This captivating photo series showcases a bold and expressive nude model with pierced nipples, captured within the confines of a black cyclorama. Against this minimalist backdrop, her form takes on an almost sculptural quality, evoking a sense of mystery and intrigue that is both alluring and enigmatic. Through this shoot, we seek to explore the boundaries of artistic expression, revealing the beauty and complexity of the human form while highlighting the dynamic interplay between light and shadow.

This series of photographs is a reenactment of the brothel from the turn of the last century. The artwork was inspired by vintage erotic postcards. In fact, the idea came after seeing an exhibition of period portraits of prostitutes at the MoMA in New York.

The various sets were staged in ancient Italian residences and clubs:

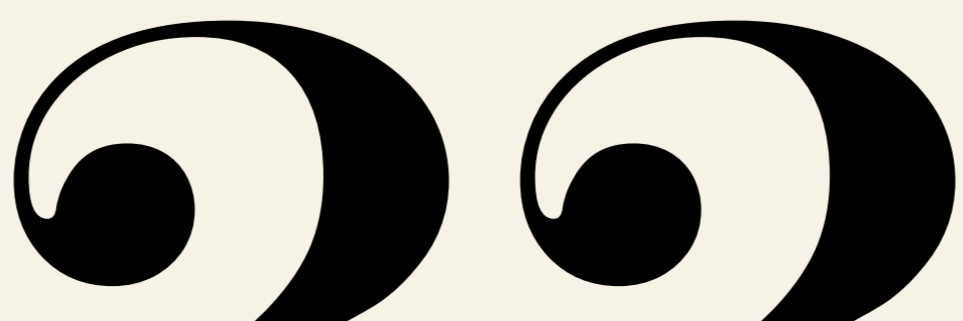

- Broglino (Todi - Perugia) - [1400-1500];
- Lovcraft (Florence);
- Old farmhouse (Tuscany) - [1600-1650].

«La Fleur blanche» was a famous maison close (brothel) in the city of Paris, located at 6 rue des Moulins. La Fleur blanche was notably frequented by Toulouse-Lautrec. The brothel operated from 1860 and in 1940 was requisitioned for the use of German officers. It was definitively closed in 1946, after the adoption of the “Loi Marthe Richard”,
