want to send in anything which they think might help.'

ULTIMA VI

Q "Where's the rune of honesty? The fortune-teller Penumbra tells me it was buried along with her husband Beyvin in the catacombs under Moonglow. I've searched all round Moonglow and Verity Isle, but I can't find an opening that might lead to the catacombs. Was she lying? Or am I looking in the wrong place?"

A Sperber, Waterloo, Belgium

A No, spake she the truth (as they say in this sort of game). The entrance to the catacombs lurks (inasmuch as an entrance can actually 'lurk') in the pantry of the tavern. You'll need to get the key from Manrel.

BATTLE HAWKS 1942

Q "I'm having trouble with the Midway No. 1 mission for the Japanese, when divebombers are attacking the three carriers. Although I can usually save the nearest flattop, the others have been hit before I reach them and thus I receive a poor mission rating. Is it really impossible? This is the only mission which I cannot complete successfully,

LOOSE ENDS

Here are all the problems that had me beat this month. If you know any of the answers, please send them in.

Q "I'm stuck on CAPTIVE, Mission 2, Level 2, the planet Phoopel. I can't find the generator room. I've come to a room which is cut in half by fire, but I can't find a way to the other side. Not of the clipboards I've got left fit, and I can't find any more."
Stephen A D

Q "How do you destroy the purple flower pot on the toys and stuff ledge in The Simpsons? And how do you destroy the cinema screen? I'd be delighted to know, as these are the only things holding me back from Level 2."
Cheryl Adamson, N Yorks

Q "I'm having problems with Shinobi. At the end of Level 2 a helicopter appears and I can't destroy it."
Daniel Brumhead (aged 9), Keyingham

Q "I'm having a number of problems with Legend. I can't answer the first riddle in the Unshrine. I don't see the significance of the Barkeep's rumour: 'Legend has it that the true Stone Masons were usurped by the Druids and now seek revenge.' And I'm stuck in a room on Level 1 of the Dark Tower. It's got a tree and an X symbol, and a level and chest that are blocked off by rising and falling spikes. The other door won't budge, and there's a green pressure pad I can't reach."

M Mancox, Brighton

Q "What's the probe code for Planet No. 5 (Salstee) in CAPTIVE?"
Ian Beckford, Jersey

Q "How do I get the passport in Leisure Suit Larry II? I have the ticket, the swim suit and the hair cut, but I still can't board the ship."
P Griffiths, Cambridge

Q "KID GLOVES 2 is easy till I get onto the mermaid at the end of the Water Islands. I've tried hundreds of times but it seems impossible to defeat her. As soon as I've hit her once she's back on top of me. What should I do?"

Adam Brumhead, Keyingham

Q "I recently bought MAGIC POCKETS for my children, but we always lose all our credits at the gorilla at the end of Level 2. How do you get past him?"
Mrs M Turner, Wednesbury

Tragically, I seem to run out of space once again. Like I said, do send in any problems you may be having and I'll do my best to answer them. And, if you can supply answers to any of this month's 'Loose Ends', please do so. The address is The Last Resort, AMIGA POWER, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath BA1 2BW. And don't forget, as a precautionary measure, to mark your envelope Questions or Answers.

CASES CLOSED

Unresolved questions from previous months are tied up here, with the help of our more clued-up and generally together readers.

NEW ZEALAND STORY

Q Tom Lane of Twickenham hadn't progressed terribly far, having got stuck at the end of level 1-4.

A "To kill the whale, go to the bottom left of the screen and you'll get scooped into the whale's mouth. Dodge the raindrops falling from the ceiling, firing all the time, and you should manage to defeat it."

Helen Dryden, Guisborough

A "Or, even simpler, go up from the start, over the large wall and to the right. Go down to the bottom, get on a balloon and go up a little way alongside the wall. Keep firing a you'll be warped to level 2-1!"

Adrian Pannett, Shrewsbury

FUTURE WARS

Q Fyona Roberts of Dundee was wrestling unsuccessfully with that wretched octopus.

A "After the messages have cleared you will still be advancing towards the octopus. Click to stop yourself at a spot before the point where the back of the octopus's body begins. Now use the blowtorch on it. (The blowtorch is found at the bottom right of the ruins screen in 4315, under the rubble."

James Hampson, London

BARD'S TALE III

Q F Dees of Hull was locked out of the Lanatir's tomb.

A "The password is 'Cala'."

Janet Campbell, Taunton

A "The blowtorch needs to be filled at the tap in the sewers, by the way."

Jason Gensor (aged 12), Farnborough

DAMOCLES

Q Andrew Burden of Warrington couldn't find keys A or C of the remote detonator, or the best way to complete the game.

A "To avoid destroying Damocles, get the antigrav from 09-02 (floor B), drive to 11-08, go to the basement (after picking up the ship) and warp to Transporter 2. Leave and go to 14-13 (you are now on Dion). Go to the window with a chair, a computer and a desk. Go right the way to the window and get the computer and chair. Drop and board the chair (it's possible to fly in it!) and you can now access the computer. Press 4 on the keypad, press the + key and then press * to destroy Icarus. Damocles should fly away safely.

Key C is on Metis 01-03 Ground Floor, and key A is through door A!"

Michael Hall, Pen-y-ffordd

CADAVER

Q Jack Daniels (Huh? - Ed) of Belfast had something missing from his life - a crown, to be precise.

A "You must have the king's armour, the helmet, the shield and the sword. From the armoury, go south and west and then push the button to get into the treasury."

Michael Hall, Pen-y-ffordd

BLACK CRYPT

Q The artifacts were Justin Wells of Surry's problem, or, rather, what to do with them.

A "Hopefully you have an invincibility potion; use it. Then have a quick slash at Estoroth and teleport away. Gather up any dead members and go in again. Use the right mouse button to activate the artifacts (which are now charged). Estoroth is now banished and you can collect your reward."

A J Perks, Arlesley

FIRST SAMURAI

Q Didier Wittesaele of Brussels couldn't move on from level eight. It turns out he's made a bit of a boob.

A "It's easy to make the mistake of jumping from the end of Level 6 to level eight. To avoid this, collect at least four 'cupid' items on level six to clear the manhole of blocks. Do not try to jump the barrels on the right. Smash through the manhole to get to the level six guardian. Continue underground for level seven and the guardian and you'll end up on level eight (just behind the barrels). You'll now be able to complete the level and exit to the next"

Lee Jones, Sevenoaks

HUNTER

Q Phillip Taylor of Haverhill was having trouble locating the bunker containing the General.

A "Destroy the prison with a few bazooka shots (or with any other powerful weapon). The bunker's entrance is concealed just under the jail. Inside the bunker you'll find someone who will claim not to be the General. He lies. Kill him, pick up his head and go back to your HQ as quickly as possible."

and it's driving me crazy!"

Stuart N Hardy, Sheffield

A Good.

HOOK

Q "How can I dig up the clock at the beach? How can I get the magnet?"

Mark Casey, Leeds

A To get the clock you'll actually need the magnet, that has to be bought."

ROBOCOP 3

Q "I gather there's a cheat which involves typing 'THE DIDDY MEN' at some point, but I can't get it to work."

A That's because you're actually supposed to type 'THE DIDDY MEN' (with one D). Do it with the Shift key held down, and include the spaces. You'll then be invincible.

GOBLIINS

Q "I'm stuck on level five. How do you get past the monster at the bottom of the screen, after you've let the skeleton out of the coffin?"

Jane Cole, Gateshead

A The level can be completed thus: cast a spell on the base of the hand, and then climb up and punch the eye. Move the technician onto the tongue and cast a spell on the skeleton sticking out of the coffin.

Move the magician onto the tongue with the technician, punch the eye and wait for the monster to return to the coffin. To finish the level, punch the toadstool.

SPEEDBALL 2

Q "Is there a cheat?"

Marcus Hammod, London

A Nope. I'm afraid not.

OPERATION STEALTH

Q "I've got the key and card off the secret agent, but when I try to open the door leading to the safes nothing happens."

Tom Russell, Loughborough

A Use the card on the bank employee, who'll then open the safe room for you. (Much simpler, eh?) Then find the safe the corresponds to the number on the card, and open it with the key.

Not too good on the answering things front this month. All the more reason for you to get writing with all those hints, tips and solutions you've been keeping from me.

The Future Entertainment Show

EARLS COURT

TIME FOR A QUICK TEST:

1. Think of just about any software company.
2. Now think about any game you've heard of.
3. Where can you go to find out everything you could want to know about the things you thought of in 1 and 2, from the people who know?

The answer is simple: The Future Entertainment Show at Earls Court in London from the 5th to the 8th of November. Hosted by your favourite magazine publisher (that's us) this all-formats extravaganza promises to be the biggest and brightest show ever. Anyone who's anyone in the computer industry will be there. Who knows, might even bump into one of the AMIGA POWER team as well. Here's a brief rundown of the whos, whats, whys and whens of the show.

MicroProse, stand no 600, will be blowing people away with the latest state of the art sims for the Amiga and other machines. Gunship 2000 is one title that'll be on show. Vektor Graftix's B-17 Flying Fortress should also be winging its way to Earls Court, but let's hope it doesn't bomb. (You're fired. - Ed)

Gremlin, stand no 1500, will be there supporting their latest batch of releases. Nigel Mansell is likely to feature heavily as his game nears completion, rather like his Formula One career. Gremlin must be more than a bit peeved that our Nige has opted to quit just as his game is ready, but that's the perils of licensing for you. Hero Quest 2 is also likely to hack and slash its way into the show and no doubt Lotus III will be making an appearance somewhere along the line.

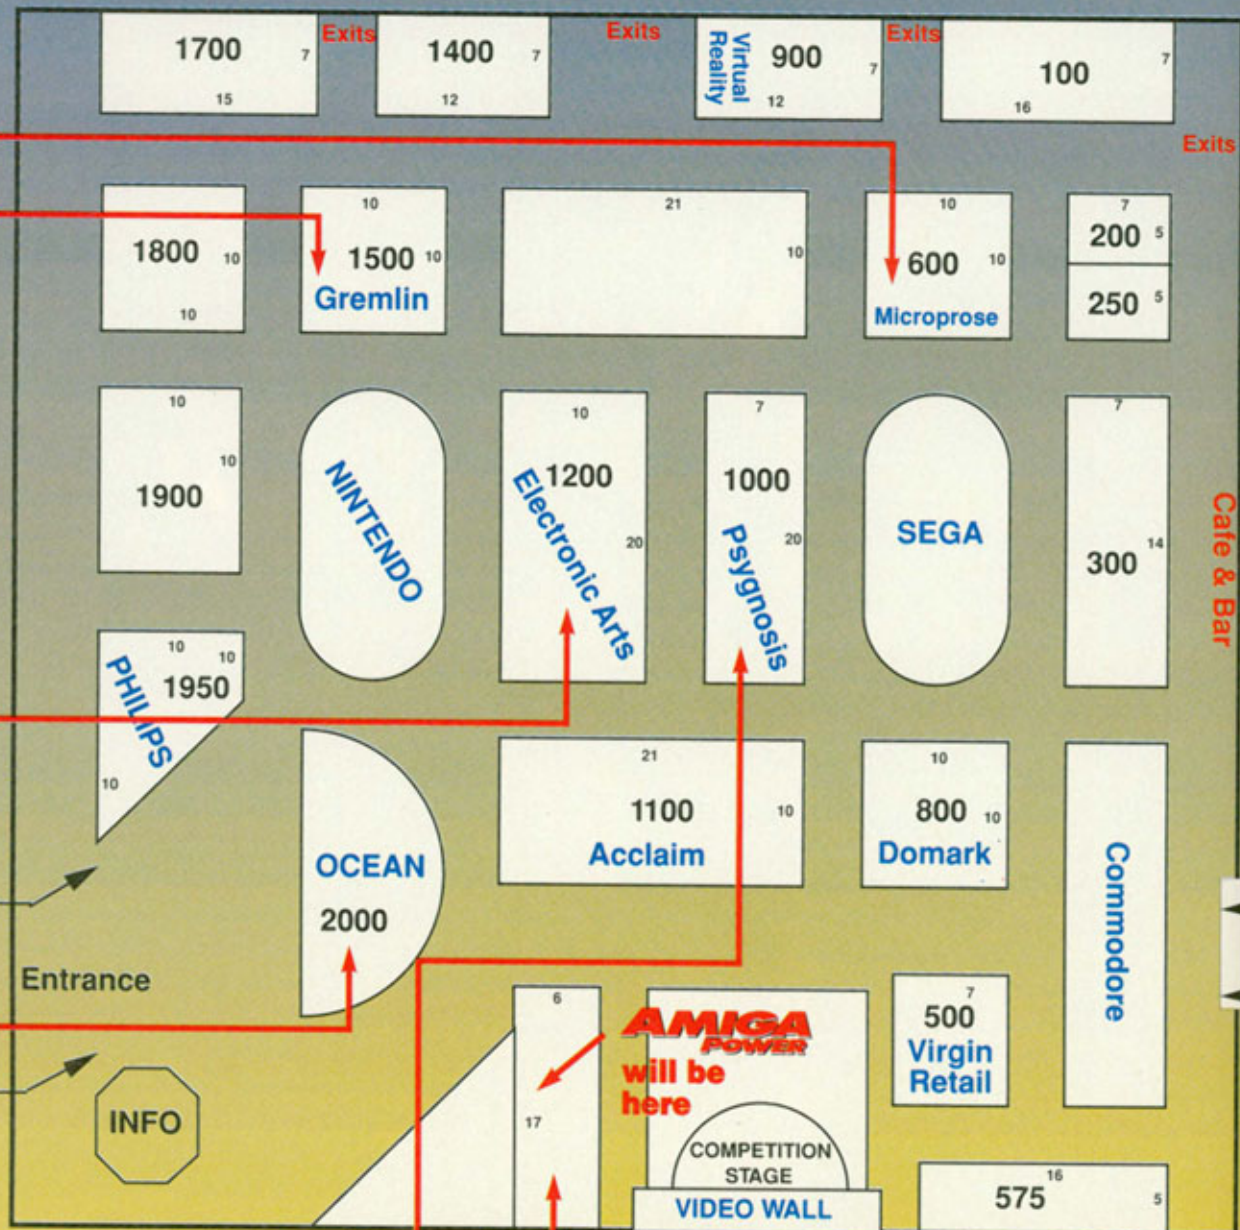

Electronic Arts, stand no 1200, should be the scene of some pretty neat stuff. Road Rash will be racing away with lots of the attention and don't be surprised if Desert Strike blows you away too.

Ocean, stand no 2000 - Need we say more? As you would expect, the Manchester giants will be showing off the latest film licences and a few other surprises. You'll be able to cop an eyeful of Cool World (the movie features a real and a cartoon Kim Basinger), but there'll be some games to see as well. Getting away from the movies, Robosport is likely to make an early appearance, but there's far too much to tell you about all of it here. Ocean's stand is bound to be one of the busiest, so be sure to get in there pretty early.

This is where the action will be, because the biggest software houses will all be there showing off their latest games. This is your chance to get ahead and see what's coming before all your mates.

HALL A

Entertainment

Liverpool's very own Psygnosis, stand no 1000, will be pulling out all the stops at this year's FES. Little cute green creatures will no doubt be on everyone's minds as a certain sequel to a certain game draws ever closer. As featured on the cover disk this month, Bill's Tomato Game should prove to be too juicy to resist looking at. With the run-up to Christmas just starting, Psygnosis will be out to impress everyone.

Of course it wouldn't be the Future Show without the presence of the big boys of the magazine scene. Future Publishing have stand no 2300. You won't be able to miss it, it's one of the biggest there. Magazines in attendance will include AMIGA POWER, Amiga Format and Amiga Shopper among many others. In fact for the Amiga owner (and if you're reading this you probably are one) every magazine you would want to read about your machine is there, in person, as it were. What else do you need? Who knows, you may get the chance to challenge your favourite (or most hated) reviewer to a game on one of the stands.

ALL YOU NEED IS TICKETS

To save you looking round London trying to find where we are, the show is being held at Earls Court. If you want advance tickets there was a bit of card in the last issue giving you all the details. If not then tickets will be available on the door.

The doors open at 9.30am and close again at 5pm (or 4pm on Sunday because everyone wants to go home early on Sunday). Tickets on the door are £7 for adults and £5 for under 14s. (Of course, if you're smart enough to buy advance tickets, you'll have saved £1.05 on each ticket, so you'll be able to buy some crisps as well)

If you're planning to travel by tube then the nearest station (believe it or not) is Earls Court. Easy enough for you?

HALL B

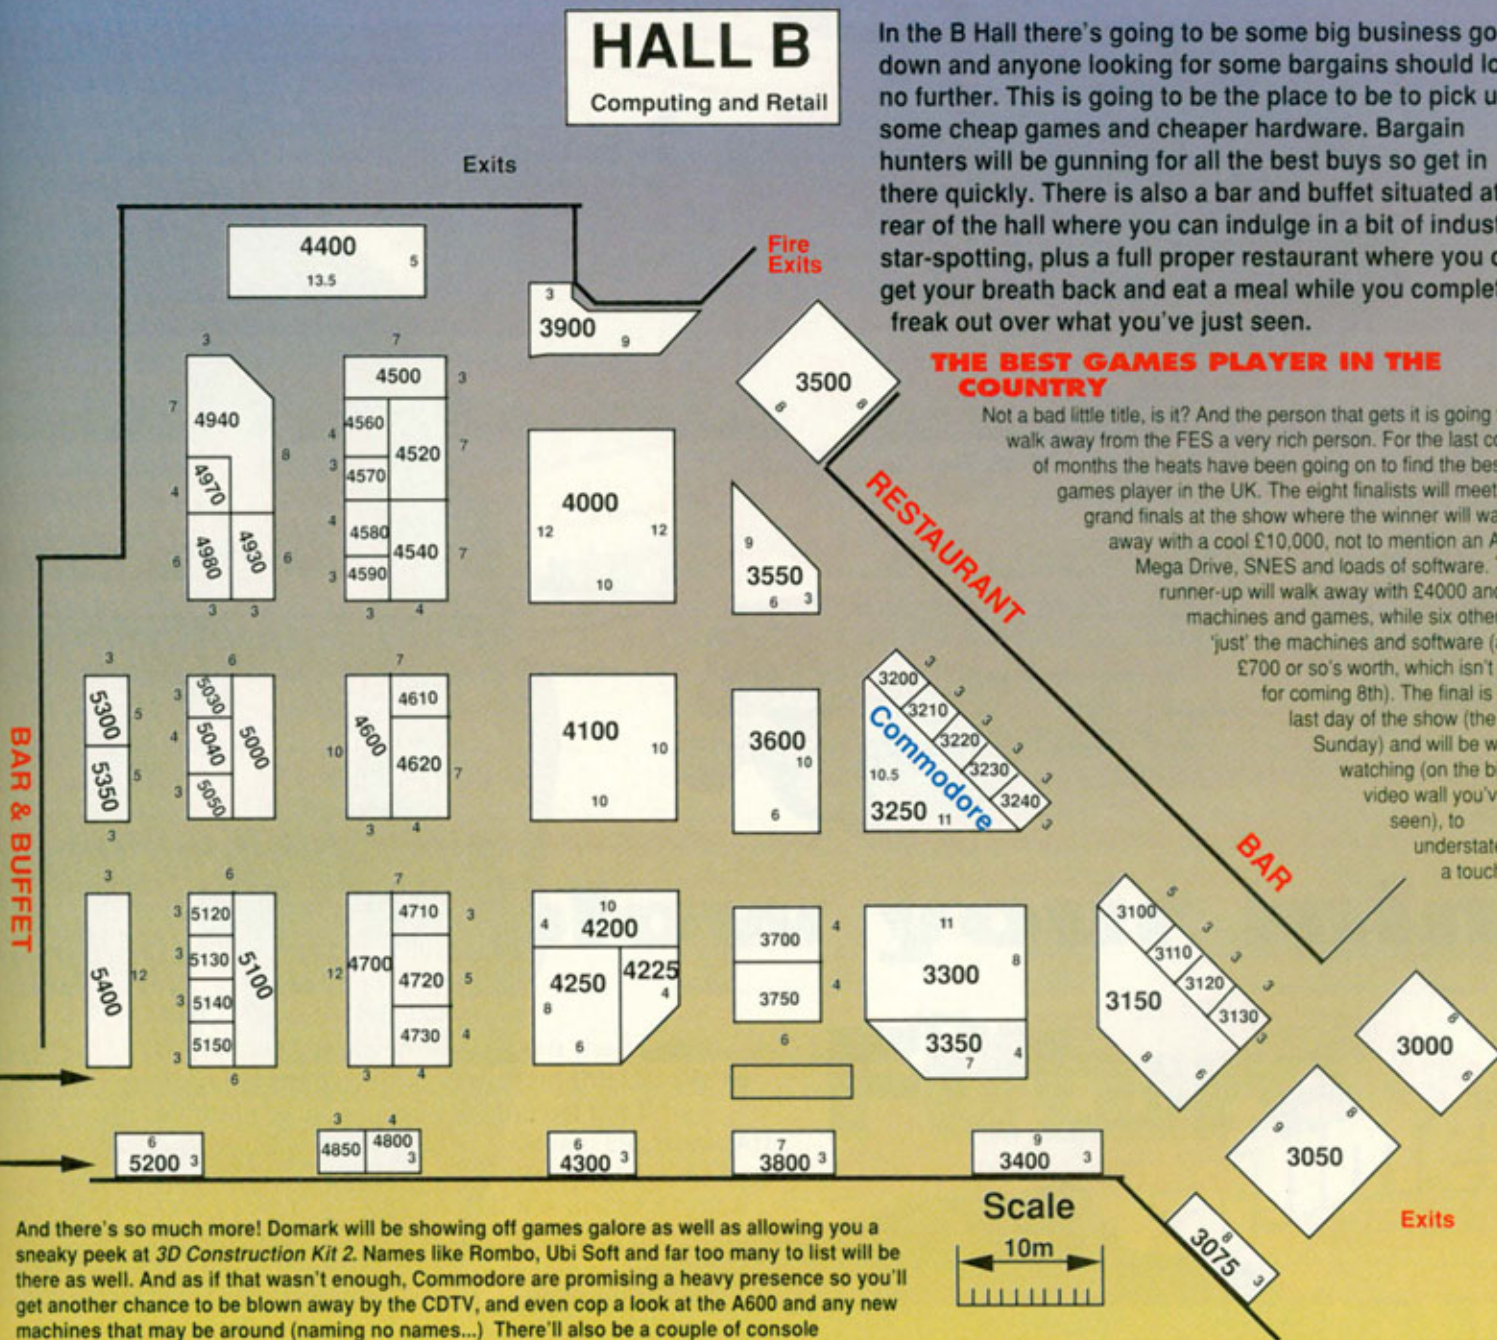

Computing and Retail

Exits

In the B Hall there's going to be some big business going down and anyone looking for some bargains should look no further. This is going to be the place to be to pick up some cheap games and cheaper hardware. Bargain hunters will be gunning for all the best buys so get in there quickly. There is also a bar and buffet situated at the rear of the hall where you can indulge in a bit of industry star-spotting, plus a full proper restaurant where you can get your breath back and eat a meal while you completely freak out over what you've just seen.

THE BEST GAMES PLAYER IN THE COUNTRY

Not a bad little title, is it? And the person that gets it is going to walk away from the FES a very rich person. For the last couple of months the heats have been going on to find the best games player in the UK. The eight finalists will meet in the grand finals at the show where the winner will walk away with a cool £10,000, not to mention an Amiga, Mega Drive, SNES and loads of software. The runner-up will walk away with £4000 and the machines and games, while six others get 'just' the machines and software (a tidy £700 or so's worth, which isn't bad for coming 8th). The final is on the last day of the show (the Sunday) and will be worth watching (on the biggest video wall you've ever seen), to understate it just a touch.

And there's so much more! Domark will be showing off games galore as well as allowing you a sneaky peek at 3D Construction Kit 2. Names like Rombo, Ubi Soft and far too many to list will be there as well. And as if that wasn't enough, Commodore are promising a heavy presence so you'll get another chance to be blown away by the CDTV, and even cop a look at the A600 and any new machines that may be around (naming no names...). There'll also be a couple of console manufacturers present (we thought we ought to let them in). Yep, Sega and Nintendo will be there too. If you're into games, how can you afford to miss it? Much as we hate blowing our own trumpets and name-dropping and all that stuff, it IS going to be the hottest ticket in town, in fact it's simply the biggest entertainment event of the year.

So now you know what it is, where it is and how little excuse you have not to be there. Make a date, November 5-8, be there or be laughed at by your friends for years to come. Be seeing you.

BEAT THE
THOUSANDS OF
£££s!

(There's £10,000
in it for you if you are...)

Yes, £10,000! That's the prize for the winner of the National Computer Games Championships, and entry is absolutely free. All you have to do is turn up to one of the Virgin Games Centres where heats are being held and show us what you're made of!

To start with you have a choice of playing on the Mega Drive, Super NES or Amiga, but if you get through the first stage then you'll have to really show off your skills by playing several games on different machines.

If you get top marks in the special gamers' challenge you could make it to the finals at the Future Entertainment Show in November and face a play-off on the video wall with the TV cameras watching! And the winner will walk off with £10,000 in cash.

If you think you're up to the challenge, look up your nearest entry point below, and see if you are as good as you think you are...

THE PRIZES!

The winners of each heat will go forward to a regional final the same week. The winner of each regional final will get an Amiga, a Mega Drive and a Super NES, plus copies of the games which will be used in the finals so they can get ready in style. In the grand final itself, the runner up will get £4,000 while the winner will go home an incredible £10,000 richer!

FREE ENTRY!

HOW TO ENTER

Please pre-register the week before at your nearest store:

12th, 13th, 14th, 15th October
Glasgow Union Street Megastore
Falkirk Games Centre
East Kilbride Games Centre

19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd October
Stockport Game Centre
Manchester Megastore

26th, 27th,
28th, 29th
October

Bromley Game Centre
Croydon Game Centre
Guildford Game Centre
Ilford Game Centre
Kingston Game Centre
London Game Centre,
100 Oxford Street
Birmingham Megastore
Bristol Game Centre
Cardiff Megastore
Newcastle Megastore
Gateshead Game Centre

There you'll have to try out a special timed challenge on Zool, Robocop 3 or Aquatics. Regional finals will be held on the Friday of each week in a local Megastore, and the winners of the regional finals will go to the grand final in Earls Court on November 7th and 8th.

MINDSCAPE - 'NOT JUST BY ACCIDENT'

Managing director Geoff Heath has been around precisely, oooh... ages. Let's just say that following a substantial period in the music biz he's now become something of a computer industry veteran too. A decade ago Geoff joined up-and-coming software company Melbourne House, who later merged with budget innovators Mastertronic, who in turn merged with Virgin, who themselves went on to launch the Sega consoles across Europe. Not bad experience for someone looking to found a little software empire of his own.

THE ORIGINS OF MINDSCAPE.

"We started just over three years ago by simply importing Mindscape Inc. products like Balance Of Power and Deja Vu II from the States. It was just two of us phoning around asking shops to stock the stuff. We wrote out about a million pounds worth of business on my dining room table during that first six months alone and realised we had a company that could go places. Mindscape Inc. wanted to set up in Europe so I was able to convince them to let me do it, gradually. We also picked up distribution for The Software Toolworks (now the Mindscape parent company) who produced all these strange products like Mavis Beacon Teaches Typing, and Chessmaster. Mindscape became known as THE company who proved that niche products could sell extremely well in Europe. Our strategy has always been to offer good, value for money programs with a long shelf life. The products may appear unusual, but they sell in mainstream volume."

MINDSCAPE HAS GROWN INCREDIBLY DURING A SEEMINGLY ENDLESS NATIONAL RECESSION.

With the imminent release of the 'impossible to do' Amiga version of Wing Commander, the conversion of massive console platformer Battletoads, and their first ever in-house originated game, Outlander, we thought it was time to let Ronnie Randall pay a visit to Burgess Hill in Sussex, home of MINDSCAPE INTERNATIONAL.

WORK

SUCCESSFUL

"True, it's been a great couple of years. In the terrible recession of the 1930s the boom areas were music halls and cinema, cheap escapism. Nothing really changes. When there is less disposable income people tend to look for relatively cheaper forms of entertainment, and in the '90s there's no better value than a GOOD computer game. Of course, we're not successful just by accident, we look at where the industry, AND the consumers, are going and we're probably unique for the UK in that we take orders, produce programs, manufacture, and distribute, all under one roof. There are over 70 employees here now, with French, German, and Japanese offices. Not bad for three years' work."

YOU SAY 'WE DON'T DO BUDGET GAMES' YET LAUNCHED THE NEW CLASSIC RANGE

"Our focus has always been quality. The new Classic series is priced at 14.99 with titles like D/Generation, 4D Sports Driving and Boxing, Blue Max, Das Boot, Captain Planet and Paperboy 2. There's a budget price at which people know they're getting something either very old, or very inferior, sometimes both. At 7.99, or whatever, their expectations are not going to be too great. With 'Classics' we're offering really good value without compromising on quality. The response has been really encouraging, so we'll continue to look at products for that price point."

"I think CDTV will take time to catch on"

NOW THAT ELECTRONIC ARTS HAVE PURCHASED ORIGIN HOW WILL MINDSCAPE REPLACE THE ULTIMA SERIES, AND INDEED, FUTURE WING COMMANDERS?

"Well, we've still got the rights to release new Origin product until next year."

It's a blow, but nothing critical. We'll be looking at lines which in the past were considered to conflict with Origin releases. RPGs are a staple of the company and will always be successful for us.

"A new area we're really getting into is EDUTAINMENT, which basically means games you can actually learn something from as you play. Our new deal with Maxis very definitely falls under the edutainment category. It's a product range we understand, quality and shelf life crossing age and sex barriers. Sim Life is on the way, Sim Farm will follow, and there are lots of other Sims in the pipeline. The genre could go on for years.

"The other interesting area is Multi-Media, a hackneyed term I know, but I've always worked on the theory that the game, video, and music industries are on a collision course. I see what we're doing in future involving rock bands, musicians, and film. It's going to be a huge business. A while ago I rang up a few of my contemporaries from music biz days, thinking they wouldn't have a clue what I was talking about when I told Right: Geoff Heath, Managing Director of Mindscape International. In the space of three years he's built up Mindscape to be one of the major players in the industry.

Below: The rather brilliant D/Generation is just one of the Mindscape titles getting a re-release at the unusual price point of £14.99.

means these people are showing an ACTIVE interest, and awareness."

ARE MINDSCAPE MAKING MOVES TO COMBINE THE VARIOUS STRANDS?

"Sure, we're dealing with music and film production companies to see how we can work together, but it's still very much at the talking stage. Currently there are at least two huge multinational companies actively backing the games business. Sony are one. Interestingly everything comes back to those little silver compact discs. They are, or will be, the common platform. Sooner or later a multimedia machine will arrive that allows you to play games, play music, and, once the compression techniques are refined, play films, with combinations of the three possible."

them I produce computer games. Amazingly the typical response from these people at the top of the biggest record companies was 'don't tell me about the games business, I've got an Amiga, I've got a Gameboy, I've got a Mega Drive... I know what's going on.' Which

HOW DO YOU SEE THE NEAR FUTURE OF GAMING HARDWARE, THE AMIGA IN PARTICULAR?

"Primarily we support the Amiga, PC, Super Nintendo, Sega, and Macintosh. At the moment the Mac has the biggest growth potential of all, THAT market is starting to become very interesting indeed. I think the Amiga has a good future. The various souped-up new versions like the 4000 are very impressive with faster speeds and 256 colour display. Once CD drive consumption takes off it will encourage better software. All the hardware manufacturers are now involved in CD developments, which, as far as we're concerned, is the way the whole industry should be going. I actually went to a couple of car boot sales at the weekend and, to my horror, saw some of our best and most recent products being sold on pirated blank disks for £2.50. I guess that in future new Amigas will use CD rather than floppy storage systems in order to eliminate a lot of these problems and thus keep us interested in developing software for the machines." → long the first fruits of our labours are only now beginning to show. It takes time to nurture and blend talent. For example, Origin didn't happen overnight, they've been around for ten years. The Americans have led the field in the RPG genre so far, but

"Wing Commander: The Amiga potential is huge" notable British companies now fully understand these sort of products and are producing world standard software. Bullfrog are a case in point, while the Bitmaps at Renegade probably produce the finest games of THEIR particular type anywhere in the world, the Americans can't touch them. We're now looking to create in-house product that rivals anything seen anywhere, but it's not an overnight job."

...AND FINALLY 'THE MIRACLE', WHAT IS IT?

"The Miracle is a brilliant way to learn to play the piano. Research discovered that a mind-boggling 60% of the population in all countries and of ALL age groups would like to play keyboards, so we looked at the Mavis Beacon Typing Tutor with its artificial intelligence, and entertaining approach to teaching and basically expanded the idea massively to create a piano tutoring system complete with keyboard. The Miracle isn't a huge fly-off-the-shelf product, learning to play the piano isn't a fad like that, but it's an innovative idea that's proving to be a big success, and very typical of the sort of direction Mindscape will continue to take in future."

Well that's enough of all that Mindscape propaganda Geoff, it all sounds TOO perfect if you ask me. Let's see if we can dig up some dirt down in the programmers' lair.

BUT YOU'RE NOT SUPPORTING THE CDTV YET.

"As I keep saying, the future is definitely CD in some form. We're only doing a small amount of CDTV product because we don't feel that the software currently available utilises the full potential of the machine yet. I think CDTV, though way ahead of anything else on the market, will take time to catch on. At the moment people don't realise what it can do, they're saying; 'Why bother? I can get all I want on an Amiga.' Once software that really USES the CDTV is developed people will wonder how they lived without it. The Amiga itself would have been doomed without the arrival of a few key pieces of software that proved its potential and fired the public imagination. Shadow of the Beast was one, just like Wing Commander sold PCs."

FUNNY YOU SHOULD MENTION WING COMMANDER...

"It's wonderful, in terms of personal gaming it's my thing. Our concern at the time of its release two years ago was that we believed the type of PCs needed to REALLY show it off to its true potential were extremely limited in numbers. However, what happened is that the game helped to revolutionise the sale of PCs. People bought better graphics cards and bigger disc drives, even better PCs, JUST to play Wing Commander. The Amiga potential is huge too, after several failed attempts at conversions in the past we finally got this technique that works. It's VERY exciting."

SO FAR YOU'VE LICENSED PRODUCT, OR ACTED AS SALESMAN AND DISTRIBUTOR FOR THE LIKES OF RENEGADE. THE IN-HOUSE DEVELOPMENT OF OUTLANDER IS A NEW DEPARTURE.

"The key to good software development is that it's a three year plan. Since we've only been around for that

The Miracle - at last, a keyboard which lets you tinkle with the ivories and helps you learn music at the same time!

Wing Commander in all its 3D glory. On the lower picture we're flying straight at an enemy transport craft in Wing Commander. The trick is to shoot up its engine port.

THE SEX DUNGEON

"Hold it right there Ronnie, first stop I'm taking you to our Sex Dungeon," breathed Claudine Jorris who's big in marketing around these parts. A-ha, just as I feared, marketing PAYOLA! But I won't crack. 'Truth, justice and the Wembley Way' that's my motto.

I'm guided through a maze of offices and into a massive warehouse space stacked to the rafters with Euro-butter mountains worth of computer product. In the far corner a huge truck with TNT writ large on the side backs through a hole in the wall - another pile of games off to Mr Software Retailer.

"Here it is, look... the Sex Dungeon."

A cheap formica door swings open to reveal five or six gaunt, pallid-skinned blokes playing computer games.

"The Sex Dungeon is just a little joke amongst the females," cackles Claudine, a touch TOO bitchily for my liking. "It's really our Quality Assurance and play-testing department. Have fun." And with that she turned on her heel and abandoned me.

WING COMMANDER AND ALL THAT

"Hi! I'm Pog, I'm a software production manager. Would you like to see Wing Commander?"

Oo-er! Yes please mister. What's it all about then?

"It's a 3-D space shoot-em-up. You fly on 32 missions against an alien invasion force, stop them, kill them, capture their leaders... it's basically air to air combat with lots of different weapons and ships."

Yeah, but why is it so special?

"Well, all these objects you see flying around are real-time scaled, with so many frames of rotation and different angles already stored. It's an unusual combination for the Amiga which normally uses vector graphics for flight combat sims. The alien ships are actually bitmapped graphics with real textures."

Oooo! My head hurts. All this technical jargon is fine, but does it mean the game is any good?

"Are you kidding, Wing Commander is THE classic on the PC. It's NOT a linear game, you take different routes depending upon how well you carry out each mission. You can fight badly, yet still come back on track with a series of later successes. In fact you could actually survive through to the end of the game but lose because your ineptitude has allowed the invasion force to reach your mothership. Alternatively, do well and you'll be attacking their mothership instead. Intermission sequences keep you up to date with other, related action during the battle you're involved in. Your personal actions and exploits affect every other aspect..."

"Battletoads is a dozen games rolled into one"

Alright already, I get the picture, it's well thought out, complex, yet easy to get into. Who solved those tough Amiga conversion problems? "Nik Pelling. He proved with some demos that he could make things happen that we, and everybody else, believed impossible on this machine. Thank him for bringing Wing Commander to the Amiga, it's extremely clever work."

BATTLETOADS - WARTS AND ALL

"Wanna see Battletoads? Well you can't, we're too busy converting it, still, here's a video recording of what it does. It's definitely the best game of its type, with rave reviews on the consoles. Mindscape aren't known for platform games, that's more Renegade territory, but our view is, if you can get the best, take it.

"Battletoads is immense, with so many ideas. During the conversions the subtlety of the game has dawned upon us even more. There are 120 frames of animation on the toad alone, and each of the 12 levels is so different from the last it's like a dozen individual games rolled into one. Own Battletoads and you'll never need another platform game."

Surprisingly, studying the video, everything he says appears to be true. Battletoads really promises to be something extra special. If only I could play it. Reluctantly I settle instead for a run down of near-future releases. → started life as a license for the Mad Max films. We've dropped the Max tie-in because of the associated limitations of a licensed product, but the inspiration is still very much drawn from the first two Mad Max films." Inspired in precisely what way?

Battletoads as it stands on the PC at the moment. Each level offers a new challenge for the toads, and features new gameplay elements.

Sim City? Pah! Sim Ant? Small fry! Sim Life goes all the way, giving the player control over entire civilisation. Perhaps the ultimate sim game, the potential is huge. Of course there is the danger that, like Sim Earth, Sim Life could over-reach itself and end up a sprawling mess. Here's hoping for a return to the classic playability of Sim City.

"There's a car driving sequence, moving from town to town along desert highways while bikers throw Molotov cocktails, jeeps crash into you, and microlight aircraft drop bombs. The rough spec is a kidnapped-scientist-needing-to-be-rescued-in-order-for-him-to-prevent-something-awful-happening. It's a mixture of third person sexy driving sequences and a good old horizontal scrolling beat-'em-up."

I'm shown an impressive animation, taken straight off the film, of a guy flying over the top of a car after being mown down by Max, sorry Outlander, and the general graphic style is rather gorgeous, but at the moment there's nothing to actually play as yet.

AS MAD AS A VERY MAX THING

The programming room is loud, very loud. Nine Inch Nails loud to be precise. The windows are plastered with posters of Nirvana, The Shamen, The Smiths and The Orb to keep out some light. In this intimidating semi-dark pit I can make out seven more geezers hunched like goblins over their colour monitors. Maybe THIS atmosphere is the secret of success for a company founded on the legends of Middle Earth? Except that today everyone's working on Outlander, a future driving/beat-em-up game.

"Outlander is our first in-house originated project and TAKE TWO BOTTLES INTO THE SHOWER?

"Over the next few months the Amiga will see Wing Commander, Battletoads, and Outlander. The Bitmaps' best ever, The Chaos Engine is coming out on Renegade, very slick indeed. Tony Crowther is beaver away on Captive II, though it's a little way off yet, and add on disks for Legend are a strong possibility.

Right: The 3D section of Outlander definitely evokes Mad Max. Far right: Beating 'em up in Outlander.

The on-going plan is to bring as much programming in-house as possible, so we're constantly adding coders and artists.

We've just taken on our first full time musician too, Mark Knight. He's working on Amiga Wing Commander.

"And, of course, we've got Contraptions – a puzzling sort of affair.

Then there're the Sim games from Maxis, of course. Then then of course there's...ah, but we've run out of time."

And, indeed we have. I guess you'll just have to wait until another time, to discover the dark and wonderful secrets Mindscape have planned for the future. ●

IF YOU'VE BEEN FOLLOWING SUPER PLAY, YOU'LL KNOW THAT EVERYBODY ELSE HAS, TOO.

This year the magazine to watch for cutting edge console gaming isn't one of the ones you might have expected. It's Super Play.

From the very first issue it became clear – for the most accurate, honest reviews, for the first news and previews, for the best overview on the entire world scene for 1992's hottest new console, there is now a new place to be.

SUPER PLAY ISSUE ONE (WITH FREE PIN BADGE) STILL AVAILABLE!

Bigger, thicker issue two out 5 November!

£1.95

● Super Play is never less than 100 pages – and sometimes a whole lot more. When the machine specific Super Nintendo competition struggles to make 84 pages, that's a massive difference in commitment to the SNES straight away.

● Super Play is put together by Future Publishing – the people behind Total!, the multi-format Nintendo market leader, as well as market leading computer and video titles in every sector. We've got this big by being the best, and we're not stopping now.

● Super Play has a commitment to cover every Super Nintendo game as it comes out – all the official UK games, plus the best, most playable ones from America and Japan the minute they get imported. Unlike some magazines, which concentrate on just one side of the story, you get the complete picture with Super Play.

For the best in Player's Guides, news, features, comment on existing games and – of course – new game reviews, nobody brings you as much for the Super Nintendo as Super Play. For those who've been following the Super NES, the launch of Super Play was when everything really got started. For the competition, it's going to be a long, heart-breaking year.

Silica Systems are pleased to present the GVP range of peripherals. GVP are the world's largest third party manufacturer of peripherals for the Amiga range and have a reputation for high specification, quality products. The company was founded only four years ago by a man who knows about the Amiga. Commodore's ex-Vice President of Technology. He, along with a team of Amiga experts including other ex-Commodore staff, understand the add-on requirements of Amiga owners better than anyone. Not only do GVP provide peripherals that Amiga owners want, they also offer peace of mind, with a 2 year warranty on the products they manufacture. So, if you are looking for the very best in peripherals for your Amiga computer, look no further than GVP.

PC EMULATOR PLUG-IN OPTION FOR HD8+ & A530

- 16MHz 80286 processor
- 287 Maths Co-Processor socket
- 512K of PC RAM plus the use of Amiga RAM
- Supports Hercules, CGA, EGA/VGA (monochrome) and T3100 video modes
- Runs MS-DOS (3.2 and upwards) plus thousands of other PC programs

This powerful 286 emulator module simply plugs into the 'mini-slot' of the GVP HD8+ or A530 (without invalidating the warranty). It has full access to the Amiga's resources and allows you to run PC and Amiga programs at the same time, giving you two computers in one. Previously £249, we are pleased to offer the PC emulator at the new price of only £199, a saving of £50.

AMIGA PERIPHERALS

GVP's HD8+ hard drive and A530 hard drive with 40MHz accelerator, represent the highest quality Amiga 500 peripherals, at very affordable prices. Each incorporates a Quantum disk drive, RAM expansion capability, custom VLSI chip and FaaASTROM SCSI driver, for unbeatable performance.

The HD8+ hard drive offers up to 8Mb of standard internal Fast RAM expansion and the A530 Combo, up to 8Mb of 32-bit wide fast RAM expansion. Both feature a SCSI controller, which supports up to 6 additional devices, and an Autoboot/Game cut-off switch. Both are available in 52, 120 and 240Mb hard drive versions.

In addition, the A530 Combo zooms the Amiga forward with an 030 accelerator, running at a blistering 40MHz. This enables your Amiga 500 to run at an incredible 12.1 MIPS, faster than an Amiga 3000! No other product in the world combines all the features found in the A530 Combo! A plug-in PC emulator option, shown below, is available for both the HD8+ and A530 Combo.

Game: Locomotion
Publisher: DMI
Authors: Andre Wuethrich, Harald Kuhn (graphics)
Price: £25.99
Release: November

You should already be pretty familiar with this game from our issue 16 coverdisk, but if you're not – well, it serves you right for not buying it. Ha.

Locomotion is a puzzle game in the same sense that Tetris is a puzzle game, ie it's not. Your job in both is to react to a set of random but unalterable Incidents by manipulating a number of given Variables in such a way as to effect a 'Solution' which enables you to continue until Disaster inevitably overtakes you. In the case of Locomotion, the Incidents are trains appearing from stations on a map, with a letter above them indicating the destination to which they have to be sent. The Variables are the sets of points scattered all around the maze-like layout of railway tracks which make up each level. The Solution is getting a given number of trains into their correct stations, by manipulating the points to guide them safely around, within a time limit and within a set maximum number of crashes, and Disaster rears its head when you run out of time or trains before successfully parking the required number. Like Tetris, it's a very simple concept (even Tim managed to pick it up in a matter of seconds) (What do you mean, 'even Tim'? – Tim), and like Tetris it very quickly gets overwhelmingly nasty. In Locomotion this happens when the track layouts get more complicated (or, paradoxically, simpler, which means you've got a lot less space to manoeuvre in), the trains appear more frequently and the

Where there isn't any track, trains don't derail, they just sit and wait. But with the way the time limits are, don't have them hanging around too long.

Why don't they have any complex rail networks in the jungle? Because there isn't the demand.

We apologise for that last caption, by the way. Bit of a private joke. It won't happen again.

As you can see, later levels don't necessarily mean more complicated levels, but there's no room for error here.

This is an extremely busy level – only four points, but you'll never be off them.

parameters for survival get more and more demanding (ie more trains to direct in less time). Very soon indeed, you're looking at something that's deeply scary and enough to put you off travelling by train for life...

Locomotion comes with 12 stages, each of which has 9 levels to get through before you get the password. There are also 12 slots into which you can save the stages you can create with the aid of the built-in track editor.

Don't think that this means you're in for an easy ride, though – this isn't one of those games that doesn't start getting difficult until three-quarters of the way through. In fact, most of us started getting flustered and panicky by around the fourth level of stage one. Actually, this is the game's biggest failing – it gets off-puttingly hard so quickly that you're in danger of getting fed-up and discouraged before you get to the reward and boost of a level password. It is worth persevering, though – later levels bring on different scenery, and interesting and bizarre layouts which really tax your mind's sense of co-ordination to the limits.

Super-careful and painstakingly thought-out manipulation of the controls will be required, and all against oppressive time limits which will have you quivering under your desk in submission as your brain slams itself against the insides of your skull in a desperate attempt to escape.

Locomotion is one of those rare things – a game that the entire family can play. Sure, that's partly because it's easy to grasp and it's got granny-friendly subject matter, but mostly it's because most people hate most of their relatives. Got a really nasty auntie? Give her a go of Locomotion and watch her go dribbling-mad-bonkers before your very eyes.

● STUART CAMPBELL

THE BOTTOM LINE

A brilliant game that'll test your powers of tactical thinking and mental organisation better than just about anything else. Absorbing and addictive, just excellent, basically. It does get repetitive, though – there are just too many levels to each world. Still, with a built-in construction kit, you don't ever need to be bored.

TREASURES OF THE SAVAGE FRONTIER

The Beholder 2, is there really any need for games like this?

Game: Treasures of the Savage Frontier
Publisher: US Gold/SSI
Authors: Mark Buchignani, Don Baglow, Linwood Taylor
Price: £32.99
Release: Out Now

Shock, horror. Yet another mediocre RPG lands on my desk. Do these people really think I have nothing better to do with my time?

Look back over the last six or seven issues and you will see some truly awesome RPGs. Legend, Ishar, Storm Master, Eye Of The Beholder II, they've got it all - great graphics, good sound and most importantly, instant playability. Even more importantly this playability lasts throughout the game keeping you coming back time and time again. Now let's see what Treasure Of The Savage Frontier has, shall we? Great graphics? Nope. Good sound? Nope. Okay so it has playability factor, yes? No.

The first thing that will strike you about Treasure is the amount of disk swapping and accessing that goes on. Just to load the options screen takes three or four swaps and heaven forbid if you want to do anything clever on this screen or even in the game. If ever a game was designed to wear your disk drive out then this is it. It takes forever to set up a party and actually get into the game. I know that RPG fans are used to this but they shouldn't have to be. Nothing ever needs to be this unfriendly.

Some of the characters have nice close ups, there I did it, I found something about the game that I liked.

Everyone knows that SSI have a great reputation for producing some of the best role-players around. It's just such a pity that they haven't caught up with the times yet and realised that you can have good graphics in a role playing game. In the old days people didn't expect much in the way of aesthetics, but it's been proved that it can be done. Take a look at Dungeon Master and the Eye Of The Beholder games if you don't believe me. The graphic style used in Treasures is out of date and looks it. They are simplistic in the extreme and occupy such a small area of the screen.

Speed is another thing that lets the game down badly. As if all that disk swapping wasn't enough, just moving around the play area takes ages. After a while it seems that just about every move has to be loaded in separately and if you happen to come across some creatures you want to fight then be prepared for some major swapping hassles, both before and after the event. While we're on the subject of fighting, the combat is just about as exciting as watching paint dry, but it's a close contest. This D&D system has had its day, it's time for something new.

Now this is the wild frontier. How about it babe, wanna go treasure hunting?

Even an RPG fan would be driven nuts trying to get anywhere in this game - this takes slow to whole new extremes. Even with a couple of disk drives it takes a lifetime to make any real progress through the game, and if you only own a single drive, hah, forget it! Unlike most RPGs this one doesn't even support a hard drive. If you're going to have a big game you need to be able to install it on a hard drive, and why one isn't found here is completely beyond me.

How can I put this without upsetting old-fashioned RPG fans? Don't buy this. There are so many excellent role playing games out there that this one should be left to fade away into the background while the real things take centre stage. An outdated waste of time, and effort.

● LES ELLIS

Locked in mortal combat. A giant, a couple of dwarves, a wizard, a ninja and, wait for it, a tree. What a plank. Maybe he's branching out. (Maybe you're fired. -Ed)

THE BOTTOM LINE

Treasures of the Savage Frontier just goes to show that even if you have a tried and tested formula, it'll eventually go stale. It's just a very bad RPG. Go for one of the many excellent games out there instead.

RED ZONE

Game: Red Zone
Publisher: Psygnosis
Author: Dan Gallagher
Price: £25.99
Release: Out now

Picture the scene: It was a Monday morning. I arrived back in the office after two weeks' holiday. Mark said, "Did you have a nice time?" I told him I did. "We've got a present for you," he said, and gave me a big black Psygnosis box with a picture of a motorbike on the front. "We thought you'd like to review this," he said with an editorial twinkle in his eye. I was touched – they'd saved this motorbike game review for me because of my new-found interest in motorbikes.

"We saved this motorbike game review for you because no one except the PR bloke from Psygnosis can keep the bike on the track for long enough to complete a race..." And lo and be jiggered, neither could I. But persistence, as the saying goes, is... er... well it's jolly important anyway. So I stuck at it, and pretty soon I was actually able to get all the way round a course without destroying the bike. Within only half a day or so, I managed to qualify for a real race.

Red Zone is one of those polygon 3D affairs where you blast round a Grand Prix circuit as fast as you possibly can, if not faster. Because you're on a motorbike, your view occasionally tilts at bizarrely improbable angles as you bank the bike to 'take corners' (although in Red Zone, the phrase 'to take a corner' really ought to be redefined as 'to crash into a barrier in the most irritating way you can think of').

You can choose either a first or second person view and, when you first start playing, the second person view, where you can see your own bike, is the most useful. It gives you something of an idea of what happens as you ricochet around and lets you get to grips with controlling the bike a bit better. It's pretty difficult to judge distances, though, so you tend to hit the barriers even more frequently than usual and it's not really that much use for actual racing. So when you've got the hang of it you move back to the first person view. For reasons that are never adequately explored you can also choose side and rear views (when a bike's this difficult to control, why would you ever want to not look where you're going?).

Brrrrmmmm. Smash.

Here's a funny thing. The dial on the left is the tachometer. It doesn't have a red zone.

When you finally manage to finish a race, you can watch a replay of it as seen from a helicopter. This really brings home the absurdly difficult control as you watch your bike slew wildly around the track looking for the 'racing line' into the next crash barrier. And in case that wasn't enough evidence, you also get statistics on how many times you hit the barrier and from Psygnosis.

Not a bad race, really. Only two crashes and four other riders endangered.

how many other riders you endangered. (I was so good that I managed to endanger up to 11, even when there were only five other riders in the race.)

It's very difficult to control, but with a bit of practice it does become slightly easier. But is it worth the effort? Well, no, frankly. 'Smooth' is not a word that would be used to describe the animation nor would anyone be very likely to say 'extremely attractive' when asked to describe the backgrounds. The backgrounds can be pepped up by adding all the extra detail offered on the options screen, and this does help to make the whole thing much nicer to look at. But at a price. The animation moves from 'not very smooth' to 'very jerky and slow indeed' and you soon eschew scenery in favour of a bit of oomph. Doubtless there are some really great pictures of you when you win the championship (the one of you in bandages when you've written the bike off and been retired from the race is quite amusing) but I can't imagine very many people putting in the effort required to get that far.

It certainly isn't rubbish, don't get me wrong. Unfortunately, though, it isn't very easy, it isn't huge amounts of fun to play and it doesn't look utterly brilliant. I didn't expect to be World Champion first time out, but I wouldn't mind not crashing at every corner and I wouldn't mind if the corners looked pretty when I hit them.

● TIM NORRIS

THE BOTTOM LINE

Controlling a bike is a very physical thing and so it was inevitable that the control would be tricky to simulate. But smooth graphics are something we've come to expect and a miss here is slightly more significant.

54

"Smooth is not a word that would be used to describe it"

Action replay. That green and blue thing in the middle, at right angles to the track, is me on my way to the finish line.

To be fair, it looks okay when you crank the detail level up, but it reacts so slowly you'll never finish without crashing.

I'm pretty sure I keep my head upright when I go round corners so that the world never looks quite this crooked.

Edwin Sax painted three great masterpieces with a magical paint box he acquired from a wizened old man. On finishing the last one he was dragged inside the bizarre world of the paintings. Fatal Strokes is the story of his escape.

MATCH OF THE DAY

Highlights of the game between Candy Floss Utd and Mint Humbug Academicals. The kits aren't terribly nice and the matches don't look very interesting.

soon becomes quite irritating.

You don't click on the icons to enter the different sub-menus, instead you have to drag the icons over to the holes in your diary. There's an awful lot of selecting and dragging of icons to be done, and while this might be quite realistic (allowing you to build your plan for a week in advance) it's pointless. 99.93% of time you're only going to be pulling over an icon for what you want to do next. That means selecting the icon, dragging the icon, placing the icon, then clicking on the 'next appointment' arrow. Instead of just clicking straight on the icon like you would in most other management games.

This sounds like a lot of moaning about very little, but the worst sin a footie management game can commit is having a user interface that gets on your nerves. And speaking of getting on your nerves, the game features Jimmy Hill in a 'Match of the Day studio' graphic interlude with inane half-time waffle. They're not doing themselves any favours here, are they?

What else? A transfer market so stagnant that you'll be looking at lists of no-one for ages, straining at the leash with loads of money in the bank. A 'training' facility so fiddly that you're better off fielding a team of donkeys and losing than even bothering with it. Match highlights that are too fast, predictable, unrealistic and, well, crap (like, every single team appears to play in a vertically-striped strip in colours chosen by a colour blind sadist) to build up much excitement. Oh dear, it's not going very well is it?

Match of the Day isn't as bad as footie management games can be, but neither is it fit to grace the same pitch as, say, Graham Taylor's Soccer Manager. It's simply too fiddly and lacking in action, and you need to work far too hard to actually get anywhere.

And of course, any feelings of 'fun' that might start to emerge soon vanish when Jimmy Hill's infamous mug returns to the screen. Yeuck.

When the menu screen first appears your immediate inclination is to leap out of your chair and shout "hurrah, an icon-ed menu system!" This would be a big mistake. BLADE WARRIOR

Publisher: GBH
Price: £7.99
Release: Out now

Old Jonathan Davies, he's a laid back kind of guy. So when he described Blade Warrior as 'possibly the most atmospheric game ever' way back in issue 5 of AP, the rest of the AMIGA POWER team exchanged knowing glances, in no doubt that Blade Warrior must be really, really atmospheric. (Just as well really, because prior to its release Blade Warrior was mentioned in hushed conversation for months on end, occasionally popping up then dipping disappointingly back into 'development' once again.)

And by golly gosh, just over 12 months later what should I find, but – yes! – an incredibly atmospheric game. All of

The dark and moodily atmospheric world of Blade Warrior. Even JD liked it.

Jonathan's comments about Blade Warrior pretty much hold up for this budget re-release. The moody graphics with all foreground action in shadow still works a treat (in a bizarre kind of way), and the beat-'em-up elements still feel a little too artificial when placed in a fantasy-spellcasting kind of scenario. The other minor problem, that of size (or lack of it) is still something of a bummer.

But then, the scrolling, hacking arcade adventure has rarely looked or felt so different. And, um (searches around for something new to say about the game) what about that atmosphere, eh? As atmospheric games go, this one's definitely one of them.

Oh, look it's no good. There's not really that much I can say about this game that hasn't been said before – it's just one of those games which is easier to play than to describe. So, why don't you just toddle along now, and do just that?

● MARK RAMSHAW

THE BOTTOM LINE

The Ridley Scott of computer games, Blade Warrior is all style and (thankfully) just enough substance. Ultimately slightly unsatisfying, and possibly more of a curiosity than a classic, but it's definitely the kind of quirky game which belongs in your budget collection.

DIZZY PRINCE OF THE YOLK FOLK

Publisher: Code Masters
Price: £7.99
Release: Out now

Ah, Dizzy. Everyone's favourite talking, rolling, jumping and exploring egg. Don't you just love him?

If you answered 'no' to the above question, please skip the remainder of this review and go straight on to the next one. Thank you.....

Right, you're still reading, which means you have at least some affinity for the little ouf and his identikit arcade adventures. You'll be further encouraged to buy this game (if you don't already have the Excellent Adventures compilation it first appeared on) by the knowledge that Dizzy Prince of the Yolk Folk is universally accepted as being the best of the many Dizzy adventures to date. And this despite (or perhaps because of) the fact that it's also the smallest, standing a mere 30 screens wide.

Why is it the best? Partly because it's of a more manageable size than most of the others: you actually stand a reasonable chance of eventually completing this one, which means you can launch into it with extra keenness. Then there's the fact that all the puzzles in Yolk Folk are reasonably logical: this means it's a proper test of skill and reasoning, rather than how lucky you are at combining the right two tenuously linked objects.

Now it's available as a budget release, you can make use of those tips in AP16.

If any Dizzy game could convert the unbelievers, this would be the one. So if you've got a friend who really hates the blob in the boxing gloves, this is the game to lock them in a cupboard with for a few hours to try and cure their dislike. It's a Dizzy game like any other, it's just better than the rest.

● ADAM PETERS

THE BOTTOM LINE

Dizzy's most excellent adventure yet – a 'must buy' for any Dizzyheads out there who don't already own it. But when is the Dizzy Construction Kit coming out? You can't tell me it doesn't already exist...

GEM'X

Publisher: Global (DMI)
Price: £7.99
Release: Out now

Things are a bit quiet on the software front at this time of year, which is always a bit of a bummer for the AP team when lunchtime comes around. I mean, Sensible Soccer, Dyna Blaster, Crazy Cars III, Zool and Putty are all brilliant games and all that, but you don't want to be playing all the same stuff all the time. How conveniently brilliant, then, that this month should see the budget re-release market throwing up some of the grooviest games of all time for us to get back to grips with after losing the original disks all those months ago.

Prising Les and Matt away from SWIV has been practically impossible all month, but when I've managed to beat them away and get to an Amiga, I've been playing Gem'X. Well, some of the time I play it. Lots of the time I just sit and listen to the amazingly beautiful intro music, and most of the rest of the time I just bang my

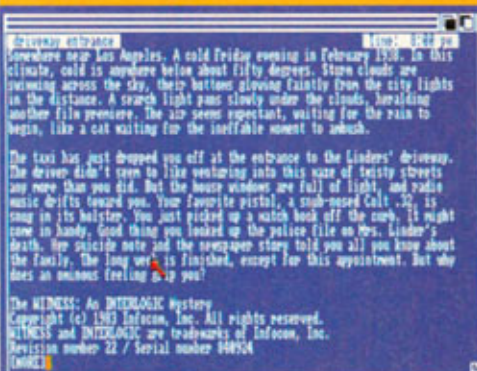

THE LOST TREASURES

Publisher: Activision
Price: £39.99
Authors: Various
Release: Out now

Right. Let's get this straight from the start. None of the 20 games in this collection has any graphics or any sound. Yep, we're talking text adventures here. But put aside any preconceptions for a moment. If you take a gander at the bottom of this review you'll see I've actually given The Lost Treasures a pretty healthy score, and that isn't just because 20 games working out at £2 each is one hell of a bargain (although that has something to do with it). Basically this compilation collects together what are undoubtedly the best examples of the genre, and they all come from the vaults of a company whose name is whispered in reverential tones by adventure fans: Infocom.

Infocom pioneered the text adventure, and in the early '80s they were a force to be reckoned with in the games software market. And not without reason. While these days the text adventure has been hijacked by the PD fraternity, and has earned a reputation for being for committed anoraks who will brave even the most inscrutable of control systems, Infocom games were generally intelligent and, more importantly, fun to play. Infocom was bought by Activision in 1988, and head on the desk and whimper as I desperately try to work out one of the tortuously convoluted later levels in this brain-tingly tricky puzzle game. Gem'X features a near-perfect difficulty curve, which gently ramps up from embarrassingly easy to teeth-grindingly impossible. But the game's so gorgeously presented (lovely music, heartbreakingly sweet sampled speech, beautiful Japanese-style cartoon graphics, move retractions and adjustable control and everything else you could ask for) that you can never quite drag yourself away from it, however tough it gets.

Gem'X is currently sitting pretty (and we really do mean pretty, by the way) at Number 30 in the AMIGA POWER All-Time Top 100, but it's not making much of a showing so far in the readers' poll. The reason for that is almost certainly that it was pretty tricky to get a hold of when it first came out, so almost nobody's played it. Now, though, there's absolutely no excuse. Race out to your local software shop, handcuff yourself to the cash desk and refuse to leave until they sell you a copy of Gem'X. Then go home and handcuff yourself to your Amiga. Why? You might as well – you're not going to be going anywhere else in a hurry.

● STUART CAMPBELL

THE BOTTOM LINE

As far as I'm concerned, this is the best puzzle game in the whole world, and it's also the best-looking and the best-sounding. The best budget bargain since Rainbow Islands. Do yourself a favour and buy it.

SEYMOUR GOES TO HOLLYWOOD

Publisher: Code Masters
Price: £7.99

Release: Out now

Whether you view Seymour as the greatest thing since, er, Dizzy or just another loathsome manifestation of the Codies' perpetual struggle to be 'loved' is, of course, a matter of opinion. But, as my The Last Resort postbag seems to reveal each month, he appears to be just as popular as his stablemates. Hmm.

Well, here he is in Hollywood, and as usual he can carry up to three objects and use them to solve puzzles. I didn't manage to crack too many of these, as before long I found myself lost in a maze. That shouldn't stop Seymour fans, though – in situations like this it's on with the light and out with the squared paper.

The graphics are as bright and (potentially) cheerful as ever, the puns as unfunny and the locations just as numerous. It's undeniably good value for money, especially for the 'younger player'.

I do think it's about time the Codies discovered the art of the directable jump, though. The ability to alter course in mid-air has become as much a part of platform games as the platforms themselves, and I feel lost without it. And another thing: if Seymour is to be entrusted with the education of our youth he really ought to brush up on his grammar. It's dreadful, and even the instructions are full of clangers.

● JONATHAN DAVIES

THE BOTTOM LINE

It seems you can't go wrong with Codies puzzley platform games, and here's another. Not as good as the best Dizzy games, though.

SWITCH BLADE 2

Publisher: GBH

Price: £9.99

Release: Out Now

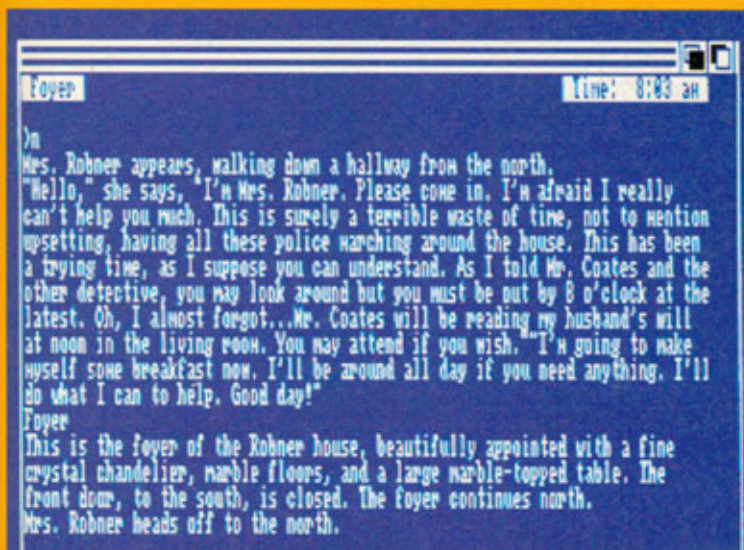

Mark, I know I was complaining about always getting the crap games to review but I didn't mean for you to start giving me all the good stuff. What with this and SWIV in one issue I'm starting to believe that someone somewhere really cares for me. (Don't you believe it. – Ed) Originally released almost two years ago Switchblade 2 caused quite a stir by recreating an arcade feel in a computer game. The action was so compelling that it caused a lot of sleepless nights, and I still have the bags under my eyes to prove it.

The idea is simple, you have to guide your man through a huge catacomb of rooms infested →

What is it about receptionists? Even in jolly games like Seymour they always look totally fed up.

RES OF INFOCOM

Old Mrs Robner hasn't been much help, has she? She's probably got something to hide.

vanished soon after, but Activision have plundered the vaults to bring us this wonderful compilation.

Highlights include all five volumes of the classic Zork adventures – which started in 1982 and concern a vast underground civilisation which has gone to ruin – plus the totally hoopy Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy. This was actually written with Douglas Adams' help, and while the story soon departs from the the plot of the books, the humour is consistent. Your first task is to stop the room spinning when you wake up with an almighty hangover.

The range of subject matter is also refreshing wide – it's not all goblins with crystals balls. SF is featured in the Crystal Maze-like Suspended, Starcross, Planet Fall and Stationfall (which is dead difficult). Moonmist is a ghost story set in a Cornish castle, Infidel is set in ancient Egypt, while Ballyhoo, an absolute corker of a game, concerns a kidnapping at a circus. Deadline and Witness are both in a whodunnit vein (and are two of the weakest games because they lack atmosphere) while in Suspect you are framed for a murder you didn't commit. Lurking Horror is a comic book-style affair with you snowbound in a school with... something else!

But never fear fantasy traditionalists, because to make up the numbers, you have Enchanter (which is a bit yawnsome and predictable), Sorcerer (same again) and the really rather good Spellbreaker.

The packaging is stylish and doesn't reek of quick cash-in. All the relevant maps have been reprinted and the instructions and background info for each game have been collected together into one meaty but well-presented manual. There is also a book of hints that, besides being dead useful, also displays a great sense of humour sometimes missing from the games. Under the question 'How do I get off the roof?' for Zork the answer is, 'Write to Infocom and tell us how you got up there?' The lesson is, don't place too much importance on the questions to help you solve the games – a lot of them are red herrings.

And so what if there aren't any graphics? Use your imagination for a change, like you would with a good book. Besides, think of the advantages over graphic adventures (like the interminable Space Quest series) – you don't have to wait an eternity for pretty screens to load, and there's more room left on a disk to write a really good rattling yarn (not that the text is ever exactly up to Pulitzer prize winning standard – more your average Doctor Who novelisation).

● DAVE GOLDER

THE BOTTOM LINE

This collection contains some slices of game playing history, but it is more than just a curio. Many of the games are still very engrossing after all these years, and prove that good gameplay still wins over flashy effects. If you have any tolerance for text adventures at all, then these are the best you'll find anywhere.

COMBAT CLASSICS

Tom Cruise? Pah, the little squirt couldn't pull off spectacular zoomy stunts like this. Unless he was to play F-15 Strike Eagle II, that is.

Publisher: Empire
Price: £29.99
Authors: Various
Release: Out now

Compilations are a bit of a hit and miss affair. Only a handful manage to avoid the inclusion of a duffer, the rest always blowing it with that atrocity from the fog of 1986. Empire's last stab at compilations proved something of a motley collection, but they seem to have got the mix pretty much right with this one.

At first glance the minimal line-up might seem like a tech-head's dream – 688 Attack Sub, F-15 Strike Eagle II and Team Yankee – but looks can be deceptive, so just you take a bite.

Let's wade through 688 Attack Sub first, shall we? There's really no getting round it. If there are any weak links in the chain then this is it. Let's be honest, as well designed and programmed as 688 Attack Sub is, it's something of an eclectic choice for a compilation. I really can't see too many people getting worked up over this one. Delve (ahem) deeper though and there's actually some good fun to be had. And for once, neat graphics are on offer, with some good 3D routines and stuff. Gosh.

Not as complex as Pacific Islands, but Team Yankee is damn fine anyway.

Moving swiftly on, we come to the much more accessible Team Yankee. Essentially a less ambitious version of Pacific Islands, the only real downside to this game is that it's uncomfortably similar to its successor. Limited game structure aside, Team Yankee is really rather special. The graphics will deter some, but beneath that dodgy 3D exterior beat the heart of a brilliant tank-based strategy/arcade crossover. A real gem, Team Yankee was never really accepted by the the action orientated public. Maybe its inclusion will sort that out. But wait... the REAL reason for the golly-gosh mark at the end of this review is this. This is the big one. This is F-15 Strike Eagle II. Spectacular in every way, this represents the cream of '91. Originally released by MicroProse, this one still soars up there with the classic F/A-18 Interceptor and Knights Of The Sky. There's Top Gun action aplenty waiting in this hot little number, and it's still just about worth pulling out 30 quid for this one alone.

But – hey! – when you get the totally tank-tastic Team Yankee action sim thing and a well done (if slightly minority interest) 688 Attack Sub as well, then there shouldn't be any question about a speedy purchase.

● MARK RAMSHAW

What Combat Classics lacks in numbers it sure makes up for in quality. Go on, off to your friendly computer game retailer with you.

82 PERCENT

What's happening? Classic games on budget labels. That can't be right.

with strange creatures, robot sentries and other security measures out to stop you. It's the normal "Stop the madman from taking over the world and get the switchblade back" syndrome that we've seen a million times before (I've told you a million times to stop exaggerating. – Ed) but with the great cybergraphics and sheer addictive action it is one of the best.

After asking round the office it seems that Switchblade 2 wasn't everybody's cup of tea (two of us liked it) but if you like platform/slash-'em-up games then you can't go wrong with this. Besides, what do they know? (You're fired. – Ed). Take it from me, you'll play this to death trying to see what is hidden in that next section. Many's the time that I've played this to pass a few minutes and found myself still playing it hours later. If a game does that to me, then it has to be good. Even when you complete it there is still the urge to go back and see if you missed anything which is unusual for games of this genre.

It is safe to say that if GBH (Gremlin) keep coming out with releases like this then by Christmas they're going to have to budget market sewn up for themselves. Top quality releases will ensure that the Amiga budget market stays buoyant and this goes to show that top quality games do work on budget labels. If you haven't already got this then you should be ashamed of yourself, but make up for it by saying 200 hail Marys and then going and buying this straight away.

MAGIC WORLDS

It might not be the most entertaining game in the compilation, but it's worth a go.

Publisher: Daze Marketing
Price: £25.99
Release: Out now

A compilation of three, largely French, strategy games sounds like... well, the sort of thing I generally end up reviewing. I hadn't been having a particularly rewarding day, and the prospect of three ludicrously complicated, weird, scruffily presented, old and – above all – dull games with dragons and things in wasn't an appealing one.

What joy, therefore, when all three games turned out to be gorgeous-looking, full of things to do, as fresh as the day they were picked and – to varying extents – actually quite enjoyable.

Dragon's Breath is the most aged of the three games, and also the least rewarding. That's not to say it's bad. It's just a bit more complicated and slow-moving than I think most people will be prepared to put up with. What you've got to do, you see, is breed dragons. These are used to do battle with your two opponents (who can be human or computer-controlled). Actually doing this involves endless playing around with icons and things, and one of the most formidable spell systems I've ever encountered. (If you're into spells, this is the game for you.) The graphics are really very attractive, and everything works just like it says in the manual, but it just didn't inspire me enough to keep playing. Under different circumstances I may well have been swayed.

Crystals of Arborea is next on my mental heap, and – oops – it received quite a pounding in the very first issue of AMIGA POWER (48 percent's worth, in fact). It's one of those 3D Dungeon Master-type things, only in an outdoor environment, and it really does look exceptionally pretty. The problem is that nothing much ever really happens, and even then there tend to be long disk-accessing delays between things not happening (if you see what I mean). It's okay, just a bit dull and repetitive.

Finally there's Storm Master. Matt

Squires worked himself up into quite a sweat over this one in AP11, awarding it 86%. I'm not about to argue. It's splendidly original and beautifully executed. As with most of these strategy games, the object is to build up an empire by clobbering your opponents, but here the clobbering is done with bizarre Jules Verne-style flying chariots which are built and manned, and then flown in a fabulous 3D combat sequence. The graphics are absolutely superb, and, while the game takes a while to get to grips with, it's worth every second of it.

So, that's two slightly iffy (though by no means worthless) games and one completely fantastic game, all for the price of, er, one completely fantastic game. Quite what that means I'm not sure, but I don't think I'd feel too hard done by after handing over 26 quid for this lot.

● JONATHAN DAVIES

Crystals of Arborea
 Not a patch on its successor,

THE BOTTOM LINE

I'm running out of things to say, so I'll round off by saying SWIV is one of the top two shoot-'em-ups of all time (Apidya is the other) and shouldn't be beaten for quite a while. You can't afford to miss it.

92 PERCENT

A great game for one, but get a mate to take the jeep and it's even better.

game you have to add to your collection this month. If you get nothing else in the next four weeks, make sure you get this.

When it first appeared this just about blew everybody away (literally). The follow up to Silkworm (which is still a cracking blast, incidentally) pits you and a friend against a massive array of enemy craft in the helicopter/jeep combination that proved more than a match for the bad guys in the original game.

If ever a game proved that the Amiga could match any console and even make some arcade machines gulp, this was it. Believe me, you'll be hooked from start to finish. If you ever get to the finish, of course... It's tough, but – hey – no one said saving the world was easy. Mind you, everything about this game still smacks of player-friendliness. No delays for disk accessing, the level (there is only one, but it's huge) loads while you're playing. Whatever happened to Dynamic Loading? We loved it. And there's none of that 'losing all your power-ups when you die' stuff, you just lose one level of firepower. Why can't all games be like this?

If you want a game that will keep you relentlessly hammering away at your joystick for hours on end then this is the one to go for. At full price it was a bargain, now you can pick it up for a tenner it easily becomes the best value for money shoot-'em-up on the market. SWIV is like a good wine, it matures with age. A dead cert to become a best seller once again.

And it's not over yet. There's still a few more reviews to come as Dave Golder checks out the world of the free and the nearly free in that mysterious Public Domain. This month, our Dave has been looking at some shareware as well as the usual freebies.

HELLZONE

NBS Shareware AUS$12

Despite the name, this is not a 'driving-in-the-London-rush-hour traffic' sim. It's one of those 'flying-left-to-right-through-a-nasties-infested-tunnel-blasting-everything-that-moves'-type affairs.

Hellzone is pretty impressive, despite a couple of oddities. One is that it has only two-levels and they have to be booted separately. The other is the scoring. You don't score points for blasting, you just get more points the longer you stay alive. You start off with full energy, and hits from the enemy drain it. Some hits drain more than others. A variety of power-ups improve your weapons or replenish your energy.

The graphics are very atmospheric and the sound is awesome – it really feels like you're in a huge tunnel. There's a vast range of nasties, and just as everything seems to be settling into a pattern along comes another horrible surprise to stop you getting complacent. Some of the collision detection is a bit off, but, as it usually works in your favour, who cares?

No points for killing, just for staying alive. But don't stop shooting or you're bound to die.

VERDICT: Why take one good-looking blast-'em-up into the shower when you can take two? When you order Cybernetix from NBS ask 'em for this one as well. It's fab.

GLASSBACK

NBS Shareware £3

A platform game! Great, I thought, I'll be able to get in that joke about more platforms than a Bay City Roller concert that I nicked... well, I would, but I never got much further than a couple of levels. This game is unnecessarily difficult, which is a shame as it shows some promise.

You play a miner, Glassback, who has been trapped by his fellow miners in a mine and wants to get out. To get out of each screen you have to collect some things that look like radiators and avoid the traps. Simple? Don't you believe it.

It's all a matter of timing. You have to make your move at just the right moment. There's no room for error, at all, even on the first screen. Okay, so things shouldn't be easy, but really! The reward for getting through one level is to get to another that's just about as difficult. There's no sense of progression. It starts hard and stays that way. Simplistic graphics and irritating sound don't help much either.

VERDICT: Far too difficult, and not interesting enough to make it worth persevering with.

DOCTOR MARIO

Riverdene

"Concept and name shamelessly ripped off from Nintendo," says the intro. And they are. But Doctor Mario still makes a damned good game.

A Columns-like puzzle it involves arranging falling blocks into rows of four at which point they vanish from play. Some coloured bugs are already on screen at the beginning of each game and the aim is to get rid of all the bugs. There are more bugs on later levels, and, er, that's it.

It's simple but fun, and even better in two-player mode where you battle it out to see who can clear their side of the screen first. If you make large numbers of blocks vanish at once, extra blocks will fall randomly on your opponent's screen.

VERDICT: Very similar to Interferon (reviewed in AP17) but its presentation is so much better – there's a lot of demo-style pizzazz and music – and it has two-player mode.

Falling blocks and geezers with big noses.

CYBERNETIX

NBS, Shareware: £5

It can happen! And it has! Finally, a PD game – all right, shareware, but still darned cheap – that I can wholeheartedly say is better than a lot of the commercial stuff that's available. In fact, it's so good it had me on the phone ringing around all the (other) Amiga experts I know to check that it wasn't pirated from Germany or somewhere, but no, joy of joys, it was a kosher, New Zealand-written slice of freely distributable software. My life has meaning once more! (That's enough of the Oscar-winning acceptance speech type sincerity – Ed.)

So, why is Cybernetix so good? Well, it certainly isn't originality. It's basically Defender meets Asteroids on steroids. A sideways-scrolling blast-'em-up where you have to obliterate everything in each section which comes complete with a variety of power-ups, bonus lives every 10,000 points and a smart bomb. But there are three main reasons why it shines. It looks stunning, it plays like a dream and it's fast. Faster, in fact, than a very fast thing.

You start off with a screen full of asteroids which you blast into smaller pieces which can then be destroyed. These release little blue crystals which you have to collect. But there are also enemy ships collecting them too, and if you don't pick the crystals up quickly enough, an assassin ship appears, and he's real tough to get rid of – not only does he dart around like a wasp caught inside a glass, he also takes a few shots to destroy.

The variety and volume of enemy ships is mind-boggling. Not only do they look different they also attack in different formations. Some even leave mines behind. The different power-ups are also impressive. The arc shield is a little ball which whizzes around you offering some protection, but still allowing some bullets to get through.

The graphics are pure quality. The asteroids really look 3D while the substantial-looking ships explode into shrapnel, and some even start spouting smoke and spiralling out of control when they are first hit and need to be hit again. The controls are very responsive, which they need to be at the speeds this game reaches. The radar is also very clear and you need to keep one eye on it to see where the alien ships are when they're off the main screen.

There are tons of sectors to clear, some with special missions, and a two-player option. Oh yes, and the sound is also superb.

VERDICT: The concept might not be all that original, but the game has so much style, action and playability, who cares? Do yourself a favour, and get it now and remind yourself what good old blasting is all about.

And when you've shot the baddies, you get loads of points.

POINTS OF VIEW

Of course, we don't always have the same views about the same games. Here's this month's big picture...

	POOL	DOODLEBUG	BAT 2	ASSASSIN	ROME AD92	SHUTTLE	SHADOWWORLDS	AQUATIC GAMES	SABRE TEAM	ENCHANTIA
MARK RAMSHAW	Better than the last one (ish). ★★★★	Totally platform-tastic! ★★★★	Ambitious and really jolly good. ★★★★	Great. Ish. ★★★★	Not as good as the B59s' version. ★★	Haven't played it.	A bit slow but groovy. ★★★★	Mutton dressed up as fish. ★★	Neat in a Laser Squad way. ★★★★	Not bad at all. Nice one. ★★★★
STUART CAMPBELL	Good, but seen it before. ★★★★	Not much to it, but nice enough. ★★★★	Haven't played it.	A bit too empty for my liking. ★★★★	Haven't played it.	Not my kind of thing at all. ★★	Haven't played it.	Too simplistic for the money. ★★	Too slow, but still great fun. ★★★★	Lovely, but duff control system. ★★★★
GARY PENN	Alright, if you like pool. ★★	Alright, if you like platforms. ★★	Alright, if you like BAT . ★★	Alright, if you like Strider . ★★	Alright, if you like Robin Hood . ★★	Alright, if you like knobs. ★	Alright, if you like Simulcra . ★★	Alright, if you like fish. ★★	Alright, if you hate terrorists. ★★	Alright, if you... NEXT MONTH

1992, 1993

AND ALL THAT

In the unfeasibly spectacular December issue of AMIGA POWER we take a look over the past year, take a peek into '93, and of course review such long awaited games as Road Rash, Humans and Pinball Fantasies. AMIGA POWER - file under attitude.

AMIGA POWER AND GREMLIN PRESENT A LOTUS III COMPETITION

WIN!

A DAY IN A LOTUS!

THE ULTIMATE DRIVE!

We're offering two lucky winners and their pals, a chance to visit the Lotus factory and go on the test track in either an Elan or an Esprit. This time it's not on your Amiga – it's the real thing. So you're not only going to see how the Lotus is put together from start to finish, but you'll be in the cockpit for the 'track' test too. It's here that the Lotus cars are pushed to the limit in speed, handling and control. Very few people get into a Lotus for 'real', let alone get onto the Lotus test track. Here's your chance to do all of this and more ...you'll be presented with a bag of Lotus goodies at the end of a very 'fast' and special day. Eight runners up will each receive a copy of Lotus III, so there's every reason to enter this fab compo.

SO WHAT DO YOU HAVE TO DO?

Simply answer the following three questions.

1. Name four sports models produced by Lotus, other than the Elan.

2. Lotus are famous for their victories in Formula One racing. In 1972 they achieved the World Championship double. Who was the driver?

3. The first Lotus was built in 1947, based on which British car?

There, simple wasn't it?

Now write your answers down on a postcard – or the back of a cereal packet, just for a change – and send your entries to: 'I'd Prefer A Skoda Competition', AMIGA POWER, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath, Avon, BA1 2BW.

COMPETITION

RULES AND REGULATIONS

Employees of Future, Gremlin, Lotus and anyone who's raced for Lotus are not eligible to enter (particularly if they've got a moustache).

The Editor (who isn't fat, honestly) has the right to be a miserable old goat if he wants and his decision is final.

The closing date for entries is 31st November 1992.

"I would think not. It was built by Commodore and partners to become a very powerful brand name in the home computer field. You cannot dispute that the Amiga is a strong and successful brand name. Commodore have to capitalise on that by doing what they are doing and that's making a range of Amiga machines to suit as many pockets as they feel fit. If it had been left as just the Amiga 500 then its legs would be a bit creaky but because Commodore have expanded out, quite rightly, its legs are well oiled and fighting fit."

MARK STRACHAN, Joint Managing Director of Domark

"Mmmm... Developers can go a bit further with it. In terms of creating a game that would run on an Amiga, all the elements such as graphics and sound and so on, I would say no. You still see some good stuff on the Spectrum eight years later. There's still some stuff you could do with the Amiga that's pretty cool. Unless you have a hard drive for some things it's going to start proving difficult. Killing the flow of a game makes it very different, especially with bringing big PC titles across."

ERIC MATTHEWS, Designer for The Bitmap Brothers

"No, not at all. If the Amiga were sustained with continual support then people will be doing stuff in a few years time that we thought impossible, but that's a big 'if'. When the Amiga first arrived it knocked spots off the PC, but with PC power expanding it's leaving the Amiga behind. We're using light-source shaded texture-mapped 3D now and we're breaking our backs to get the Amiga working at anything like a playable speed."

KEVIN BULMER, Dimension Creative Designs (Dementia)

"I don't think so. I think the problem is, as new and more technically advanced hardware comes out there's no need to push it. The Spectrum was pushed because there was very little competition. Now you just swap over to another machine, so maybe the challenge isn't there any more to do that."

GARY BRACEY, Software Manager for Ocean

"When the best programmers were working on the Commodore 64 they nearly pushed it to its limits, but then they all upgraded to the Amiga, and now they're moving on to the PC or consoles, so I don't think the Amiga'll get pushed any more. I've been very impressed with some technically very adept stuff lately, such as Project X. Wing Commander on the Amiga is going to be pushing it as much as anyone else have ever done."

PHIL HARRISON, International Development Manager for Mindscape

"The Amiga is starting to stagnate but it's certainly not been pushed to its limits. The trouble is it's starting to restrict what you can do. I think the problem is that, as far as 3D goes, developers see the PC as being very much more capable. With the Amiga you have to work very hard to squeeze more out of it."

DAVID BRABEN, author of Virus and Elite II, and co-author of the original Elite

"You don't necessarily need to push hardware to the limit for good games but you always need to innovate to keep the public interested in the product. Anyway, you can't ever push a machine to its limits. They're just tools and you can always find new, more innovative ways of doing things. How technically clever a game is doesn't really determine how playable it will be. The Commodore 64 proved that."

GARY SHEINWALD, Development Manager for Audiogenic

"No. I don't push it to its limits, I have to write code that runs on all machines. Snooker doesn't use any fancy features at all. People asked the same question of the 64 but every year something more amazing would come out. I saw a demo of Stavros' new game (He means Galactic. - Ed)... the amount of things he had moving around was amazing, there was a fantastic amount of stuff, but I can't say much for the game. I didn't play it."

ARCHER MACLEAN, author of IK+, Jimmy White's Whirlwind Snooker and Pool

"I would probably say yes, now. We're having problems writing stuff we'd like to write. Technically, there's not a lot more you can do with it. A lot of people fail to do it though."

MARTYN BROWN, Product Manager for Team 17

"In certain directions, certainly. The amount of stuff you can throw around on the screen, as far as arcade games are concerned, Turrican II and Project X are throwing around about as much as you can. On the creative side there's plenty of scope, and sonically, the sound tends to get squeezed by things people want to see on screen. You can push in different directions."

ANDREW

BRAYBROOK, Director and Project Leader for Graftgold, and author of Fire and Ice

HAS THE AMIGA BEEN PUSHED TO ITS LIMITS?

But then, do you need to push the pliable

"Nearly. There might be still one or two areas left. Particularly the disk accessing – some games are affected very badly by it. We've tried to do something about it by making it transparent to the player. Some people are utilising what the Amiga can do – sound-wise they're doing what they can do, and the same graphically – but it's the development of the techniques that's important now."

MEV DINC, Project Manager and 'Main Man' at Vivid Image

"I think technically, yes. Its future is as a medium range games machine. I think all the popular games will go onto the console formats instead of the Amiga."

RICH UNDERHILL, Joint Director of Arc Developments

"This year, no. But in the next it possibly will cater for a more specialist niche. I think possibly there will be products coming out for the one meg Amiga which are impressive but I don't see any major breakthroughs happening."

SEAN BRENNAN, Sales and Marketing Director for Virgin Games Software

"No. Mainly because they've bought out a bigger Amiga anyway. The Amiga 500 can do a lot more but it takes time to develop the projects. It has been pushed but it could go a lot further. The Amiga's still selling so that's a good sign – it'll be around for another few years, that's for sure. Hopefully Commodore will stick some more chips in there some day."

TONY CROWTHER, author of Captive and Knightmare

"Yes, I think it has. I think it has been at its limits for quite a number of years now. Really the only thing you can do are different things not new things. An awful lot of code has been rewritten."

RICHARD LUCAS, General Manager for the Hardware Division of Argonaut Software

"No. Because programmers are breaking new ground all the time. They always think they have reached the limits but they can't see beyond their latest project. Someone's always moving the goalposts."

JON HARE, Orchestrating Director at Sensible Software

"You must be joking. Not even slightly. There are a few technos – is that the equivalent of musos? – around who've done a few good things. I've done this high density disk thing which gets one and half meg on a normal disk. The Amiga's a little bit light for what it'd like to do so you need superhuman efforts to get there. I like some of the demos. Some of the Tobias Richter ones... not quite 'Ooh, that's nice' but sort of 'Well, thank you.'"

NICK PELLING, the man bringing Wing Commander to the Amiga

"It's getting very close. The hardware features don't necessarily interest us when we start developing a game. I don't think we could get more out of the Amiga than we're currently getting."

Take Jaguar – and Gremlin's Lotus II and Nigel Mansell for that matter – I don't believe you will get a game with as many sprites or bigger sprites running any faster on the Amiga. We didn't get it much quicker than Lotus II but there were more things on the road and it ran a bit faster. It's a case of going back to the basics of game design now. But there's still an awful lot of crud software not using anything of the Amiga."

JEREMY SMITH, 'The Man' at Core Design

"No. I think all you need to do is look the Spectrum market to see that. There aren't many people doing stuff for the Spectrum these days, but you still see things that make you go 'Blimey, I didn't know you could do that'. The Amiga will be pushed further as long as the good programmers are not drawn off by the console side."

SIMON JEFFERY, Marketing Communications Manager for Electronic Arts

"In its present form I think it has. An awful lot of games are one meg only, and that's pushed things a bit further. There are a lot of people starting to look at other machines and saying 'Why should we push Amiga to its limits when we can do all these things so much easier on other machines?'."

Maybe in design terms it has, and the Amiga is still the easiest machine to design for because it has so much as standard, whereas, say, with the PC, nothing seems standard."

PETER MOLYNEUX, Managing Technical Director for Bullfrog and author of Populous & Populous II

"In different ways it has. Rainbow Islands seems to push it to its limits, although not in a huge 3D maths type of thing. What more do you want from a machine? You don't have to push it to produce a good game. I really don't think that pushing it is necessary."

'GRIN/SMIRK/ CRINGE/GLOAT'

Dear AP

You're big, you're brazen, you're blonde and by golly you're busty, you're the Bet Lynch of Amiga games magazines and you can pull me a pint anytime.

But, and like Bet's behind, it's a big but, your review of Sensible Soccer and your subsequent double-glazing-salesman-type hard sell of the game are crazier than a mad March hare in August. So get off my doorstep before I set the pit bulls on you, you scamps. It's rubbish.

Also, since your survey has just revealed that over three quarters of your readership is over 15, could you cut the new kiddie-friendly covers? As if last month's musclebound refugee from Saturday morning cartoons wasn't bad enough, September's edition gives us a one-eyed Chris Tarrant fighting his way through a bag of KP Outer Spacers. I'm an adult (So why do you watch Saturday morning cartoons? - Ed) and I don't want to feel embarrassed buying your mag, which despite these minor moans, I don't plan to give up. Oh no.

Yours sincerely, Steve James, Watford, Herts

PS I've just looked through my Readers Digest Dictionary of Bizarre Facial Expressions and I still can't identify the grin/smirk/cringe/gloat concoction that Jon Hare of Sensible Software sports with such abandon in your pages every month. If you're going to have gratuitous mugshots, how about one of that nice Frank Bough?

'HIP HOP GUYS AND DOLLS'

Hi there AP

I just thought that I'd take a break from leisure-suiting to drop you a line. Geez, you don't know how lonely it can get, looking for love almost every day of the year. You know, one of these days I might even hang up my leisure suit for good. It is a tough and rocky track that leads to the girl of my dreams and I keep on falling over the rocks. Well that's just life isn't it? It's almost as if no one in the world loves me (sob). I could walk to the moon and no one would notice that I'd gone. I read your 50percent review of my latest adventure.

50 whole percent. Geez, thanks. I still can't get over it. If I'd known I wouldn't have bothered. To think that you folks used to be light hearted, fun loving, leisure suit, hip hop guys and dolls....er girls. Oh well, I expect that you made a typing error somewhere. Admit it, you were really going to give me 500% instead of 50%.

You were? Oh good. I feel so relieved. I mean it really is quite hard work being an intrepid adventurer. Sean Connery never seems to have any difficulty in finding a girlfriend when he stars in James Bond, girls just seem to enjoy waiting outside his door! But I have no such luck, oh no. I usually find myself being cut up by a laser etc when I try to make an advance. Nearly as bad is the fact that my number four hit never made it to the shelves. Stolen by Passionate Patty because it, erm, showed us enjoying each other's company. Fergie eat your heart out! Yeah, now that's an ideal! She likes nice, handsome, rich Americans like myself. (By the way whoever is saying "stop dreaming" please shut up!) Brrring, there goes my doorbell now, it could be HER!!!!!! I bet that she can't wait to see my bed....room carpet! It is her! No sleazy photographers if you please. Wait a minute, what's that zoom lens doing? Stop it. Go away. GO AWAY I SAID. That's better. "Oh honey". Quiet Sarah, someone might hear you. I'm so excited, just think, we can go off on lots of really expensive holidays and the PUBLIC will pay for them all. I'll earn loads of money just sitting around occasionally opening supermarkets and visiting hospitals and I won't have to pay tax! Wow, I can't wait until the wedding (you're all invited by the way).

Bye for now, Larry, Laffersville, USA
PS I'd like to mention a friend of mine called Tom Salmond who helped me write this letter.

Well, you can't.

'FURTHER TO THE POINT'

Dear AMIGA POWER,
Further to the point made by James Rogers in AP17 about Special Reserve, I would like to bring to your readers attention the excellent service offered by Software City. Not only are their prices very competitive, but their service is very efficient as well.

Mail order software is not the

AMIGA GAME winner

'I LIKE THE AMIGA!'

Dear Amiga Power,

Now that the official Super NES is out, I'm getting a little bit worried about the threat of computers dying out and consoles taking over the games scene. Now I'm sure you all think "What's he on about? Computers have all the best original games."

Yeah, us Amiga owners have lots of original games. But recently, these original ideas have been dying out, so we're sticking to old ideas.

"But what about adventures? Consoles haven't got many of those."

True, but take a game like Monkey Island 2. Excellent graphics, fab sound, but loads of disk accessing and 11 disks to cope with.

"But hard drives remove the need for this accessing and swapping."

They do, but how many Amiga gamesplayers do you know who have hard drives? Not many. And why? Because they're expensive and you can only put a few large adventures on them.

Games these days don't have much depth either. Look at the size of the Street Fighter II cartridge. 16 Megabits! (Which is, in fact, for the arithmetically-challenged of you out there, 2 Megabytes. A 'Megabit' (or 128K in the real world) is a completely meaningless and made-up term used by Sega to make their games sound better - ask anyone who understands computers to explain to you why a Megabit is a ludicrous and invalid concept, we haven't got the space here. To get back to the point, though, most Amiga games have more than 2 Megabytes of graphic and sound data, never mind the actual game. Monkey Island 2 comes on 11 disks, holding 880K each, which is 9.68 Megabytes, or in Segaspeak, 77.44 'Megabits', almost five times the size of Street Fighter II. And that's assuming the data hasn't been compressed in any way, in which case it'd be an even bigger number. Street Fighter II doesn't sound quite so impressive now, does it? - Ed.)

"But Amiga games are large - the more disks the better the game".

But that means swapping. (Not with decent programming, it doesn't. Look at First Samurai - Ed.) Cartridges load instantly and they don't have any swapping. Besides, if I want to play Street Fighter II I'll have to either trot down to my local arcade or buy a SNES. I hear that SFII is coming out on the Amiga but it most probably won't be anything like the arcade. Now I know it seems like I'm being unfair to the Amiga but consoles have their downsides too. Look at the price of their games. Some are £50! Now that I've got that off my chest I feel much better. What are your views on the subject? I don't want to sell my Amiga and get a SNES or Mega Drive. I like the Amiga! Thanks for your time.
Yours sincerely, Christopher Sterland, Humberstone, Leicester.

PS Will you do an 'in development' feature on SFII?

Check out this month's True Stories for the latest SFII news. As for our views on the subject, well, it's a bit of a matter of horses for courses. The Amiga and the Super NES are both excellent games machines, but in largely different ways - it all depends on what you want to play. If, for example, you want to play Smash TV then there's only one machine to do it on - the SNES version is a perfect conversion of the coin-op, the Amiga version just doesn't play like the original. Then again, Amiga R-Type II is vastly superior to SNES Super R-Type (essentially the same game), without anything like the ridiculous slowing down of the SNES game. You can't play the amazing Super Mario World on an Amiga, but you can't play the amazing Sensible Soccer, Wizkid, Crazy Cars 3, Legend or D/Generation on a SNES. And Amiga games don't cost £50 each. Not yet, anyway. Basically, Chris, you'd be totally daft to sell your Amiga to buy a SNES (and I wouldn't even consider a Mega Drive, to be honest), but if you can afford 'em both, then go for it. You can't have too many games.

DO THE write THING

only way of obtaining original software economically. I regularly attend All Formats Computer Fairs arranged in my area, and in doing so I have picked up many bargains, for example £10 got me three games – Hunter, MIG-29 and Mega lo Mania. Other bargains to be had included Spot at £2.99, Formula 1 Grand Prix at £15, Switchblade 2 at £5 and Rugby – The World Cup at £5. For those who do not have access to these fairs, maybe they could take a trip to their local Virgin Megastore, as recently I managed to get Sensible Soccer at £19.99 and SWIV at £4.99.

The point that I am trying to make is that if people really want lower software prices, they only have to shop around, and not just sit about moaning to any magazine that will listen to them, as is the case with some. Software prices ARE high, but a little effort can make them a little more manageable.

Yours sincerely, Simon Brew, Northfield, Birmingham.

'MY FRIENDS AGREE WITH ME'

Dear AP,
I have been reading your magazines since they first came out. But I would like to share a few ideas. I have noticed in some other magazines they have had a page with drawings of say Soinc (sic) punching Mairo (sic) in the face. I find this quite funny and good fun to read and my friends agree with me so could you please think about it.

Yours sincerely, Tim Wood, Uckfield

Consider it thought about.

'PUSHED DOWN PEOPLE'S THROATS'

Dear AMIGA POWER,
Computer magazines nowadays are mostly aimed at the older type computer owners. The prices of many magazines costing £3.50 or more. When computer magazines first introduced putting disks on the front cover and charging them accordingly, the reaction was mixed, so as an experiment, one magazine brought out two versions. One with the disk and one without at two different prices.

This gave the reader a choice of what to buy. Unfortunately this didn't last and all magazines ended up and as of now there are only two monthly magazines who do not attach disks which in turn keeps the price down. But of the two, one is aimed for console owners only and the other one looks to be aimed at ten-year-olds.

I think magazines could attempt to please readers by trying to offer their mag with or without disks. The only workable way to approach this is to offer it to all subscribers of that magazine. When people subscribe you could charge £24,

ask AMIGA POWER

In games like Populous can I link my current A500 with an A600 or an A500Plus to play head to head?

Yours sincerely, Andrew Gardner, Solihull

Probably.

I have a large collection of games for my computer and I would like to know if my games will work on the A600.

Yours sincerely, Andrew Gardner, Solihull

Depends what computer you had before. If it was a Dragon 32, no.

Out of the A500Plus and the A600

If you use it as a paperweight. Hope this helps.

What possessed you to make Rainbow Islands the all time number one game?

Yours sincerely, Andrew Gardner, Solihull

The Devil.

Could you please make the magazine cheaper?

Yours sincerely, Andrew Gardner, Solihull

We did.

How do you install a Citizen 224 which is better?

Yours sincerely,
Andrew Gardner,
Solihull

The A600 is a nicer colour, but the A500P holds down more stuff printer onto the workbench?

Yours sincerely, Andrew Gardner,
Solihull

No idea.

Can I have a T-shirt free of charge please?

Yours sincerely, Andrew Gardner, Solihull

No.

Can I have free copies of Monkey Island 1 and 2?

Yours, Ben King, Preston

No.

Aren't Core Design and Team 17 the best two groups ever?

Yours faithfully, John Chapman, Totteth

We tend to prefer The Jesus And Mary Chain and The Jimi Hendrix Experience around here, actually.

'Yes', 'No', 'I was in the Canary Islands' – just three of the witty answers you could get when you Ask AMIGA POWER...

say for 12 month's subscription without disks, or £45 for 12 months with disks.

I personally am only interested in the magazine you sell, and not in demo disks or any other disks you put on the front cover. At the moment I will continue to read the reviews quickly standing in the middle of my local newsagent, and then put the mag back for some other reader to do the same or if they wish to pay £3.75 required to buy the mag. I don't think demo disks should be pushed down people's throats. All I want is a good read of a good mag, no strings attached.

Yours sincerely, Paul Jones,
Wrexham, Clwyd.

No wonder we have to charge so much, when half of our readers just read the mag in WH Smith's and don't pay for it... Paul, there's nothing we'd like better than to be able to sell AMIGA POWER on the strength of the magazine alone. We happen to think that it's a pretty damn fab magazine, and it's really galling to see people buying dreadful inferior crap purely because it's got something interesting on a coverdisk. Sadly, in the real world, bunging more and more coverdisks on the front of magazines is a proven route to bigger sales and hence higher profits – publishers wouldn't do it otherwise. So you see, the matter's completely out of our hands – if consumers start buying magazines instead of coverdisks (and separating them is a non-starter), the situation will change and maybe we'll all get back to normal. This month's AMIGA POWER, you'll have noticed, has only one coverdisk, and that's the way we hope to continue for the foreseeable future – someone had to take the lead in slowing down the ridiculous 'arms race', and as the undisputed market leader we felt it was down to us. Speaking for the editorial staff here, we hope that Amiga owners will buy AMIGA POWER purely because it's a great magazine, albeit with a preview-packed disk to boot. Of course, in the end, it's up to you.

'CLEANING OUT MY BEDROOM'

Dear AMIGA POWER,
Not so long ago, I was cleaning out my bedroom when I came across a book entitled Discovering Your ZX Spectrum. I was about to put it on the rubbish heap when I noticed something of interest.

The author of the book was a certain Mark Ramshaw, a name not unlike that of your editor. The publication year was 1984, so I can see that while the Amiga 1000 was just appearing in the shops (or just about to appear) the man who now holds one of the most coveted Amiga journalistic jobs in the country was making his fortune by telling people how to program their Speccys. Hmmmm.

Yours faithfully, Patrick Grady, Inverness.

Oh no! Rumbled! – Mark

'BURIED HIM IN MY COPPER COLLECTION'

Good day to you, kind sirs.
I trust you are in good health and haven't laughed at the 'I can't believe it's not butter' adverts. Now on with the tale.

Over the past two weeks I have been deciding which game I should buy and I finally decided on Core's Jaguar XJ220 (I already have Lotus II), so off I trundle to the computer emporium to find they don't have it in, so I was about to buy a timeshare villa in Bognor when I saw Crazy Cars III. I picked it up and promptly threw it at the attendant and said "I'll take it John" (because he had a badge on saying Mike). I went home joyfully after I had buried him in my copper collection.

I booted up and started to ignite latex (or was it burn rubber). Anyway, two days and two ingrowing toenails later I had finished it. "Plith", I said as the end of game sequence told me I had won $10,000,000 and showed me two pictures of my new found wealth. I was left thinking about most end of games and I thought I would look at some.

'TOTALLY CUTE MARK'

Dear AP

One day I was looking through your brilliant ace mag. I had a look at Who Do We Think We Are? and showed some of my friends. We all thought that the picture of Mark Ramshaw was really cute. A couple of issues later I saw The Show Must Go On! Did I see the totally cute Mark? You bet I didn't. I saw someone who needed a shave, didn't brush his hair and had great need of a fashion advisor! (Sorry Mark, it had to be said). Oh well I'd better close. By the way I think your magazine is brill and I've told all other Amiga owners. (Blimey, that must have taken ages – Ed.)

Yours, Cheryl Anderson, Coxwold, Yorks
PS Sorry about the spelling, I'm only 10.

Was that you, Rich Pelley, showing off on the spring board in St Austell swimming pool on 29th July?
Yours sincerely, Ben Vowles, Blagdon

No, I was in the Canary Islands – Rich.

Dear AMIGA POWER,
Is it practical to paint your Amiga into a more fashionable colour scheme, removing the dull grey John Major look of the Amiga and replacing it with a landscape of colour unparalleled in Western culture?
Yours in anticipation, Wavy Davy Cruickshank, Ayrshire, Scotland

Yes.

I own one of every issue of AP and two copies of issue eight. As a reward for my loyalty, can you print the letter 'D' on the spine of the next issue so I can spell 'MIAOW I AM A GRAPE GOD' on my bookshelf?
Yours sincerely, Ben Twitchen, Southend-On-Sea

We'll think about it.

Rodland – two pictures of mom, Tam and Rit.

Robocod – Dr Maybe gets a sack on his head and Santa and Robocod jump up and down – big deal.

On No! More Lemmings – I am crowned a master Lemmings player and I get a picture of the DMA mob and they clap all in wonderful Digitise-O-Rama.

Lotus II – I'm treated to a look at the two people who wrote the game. Awesome. Kick Off 2 – Not!

Double Dragon II – Some girl crying, overcome with emotion.

So the ends of games are pathetic, it's official. But thanks for the recommendation on CC3 as I will be playing it for years to come. What IS pink, fluffy and unemployed?
Tarrarr, Ben King, Preston, Lancs

Ah, well, that's Barbara (Snip) – Mary Whitehouse)

'ABOUT MAGIC POCKETS'

Dear AMIGA POWER,
I am writing to congratulate you on your brilliant magazine. It is THE magazine for Amiga gamers. You also seem to get hold of the best playable demos I have ever seen, Exile being my favourite with Pinball Dreams and Legend following close behind. By the way is there anyway I can get hold of the full game of Exile, I haven't seen it anywhere. I noticed in Letters, AP12 that Stuart made some rather cutting comments about Amiga games. (But it wasn't me! It was Colin! Honest! – Stuart.) I have to say that I partly agree with him (which makes a change). There are a lot of crap games out on the Amiga and the Amiga gets rubbish games just as any other machine. There is something though about some 8-bit games which Amiga programmers sometimes can't match (playability, what's that). Just look at the C64 classic Creatures, this outdoes most of the games currently circulating on the Amiga (although its sequel wasn't quite up to scratch) and if Thalamus decide to convert this game to the Amiga they would probably make a hash up of it trying to improve on an already brilliant concept. The other half of Stuart's comments though I do not agree with, Amiga games aren't overrated in your reviews! You give the fairest and sensible marks of any magazine and you definitely outline which games to get and which to avoid. I read the feature on what programmers thought of AMIGA POWER in issue 17 with great interest but I laughed when I read Eric Matthews' comment. I knew he would get something in about Magic Pockets he has been moaning about that to other magazines! (Not that I read any of course). In fact I would say that issue 17 is probably the best issue so far (and I've got them all). I particularly enjoyed Stuart's feature on multi player games, the bit showing typical comments that are shouted when each game is being played was hilarious, and accurate. Well I will stop waffling now and leave you with a cheat for Top Secret by The Hidden. When playing, press F10 to end the level. That's it, so keep up the great work and encourage me to renew my subscription!

Yours Mark Smith, Oswestry, Shropshire

Oh go on, Mark, renew your subscription. How's that?

'DISASTROUS POSSIBILITY'

Dear AP,
I am writing to you on the subject of change, which is why I must start by saying that yours is the best and most reliable mag on the market. You've talked of changing things recently, and while change is not necessarily a bad thing, I feel it would be more wise for you to add rather than to swap. However these are not the changes that I'm most worried about. I'm worried about changes in standards. May I now draw a comparison between Amiga Power and Amiga Action. You are renowned for harsh reviewing, yet still giving credit where credit is due, which in my opinion (and probably that of most of your readers) is the best way to do it.

I remember when Amiga Action was a hard marking magazine. Their highest mark was 93% to a certain Kick Off 2 and their second highest was 90% to It Came From the Desert. As you may have noticed they now give ridiculous scores such as 98% to a game barely worth 70% (Jaguar XJ220) and rating this and the over-rated Lotus II as better games than Sir Geoff's F1GP.

So where is the similarity? It is here. You have just given Rainbow Islands 96% and said that Sensible Soccer was under-rated at 93%. Now we are all aware of your views of these games, and I am not going to argue with them now (especially not with SS), but I must draw your attention to the disastrous possibility of AP following in the footsteps of Amiga Action.

I feel that you owe it to the 60,000 or so people who buy your magazine to keep your reviewing harsh, remembering the high price of software, and to remain the only truly reliable magazine around. I hope you will keep these points in mind for the future.

Yours sincerely, Paul Sheriffs, Northwood

You say it yourself, Paul – we give credit where credit's due. Sensible Soccer is a true landmark game (as I think its placing in the soon-to-come Readers' All-Time Top 100 will show), and to give it any less than a mark reflecting that would have been a travesty. Similarly, Rainbow Islands is currently our official Best Amiga Game Of All Time, and I don't think 96% for the best game ever is an over-rating. Don't worry, we're not going soft, but we're not going to be artificially mean to brilliant games just to make ourselves look tough and butch.

'I LOVE READING'

Dear AP,

I would like to give some advice to AP readers who own a single drive and a PAL TV.

A few months ago, I was playing EOBII which is excellent and I don't care what Karl Foster's review says because I need to make up a spell to get me free software – hint. After a while, the number of disk swaps was getting into my head.

I soon had a brainwave, so the next time I played EOBII, I made a note of the disk number every time I disk swapped. The next time I was loading EOBII I was watching the Captain Planet cartoon my PAL monitor whilst changing disks (don't laugh it's better than Open University). I know when to swap disks as the floppy disk light turns off. I hope this helps some Amiga owners.

I love reading the letters pages because the Ed's quips crack me up (may I have a free copy of Captain Planet?) (No – Ed.) Only one problem, there are just not enough cheats. You supply over 30 pages of very readable game reviews and only eight measly pages of cheats. I should know, I got top marks in my mental arithmetic GCSE!

Yours modestly, Vicki Kong, Hornchurch, Essex

GCSEs? I see.

'INSIST ON CHURNING'

Dear AMIGA POWER,
Why do software houses insist on churning out rubbish every time an important event happens? Just after the European Cup there were so many awful football games that had a weak link to the Euro Cup and were just sad variations of each other (with the exception of Sensible Soccer of course). There have even been a couple of games on the theme of Columbus!

Amazingly only one piece of software has been released on the Olympic theme, namely International Sports Challenge, but I'm almost certain there will be more of the same hitting the shelves very soon. How many of you out there are still crying over the thought of Italy 90? It's pointless, do programmers seriously think they can cash in on rushed, unplayable software just because it slightly ties in with the event it supposedly depicts? I think not.
Yours, Ben Vowles, Blagdon, Avon.

DO THE write THING

'I'M SICK OF PEOPLE'

Dear AMIGA POWER,
I wish Mindscape good luck with D/Generation and hope they sell thousands of copies because the effort to sell a game for £19.95 should be rewarded. I guess I'll get a copy myself. However I think that prices won't come down if there are more people buying games. See for example EOBII. Where is the reason to charge an extra £5 compared to EOB? The one meg more gameplay? Surely not because all the system was worked out and they just had to make a new game around it. I can only suggest to everyone living in London to get their games in that small software shop on Oxford Street. They charge you £5 less on each game as long as it is in the top 10. Or look at Nintendo and Sega consoles. From day to day more machines are sold. Are the prices of cartridges coming down just a penny? Nope!

I also have to say that I'm sick of people saying £25, £30 is dear for a game. Come on! You have to pay £7 to go to see a film (Not in the cinemas round here, you don't – Incredible Ed.) that lasts two hours. A good game gives you weeks of entertainment. And there are only so many games worth buying. I've bought about 10 games in the last two years and they were all to my liking. I didn't regret to buy any of them (EOB, EOBII, Populous II, Black Crypt, Cadaver, Gods, Monkey Island to name but a few) so I played about £10 every month for hours and hours of entertainment. And the price of your magazine? Come on! Here in Germany they charge you £9 for a copy. That's why I subscribed (and you'd better send me the promised game). One last question, what happened to the Bitmap's Chaos Engine?
Thanks for your patience, Dieter Kremer, Germany

News of The Chaos Engine is on page 23

'I DON'T CARE'

Dear AP
I've been reading through all the whinging letters in 'Do The Write Thing' this month and decided to have a whinge myself, about – wow! – the price of games.

It took a lot of courage for me to write this letter as I have to admit that I went out and bought the Viz game (it's funny how the comic is utterly brilliant but the game is crap but there you go). Anyway my point is I paid full price for my copy of Viz and also Pang a few months back but have now discovered that they have been re-released as budget games – was I jarred or what! Surely if a game can be re-released as budget it must be possible to sell it cheap in the first place. I mean is there any difference between the budget and the full price games?

Also, when you look through AP →

BURNT UNION JACK winner

'EXCEPT THE QUEEN, MAYBE'

Dear AMIGA POWER,

Recently in your magazine there have been quite a few important issues that have been discussed which have interested a lot of people. Firstly the question of graphics in computer games. Frankly your pathetic view that gameplay only matters but not graphics or sound at all is monstrously outdated! Isn't it about time you lot faced up to reality and the '90s? Why do you bother to write for an Amiga magazine at all? There are plenty of 8-bit games to choose from. After all that's where all "the best playability" is supposed to be. (As well as relatively poor graphics for you lot to feel right at home with)

Graphics and sound capabilities are two of the Amiga's strongest credentials, indeed they are what it is most famous for, and what people REALLY buy them for, and so should be greatly encouraged, not muted as you lot seem to be doing. Quality titles like Gods, the like of which we rarely see, should also be encouraged, but you do not. Criminal or what! If you don't like the heat, stay out of the kitchen. (What on Earth are you wibbling on about? Heat? Kitchen? Hello? Anybody home? - Ed)

Considering the Amiga's capabilities, there is nowadays absolutely NO excuse for a game to have sub-standard aesthetics, or indeed gameplay if the software houses expect us to continue paying the extortionate prices for their games that we do. Bad aesthetics smacks of plain laziness or concentrating too much on gameplay or other aspects of a game during production, whilst neglecting others.

My advice is to wake up and support the cause. (Yeah! And smash the state, too! - Wolfie Smith.) Also I have frequently read about Amiga programmers and designers becoming disillusioned with the 16-bit market and abandoning ship in favour of the consoles. This is very worrying indeed. But really I cannot see how console or in particular Mega Drive games will ever outsell Amiga ones or how more money will be made from them (in Europe at least). The reason for this is that they are simply so bloody over-expensive and such a rip-off that hardly anyone can afford to buy them (except the Queen maybe).

How console companies have the nerve to charge prices of up to £50 and over for mostly average cartridges is beyond belief and completely and utterly disgraceful. Especially (as you rightly pointed out last issue) when they are compared to the prices of other entertainment mediums like CDs and videos.

How many people do you know with loads of console games each? Not many eh? Perhaps these traitor programmers have the old dollar sign in their eyes. People can't afford them so much over here. Outselling here? No way!

Finally, why does every game you review these days have to be completely original to be any good? The main thing (as you lot keep telling us) is that games are fun, original or not. Original idea games are great but don't forget that many of these can turn out to be rather crap (Graeme Souness Vector Soccer for one).

Yours sincerely, Mark Bobowicz, Crystal Palace, London

Oh for God's sake Mark, get a life! We don't think crap graphics are a great thing, of course we'd rather all games had fabulous graphics, all we've ever said is that if a game's brilliant fun to play, it doesn't really matter what it looks like. As for Gods, we gave it 87 bloody percent! If that's not 'encouraging' 'quality' games, I don't know what is. And as for 'concentrating too much on gameplay'... how can you possibly concentrate 'too much' on gameplay? Gameplay is everything, Mark, it's what games are all about! If you just want to look at pretty pictures, go to a bloody art gallery! Also, if you can't see how consoles will ever outsell or out-profit Amiga games, then you're even more blinkered than you sound from your letter. Super Mario Brothers 3 (on the useless, crap-graphics, 8-bit NES, no less) sold over 7,000,000 copies in the first year of release, in the USA alone! The software industry doesn't give a monkey's about 'in Europe at least', so stop fooling yourself. Programmers, like software houses and everybody else in the world, will go where the money is. They couldn't care less if they sell their games in America or Japan, as long as they sell them and get paid for it. You're the one who needs to wake up, Mark - 1992 is no time to get all parochial. The British Empire died a long time ago.

If people like you had their way - insisting on graphics and sound being the only considerations for a good game - then the Amiga (and pretty much every other computer AND the cheaper consoles) would have died quite some time ago. The Amiga can't compete with the new generation in terms of pure tech-specs, but what it can do is produce incomparably great games, with the kind of imagination that you almost never see from the play-it-safe console megacorporations of Nintendo and Sega. That's where the Amiga's future lies, not in trying to be all bullish and state-of-the-art with technology that's over seven years old. That said, I don't see where you get the ridiculous notion that we're hung up on originality from. The highest marks we've ever given to full-price games went to Populous II (a sequel) and Sensible Soccer (a football game - that's original). For your own sake, get out a bit. There's a whole world out here.

think my whinge is a load of crap you'll chuck it in the bin or if I'm lucky you'll print it with some pathetic little quotes from the Ed throughout the letter or something sarky at the end. But I don't care.

Yours sincerely, Niky Griffiths, Peterborough

'HELLO JOHN, IT'S YOUR MUM HERE'

Dear AP,

I am one of those rare people who do not spend any/all of their leisure time in front of a computer screen. I have never held a joystick in my hand and experienced its pulsating appeal. I am in fact not even an AMIGA POWER buyer. I do not know the difference between a bit, a byte or a butt. Yet the word 'Amiga' is at the very epicentre of my life.

I am, of course, the mother of a teenage Amiga fan and would like to communicate through your pages to my errant offspring.

Hello John, it's your mum here - remember me? The one who fearlessly handles your socks and writes your 'I'm sorry my son is late' notes when you've stayed up all night playing on your Amiga.

Do you remember before we got your computer, how we used to communicate with our mouths? It was much better than the system now. You know the one, where you grunt and periodically make that sign with your hand, and then disappear and reappear shielded behind this mag? It was before you regressed into your primitive period that you're in now, just opening your bedroom door a fraction and snatching food. Once we all ate together in a room called a kitchen. We'd sit at a table and you'd use a knife and fork, successfully. It was before you got that terrible tremor in your right hand which makes you cry out 'Got it!' constantly.

And you used to come out with us occasionally in our car and we'd be known as what they call a 'family'. You know, we'd go to places like the National Trust and pretend to understand why it was so important to preserve a fifteenth century urinal in mint condition.

Remember your little sister? I think she is learning a new form of communication too. She wears these things on her ears permanently and can only seem to communicate through the phone to her friends. When she doesn't have the things on her ears she plays her music so loud I think it must be out of consideration for other aliens, so they can hear it without their ear things on too.

Your father is worried about you, he is sure you've taken up with bad company. He overheard you talking about Rolling Ronnie and he didn't like the sound of it at all. If we can, we'd do anything to help you crack the addiction, you can join Amiga Anonymous which meets in the disused cinema. It's got a huge screen, shows previews, and has the obligatory mouse, too.

Please try to remember your pre-Amiga days, because if not I'll have to start learning to play, and say 'crap!' every other sentence.

Yours in desperation, Mum (alias Rosemary Walker), crap! (oops, hooked already), address withheld to protect the innocent.

AND ANOTHER THING...

Kadie Armstrong of Ashford - thanks for the Sim Toad animation, it was much better than the inevitable tedium of playing computer games all day.

Chris Wood of Bromley - cheers, you made our day (especially Stuart's).

Donald Leung-Cheun of New Malden - call US Gold on 021 625 3388 if you want to find out about Crack Down.

Bill Hewett of Milford in the USA - as far as we know, we don't have any US distributor, so we're afraid the best advice we can offer is don't miss any issues... And as for games, apparently the US Amiga market isn't really big enough to justify all the bother and expense, or something.

Paul Sheriffs of Northwood - we wish that too, but Matt Bielby wouldn't let us.

Stuart Tomlinson of Manchester - er, well, sort of a little bit like Bloodwych, really. Okay?

Andrew Laycock of Accrington - how can we possibly 'not review' a game and give it 15% at the same time? You clot.

at the companies who sell games they are about seven quid cheaper than the High Street shops and local computer shops. Surely they're not selling these games cheap just for the fun of it, they must be making some profit, so the High Street stores etc who sell the games at full price not only make the normal profit mark up but also an extra seven quid on top! And it's schmucks like me who pay for them!

I know most of us go on about how we haven't got any money and how we can't afford these games etc and still go out and blow our last few bob on them but if the big companies lowered their prices most people would buy more games. And if the prices were reasonable it would cut out the need (not that I'm condoning it) for the Long John Silvers out there. So all in all these companies would probably make more profit by reducing their prices!

Anyway that's it. No doubt if you

These days, no one can afford to shell out thirty quid on a game and just hope for the best. We've got to weigh up the pros and cons and plan our purchases carefully. But where can these elusive pros and cons be found? Here, in...

THE BOTTOM LINE

(AND HOW TO UNDERSTAND IT)

★★★★ Excellent ★★★★★ Nearly there ★★★★★ Very good
★★★ Has its moments ★★ Flawed ★ Dire

The whole point of the Bottom Line is to cram as much information as possible into this small space. Here's how it works...
The top bit is easy:
GAME NAME
Publisher Price

Then we get (just for your information really) the issue of AMIGA POWER in which the game was originally reviewed, the mark it got at the time and the reviewer's initials. If the game appeared in our new, updated All-time Top 100 Games, its position comes next, followed by the mini-review and a rating out of five stars (with red ones for real 'must buys'). And there you have it - all you could ever possibly need to know about just about every full price game you're even slightly likely to think about buying.

Psychonosis £25.99

AP13 78% SC

The mellowest shoot-'em-up around, with stunning graphics, beautiful animation and relaxed, blissed-out gameplay (but utterly tragic music). The six levels won't take you all that long to get through, though, so think carefully if you're after a real challenge. ★★★★★

AIR BUCKS

Impressions £29.99

AP17 70% MR

Fighting for supremacy of the skies can be a messy business, especially when it's peacetime and you run a commercial airline. This is an intriguing and engrossing business sim but you need to make too many allowances for sloppy programming for it to be 'fun'. ★★★

ALCATRAZ

Infogrames £25.99

AP13 73% NW

A bit of a pain in one-player mode (you have to play two characters simultaneously), but much more fun with a chum around, this maze game/shoot-'em-up is atmospheric and addictive, if not the biggest thing you'll ever see. Not bad. ★★★

ALIEN BREED

Team 17 £25.99

AP8 82% RP

Ultra-slick Gauntlet clone - it gets a bit repetitive but there's a huge amount of top slimy-slaughtering fun to be had beforehand. Not much evidence of one meg being used though. ★★

ALIEN STORM

US Gold £25.99

AP9 44% NW

Imagine something as simple as Golden Axe without the clever sophisticated stuff. Yep, it's really that dreadful. ★

AMERICAN FOOTBALL COACH

Composer Software £14.95

AP14 21% NW

John Madden Football without the groovy graphics, exciting strategy/arcade blend, competent programming and pretty much everything else. ★

AMNIOS

Psychonosis £25.99

AP9 76% MR

Inspired by arcade classics Defender and Sinistar, but this omnidirectional-scrolling blaster is over-fast, under-controllable and graphically very cluttered.

Reasonable fun, but utterly forgettable. ★★

ANOTHER WORLD

US Gold £25.99

AP10 89% MR T100 No.20

Okay, so you'll finish it in a couple of days, but this is absolutely gorgeous stuff, playable and different with an atmosphere all its own. Every new screen is an exciting discovery, and while quantity may be lacking, there's no doubting this one's quality. Let's just hope for a (bigger) sequel soon. ★★★★★

APIDYA

Play Byte £25.99

AP13 89% MR T100 No.25

We can't agree whether this is the best Amiga horizontally-scrolling shoot-'em-up ever or only the second-best (its rival is the terminally cool R-Type 2), but it's definitely completely excellent, so why are you reading this instead of going out to the shops to buy it right now? Eh? ★★★★★

AQUAVENTURA

Psychonosis £25.99

AP16 38% AP

Over-hyped, nice-looking but repetitive and shallow 3D shoot-'em-up. Okay as an ambient relaxation tool but if that's what you're after, try fitting a coloured light bulb. ★★

ASHES OF EMPIRE

Mirage £34.99

AP16 80% RL

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to bring peace and stability to the Confederation of Syndicalist Republics (a not very well disguised USSR/CIS sort of place). Ashes is one of those strategy role-playing games that people tend to be scared of, but despite being vast and complicated, it's surprisingly easy to get into and curiously addictive.

A320 AIRBUS

Thalion £29.99

AP13 66% DG

You know how people say that if you want to play arcade games, you must have a console? Horrific image-wrecking train-spotter guff like this is the reason why. If you want to fly, go in a plane, don't buy an Amiga. 'Realistic'? Well maybe, but who cares? ★

BABY JO

Loricel £24.99

AP8 49% MB

It's after you've played A320 Airbus that Baby Jo starts to look not quite so bad after all. It's a bit primitive and a bit simplistic, but it's cute and it's got a sense of humour, and you can do a lot worse than that in this bad old world. ★★

BACKGAMMON ROYALE

Oxford Softworks £19.99

AP12 45% JD

Too thin a game to justify this price, and no use as a learning tool thanks to the horrible, confusing instruction manual. Buy a real Backgammon set and a decent book on the subject, it's better and cheaper. ★

BARBARIAN 2

Psychonosis £25.99

AP9 68% SC

Too little too late, this pretty little arcade adventure is completely lacking in action or challenge. Unless you found Shadow Of The Beast a bit too complicated for your liking, you'll get bored very swiftly. ★★

BATTLE ISLE

Ubi Soft £29.99

AP9 78% SC

A really nice idea, with an excellent control interface, but it fails at the last hurdle thanks to some enormous delays during play and a badly thought-out combat system. There's the germ of a real classic in here, though. ★★

BATTLE ISLE SCENARIO DISK ONE

Ubi Soft £19.99

AP18 78% MR

As data disks go this one is good value for money. Battle Isle fans, this is the place to come for lots more scenarios and lots more playing time. ★★

BIG RUN

Storm £25.99

AP11 61% DG

With Lotus II, Vroom, and Lotus I on budget, do you really need this third-rate conversion of a second-rate arcade driving game? No, we didn't think so. ★★

BIRDS OF PREY

Electronic Arts £34.99

AP9 81% JD

Incredibly detailed and comprehensive, but the incredibly slow frame update gets in the way just too much for all but the real flight game purist. Lots to see and do (and shoot) if you're really patient though. ★★

BLACK CRYPT

Electronic Arts £25.99

AP11 85% GP

Real RPG devotees don't seem to go for it - preferring the likes of the Beholder games, but there appears to be something about this one which draws in the uninitiated. It's nothing new, but give it a try - you might like it... ★★

THE BLUES BROTHERS

Titus £25.99

AP7 87% SC T100 No.26

Funny, addictive, colossal playability, crisp and beautiful-looking, gorgeously presented, excellently-designed and magnificently-written. But that's enough about AMIGA POWER. The Blues Brothers is tab as well. Our favourite character licence game ever. John Belushi would have approved. ★★★★★

BONANZA BROS

US Gold £25.99

AP9 81% GP

Good conversion of the coin-op, but for some reason it's just not as lovable on home computer formats. Two-player mode is really good fun, but in solo mode it's lacking a bit. A touch slow, and the 10 levels can be played through in no time. ★★

BOOLY

Loricel £19.99

AP8 64% MB

Characterful and imaginative little thing, but you really need to force yourself to play it properly. It's quite engrossing, but it's never going to be a No.1. ★★

BOROBODUR

Thalamus £25.99

AP11 34% SC

Really awful platform game, tied onto reasonably neat driving section which isn't good enough to suffer the horrors before it for. Really badly programmed too. ★

BREACH 2 (ENHANCED)

Impressions £29.99

AP10 60% RP

Spectrum-quality graphics, but a more entertaining game than many in the RPG genre. £30 is still silly, though. ★★

BRIDES OF DRACULA

Gonzo Games £25.99

AP13 59% MS

Astoundingly crude technically, the execution and some elementary design flaws ruin what might have been some top Spy vs Spy-esque vampire antics. ★

BUG BOMBER

DMI £25.99

AP17 70% SC

Er, well basically it's Dyna Blaster with twiddly bits. It's slightly better than Dyna Blaster as a one-player game but DB beats it for multi-player fun and good looks. Overall, though, dead fab. ★★★★★

BUILDERLAND

Loricel £24.99

AP8 63% MB

Potentially groovy Lemmings-type effort, but it's a shame it appears to have been programmed in AMOS. Still quite playable, but too primitive to really hold your attention. ★★

CALIFORNIA GAMES II

US Gold £25.99

AP18 52% RR

This will receive a fair recommendation when it arrives in the budget bin where it belongs. The only truly surprising thing about California Games II is the price. £25.99? Get real, dudes. ★★

CAPTAIN PLANET

Mindscape £25.99
AP8 43% NW
Really tragic platform atrocity licensed from one of the lamest cartoon heroes in living memory. Shoddily put-together and a complete waste of a potentially good design. ★

CARDIAXX

Electronic Zoo £25.99
AP9 59% SC
It's nice to see someone try to do a Defender for the '90s, but not so nice when it turns out to be as characterless and unplayable as this. Wildly over-sensitive and illogical in play. ★

CARL LEWIS CHALLENGE

Psygnosis £25.99

AP17 83% DG
These days, sports sims of all descriptions come with a management section. This one does but it isn't really worth playing. The sports bits are presented very well but are too easy. And there's no head-to-head option in multi-player mode. Okay, but flawed. ★★★

THE CASTLE OF DOCTOR BRAIN

Sierra £34.99

AP18 61% DG
If you want to expand your kids' minds then this is no bad way to go about it. It's just a pity that it's so damned slow and difficult to control. Not a very large game. ★★

CASTLES

Interplay £29.99
AP13 58% KF
Could-have-been-fun attempt at a Sim City-style epic with castles (surprise!) in it, but it's all too painfully slow and it doesn't even balance the lack of speed with any real depth or realism. ★★

CATCH 'EM

DMI £25.99

AP18 69% RP
If you enjoyed the totally bizarre concepts of Lemmings or Goblins then perhaps you could make something of Catch 'Em too. Try it, you might like it. ★★

CELTIC LEGENDS

Ubi Soft £30.99

AP9 89% KF T100 No.27
Fans of the 8-bit classic Chaos will find that this is the closest the Amiga's yet come to emulating that game's timeless appeal, but with added depth and strategy. A little on the slow side, but enormously compelling and enjoyable nevertheless. ★★★★★

CHAMPION DRIVER

Idea £25.99

AP9 75% SC
Fast and smooth cross between Hot Rod and Super Sprint, this is pretty shallow stuff but it's one of the most enjoyable Amiga driving games you'll see all the same. There's a good balance between achievement and reward too. ★★★★★

CHAMPIONSHIP MANAGER

Domark £24.99

AP15 38% JD
A very tedious and boring attempt at the football management genre. There's absolutely no football action, but there is a ridiculous amount of disk accessing. Don't waste your money, you'd get more satisfaction flushing it down the toilet. Try Chrisalis' Graham Taylor Championship game instead. ★

CHE: GUERRILLA IN BOLIVIA

CCS £25.99

AP10 34% RP
About as up-to-date as Che himself. Forget it. ★

CHESS CHAMPION 2175

Oxford Softworks £19.99

AP12 80% KF
Millions of options, loads of difficulty settings, easy to get into, good-looking and instructive, this is almost certainly the best Amiga chess game yet. ★★★★★

CISCO HEAT

Image Works £25.99

AP10 66% SC
It's hard to tell if the programmers ever played the coin-op this is supposedly based on, but it's not a bad little arcade driving game in its own right. Then again, it's not exactly good, either. ★★★

CIVILIZATION

MicroProse £34.99

AP16 80% GP
The idea of god-sims, and this one in particular, is very appealing. Few of them really hit the mark, though, and this is one of those that just misses. The interface is a living nightmare of hell, but inside that shoddy body there beats a heart of gold. It's dull and flat to look at but in the end it's such a good idea. Okay if you're patient, but why should you have to be? ★★

THE COOL CROC TWINS

Arcade Masters £25.99

AP16 65% MS
A mad and bizarre headbanging extravaganza of platforming crocodile antics. It's bright, colourful and arcadey, but there are too many levels and not enough gameplay variety to keep you entertained for very long. ★★

COVER GIRL POKER

Emotional Pictures/Storm £25.99

AP13 6% MR
A completely amazing game. You'll be amazed at the poor-quality pictures, astounded by the tacky dialogue, and utterly staggered at how unbelievably bad it is at poker. If you own it, kill yourself. ★

COVERT ACTION

MicroProse £34.99

AP8 81% SC T100 No. 99
Ridiculously expensive but very atmospheric spy 'simulator', with lots of little sub-games (some of which are actually enjoyable, shock horror) actually going together to make a cohesive whole. Shame about that price, though. ★★★★★

CRAZY CARS III

Titus £25.99

AP16 68% MR
Probably the best racing game yet – pure arcade fun. It succeeds. A great difficulty curve, excellent power-ups, wonderfully evocative graphics (Boston really looks like Boston) and great sounds. Let down slightly by the lack of a two-player option but otherwise fab. ★★★★★

CRAZY SEASONS

Idea £25.99

AP17 73% LB
Cutey, platform puzzler featuring a pot-bellied penguin trying to save the universe. Not exceptionally original but very playable. ★★★★★

CRIME CITY

If... £25.99

AP11 30% GP
Nice detective murder-mystery idea, but useless plot development and unpleasant user interface. This could have been good, if only it had had a bit of atmosphere to it. ★

CRIME TIME

Starbyte £25.99

AP9 32% RP
Hopeless adventure game, old-fashioned and unoriginal. Really, with the likes of Monkey Island around, we don't quite understand why people bother releasing this kind of drivel at all. ★

CYBERBLAST

Innerprise Software Inc £25.99

AP17 61% GP
Uninspired Gauntlet clone. Scrolly, mazy, shooty thing that plays well enough but isn't overly interesting. ★★

DEATHBRINGER

Empire £25.99

AP9 54% SC
Wildly impressive 32-level parallax, but there's nothing else to it at all. Even the gameplay that there is (simple hack'n slash stuff) isn't very well executed. More of a demo than a game. ★★

DELIVERANCE

21st Century Entertainment £25.99

AP14 75% JD
Cruder, more colourful version of Gods, without the depth but with a bit more zing to it. ★★

D/GENERATION

AP16 88% JD
You wouldn't have thought you'd get much of a game out of being a dispatch rider in a genetic engineering lab, but Mindscape have managed it, and for only £19.95. It has elegant and perfectly balanced gameplay with just the right amount of puzzle-solving, shooting stuff, and leaping around. Not so hot in the sound effects or graphics departments but it packs an addictive punch that could easily knock a few teeth out. ★★★★★

DISCOVERY

AP15 75% JD
Ships, history, and the anniversary of Columbus' 'discovery' of America. It's a pretty strange subject for a game, but then the American people have become a very strange sort of race. 'Celebrate Columbus' anniversary on the Amiga'. Quite. ★★

DOJO DAN

Europress Software £25.99

AP16 66% GP
A better than mediocre platform-ramp-cum-beat-'em-up thang with some shoot-'em-up shenanigans thrown in for good measure. It can be frustrating to play at times but it can be moderately entertaining too. It's no classic but it has its moments and is quite pretty to look at. ★★

DOUBLE DRAGON III

Storm £25.99

AP9 29% SC
While the first two Double Dragon games were simplistic and over-easy, at least they looked quite nice. This is much less complex than either of those, and a lot uglier too. ★

DRAGON FIGHTER

Idea £25.99

AP9 56% JD
Novel mix of two styles (R-Typeish shoot-'em-up and strategy game), but neither section has been very well executed. The whole thing is pretty slick, but there's nothing much here to keep you entertained for long. ★★

DREADNOUGHTS

Turcan Research Systems £34.95

AP14 80% JD
A naval strategy wargame that Jonathan liked? Nurse! ★★

DUNE

Virgin £30.99

AP15 81% DG
A highly polished adventure game which is more of a strategy game-cum-animated-book. It should appeal to adventure fans, and non-gaming fans of the book, alike. ★★★★★

DYLAN DOG

Simulmondo £25.99

AP16 29% RP
There are loads of extras (graphics and sound) but there isn't really much of a game for them to be attached to. Weird, boring and expensive. Give it a miss. ★

DYNA BLASTER

Ubi Soft £30.99

AP12 83% MB T100 No.13
Good fun by itself, but play this in five-player mode (with the joystick adaptor included) and you'll find entire days disappearing from your life. If you've got any friends at all, this is an absolute must. ★★★★★

ELVIRA – THE ARCADE GAME

Flair £25.99

AP10 70% NW
Sort of like a prettier but much cruder version of Gods. Not bad, but not exactly thrilling, it's yet another of those 'okayish' jobs (you should know the drill by now). ★★

ELVIRA II: THE JAWS OF CEREBUS

Accolade £34.99

AP13 33% GP
Totally dull and unexciting (surely the very last thing a game about the larger-than-life Elvira should be) million-disk adventure, and shockingly priced. ★

EPIC

Ocean £30.99

AP15 34% KF
Put that wallet away. The only thing that's epic about this one is how long we've had to wait for it. It scores on the graphics, and can be fun, but really – it's no game. ★

ESPAÑA GAMES '92

Ocean £29.99

AP17 38% MS
Huge variety of events but getting to them is a real chore. And they don't look too hot when you manage it. Not really worth the bother. ★

EUROPEAN CHAMPIONS

Idea £25.99

AP17 4% SC
Our lowest ever mark. Nuff said? ★

EUROPEAN CHAMPIONSHIP

Elite £25.99

AP16 59% SC
Having secured the rights to name the game after a famous tournament, you'd have thought Elite would have tried to simulate same. It doesn't look as if they did. As a footy game it's OK, but not up to the standard set by Sensible Soccer and Striker. Quite fun in a shallow arcadey sort of way but let down by poor graphics and slow play. ★★

EUROPEAN FOOTBALL CHAMP

Domark £24.99

AP15 64% NW
A bog standard footy game. There was little chance of recreating the fancy graphics of the coin-op, so instead Domark have concentrated on keeping what gameplay there is up to scratch. A nice try, but it won't win the cup. ★★

EYE OF THE BEHOLDER II

SSI/US Gold £35.99

AP14 86% KF
Nothing here that wasn't in the first (classic) game, but generally done that little bit better. Think very carefully before buying both, though. ★★★★★

FACE OFF

Krisalis £25.99

AP9 60% SC
Manchester United Europe on ice, but less fun. About as good as Amiga ice hockey gets at the moment, though. ★★

FALLING JEWELS

Soft & Easy £25.99

AP10 66% GP
Very rough-looking but sneakily likeable clone of the Sega Tetris clone Columns. You could do worse (like any of the official Amiga Tetris games, for example). ★★

FANTASTIC VOYAGE

Centaur £25.99

AP10 77% RP
Average shoot-'em-up distinguished by a lovely lighting effect which lends the game a charming atmosphere, albeit without adding anything to the hackneyed design. ★★

FASCINATION

Tomahawk £29.99

AP17 67% JD
Moderately groovy French adventure with a female central character. Nice and straightforward but tends to be a bit too linear. It looks great, too, although some of the scenes might trouble the less liberal-minded. Sexy or sexist? You decide. ★★

FATE – GATES OF DAWN

Rainbow Arts £29.99

AP8 70% JD
Finicky and tatty FRPG, only partially redeemed by the fact that it's got some moderately cute babes in it. ★★

FINAL BLOW

Storm £25.99

AP9 33% SC
Astoundingly shallow even for a boxing game, you'll spend half-an-hour completing this and the rest of your life regretting buying it in the first place. So don't. ★

FIRE AND ICE

Renegade £25.99

AP14 88% MR
Magic Pockets, but fast and good. ★★★★★

FIRETEAM 2200

Internelec £29.99

AP13 31% DG
Quite breathtakingly horrid-looking, and seriously dull to boot. Just another wargame, really. ★

USING A TV?

Switch to a monitor and SEE WHAT YOU'RE MISSING!

If you are currently using your Amiga or ST with a domestic television set, then you are missing out on picture quality.

Unfortunately, because your TV is used to receiving inferior UHF transmissions from the airwaves, it only has a UHF socket. So, your computer has to downgrade its high quality digital RGB (Red, Green, Blue) signal to UHF to enable your TV to receive it. However, because your TV can only display using RGB, it has to convert the UHF signal back to RGB before it can put a picture on the screen. Of course, every time you convert from one signal to another, there is a loss of quality which means that the final picture on the TV is not as good as the original signal from your computer.

You can overcome this with a monitor, which has an RGB socket, not UHF. Your computer will recognise this, and send its original RGB signal to the monitor which will display the image directly to the screen with no loss of quality.

The Philips 8833 is the best selling colour monitor for the Commodore Amiga and Atari ST. Ideal for game playing, it offers excellent colour graphics and has stereo audio speakers for enhanced stereo output from the Amiga and ST-E. The performance and reliability of the 8833 is exceptional, which is why we are confident to offer 12 months ON-SITE warranty with every Philips 8833 monitor. Plus, every 8833 from Silica comes with FREE Lotus Turbo Challenge 2 software, all for only £199 inc VAT.

FIRST SAMURAI

Ubi Soft (with Mega lo Mania)
£30.99

AP8 91% SC T100 No.14
One of the most beautifully constructed and playable arcade adventures the world's ever seen, with truly stunning sound into the bargain. This is the way it should be done, always. ★★★★★

FLIGHT OF THE INTRUDER

Image Works £30.99
AP8 83% JD
Surprisingly enjoyable and zappy flight sim based on one of the US Navy's clunkier old airborne warhorses. Bags of quirky character. ★★★★★

FLOOR 13

Virgin £30.99
AP14 75% MS
Tense and atmospheric sim of a covert department of the secret service. Plausible, and wonderfully gripping, if a bit expensive side for a game with no colour or moving graphics. ★★★★★

FOOTBALL CHAMP

Simulmondo £25.99
AP17 53% GP
Laudable effort, realism-wise. But if you want realism, what's wrong with real life? It's not very easy to get to grips with control-wise, and not particularly entertaining when you do. Football can be, and has been, done much better. ★★

FOOTBALL DIRECTOR II

D&H £24.99
AP8 55% CC
Zzzz. ★

FORMULA ONE GRAND PRIX

AP7 92% GP T100 No.2
Probably the most stunning technical achievement seen in Amiga games programming to date, but more importantly, a superbly and endlessly playable game to boot. Monstrously impressive in every way – buy this or we'll shoot you. ★★★★★

4D SPORTS BOXING

Mindscape £25.99
AP9 40% GP
The fourth dimension is, er, a really boring place to be. ★

4D SPORTS DRIVING

Mindscape £25.99
AP11 69% NW
A quite neat Race Drivin' clone, somewhat spoiled by the really clumsy and thoughtless approach to disk swapping. ★★★★★

FUZZBALL

System 3 £19.99
AP9 80% MS
This Bubble Bobble-esque arcade platformer is almost there, but the stupid control and sky-high difficulty puts a very hefty spanner in its works. Could have been great, but isn't. ★★

GLOBAL EFFECT

Millennium £29.99
AP13 60% JD
Sim City goes Green, but doesn't quite cut it gameplay and control interface-wise. Some very poor design logic makes it a chore. ★★

G-LOC R360

US Gold £25.99
AP18 7% LE
Possibly the most dimly programmed, boring and unimpressive piece of software we've ever seen. It's expensive, tacky, and rubbish. 'Nuff said. ★

GO

Oxford Softworks £19.99
AP12 80% SC
Unsophisticated but workable version of one of the true classics of boardgaming. 100 skill levels and a handcapping system gives everyone the chance to play this absorbing and challenging game. ★★★★★

GOBLIINS

Tomahawk £25.99
AP16 79% MR

Whatever it is they give those French game designers, we'll have doubles. Goblins is a quirky, not to say utterly weird, puzzler in typical Gallic style. The characters are irredeemably stupid but you'll love them just the same. Not exactly Another World but better than Pushover. ★★★★★

THE GODFATHER

US Gold £30.99
AP10 56% MS
Mario Puzo's (and Francis Coppola's) Godfather saga – just sit for a minute and try to imagine how much potential there is for a really great game in there. Then look at this godawful witless RoboCop clone and cry for a day and a half. ★

GOLDEN EAGLE

Loricel £28.99
AP10 55% JD
Icky Rolling Thunder playalike with cute animation but no noticeable gameplay. Uninteresting, uninspired and un-French. ★

GRAEME SOUNESS VECTOR SOCCER

Impulze £25.99
AP10 32% SC
A brave effort, but while the vector graphics work pretty well, the soccer bit fails miserably. File under 'nice try, no cigar'. ★

GRAHAM TAYLOR'S SOCCER CHALLENGE

AP16 82% AP
Poor old Graham gets a lot of stick these days and there are many that would say he deserves it. Apparently he was involved in the development of this football manager sim and, if that's the case, his detractors will have to give him some grudging credit for a job well done. It's a game stuffed full of features, with some quite entertaining action scenes thrown in. Some niggling flaws but overall quite satisfying. ★★★★★

GREAT NAPOLEONIC BATTLES

Impressions £29.99
AP10 63% RP
Duff wargame with a built-in editor so you can actually make it as much fun as you want! Allegedly. ★★

GUY SPY

ReadySoft £29.99
AP17 33% AP
Oh dear, if only looks were everything. This is another one of those cartoony adventure things that looks fabulous but isn't actually much fun to play. It's a step in the right direction, just not a very big one. ★

HAGAR THE HORRIBLE

Kingsoft £25.99
AP9 65% MS
A more expensive version of The New Zealand Story with Vikings in it. Surprisingly enough, though, it's less cute. ★★★★★

HARE RAISING HAVOC

Disney £25.99
AP12 28% SC/68% MR
It looks nice, but there's about as much gameplay in here as there is in a big empty box marked 'Gameplay-Free Zone'. It's quite funny! but you'll never play it more than once. If you've got a hard drive (and you can't play this any other way), don't waste its memory space. ★

HARLEQUIN

AP11 91% SC T100 No.15
One of the most complete, entertaining, addictive and imaginative games of any kind ever seen on the Amiga. Harlequin is a tour de force of programming and design. It's the game Robocod should have been. Platforms and spacehoppers have never been so much fun. ★★★★★

HARPOON (WITH BATTLESET II)

Electronic Arts £34.99
AP11 64% JD
Phenomenally detailed, but you'll have to be a retired Admiral to have enough time on your hands to play it properly. ★★

HEARTS OF CHINA

Sierra £34.99
AP10 84% MR
Lots better than most Sierra efforts, but still very linear, and if you haven't got one meg and a hard drive, forget it completely. ★★★★★

HEIMDALL

AP8 86% MB T100 No.46
If you're fed up of appallingly tatty RPGs, why not show some programmers this? Accessible, playable, gorgeous to look at, but still holding plenty of depth and challenge, this is the way the genre should be going. ★★★★★

HOI

AP17 60% GP
Hoi, you see, is a dinosaur that looks like a fish on wheels. He's the star of a jolly platform romp that's funny in parts, but too difficult to really be 'fun'. There's better stuff around if you like this sort of thing. ★★★★★

HOME ALONE

Accolade £24.99
AP10 48% RP
Almost as irritating as Macaulay Culkin. ★

HOOK

AP15 84% MR
The atmosphere of Spielberg's Hook movie is nicely captured, but there isn't really all that much to it. It's small and shallow, but still jolly nicely formed. ★★★★★

HOSTILE BREED

Palace £25.99
AP15 82% MR
Brave, different, and mostly successful attempt to add intelligence to the shoot-'em-up. Sadly it's the shoot-'em-up bit that lets the side down. A little more attention should have been given to the arcade side of things. ★★★★★

HOT RUBBER

Palace £25.99
AP14 50% GP
Completely take-it-or-leave-it motorbike racer that looks pretty sad next to Vroom and Super Hang-On. ★★

IAN BOTHERHAM'S CRICKET

Celebrity Software £25.99
AP16 41% AP
Even if you're a fan of cricket, you have to admit that it can sometimes be a bit boring. Ian Botherham's Cricket is tedious no matter what you think of the real thing. Liven up a bit as a two player game but overall it's a bit of a duffer. ★★

INDY HEAT

Storm £25.99
AP11 63% SC
A very good conversion of the arcade game, but it's just too easy and it lacks the addictive life of Super Off Road. Excellent fun with a couple of friends round all the same, though. ★★★★★

INTERNATIONAL SPORTS CHALLENGE

AP16 78% MR
Being Olympics year, 1992 was bound to spawn a few sports sims. This one features swimming, diving, cycling, show jumping, skeet shooting, and a marathon. It has its fair share of joystick waggling (on the swimming and cycling) but the other events make up for it with fun gameplay and the graphics are decent enough. Not brilliant, but good enough if you have a few friends round on a rainy afternoon. ★★

ISHAR

Silmarils £29.99
AP15 78% KF
An atmospheric experience with a good many thoughtful and original touches to set it apart from the rest of the RPG field. The only problem is that it's possible to stumble around aimlessly for a fair old time before getting into the real meat of the action. ★★

JAGUAR XJ220

Core Design £25.99
AP15 85% JD
Sadly this game hasn't improved on Lotus II, with a lack of driving excitement and cars on the road being two major problems. On the other hand it does have a lap rather than course structure, excellent weather effects and a track editor. Among the better of the sprite based driving games, but Crazy Cars III is now the firm office favourite. ★★★★★

JIM POWER

Loricel £25.99
AP15 78% MR
No ground breaker, but a smooth and silky (if slightly gaudy) platform shoot-'em-up effort – what it lacks in originality it more than makes up for in evidence of sheer effort and good design. Not at all bad. ★★

JOHN BARNES EUROPEAN FOOTBALL

Krisalis £25.99
AP14 74% GP
A very similar game in play to Manchester United Europe, but the tiny area of pitch visible on screen cuts down the tactical scope dramatically, although it bumps the speed up significantly. Good fun, but shallow. ★★

JOHN MADDEN FOOTBALL

Electronic Arts £25.99
AP11 90% NW T100 No.23
Limited entertainment with a single player, but one of the most involving, absorbing and hugely playable two-player games ever. Only for fans of the sport, though. ★★★★★

KID GLOVES 2

Millennium £25.99
AP10 58% SC
Something of a wasted licence – this actually used to be called Little Beau, but had the Kid name tacked on at the last minute to no great effect. Essentially Super Wonder Boy, but a bit more crude. ★★

KNIGHTMARE

Mindscape £30.99
AP9 74% MR
Something of another wasted licence, with all the potential of the TV show passed over in favour of, basically, a rewrite of Tony Crowther's earlier game Captive. It's all very clever, but the atmosphere just isn't really there. Very tough too. ★★

KNIGHTS OF THE SKY

AP8 87% JD T100 No.9
This is what it's really all about in the flight sim department. You can keep your F-15s and your A320 Airbuses, Knights Of The Sky captures the daredevil feel of the magnificent men of WW1 perfectly, with glorious dogfighting and lots of tricky missions. No collection should be without it. ★★★★★

LEANDER

Psychosis £25.99
AP10 83% MR T100 No.56
Slick, smooth and highly professional platforming antics (and the hero wears a silly hat too) – a bit on the generic side, but no less enjoyable for that. Plenty of it too. ★★★★★

LEGEND

AP14 91% KF
An RPG that's got everyone in the AMIGA POWER office playing it has to be something pretty special, and that's just what this is. Well-balanced and easy to get into, we can't think of a single serious flaw. ★★★★★

LEISURE SUIT LARRY 5

Sierra £34.99
AP11 50% KF
The kind of thing that makes buying a Super NES suddenly seem like a really good idea. Inept, unfair, morally-dubious, and about as nice to look at as your average motorway pile-up. Face it, it's rubbish. ★

LINKS

US Gold £37.99
AP16 70% MS
Links is easier to play than either MicroProse Golf or PGA Tour Golf. It looks absolutely fabulous and is an almost flawless golf sim. Its major fault (and it's a MAJOR fault) is that it's so slow that a three-toed sloth on mogadon would look like a champion sprinter by comparison. ★★★★★

LIVERPOOL THE COMPUTER GAME

Grandslam £25.99
AP16 65% SC
It's a football game and it's based on Liverpool FC. What more do you need to know? Oh alright then. It's easy to get into, but lacks any real depth. There's not much of the pitch on the screen at any time so tactics are out. It looks OK and has a lot of good ideas but overall it doesn't really make it. ★★

LORD OF THE RINGS

Electronic Arts £29.99
AP9 63% MR
Very atmospheric, with a friendly control interface, but the Amiga really creaks as it tries to keep it all going. Only for those who aren't in a hurry. ★★

LOTUS III

Gremlin Graphics £25.99
AP18 74% MS
Crazy Cars 3 creams Lotus II for sheer speed and thrills, and the much-vaunted course designer doesn't give you much opportunity to design. It's no disgrace but the time of Lotus has passed. ★★★

LURE OF THE TEMPTRESS

Revolution £30.99

AP15 88% MS
Not nearly as big as Monkey Island 2, but it's seven quid cheaper and has a lot fewer disks (and, for the xenophobes among you, it's British). It doesn't contain as much humour as M2, but if you prefer the slightly more serious approach to adventures you'll love it. You won't be disappointed. ★★★★★

MADDOG WILLIAMS

Game Crafters £30.99

AP12 47% JD

Stupendously run-of-the-mill Sierra game clone that's more 'average' than actual 'crap' – but why not blow your £31 on something that's actually 'good'? ★★

MAGIC GARDEN

Electronic Zoo £25.99

AP9 55% MB

Novel 'keep-the-garden-functioning-by-doing-ten-things-at-once' idea, but in action it simply doesn't grab you. You can't, indeed, see the wood for the trees. ★★

THE MANAGER

US Gold £25.99

AP14 36% SC

Everything that's tedious and inept about football management games can be found in this hopeless pile of old nob. A million statistic screens and incomprehensible icons make The Manager knuckle-chewing painful to play, with no redeeming features at all. Avoid desperately. ★

THE MED CONFLICT - BATTLEST 3

Electronic Arts £14.99

AP12 65% JD

Oh, please. This is such a specialist naval wargamer's thing that we seriously doubt a single one of our readers is in the slightest bit interested in it. Prove us wrong (all you Village People fans). ★★

MEGAFORTRESS

AP16 82% RL

Pull on that battered leather flying jacket, polish up your Ray-Ban Aviators and be the pilot of a B-52. At first glance it could be a bit of a tech nightmare, but it's surprisingly entertaining. The wide variety of tasks and enthralling atmosphere will keep you glued to the screen but the lack of ground detail loses the game a few marks. Atmospheric strategy flight-sim. ★★★★★

MEGATRAVELLER 2

AP16 60% AP

A positively massive sci-fi FRPG with everything including the kitchen sink. Great scope for independent exploration and 'doing your own thing'. Megatraveller was deep, the sequel is even deeper – it just doesn't have any water in it. There's a great game in there somewhere, but you're the one who has to hunt it out. For fans only. ★★

MERCENARY III

Novagen £29.99

AP10 50% KF

Disappointingly lacklustre sequel to the pretty entertaining previous two Mercenary games. Looks absolutely dreadful and there's not really a lot to do. ★★

MICROPROSE GOLF

MicroProse £34.99

AP8 84% SC T100 No.50

Lovely 3D golf sim with lots of frills, but the core of the gameplay isn't all it should be, and it's sort of embarrassing watching the Amiga simply throw away the bits of screen it can't cope with moving around. ★★★★★

MIGHT & MAGIC III

New World Computing £35.99

AP16 87% RP

If you've always thought you might like to get into FRPGs then this is as good a place to start as any. It's got auto-mapping; effective combat; big, deep realistic gameplay; and almost everything else you could ever want. The sound and animation aren't up to much but they never are. M&M III is a real sweetie. ★★★★★

MILLE MIGLIA

Silimulmondo £25.99

AP15 53% MB

A slow, vintage car-style driving game dressed up in authenticity and nostalgia. Great for fans of the classic car, of dubious worth for the rest of us. If you like fast driving games, forget this and go for Crazy Cars 3. ★★

MONKEY ISLAND 2

US Gold £37.99

AP15 90% GP

A worthy sequel – and to be a worthy sequel to the excellent Monkey Island takes some doing. Despite a few flaws, it's essential if you enjoyed the first game, with enough in the way of improvements and changes to keep you entertained and on your toes. ★★★★★

MOONSTONE

Mindscape £30.99

AP9 73% NW

This RPG hack-'em-up looks good, but the game doesn't flow and it's not as involved as it'd have you believe. ★★

MYTH

AP15 67% GP

System 3 certainly get an 'A' for effort. Myth is a well-researched and, by and large, lively project with high-spots of gloss and variety. Unfortunately it lacks real depth, and some of the puzzle logic is crazy. ★★

NAPOLEON 1

Interneice £29.99

AP8 39% JD

Aaaaarrrrggggghhhh! ★

NECRONOM

Line £25.99

AP9 78% SC

Outrightly tacky-looking at first, but worth sticking with to discover the challenging and imaginative (for a shoot-'em-up, anyway) game hidden beneath the surface. ★★

THE NEVERENDING STORY II

Line £25.99

AP10 42% JD

Lots of little sub-games, but nothing that really gives you any feel for the film at all. Even in a genre with some real junk around (ie the multiple-sub-games movie licence), you can find lots of better examples than this. ★

OH NO! MORE LEMMINGS

Psygnosis £25.99 (data disk version £19.99)

AP9 82% SC

A sadly missed opportunity to do something really interesting, but if you're a Lemmings lover who wants a new load of screens in the same vein as before, you'll be in seventh heaven. The difficulty curve is crap, though, and it's overpriced. ★★

OPERATION COMBAT

Merit Software £25.99

AP16 39% RP

It's a wargame and it's not very good. Okay? ★

ORK

Psygnosis £25.99

AP12 66% NW

This isn't a more complicated and less zappy version of The Killing Game Show at all – not! ★★

PACIFIC ISLANDS

Empire £29.99

AP13 87% MR T100 No.63

Brilliantly exciting and tense tank sim that improves over its predecessor Team Yankee by a factor of four. A little complex for the arcade junkie, but fab all the same. ★★★★★

PANZER BATTLES

Strategic Studies Group £25.99

AP12 62% JD

Quite bright and colourful, but suffers from Crap Indistinguishable Icon Disease. ★★

PAPERBOY 2

Mindscape £25.99

AP17 28% RP

If you want to be a paperboy, get a job delivering papers. ★

PARASOL STARS

Ocean £25.99

AP11 88% SC T100 No.18

Much more in the vein of Bubble than Rainbow Islands, this is a great all-action platformer with a particularly inspirational two-player mode. Not quite the same addictive pull as its immediate predecessor, though. ★★★★★

PGA GOLF COURSE DISK

Electronic Arts £14.99

AP11 75% RP

Some extra bits for one of the grooviest sports games ever – has to be a good thing, really. (Unless you're sick of it already.) ★★

PEGASUS

Gremlin £25.99

AP8 69% MR

Two-time shoot-'em-up with beautiful graphics but deeply uninspiring gameplay. Alright but brain dead and lifeless. ★★

THE PERFECT GENERAL

Ubi Soft £34.99

AP16 75% RP

Just when you thought it was safe to generalise about war games being dull, Ubi Soft manage to come up with one that's fun to play. Pitched about right for experienced players and beginners alike, we're convinced that Perfect General is a major contribution to something or other. ★★

PINBALL DREAMS

21st Century Entertainment £25.99

AP12 87% SC T100 No.78

'But it's only a pinball game'. Yeah, and a Ferrari F40's only a car, but what the hell's that got to do with anything? Supremely gorgeous and it'll last you a lifetime – what more could you possibly ask for? ★★★★★

PLAN NINE FROM OUTER SPACE

Gremlin Graphics £34.99

AP18 36% RL

Reasonably entertaining idea for a game, but the gameplay is disjointed, the music and sound effects are abysmal and it's too short. There are plenty of other things to blow 35 quid on. ★★

POPULOUS II

Electronic Arts £29.99

AP8 93% MB T100 No.8

Superb sequel that improves dramatically on what was, for most people, one of the best games of all time. If that's not a good enough recommendation, we don't know what is. Our highest-ever mark for a full-price game. ★★★★★

POPULOUS WORLD EDITOR

Electronic Arts £14.99

AP10 70% GP

Don't like the graphics or the landscapes in the original Populous? Fiddle around with them (and the worlds, of course) with this handy, if ultimately rather limited, toolkit. ★★

POWERMONGER: WW1 EDITION

Electronic Arts £14.99

AP12 65% JD

Gives the original game a shot of much-needed character, but beyond that it doesn't really add anything to the original. ★★

PREMIERE

AP17 84% MR

At last, a cartoony action game that's fun to play. It's a little bit basic, gameplay-wise, and the six levels are pretty similar, but it does manage to capture something of the excitement of movie studios. If Bruce Willis were a computer game, he'd probably be Premiere. ★★★★★

PROJECT X

Team 17 £25.99

AP13 78% SC T100 No.82

We thought this was going to be a contender for game of the year, but we were wrong. Slick and brash and arcadey, but also bugged and dramatically under-playtested. A crying shame. ★★

PROPHECY

Mirage £25.99

AP17 29% SC

Very, very like Super Wonder Boy only not as good. ★

PSYBORG

Loricel £25.99

AP14 65% GP

Hyper-fast tunnel racer that's quite good fun when you get into it, but still miles too thin for a full-price product. ★★

PUSHOVER

Ocean £25.99

AP14 79% MR

Not-entirely-unpleasant little puzzler, but relies rather more on trial-and-error than actually stretching your mental faculties to any serious degree. The best domino-toppling game on the Amiga, though. ★★

PUTTY

AP18 90% MR

One of the Amiga's finest and most utterly silly moments yet. The loading can be a bit of a pain but everything else (especially the sound and Uncle Ted) is wonderful. System 3 have pulled out all the stops on this one to give you more laughs for your money than any other game around. ★★★★★

RACE DRIVIN'

Domark £25.99

AP13 72% NW

A better effort than Domark's original Hard Drivin' conversion, but still uncomfortably prone to wildly over-sensitive control. Still, if you liked the arcade game you'll etc. ★★★★★

REALMS

Virgin £29.99

AP9 84% KF T100 No.47

It's basically a slightly more complex version of the old Kingdoms game, but it's beautifully done. The game can occasionally descend into dull number-juggling, though. ★★★★★

RED BARON

Dynamix £34.99

AP12 19% GP

On a few thousand quid's worth of PC kit this is a reasonably exciting WW1 flight sim. On the Amiga it's one of the crappiest bits of crappy old crap there's ever been. Only for those of you who find snails thrillingly fast. ★

RISKY WOODS

Electronic Arts £25.99

AP15 82% MS

Lacking variation and depth, Risky Woods does compensate with plenty of frenzied, and atmospheric platform action. On a par with Leander, it's a good buy for fans of the genre, but by no means a must. ★★★★★

ROBOCOP 3

Ocean £25.99

AP10 85% MB T100 No.71

The most surprising film licence in ages, this really brings out the feel of the film, with lots of fast-paced action depicted in impressive 3D vectors, with lovely presentation into the bargain. It doesn't quite hang together as a game, perhaps, but brave, and a definite success. ★★★★★

ROBOZONE

Image Works £25.99

AP9 39% SC

Useless three-section arcade game. The first (platform) bit's crap, the second (3D maze) bit's really crap. The last (shoot-'em-up) bit isn't worth playing the other two bits for. ★

RUBICON

21st Century Entertainment £25.99

AP13 74% RP

Bland horizontally-scrolling shoot-'em-up, too far behind the pack to be really worth buying at this price. Nice weapons, though. ★★

RUGBY COACH

D&H £24.99

AP10 42% RP

Football management, without the interesting football bits. You don't want to buy this, you really don't. ★

RUGBY - THE WORLD CUP

Domark £25.99

AP8 86% CC T100 No.74

No-nonsense no-frills heavy-duty joystick wobble frenzy in this Kick Off like rugby league. A bit easy to beat, but great, exhausting fun against another human player all the same. ★★★★★

SAMURAI: THE WAY OF THE WARRIOR

Impressions £29.99

AP14 55% AP

Good presentation, but when you get into the game proper it's just one more tacky and unfriendly wargame. One for ninja fetishists. ★

SENSIBLE SOCCER

Renegade £25.99

AP15 93% SC
An unbelievably playable, fabulously realistic, and amazingly atmospheric football game. The best two player game available on the Amiga and probably one of the top two Amiga games of all time. Do yourself a favour - buy it!

7 COLOURS

Infogrames £19.99
AP8 47% JD
Nice idea, but once again a puzzle game turns out to be more a test of chance than a genuine brain-teaser. Never mind, eh? *

SHADOWLANDS

Domark £29.99

AP11 87% MR T100 No.49
Very lovely RPG with a neat light-and-darkness effect, which (despite the fact it does have some gameplay implications) is mainly just a cosmetic gimmick on top of what's a well-designed and absorbing game. Good stuff, though occasionally a tad sluggish. *****

SHADOW OF THE BEAST III

Psychosis £29.99

AP16 71% SC
A sweet game to play but you're not getting enough for your 30 quid. More fun than the other two Beast games and there's no free T-shirt (that's a plus, by the way). There's not very much to it. ***

SHADOW SORCEROR

US Gold £27.99
AP8 71% MR
Not very accessible - and not very appealing to FRP purists either - this is an awkward, disjointed and generally unfulfilling game. Worth a try if you're after something a bit different, though Shadowlands does it better. ***

SIM ANT

Ocean £34.99
AP14 59% MB
Some of the most appalling programming seen in a professional game in years ruins what could have been an interesting concept. Even if you've got a hard drive, forget it. *

SIMEARTH

Ocean £34.99
AP17 41% JD
As a simulation of a living planet, it's spot on. The problem is that ecosystems are, by their very nature, slow, dull things and neither the presentation nor the interface do anything to make them more interesting. **

SMASH TV

Ocean £25.99
AP9 81% MR
Massively disappointing conversion of one of the best coin-ops in years. Written in such a way as to cater for the American market, so why should you spend any of your hard-earned Sterling on it? *****

SPACE 1889

Empire £30.99
AP9 74% SC
Inferior follow-up to Mega Traveller, although it's not a bad RPG thing in its own right. The idea is a lot more interesting than the execution, though. ***

SPACE ACE II

Empire £34.99
AP10 17% SC
Look, it's simple. Are you a total cretin? Do you want to see crap games come out on the Amiga in the future? If the answer to those questions is 'no', don't buy this game. There's nothing else to it. *

SPACE CRUSADE

Gremlin £25.99
AP12 85% KF T100 No.60
Excellent boardgame conversion which does away with all that faffing around with bits of plastic and dice, but doesn't lose any of the features of the original. Very classy. *****

SPACE GUN

Ocean £25.99
AP12 69% MR
Zappy Operation Thunderbolt clone, but nowhere near as good. Fun with a Trojan Light Phaser, but not much else. **

SPOILS OF WAR

Internece £29.99
AP14 45% JD
Tedious rubbish. There is no truth in the rumour that wargames have to be dull to be realistic. We've said it often enough by now, but just to reiterate - something being a wargame isn't an excuse for it being programmed to sub-1986 standards. *

STARUSH

Ubi Soft £25.99
AP14 64% SC
Lots of nice touches in this zodiac-inspired blaster, but unfortunately they're not attached to a decent game. Not a rip-off, but not really worth buying either. ***

STEEL EMPIRE

Millennium £29.99
AP11 63% RP
There aren't many wargames set in the near future, but this is, er, one of them. It didn't set our hearts on fire, but being objective this is quite good. Only quite good, mind you... ***

STEVE McQUEEN WESTPHASER

Loricel £25.99
AP10 25% SC
A funny cartoon version of Operation Wolf set in the Wild West is undoubtedly a good idea, but it would be an even better idea to make it playable. It might also have been quite amusing to have put Steve McQueen in it at some point. *

STORM MASTER

Silmarils £25.99

AP11 86% MS T100 No.72
Another Kingdoms game, but there's lots more to do in this one than Realms, and there's more variation to the gameplay too. *****

STRIKER

Rage £25.99
AP15 76% SC
Fast moving and immediately playable, but it's just a bit too sophisticated for its own good, proving very frustrating unless you select one of the top sides. It's a good game but at the end of the day Striker lacks the necessary polish to make it stand up to the sheer class of the all-conquering Sensible Soccer. ***

STRIP POKER DELUXE II

CDS £25.99
AP8 7% CC
The only thing in its favour is that it plays a better game of cards than Cover Girl Poker. But that doesn't say much for it and it's still complete and utter rubbish. *

STRIKE FLEET

Electronic Arts £29.99
AP9 64% CC
Lots of extremely interesting guns and stuff to use, and a huge manual to plough through. But it's a surprisingly shallow game when you look closely at it. Not much cop, really. **

SUPER SPACE INVADERS

Domark £25.99
AP8 51% RP
A groovy arcade game becomes a total disaster of slowness and programming incompetence on the Amiga. More like the 1977 original than the sexy Super Space Invaders coin-op, this is junk. *

SUPER TETRIS

MicroProse £29.99
AP17 54% SC
Tetris with knobs on. But why? It's no better than Super Twintris and you can get that for nothing. **

SWORD OF HONOUR

DMI £25.99
AP18 28% LE
You spend longer waiting for the screens to load than you do playing them. Nothing original here, just a poor man's copy of The Last Ninja. Very slow and boring. *

TENNIS CUP 2

Loricel £25.99

AP17 72% MS
The control system is difficult to get to grips with at first, but, once mastered, it makes this one of the better tennis sims. Good looking with lots of options. All this and Inspector Clouseau announcing the scores, what more could you want? *****

THUNDER BURNER

Loricel £19.99
AP10 30% RP
Utterly nightmarish kind of Buck Rogers meets Space-Harrier-thing. A drab shoot-'em-up without the nifty flying-around-bits from Space Harrier. Fun VCR feature but this is the kind of thing that gives French programmers a bad name. *

THUNDERJAWS

Domark £25.99
AP8 17% SC
Then again, the British don't come out too well either if you look at this sort of thing. Average Rolling Thunder-type coin-op, dreadful conversion, and that really is all you need to know. *

TILT

Genias £25.99
AP10 50% JD
Similar in many ways to Boston Bomb Club, but a whole lot less lovable, this is a simplistic and repetitive puzzler that doesn't have the staying power to last you more than a few games. **

TIP OFF

Anco £25.99
AP10 75% GP
Pretty itty attempt at transferring the success of Kick Off to a basketball game, spoiled by dodgy control and the fact that basketball simply doesn't work the same way as football does (not that Kick Off played much like football anyway). **

TITUS THE FOX

Titus £25.99

AP12 88% SC/MR T100 No.22
Hudson Hawk meets The Blues Brothers. Huge, wonderful platformer, dragged down a bit by huge amounts of disk accessing, but no less unmissable for all that. The cutest game hero in the known universe, too (nobody's based a game on Winona Ryder yet). *****

TOP BANANA

Hex £25.99
AP11 45% JD
Bizarre environmentally-friendly (both in concept and execution) Rainbow Islands clone, this is certainly one of the oddest games we've seen in a while. Unfortunately, while it's almost exactly the same game as Rainbow Islands, it's only about a tenth as good. ***

TOUCHDOWN

Strike Force £14.99
AP15 48% NW
Slick presentation keeps up the pace of a technically sound, if not particularly enthralling, coaching sim. All the basic features you'd expect, but gridiron fans deserve more action and a little more to excite the imagination. **

TRODDLERS

Storm £25.99

AP18 89% AP
The best elements of some of the best styles of gameplay in history combined in one cute package, and it works. Two styles combine to make a classic game in its own right. It's better than Lemmings, allegedly. *****

TV SPORTS: BASEBALL

Mindscape £25.99
AP15 52% NW
Well put together, but very tedious after an hour or so. If you do want baseball on your Amiga then try the much better RBI/Two Baseball instead. **

UGH!

Play Byte £25.99

AP15 79% MR
A laugh and a half, Ugh! offers you excellent one or two player prehistoric fun, for a while at least. Not the sort of thing you'd be playing a year later, though, but worth a look. *****

ULTIMA VI

Mindscape £30.99
AP13 90% MR T100 No.17

Not the kind of thing for RPG virgins to start on, or for anyone without a hard drive even to consider, but this is currently pretty much the state of the art for Amiga role-playing. Enough to keep you going for months. *****

UNDER PRESSURE

Electronic Zoo £25.99
AP8 12% SC
An Alien Storm-esque shoot-'em-up which looks incredibly like a Psychosis game and plays incredibly like a complete load of old tosh. Probably the least involved game we've ever reviewed. *

UTOPIA: THE NEW WORLDS

Gremlin £14.99
AP14 60% SC
Er, some new worlds for Utopia. They're okay, really. Is it just us or is £15 a lot of money for a data disk? ***

VENGEANCE OF EXCALIBUR

Virgin £30.99
AP13 60% MS
Not 500+ compatible, which is outrageous. Otherwise, an attractive, but pretty average RPG romp which doesn't significantly improve on its unimpressive predecessor. **

VIDEOKID

Gremlin £25.99
AP11 70% SC
Mega Twins without the platforms. Okay, it's not all that similar - it just looks that way initially. This is a pretty, constantly scrolling shoot-'em-up, and quite good fun really. ***

VIKINGS

Krisalis £25.99

AP16 81% MR
A strategy wargame thing that doesn't look ugly or contain too many statistics. It also has an easy to use interface. It's a bit like Defender Of The Crown without the action sequences but with some kind of magical addictive ingredient thrown in instead. And you can compete against your friends. *****

VOLFIED

Empire £25.99
AP8 80% MB T100 No.90
Arcade classic Qix revisited. A near-perfect clone of the coin-op, but it's not as much fun as the 1980 original. Still, enjoyable to play, even if it's not the toughest game ever. *****

VROOM

Ubi Soft £25.99
AP12 88% SC T100 No.35
The missing link between F1GP and Lotus 2, Vroom straddles two genres without falling between two stools. Great as a simple foot-down arcade game, but excellent fun as a serious tactical Formula One sim too. It's lovely and fast and you shouldn't be without it. *****

WINTER SUPERSPORTS 92

Flair £25.99
AP15 61% GP

A high price to pay for what boils down to four different events. None of them are particularly involving or compelling, but there's fun to be had when more than one player is involved. ***

WIZKID

Ocean £25.99

AP15 91% MR
A refreshing game that mixes psychedelic arcade adventure, football, and bad jokes with arcade games like Breakout and Pengo. With its perfect control system it's as much fun to play as it obviously was to write. The best game ever (beginning with the letter W at least) if you don't buy Wizkid, your life really will be a lot poorer. *****

WOLFCHILD

Core Design £25.99
AP10 58% SC
Hugely disappointing platformer that's the sequel to Switchblade in all but name. Too short, too easy, too repetitive, and lacking the character and inspiration that separates a good game from the run-of-the-mill. ***

WORLD CLASS RUGBY

Audiogenic £25.99
AP9 63% MS
Poor attempt to do for rugby what John Madden Football did for the American gridiron game. Good graphics but dreadful control system. Over-technical, and a pain to get to grips with. ***

WORLD CLASS RUGBY - THE FIVE NATIONS

Audiogenic £25.99

AP14 86% MS
Dramatically-improved version of the earlier game, right up there with Rugby - The World Cup for playability and action. The 3D second-person perspective view (a la John Madden Football) is neat, too. *****

WWF WRESTLEMANIA

Ocean £25.99
AP10 39% GP
There's a limited amount of gameplay scope in any wrestling game, but even so there's a lot more to be got out of the WWF than is achieved by this lame and cynical cash-in. Strictly for educationally underprivileged 8-year-olds, we think you'll find. *

ZOOL

Gremlin Graphics £25.99

AP18 90% LE
Rightly heralded as a Sonic beater. It's fast, tough and kicks the ass of certain other games featuring certain other characters. This is the yardstick by which other games will be measured. *****

PUTTY AP RATED 90%

PUTTY

1. 'A stiff paste made of whiting and linseed oil used to fix glass into frames and fill cracks in woodwork.'
2. 'One of the Amiga's most original and finest moments yet. Flexible and versatile, that's Putty.'

ASSASSIN AP RATED 89%

Probably the most playable game of its genre. Take on mad pit bull terriers, evil hippies, rampaging robots and maniac chimps in this seriously excellent console-esque game. With five enormous levels, endless bonuses and collectables and a nasty dude called Midan, you've got your work cut out.

MEGA LO MANIA & FIRST SAMURAI AP RATED 90% & 91%

Two of the greatest ever Amiga games, gathered together in one enormously wonderful and lovely package:
First Samurai - Gorgeously playable arcade action.
Mega Lo Mania - Mightily addictive strategy wargame fun.

THEY THINK
IT'S ALL OVER...

SENSIBLE SOCCER IN THE STYLE OF BULLDOG BLIGHTY

BY STU CAMBRIDGE AND JON HARE

OF...

Andy Warhol has a chat with Roger Dean, and decides to try his hand at macho fantasy pictures. Leonardo Da Vinci meets Rolf Harris down the pub and decides to do the Mona Lisa in crayons. System 3's Putty gets re-interpreted as a splatter movie. All of these things are possible in the twilight zone of In The Style Of. This month sees the return of those ever-so Sensible boys, shamelessly plugging their next game, Cannon Fodder. The rogues.

Jon: "The screen here shows Sensible Soccer entering the warzone, in the style of our next game Cannon Fodder. As you can see it's England vs Germany, with the score at 2-0 – not very politically sound, but good harmless fun.

"We just had to do it really, because it's one of those football jokes which people crack all the time. We just thought, 'what the hell', you know?

"It's a bit xenophobic, but my mother is actually German, so it's not done with any kind of malice."

PC VGA

Part 2 of the B.A.T. saga takes place in Roma 2, the capital city of Shedishan, a planet in the B8 system. This time you are Jehan Menasis, an agent of the famous Bureau of Astral Troubleshooters. Your mission: crush the unscrupulous KOSHAN which holds an almost complete monopoly of the precious Echiatone 21.

Will you make it?
