WNAX-570 TO SPONSOR 1960 NATIONAL PLOWING CONTEST

WNAX, in co-operation with the Sioux Falls Chamber of Commerce and the South Dakota Association of Soil Conservation Districts, will sponsor the 1960 Soil Conservation Field-Days and National Plowing Contest beginning September 21st.

Over 100,000 people are expected to visit the contest site during the three days of this big national event.

Already farm machinery and farm-related product manufacturers have contracted for the major portion of the available commercial exhibit area. In addition to these commercial exhibits, visitors will see soil conservation developments and demonstrations, and the National Plowing Contest with top plow men from all over the United States competing.

Invitations have been extended to the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates to attend. In 1952 and 1956 both presidential candidates made major campaign speeches at the National Plowing Contests.

Active in planning of the event are the members of the WNAX three-man Farm Service Department: Rex Messersmith, George B. German and Lyle Hansen. This trio of farm experts travel the length and breadth of Big Aggie Land for first hand information of interest and benefit to the Midwest Farmer.

WNAX-570's sponsorship of this national farm event is one more indication of the station's leadership in farm broadcasting and service in Big Aggie Land—the nation's 40th Radio Market.

To reach and sell this important five-state area—you need only WNAX-570.

New Blue Book? ■ FCC members were given big gulp of homework last week—300-page-plus staff report on programming practices and recommendations for FCC program surveillance. Report was work of Network Study Staff under Ashbrook Bryant, and it reportedly contains 78 pages of conclusions adding up to recommendation that FCC assert authority to pass upon program judgments of licensees. It's said to be tougher version of principle that major industry witnesses themselves advanced during program hearings early this year. Networks and NAB agreed that FCC could examine overall programming and match promise vs. performance in license applications.

Special FCC discussion of programming report will be held later this month—after Commissioner Robert T. Bartley returns from England (he's due Wednesday, July 6) and all commissioners have had time to study thick document. Meanwhile, there's tight security imposed; numbered copies of report were distributed personally to individual commissioners and few key staffers.

Line economy ■ There's been quiet but growing interest in use of less-expensive Class C lines instead of Class A for radio station interconnections—so much so that NBC Radio planned to convert all but transcontinental backbone and major spurs of its network lines from Class A to Class C over past weekend. As explained to affiliates, NBC concluded after tests that there's been great technical improvement in Class C lines which puts them virtually on quality par with Class A, even though they cost little more than half as much; that most NBC Radio programming is news and other voice matter which for all practical purposes can be handled as well by Class C, and that change in public's receiver habits—result of big consoles by table models and portables—make Class A transmission fidelity meaningless in most cases anyway. NBC's clincher: On test basis it fed its network via equivalent of Class C lines for two weeks without telling anybody, got not one complaint.

As insurance for NBC Radio stations that will be getting network service via Class C lines (see above), NBC engineers developed what they call "transistorized Class C equalizer." One of these will go to each converted station, all of which are being assured that the devices, easily installable by station engineers, will simulate Class A service.

Blue couches ■ Private eyes and cowboys may have to make room eventually for new standard character on tv screen: psychiatrists. Headshrinkers have been making fitful starts in past seasons, and new ABC-TV daytimer may help trend along. Road to Reality, starting in fall as dramatic five-a-week, is based on transcripts of sessions in group psychoanalysis. ABC-produced project recalls April 22 play on CBS-TV Playhouse 90, Roger O. Hirson drama, "Journey to the Day," which presented group treatment of patients in institution. Subject matter also is reminiscent of daytime House on High Street which ran for while on NBC-TV afternoon, dealing with professional help in domestic problems.

G-2 plans ■ Now before FCC, in form of document for public release, is specific outline of functions of new Complaints & Compliance Div. Big push will be made for document's approval as soon as money for operation of office is in commission hands (see story, AT DEADLINE). Document, originated by Commissioner T.A.M. Craven, is designed to let licensees know exactly what to expect from new compliance branch, headed by John C. Harrington. Earlier, Mr. Craven had asked FCC to issue "clarification statement" of division's duties but this was tabled as "unnecessary" after Senate had approved $200,000 for compliance activities. House Friday cut another $50,000 from that amount, leaving FCC with one-half of $300,000 it had asked for.

Now for the news ■ ABC-TV's next big program effort will be in area of news and public affairs. With network's sports schedule bolstered through its acquisition of both NCAA games and American Football League, and its entertainment programming competing effectively, AB-PT President Leonard Goldenson has given green light on more intensive news coverage through expansion of organization and implementation of public affairs programming.

Marked down ■ Price of Groucho Marx's You Bet Your Life—still seeking a sponsor—has been falling. Set for Thursday, 10-10:30 p.m. on NBC-TV for 1960-61 season, show's weekly production cost had been pegged at $53,000; now is being offered at $46,000 (both prices exclusive of agency commission; NBC owns show). Groucho's program is slotted against last half of highly-rated Untouchables on ABC-TV.

CBS-TV has not programmed its counter half-hour; but now is peddling Grindl, Screen Gems package (about $48,000 per show). Comedy is anthology created by Mr. Peepers creator David Swift and centers around misadventures of a domestic.

If it's not Grindl for CBS-TV's Thursday period (see above), there's good possibility—particularly if Talent Assoc. gets advertiser for it—of Happy Talk, edited-down half-hour version of Open End talkfest by top comics aired last month. David Susskind of Talent Assoc. is moderator of Open End. Program would be on tape and TA is now editing tapes of that Open End discussion into presentable pilots.

Seattle settlement ■ KIRO-TV Seattle, which was co-defendant with CBS-TV in antitrust suit brought by KTNT-TV Tacoma, decided last week to follow CBS example and settle out of court. CBS settled by giving KTNT-TV joint affiliation with KIRO-TV in Seattle-Tacoma market and, reportedly, by reimbursing Tacoma station for $400,000 expenses [BROADCASTING, May 30]. KIRO-TV reportedly paid KTNT-TV nothing but agreed, "reluctantly," officials said, not to counter-sue for losses it assertedly has suffered since dual affiliation in same market was announced. Original suit charged that CBS-TV and KIRO-TV conspired to take network affiliation from KTNT when KIRO went on air.

No easing ■ Don't interpret action of FCC in dropping revocation proceedings against KIMN Denver (BROADCASTING, June 27) as softening of new FCC crack-down on untoward programming. Issuance of cease and desist order in lieu of revocation hearing (4-1 vote) came only after FCC lawyers held that revocation could not be sustained in court test on basis of facts. Burden of proof, in revocation proceedings, is on FCC, whereas in renewal proceedings it shifts to applicant.

No sale—yet ■ Rumors flew again last week of impending sale by Elroy McCaw of WINS New York, but Mr. McCaw insisted no deal was in negotiation. So far Mr. McCaw is sitting tight despite offers of as much as $10 million for property he bought in 1953 for $450,000. At moment Mr. McCaw is planning new enterprise—investment company to provide equity financing for all kinds of businesses. If plans jell, several leading industrialists and financiers will be partners.

WEEK IN BRIEF

MR. BARASCH

Hard sell, not humor, should win tv awards ■ It's about time the creative awards for tv commercials were presented where they belong, according to Kenneth S. Barasch, who is leaving Kastor, Hilton, Chesley, Clifford & Atherton, New York, to become an independent tv-radio creative consultant. He doesn't mean the fancy, arty commercials either. He is talking about the good, old fashioned hard sell commercials, those that produce results in sales. Although others say the trend is toward wit and humor in tv commercials, Mr. Barasch believes they are wrong. The trend is the other way, he says in this week's MONDAY MEMO. Page 22.

Stars and contracts ■ Those long-term deals made by the networks are on the way out. The trend today is toward short-term contracts and profit participation by the stars, influenced by such factors as high taxes, sharper inter-network competition and the emergency of film programming and outside production houses. Page 27.

Big medium for little cars ■ Tv makes strong impression on prospects and dealers in compact automobiles, NBC-TV annual automotive survey, "Prospectivity," says. Page 29.

Network tv curve ■ It continues upward as advertisers place more than $283.2 million gross for time January-May of this year. Page 38.

Another crack in Canon 35 ■ Ohio Supreme Court board holds that recording of courtroom proceedings is not barred by Canon 35 if broadcast later from outside the court. Page 42.

Senate okays Sec. 315 plan ■ Senators vote to suspend equal time provisions for presidential, vice presidential nominees this year and send it to House. Page 52.

HOUSE VOTES FCC POLICE FUND

Approves $150,000; Senate goes along

Congress Friday approved $150,000 for FCC's proposed police unit to watch stations for violations of Communications Act and FCC rules and other misbehavior. There was some debate in House on whether unit would get into program censorship.

House acted in morning and Senate in afternoon on compromise Independent Offices Appropriations bill (HR 11776), which was approved by House after amounts were worked out Thursday by Senate-House conferees on fiscal 1961 budget for FCC, Federal Trade Commission and other independent agencies.

Congress-approved compromise gives FCC total $13,085,000, which includes $2 million for agency's proposed two-year study of uhf propagation in New York City. Total was $415,000 less than original Budget Bureau request, but $150,000 over amount originally approved by House and $50,000 less than figure subsequently approved by Senate. Police unit figure of $150,000 was half of $300,000 FCC requested when matter was first brought up during Senate hearings. Senate had approved $200,000 before bill went to Senate-House conference to work out Senate-House differences. Bill sets FCC travel limitation of $165,000.

During House debate Friday Rep. Edward Boland (D-Mass.) expressed concern FCC police unit might set "dangerous precedent" and might get into program censorship, but Reps. Albert Thomas (D-Tex.) and Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said FCC is prohibited from censorship. (Similar concern had been voiced by senators and Senate report specified money could not be used for anything "remotely approaching" censorship.) Rep. Joe Evins (D-Tenn.) said FCC is justified in checking broadcaster promises versus performances in light of abuses revealed by congressional investigators.

Bill, now to go for presidential signature, specifies $7,507,000 for FTC and directs special attention to its new textile-labeling program activities.

Measure also provides for Office of Civil & Defense Mobilization to hire telecommunications expert or consultant at $75 per day and strikes language earmarking $185,000 for OCDM Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee because "it is no longer necessary under the reorganization of OCDM."

KTVU strikes back at KRON-TV charges

Bitter charges that KRON-TV San Francisco had warmed-over old claims previously shown to be unfounded were made by NBC and KTVU (TV) San Francisco, cited by KRON-TV in federal antitrust suit and FCC hearing petitions (story page 50).

NBC told BROADCASTING KRON-TV's statements attacking NBC's proposed acquisition of KTVU are "hardly new," adding they are based "on many of the same claims which the (San Francisco) Chronicle had made in its brief, jointly filed with Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., seeking to attack the acquisition before the federal district court in Philadelphia.

"At that time, the Dept. of Justice, which had conducted an intensive investigation into every phase of the transaction, said the allegations 'do not enlarge upon facts disclosed by our investigation or upon theories considered by the government. Those facts and theories in our view do not disclose any violation either of the judgment or the antitrust laws.'"

KTVU charged KRON-TV and affiliated Chronicle "are attempting through litigious conduct to indirectly effect a continuing and perpetual affiliation with NBC" that could not be done directly. Pointing out the Dept. of Justice had found the charges without merit, which was sustained later by Federal court Judge Kirkpatrick in Philadelphia, KTVU said:

"The extent to which the Chronicle and KRON-TV have gone in bearing false witness" by harassment and unsustainable charges shows "the complete panic it suffers when confronted with the task of operating a tv station with its own vast resources and without network help.

"We at KTVU as small businessmen are proud that we have the courage and competence to undertake a type of tv operation that an organization as dominant and powerful as the Chronicle so thoroughly dreads that it will go far beyond the bounds of decency, fairness and honesty in persecuting a small competitor.

"We shall in due course and in appropriate processes thoroughly vindicate our conduct and reveal the shabby and unconscionable motives of the Chronicle."

Political jingles

With political pot beginning to boil, Jingle Mill Inc., New York, announced Friday it is prepared to create singing commercials for candidates to their specifications. Commercials will be sold to local candidate or his party for $68 each for use on one station and charge of $25 for each additional station use. Mort Van Brink, president, said Jingle Mill can offer 20- to 30-second jingles at this cost because company has library of more than 600 tunes already recorded on tape and only lyrics have to be written. Candidate will have specific tune exclusive in his area. Mr. Brink reported that 75 political jingles already have been sold during past few weeks and said he could accommodate national candidates when they are selected. He observed Jingle Mill probably would create new tunes and lyrics for them so they would not conflict with melodies associated with local candidates throughout country.

WJZ-TV strike settled; WBEE denies charges

Strike developments at weekend: WJZ-TV Baltimore strike by AFTRA settled after night session June 30; WBEE Chicago (Harvey, Ill.) strike by AFTRA, started June 9, is acquiring racial overtones.

Agreement at WJZ-TV followed 11-day strike by seven freelance talent employees, with about two-score employees refusing to cross picket lines. Station said service was not interrupted. John L. McClay, WJZ-TV general manager, and Nelson Baker, one of strikers, issued joint statement saying, "We feel we reached a very happy conclusion for everybody concerned. It was fair all the way around, with compromises on both sides."

In Chicago, July 2 issue of Chicago Defender, Rollins station explored AFTRA charges and pointed out station is only one in Chicago area employing Negro help fulltime and servicing Negro community interests. Ad asked why AFTRA hasn't insisted on Negro employment at major broadcast outlets. Station contends it is willing to pay hourly rate sought by union and parent company (Rollins Broadcasting Inc.) has union contracts with Negro personnel at other stations in group.

Contest abandoned, FCC reprisal feared

Potts-Woodbury, Kansas City agency has withdrawn station promotion contest on behalf of client DX Sunray Oil because promotion managers are reluctant to accept prizes for fear of "implications" with FCC. Contest, planned since last April, was for best efforts promoting Grand Jury film series, on about 35 stations. Prizes included trip to Hollywood for manager and wife.

Letter signed by Ranson Dunnell, agency's radio-tv director, explained to station management that several promotion managers had said they could not accept prizes. He added that in view of payola and plugola investigations, contest was postponed on advice of attorneys and to "avoid embarrassment" to stations.

Capital Cities traded

Stock of Capital Cities Broadcasting Co. opened at 10 last week on first day of trading on American Stock Exchange, New York. It was back at that price by close of business second day, (July 1), after dropping $\frac{1}{4}$ in interim. Firm is listed under symbol "CCB." Lowell Thomas is largest stockholder in Capital Cities and Frank Smith is president. CCB stations are WROW-AM-FM-WTEN (TV) Albany, N. Y.; WTVD (TV) Durham, N. C.; WPRO-AM-FM-TV Providence, R. I., and WTEN's satellite, WCDC (TV) North Adams, Mass.

Political sale

Mutual's convention-election package has been purchased by Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. (Oasis cigarettes), New York, for price reported slightly over $100,000. L&M will sponsor ten 25-minute programs at each convention, four special five-minute programs on Election Day and participation in 19 Friday programs of The World Today in period between conventions and election. Agency: McCann-Erickson, New York.

FTC CITES COLUMBIA PAYOLA

Payments direct to radio-tv stations charged

Columbia Record Sales Corp. and Columbia Record Distributors Inc., both New York, are among seven record manufacturing and distributing firms being cited for payola tomorrow (Tuesday) by Federal Trade Commission. In addition to accusation that they have made undercover payments to disc jockeys to play their records, two Columbia firms and Interstate Electric Co., New Orleans, also are charged with making payments directly to radio and tv stations.

Other firms being charged tomorrow include Triumph Records Inc., Malverne Distributors Inc., Mayfair Distributors Inc., all New York, and Concord Distributing Co., Cleveland. This brings total payola complaints issued by FTC since last fall to 93.

Trade Commission also announced last week that 15 firms have agreed to accept consent decrees prohibiting the giving of payola in future. All previously were cited by FTC. They include United Telefilm Records Inc., New York; Allstate Record Distributing Co., Vee-Jay Records Inc.,

Mercury Record Corp., all Chicago; three Mercury subsidiaries in Cleveland, New York and Chicago; Midwest Distributing Co., Commercial Music Co., Interstate Supply Co. and Roberts Records Distributing Co., all St. Louis; Ric Records Inc., New Orleans; Astor Records Inc., Pittsburgh; Ace Record Co. and Record Sales Inc., both Jackson, Miss.

Hearings on payola complaint against Decca Distributing Corp., New York, will begin Wednesday (July 6) in Washington before Hearing Examiner J. Earl Cox.

Report on FTC activities for fiscal year ended June 30, released yesterday (Sunday), shows that record number of complaints and orders against illegal business practices were issued through "sharply intensified policing." According to report, drafted by Acting Executive Director Basil J. Mezines, 157 (double fiscal 1959) complaints were brought against monopolistic practices and 348 (up from 272 last year) against deceptive practices, including payola.

WSHE Raleigh sold

Sale of WSHE Raleigh, N.C., from John C. Greene and associates to Louis P. Heyman for $175,000 announced Friday (July 1). Mr. Heyman is former executive of Schenley Distillers. WSHE is 500 w daytimer on 570 kc. Transaction was handled by David Jaret Corp., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Overtime measure awaits Senate action

Legislation (HR 12853) granting exemption from overtime requirements of wage-hour law to broadcasters in smaller marketing areas was passed by House and sent to Senate where it was awaiting action at weekend. Bill excludes radio-tv from overtime requirements in cities under 100,000 population. Clarifying language was adopted specifying overtime requirements do not apply in small markets lying within boundaries of standard metropolitan area if total population is under 100,000.

Overtime language is involved in bill originally increasing federal minimum wage gradually from $1 to $1.25 per hour. This had been approved by Senate Labor Committee [BROADCASTING, June 27].

Parliamentary mixup by which 14 million workers were deprived of minimum wage through technical fluke threatened to prevent Senate action.

SAG contract

Screen Actors Guild Friday negotiated new contract for actors employed on tv films with Alliance of Television Film Producers and Assn. of Motion Picture Producers. It calls for immediate increases and also for future raises. For example, minimum fee for half-hour program (with guarantee of 13 programs) goes from present $285 to $315 and to $350 in 1962; retroactive to June 1, 1960. Present residual schedule, which goes to total of 140% of original payment, continues in effect, but actors have option in 1962 of changing system to minimum royalty payment of 8% of world rights, in which case contract runs until 1965. Producers also agreed to support pension, health and welfare fund with payments equal to 5% of actors' salaries up to $2500 per actor per half hour program or $4000 per hour program.

WHAT REALLY CREATES PROSPERITY?

Let's be realistic.

More wages don't create prosperity.
Actually, unearned wages create inflation.

What is true prosperity? The increase of material wealth.

What basically creates wealth? Not education, culture, social agencies, government. They help spread it, help you enjoy it, use it, control it.

Basically, industry creates wealth: by creating more goods for everyone. By keeping costs within reach through mass production and product improvement. By making more jobs for more and more people. Remember—85% of us derive our incomes directly or indirectly from industry and business.

Let's be realistic: if you work with industry—against inflation, foreign competition, idle waste of manpower—you are helping create prosperity!

'Birth control' for radio

EDITOR: In reading your "Rate infamy" editorial in the June 20 issue, I agree that no matter which wins, local and/or national rate, we will have a rate problem in radio: off the card dealing, i.e., multiple rates still.

You mention that "local vs. national ... is no more than one element in a much bigger problem confronting broadcasting." It isn't, as you say, rate cutting. It is the cause of the rate cutting. Not the disease, but the genes.
Yes, what radio needs is birth control.

We note that the FCC estimates that there will be 2,000 more radio stations in the next 10 years. To NAB, RAB and equipment manufacturers this means a tremendous growth in the radio industry, the epitome of American business initiative. We, as Americans, frown on the over-populated areas, like China, as backward nations in which war affords an automatic and necessary birth control. Is that why radio, today, is going through a rate war?

I think it is; ... over-competition does not lead to better radio, but to all-over leveling, struggling, starvation radio subsisting on payola records.

The lowering of engineering standards ... the disregard for economic backing ... the misguided pride in quantity versus quality ... the inevitable need to get the business at any cost ... all these are the cause of radio's rate problem. ...

The addition of 200 stations in 1960
will merely aggravate the problem.—

The Telenews record

EDITOR: Enjoyed the story in your June 27 issue on one of our worthy competitors, Bill Payette of UPI (Our Respects to, page 107), but despite the merger of INS-INP with UP some two years ago, which eliminated the "INS" slug from our letterhead, I wanted to point out some facts simply for the record.

You might interpret my feelings to either loyalty or nostalgia; nevertheless, I wanted to call them to your attention.

Telenews was the pioneer newsfilm service for tv, in association with INS, in 1948—some four years prior to UP-Movietone's entry into the field. This pertains to the statement that Payette helped evolve supplying of newsclips to tv stations in 1951.

INS-INP-Telenews pioneered facsimile service to tv stations a year before either UP or AP got into the act, in January 1953, and had installed its equipment in some 25 major markets. This pertains to the statement that "UPI, along with other pioneering services, evolved the use of facsimile," etc. Even AP would resent that!

In passing, you might be interested to know that Telenews is the only independent newsfilm syndicate that services one of the major networks—ABC. And we're still going strong!—Robert H. Reid, General Sales Manager, Telenews Sales Division, Hearst Metrotone News Inc., New York.

Political aftermath

EDITOR: Thought you might be interested in the following:

On or about the 13th of November 1959 six local state and county officials filed a petition with the FCC for the revocation of licenses and for other relief against radio stations WBLO Evergreen, Ala., and WEBY Milton, Fla., owned by myself.

In the recent state and county election, those signing the petition and seeking re-election were defeated. One of the petitioners, Sheriff Bart D. Broxson, was killed in an automobile accident Dec. 24 and his son was appointed to fill his unexpired term. His son was defeated for re-election by Wade H. Cobb.

Albert Golden did not seek re-election, but actively supported all signers of the petition.

State Senator Newman C. Brackin was defeated by myself. Morrison Kimbrough was defeated by Mayor W. C. Byrom. Clifford Wilson was defeated by Ezra Johnson. Richard C. Finlay was defeated by Macon Wise.

The fact that these gentlemen tried to close these two radio stations was a major issue in the campaign. Possibly their defeat can be attributed to the filing of the petition.

As you know, the FCC failed to consider the petition.—Clayton W. Mapoles, Milton Broadcasting Co., Milton, Fla.

[FCC on May 18 dismissed the petition seeking revocation of the licenses of WEBY and WBLO. FCC said local political factions and differences are not proper subjects for consideration by the commission.—THE EDITORS.]

Never mind the headlines

Statistics are like icebergs. The numbers you see may be impressive, but it is often the footnote hidden below that carries the most weight.

Consider the next network trade ad you see. Examine closely the figures that support the headline's claim.

Are they based on less than half of all the nation's television families, or do they represent a true measure of nationwide audiences? (We count the whole country—see footnote.)

Do the statistics simply reflect an isolated week or two, or do they span a longer, more meaningful period? (We embrace the whole season—see footnote.)

Do the numbers in big type report "total audience" ratings, which include all viewers who dip in and out of any program? Or are they "average-minute audiences," which more accurately measure how many television homes were tuned to your commercials? (Our viewers stay put—see footnote.)

Do the boundaries of "nighttime and daytime" include the full schedule of sponsored programs, or are

NATIONWIDE NTI AA REPO
NIGHT: MON-SUN 6-11 PM

It's the footnotes that count! ②

some time periods left out, foreshortening either night or day? (We work the longest hours—see footnote.)

When you do look into our footnotes, you will find that by all the measures that really count the CBS Television Network again this season broadcast the most popular program schedule in all television, with ...the greatest nighttime audiences: 16% larger than the second network and 17% larger than the third ...the largest daytime audiences: 20% larger than the second network and 65% larger than the third

...more of the most popular nighttime programs than the other two networks combined: 4 of the top 5, 6 of the top 10, and 11 of the top 20

...more of the most popular daytime programs than the other two networks combined: 3 of the top 5, 7 of the top 10, and 12 of the top 20

Which explains why advertisers, who can be counted on to read the fine print, continued to commit more of their budgets to the CBS Television Network than to any other single advertising medium.

MONDAY MEMO

from KENNETH S. BARASCH, tv-radio creative consultant, New York

Hard sell, not humor, should win tv awards

Recent articles discussing the trend to tv humor present this art form as the avant-garde of a new world of advertising. However, the effort to create a witty, charming "different" tv commercial which employs humor and cartoons often results in a loss of sales!

[The opposite view was expressed in the June 27 MONDAY MEMO by Lincoln Diamant, vice president in charge of tv-radio, Daniel & Charles Inc., New York.—The Editors.]

Research backs us up in this view. According to Dr. Henry Ostberg of Blankenship, Gruneau & Ostberg, research firm, "humor gets attention, but may not get believability or seriousness."

Every year the "creative" commercials receive tv awards. But if the awards were based on sales results instead of art direction, then the commercials at the bottom of the creative rankings might well be the winners.

I need only cite Dristan, Roloids and Anacin as three commercials that art-conscious experts would rate very low on the "creative" level, yet these three have produced outstanding sales results.

Re-define 'Creative' ■ This would suggest a re-definition of "creative." I would suggest that creativity in advertising should describe the type of presentations that promote sales. In these terms the Dristan, Roloids and Anacin advertisements are works of art—advertising art.

Too often, the cartoon-plus-wit approach to tv selling results in a high recall of the "gimmick" or presentation factor used, but a very low recall of the product's image or reason for buying. Awareness of the brand name increases, but, without a reason for buying the product, sales decrease. Furthermore, cartoons and humor that tend to treat a product lightly will in turn be thought of lightly by the consumer.

Therefore, humor not only can rob a tv commercial of its believability and serious import, but it can also hide a good selling idea. For example, the Piel Bros' campaign, "A beer that holds its head, holds its flavor," is a powerful idea. Along with visible proof of two glasses side-by-side, it should be all that's needed to make Piel's sales soar. What's wrong? I think that Bert and Harry sometimes get in the way of the idea, make a joke of it and as a result tend to steal the thunder of the "head-test."

In contrast to tv humor or cartoons is "continuous" or hard sell. Continuous sell has the advantage of being able to tie together all aspects of the commercial and to relate its message to the home audience. It uses real-life situations and diagrams to bring home its sales point. Properly constructed, nothing is permitted to get in the way of the primary message. Everything in a hard-sell commercial works towards credibility and seriousness.

Where the competition is great and all advertisers are vying for a pre-determined market, it is the most promising and believable story that will make the sale. Certainly wit and cartoons would stand out in these markets—but would they sell? I think not. A headache is a serious thing. A mother wants to buy the best, most nutritional foods. A man wants to see the car he will buy and at three thousand dollars he's serious about it.

Think Pictures ■ Television is not radio with pictures. On the contrary, it is a silent movie with sound. The sound backs up a story told visually. Every picture in a tv commercial should work towards telling the primary sales story, from beginning through demonstration, proof and close. Where the picture may not tell the complete story, supers can be used. But above all, the pictures should be made to work for the product.

How, then, do you know your pictures are working for you?

Test the commercial without sound. A storyboard, with supers but without the audio, should tell your full story from beginning to end. If you have difficulty reading the board, if it doesn't "play" from opening to close, if the demonstration is not clear, the proof not visible, the chances are that your commercial does not have a strong visual story. But, when the pictures "track" and tell the story, then an already strong commercial is enhanced by the audio. Existing television commercials also can be tested with a similar method. Just run them off and turn off the sound. If you can understand what the advertiser is telling you in pictures and supers without the sound, then the commercial is a good one.

Using these methods, you may find that cartoons really aren't doing anything to help your sale. But by the same token, a stand-up commercial (the announcer talking to the camera) may not stimulate consumer interest either. Commercials must have action—but that action must be related to the sales story.

Primary Sales Point ■ Of course, any successful advertising vehicle must have a primary sales point that sets it apart from its competitors. Without it, you don't have an advertisement. With it, you don't need gimmicks, techniques, cartoons or wit to get in the way. Look at it this way: a primary sales point can get a response of, say 70%, before a test audience. Add cartoons and humor and they, too, will get a response. But at what cost? Chances are, at the cost of the primary sales point.

Fortunately, the trend is away from humor in advertising. As more and more advertisers realize that recall of the brand name is not enough, that recall must result in a "good reason why" for higher sales, a return to hard sell or "continuous sell" will occur throughout the industry.

Someday soon, the giver of advertising awards will recognize that sales come before beauty. And, such brilliant commercials as Anacin, Dristan, Rise shaving cream, Bufferin and Colgate will get the credit they deserve.

Kenneth S. Barasch started in advertising as tv writer on mail-order drugs and cosmetics, has worked for Ogilvy, Benson & Mather and with Ted Bates on drugs and package goods. He now is leaving Kastor, Hilton, Chesley, Clifford & Atherton, N.Y., to become tv-radio creative consultant.

STORER BROADCASTING COMPANY
33 Years of Community Service

WHEN DO YOU FREEZE A FORMAT?

The answer is very simple — never!

At least, in 33 years, we have never quite been able to manage it.

Public preference changes too fast and so do each community's needs. That is why every Storer station is locally oriented to the particular community it serves.

Only by knowing community problems from day to day have we been able to help solve them. Only through constant check on listener and viewer preferences have we been able to build loyal, responsive audiences.

Keeping the public informed and entertained, and working for a better community is a day-to-day, often an hour-to-hour, even minute-to-minute job.

We've never found a way to format community service. It's too big...too fluid...too much of a responsibility to be frozen — even for one day.

OUT OF MANY, SOME

Three days and 1,400 pictures later, Producer Paul Belanger of Kudner Adv., New York, had the 140 stills he needed to make nine commercials for the Renault Dauphine. The results of his labor, and that of Hollywood photographer John Engstead, covered most of a room before the winnowing-down process began. (At left, Mr. Belanger shows one of his choices to Mel Kane of Pacific Title & Art Co., Hollywood, whose company serviced the commercials.)

The chosen 140 were turned over to the tv commercials division of Columbia Pictures, which used the "visual squeeze" technique to give a sense of animation to the commercial. The still portions were integrated with conventional action sequences in the finished series.

The six shots at top are from one of the nine commercials. It relates in a humorous vein how the Renault Dauphine is just the thing for the woman who likes to "drench" herself in diamonds, furs and beautiful gowns, and then concludes with a pitch to the man of the house, who's told that "every woman loves the husband who keeps her in the height of style in . . . the stylish Renault Dauphine."

B&H'S HANDS-OFF POLICY

Advertiser thrives on controversy shows

Who speaks for network control of tv programming? One of the most influential voices in client circles is Bell & Howell, Chicago-based photographic supplies firm. In fact, its contract with ABC-TV for continuing public service projects in prime time makes express provision for no sponsor control.

And last week, as a matter of idle curiosity, Bell & Howell's agency, McCann-Erickson, Chicago, combed its files for all available trade reports in connection with the sponsor control issue, frequently raised by newspaper tv critics. There's evidence that networks will maintain a tighter rein on programming this fall (BROADCASTING, May 16).

Simultaneously, B&H released reactions June 25 from nearly 500 letters to its May 27 controversial documentary on CBS Reports, "Who Speaks for the South?" All were unsolicited and the majority were "enthusiastic," according to Carl G. Schreyer, B&H marketing vice president.

Despite threats of boycotts, loss of dealerships, decreased sales and consumer resentment, client and network received only 14 "unfavorable" letters and "none of these predictions materialized," he reported. Most of them lauded Bell & Howell for significant public service in prime time hours, with letters continuing to pour in from throughout the country a month after the telecast.

"The mail indicates the company has apparently gained new friends who have written to thank us and pledge support of our products," Mr. Schreyer stated. "We are delighted at this evidence that our faith and confidence in the American television audience have been vindicated."

Equally important, he stressed, "there is no indication of a consumer or a dealer boycott." Sales of B&H's photographic products in June are running ahead of the same month last year, he added, showing the same trend in both the South and North. A good deal of favorable reaction to the program itself also came from the South and many letters indicated a closer understanding of the geographical viewpoints involved.

Many of the letters specifically mention the company's products. Some writers expressed pride in the equipment they own and others stated their intentions of buying B&H photographic products.

AN EVOLUTION IN STAR CONTRACTS

■ 30-year deals a la Berle, Gleason now passe at tv networks

■ High taxes, increased competition dictate new ground rules

The network practice of committing big money, for long terms, to lock up a "stable" of stars is going out of style.

Economics have caught up with the type of deal that made a Milton Berle synonymous with NBC, or an Arthur Godfrey with CBS. There are still some long-term contracts left, but they're a vanishing breed.

The new condition is evident in current programming. The big star is a sometime thing. The steady work goes to performers who carry the bread-and-butter programming that now constitutes television's regular schedules.

It's not that television has lost its luster. But such mundane matters as high taxes, sharper competition among networks (and sharper cost accounting within each network), a fickle public, star corporations, the emergence of film programming and of the outside production house have dictated a new set of negotiation ground rules. Among them:

- You can't buy anybody with money alone.
- Don't talk to the star; talk to his tax counsel.
- Don't buy anyone you're not sure you can use.
- Whatever the length of contract, keep the options short.

Name talent, of course, has been and continues to be essential in television. But the ways of getting these names on the air have changed. For series stars, the current trend is to contracts from three to seven years, with options to cancel at least annually (and sometimes after only 13 or 26 weeks). The "show stopper" today is signed simply for three, six or eight appearances.

More often than not, stars come into television under contract not to networks but to outside producers (the Four Stars, Ziv, MCAs, etc.). And one of the biggest "holdouts" to come to television—Danny Kaye—won't be under contract to either. He signed directly with an advertiser, General Motors.

Double Deal ■ The star who does come in under network contract often has two deals under his arm—a personal appearance contract and a production contract. The personal appearance pact says He'll appear on the network in shows produced by a production company in which he has an interest (Perry Como on NBC, Ed Sullivan on CBS, Pat Boone on ABC, for example).

The firm, long-term contracts developed when television was trying to build up the excitement that would build audiences. The logical course was to follow the one laid down by the movies and radio. Networks are secretive about financial terms of their deals, but the Celler Committee hearings in 1956 disclosed some of this information.

For example, one CBS contract for 10 years required the artist to work for only five years at a minimum guarantee of $300,000 annually; in addition, he was to receive $100,000 annually for the next five years without any service to CBS but was prohibited from appearing on any other network. Another CBS contract contained similar provisions, with seven years of active service at $176,000 a year followed by a 13-year restricted period

Uncle Miltie's story

In television's early days, Tuesday night at 8 was the magic hour. That was when "Mr. Television"—alias Milton Berle—held forth for an hour on the Texaco Star Theatre on NBC-TV. It was tv's highest rated program.

'UNCLE MILTIE'

Tv's new pinboy

Remembering the radio talent raids of the late 1940s when NBC lost valuable properties to CBS (Jack Benny, Amos 'n' Andy, Edgar Bergen) on capital gains deals, NBC-TV negotiated the first of the long term tv talent deals with "Uncle Miltie" in 1951. The network was assured of the exclusive services of Mr. Berle for a 30-year period, and "Mr. Tv" was assured of an annual salary for the same period.

A year or two later, the Texaco Star Theatre was a victim of skidding ratings and Milton Berle was without a show of his own. Since then, he has made few guest appearances, but continues to receive his NBC-TV paychecks.

Next season, he'll be back on NBC-TV with bowlers instead of jugglers for straightmen as he acts as m.c. for the Jackpot Bowling series.

Mr. Berle's plight has not been unique. He's had plenty of company—Jimmy Durante, Martha Raye, Sid Caesar, Jackie Gleason, Arthur Godfrey and others.

Today the trend is to short-term contracts (3-5 years) and profit participation by the stars. The change has been influenced by sharper competition between the networks and the increased role of the outside production firms.

at $100,000 per year. An NBC contract specified a five-year active period with a minimum guarantee of $176,000 a year and a 10-year exclusive period during which the artist was to make isolated guest appearances on NBC for $50,000 per year. (None of the talent in these deals was identified in the Celler Committee information.)

By hindsight, it can be argued that the networks were burned by having to pay guarantees to stars whose popularity waned before their contracts expired. The two networks most intimately concerned—CBS and NBC—resist this conclusion, saying that although the deals may not look so good now, they served their purpose at the time.

Who Had the Deals ■ The granddaddy of the tv contracts—after the radio talent raids of the late 1940s—was signed between NBC and Milton Berle in his “Mr. Television” days. It called for a firm guarantee for 30 years (from 1951). He has made only guest appearances in the past several seasons, but will have a regular series (Jackpot Bowling) this fall.

Reading down from Mr. Berle, NBC’s long-term contracts included Eddie Fisher, Jimmy Durante and Martha Raye (15-19 years); Sid Caesar, Perry Como, Dave Garroway, Jack Webb, Paul Gilbert and Dr. Frances Horwich (10-14 years); and Phil Harris and Jack Paar (over five years). The Fisher, Horwich and Caesar contracts have been dissolved “by mutual consent.”

At CBS the long-terms included Edward R. Murrow, Ed Sullivan and Jackie Gleason (15-20 years); Arthur Godfrey, Garry Moore, Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz (10-15 years); and Keefe Braselle, James Arness and Phil Silvers (over five years).

How It Started ■ It was traditional among radio networks in that medium’s heyday to sign talent on a long-range basis. When government action in 1940 forced CBS and NBC to disband their artists bureaus, they resorted to the long-term arrangement to assure continuity of programming. In the early days of tv, networks supplied a high percentage of their own programming, produced within their own organizations. The percentage of house-created shows has dwindled as film producers and other organizations have flourished.

CBS and NBC signed up talent “right and left,” as one agent put, during those early days. He said the panic button was pushed when Jack Benny deserted NBC for CBS in 1947 and was followed by Amos ‘n’ Andy and Edgar Bergen. Both networks then stocked up their talent arsenal, but then ran into the problem of finding the programs to keep their new properties busy.

The rise of ABC-TV in recent years has prompted both NBC and CBS to keep a sharper eye on expenses and to re-evaluate their programming approach. A former NBC executive noted that in former years a name could be kept on the payroll for occasional appearances and the network felt he paid it back in “prestige, star value and excitement.” But no longer. As an ABC official puts it:

SHORT-TERMER SINATRA
ABC-TV contracts run three years

“Just figure it out. A tv network rarely makes more than 5% on its gross. If you guarantee a performer $100,000 a year, and then can’t put him to work, it means you must sell $2 million worth of business just to pay him his salary.”

Outside Sources ■ The growth in film programming and increased activity by independent producers (Talent Assoc., Robert Saudek Assoc., Hubbell Robinson Productions, Henry Jaffe Enterprises and others) have reduced sharply the number of network-produced shows. Film companies traditionally have operated under a contract structure binding a star to the studio for periods from one to seven years, but with options exercisable by the producer. The outside producer, too, shuns the long-terms.

Taxes have persuaded many stars that money in hand isn’t everything. They will seek, instead, an investment in a series or a combination of money plus an interest in a tv project in which they will not appear. (Bing Crosby’s deal with ABC was on this basis.) Another gambit is to waive money for an appearance on one or more tv specials and ask the network or producer to finance in whole or in part a pilot film of a series in which the star has a financial interest.

Where Now ■ It is probable there will be a few long-timers around for some time to come, particularly at NBC-TV and CBS-TV, which still program personality-variety shows, though their number will decrease as current pacts expire. ABC-TV may add a few long-termers, but its pacts rarely run for more than three years, and in recent years, only Pat Boone, John Daly, Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra have had such arrangements.

A CBS-TV official is not convinced that the long-term contracts are destined for oblivion. He agreed that in recent years the network has not signed such contracts, but he added:

“But where are the top names that we could sign? Where are the new Berles and Godfreys and Durantes? If they should develop, we’ll sign them up. But, of course, there has to be a need. We have to make pretty certain they are saleable.”

NBC-TV and ABC-TV executives active in negotiating with talent were more pointed about the on-the-way-out direction of long-term pacts. They believe that these agreements no longer conform to changing patterns of the industry, and an NBC-TV official elaborates in this way:

“It comes as no surprise to those of us who have had Hollywood experience. Twenty years ago, the major film studios had their stables of stars, many under long-life term deals. But the economics of the business today are such that this enormous overhead cannot be sustained.

“We’ve seen the growth of the independent producer, who went out and signed a star for one or two pictures. And in recent years we have had the star setting up his own company, like Bill Holden and Kirk Douglas. Television is following the same pattern.”

Networks regard the short-term trend as one that can upgrade quality and bring some of the “holdout” attractions of the entertainment field into tv. A vital consideration, officials say, is not money but an appropriate property—a vehicle the star always yearned to do.

“For instance,” an NBC-TV talent official recounted, “Ingrid Bergman always wanted to do The Turn of the Screw. The producer knew this and landed Miss Bergman. Probably nothing else could have moved her.”

Programming and talent executives know it will involve considerable persuasion, but they hope to evolve a formula that will attract into tv, at least on an occasional basis, such marquee names as Clark Gable, William Holden, Jack Lemmon, Doris Day, Marilyn Monroe, Mary Martin, and others who are still “holdouts.”

A stereo commercial

What is probably the world's first stereophonic spectacular one-minute commercial—and quite possibly the last as well—occurred last Monday (June 27) at 8:45 a.m. in Hollywood.

Heralded by a full page ad in the Sunday Los Angeles Times, the spot was a commercial for king size Coca-Cola, recorded in stereo and broadcast simultaneously by two am radio stations—KNX and KMPC. (Choice of these two stations added to the jest: KMPC's Dick Whittinghill and KNX's Bob Crane are vigorous competitors for the morning radio audience.)

Instructing the reader to arrange two radios "tonight" with a footnote reading "You say you'll do it in the morning, but will you?", the Times ad urged listening to the Freedle Family Singers in stereo, stating that "This spectacle will positively not be repeated." A second note cautioned "Immediately following we advise you to turn off one or the other, as a terrible garble will ensue otherwise."

The special one-time one-minute stereo broadcast and the newspaper ad were created by Freberg Ltd. in cooperation with Murphy Assoc., agency for Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Los Angeles.

what is the choice? Often it is another of the same type and quality. People who anticipate an evening of entertainment or diversion, and settle hopefully down to it, are committed. They will suffer a mediocre book rather than no book at all. And they will accept less, often far less than they want on tv, simply because that seems to be all there is."

Corvair commercial wins festival award

Great Britain took first prize in two tv commercial categories and four second prizes; France was awarded two second prizes and the United States swept all others.

Citrus budget pends

Decision on the use of broadcast media by Florida Citrus Commission will come next September. In the fiscal year ended June 30 the commission spent only an estimated $400,000 out of a $7 million budget for broadcast media (nine minutes of CBS-TV's What's My Line?).

Benton & Bowles, New York, the commission's agency, said a main budget presentation will be made in September at which time media decisions will be made. The seasonal citrus crop assessment on growers determines the budget. This summer, the commission will use print only.

Simoniz' N.Y. move makes D-F-S shine

Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample inherited the $5 million Simoniz consumer advertising account last week as the business moved from Chicago to New York.

Announcement of the appointment was made Thursday by Chester G. Gifford, newly-elected president of the Chicago-based company. He reported that Buchen Co. will continue to handle the commercial division products, estimated to run about $500,000 in billings. Both Mr. Gifford and Paul Greenfield, Simoniz marketing director, acknowledged they had analyzed several agency presentations and felt D-F-S "would best be able to meet Simoniz' specific advertising needs." Leo Burnett Co., Edward H. Weiss & Co. and Clinton E. Frank were among the top contenders for the account, which leaves Young & Rubicam effective Sept. 1.

A Simoniz spokesman told BROADCASTING the account would be handled 100% out of D-F-S' New York office, with the agency's Chicago branch involved only in servicing needs. About half of the client's billings are in broadcast media.

Spot radio sales up in 1960 first quarter

National advertisers maintained and slightly increased their 1959 rate of spending in spot radio in the first quarter of 1960, Station Representatives Assn. reported last week.

SRA said estimates compiled for it by Price, Waterhouse & Co., independent accounting firm, placed first-quarter spot radio expenditures at approximately $40,008,000 as compared with $39,990,000 in the same period a year ago.

Lawrence Webb, managing director of SRA, also expressed the belief that second-quarter figures would show further gains to put the total for the first half of 1960 clearly ahead of last year's first six months.

The first-quarter estimates are subject to revision upon release of FCC's official 1959 figures later this year.

TV EFFECTIVE IN SELLING AUTOS

NBC study shows how medium promotes sale of new models

Tv is doing its part to get the small car on the road, racking up a 64% media preference among dealers in NBC's fifth annual automotive study. Prospective buyers like television, too, the findings show.

Dr. Thomas E. Coffin, NBC's research chief, is giving automotive groups an insight into their market and distributorships, in addition to media findings based on network research.

The 1960 study, titled "Prospectivity," divides buyers into "declared prospects" and "undeclared prospects," each accounting for roughly half of car sales. Both groups spend more time with television than combined reading or magazines and newspapers (the only compared media), the study shows.

In tests before and after car introductions, tv impressions crescendo with both kinds of shopper. In the early phase, declared prospects voted 48% for tv, 26% for magazines and 20% for newspapers and the undeclared 52% tv, 25% magazines and 17% newspapers. Their answers five weeks after introduction: 59% of declared prospects said tv stands out most strongly, 26% magazines, 19% newspapers; undeclared prospects, 70% tv, 19% magazines, 11% newspapers.

As to the new compact cars, the survey showed these results when dealers selling compacts were asked what kind of advertising had been most effective in their sales—tv 64% of dealers, newspapers 41%, magazines 24%.

The Big Game ■ The dramatic receptivity of undeclared shoppers to television suggests the role of the auto manufacturer, Dr. Coffin pointed out, referring to the 1959 "Auto Motives" study that showed non-prospects account for 51% of all sales.

Besides comprehensive treatment of the small-car market, the primary part of the study executed for NBC by R.H. Bruskin Assoc., "Prospectivity" also measured effectiveness of introductory advertising last fall and dipped into color tv's effectiveness for automobiles, this part carried out by Trendex Inc.

Checking tv's effectiveness for specific NBC advertisers, "Prospectivity" reports more viewers than non-viewers of NBC auto-sponsored shows have shopped for the advertised make. In general, viewers think more of this make, are more aware of slogans, more interested in the sponsor's compact model, are more likely to come to the showroom and more plan to buy the sponsor's car, it was found.

Three-Show Investment ■ A multiple-show sponsor stacks the cards in his favor, NBC showed by a series of questions keyed to the three Ford shows, Wagon Train, The Ford Show and Ford Startime. Compared with those who saw none of these, 2½ times as many people who viewed all three rated Ford as "one of the best" cars and more than twice as many said they will "most likely buy" Ford. Other questions showed enhanced opinion of the sponsor, knowledge of slogans, likelihood of shopping, buying interest and purchase potential.

To test introductory advertising, "Prospectivity" uses 44 measures covering awareness, knowledge and attitudes toward five makes of car. After watching one auto-sponsored show, viewers gained 59% in knowledge of the car's features. Interest in the car went from 36.4% before the program to 60.2% after and viewers who said they liked the car jumped 63%.

Auto color programs had a larger share of audience and higher rating in color homes. Homes with color sets provide a select auto market, owning more cars, buying more new ones and having more recent models than their neighbors, the study showed.

Asked what kind of advertising gave the best idea of the new cars and presented them in the most natural and lifelike manner, color tv won over color magazine ads five-to-one. Color newspapers were not compared.

The Bruskin survey, conducted in February, is based on 13,047 interviews—662 with automobile dealers, 2,490 with shoppers in the showrooms, 5,876 with the general public and 4,019 additional general public interviews conducted by Trendex for the color phase. "Prospectivity" covered 122 counties in 40 states, including 18 domestic auto makes in addition to imports. Marvin W. Aiman, NBC manager of research projects, supervised the job.

COMPETITION IS BEST REGULATOR

Censorship and controls are unnecessary, AAW meet is told

Competitive forces act as a disciplinary power in advertising, with self-regulation obviating any need for advertising censorship or control, James A. Farley, board chairman of Coca-Cola Export Corp. told the Advertising Assn. of the West convention, held June 26-30 in Mexico City.

"There is no governmental body whose wisdom could be as great or whose discipline could be as harsh as that of the open competitive market," he said in challenging the place of government in advertising. "I know of no field that needs regulation less or has disciplined itself more," he added.

"The permanent manufacturer who represents 98% of the products we live by has long since learned that truth and honesty in advertising are the only policy that enable him permanently to live with his public."

Some 400 AAW members and guests were welcomed in Mexico City by Everado Camacho, president, Assn. Mexicana de Agencias de Publicidad, and AAW President Richard E. Ryan, general manager of KLOK San Jose, Calif.

Elections ■ Donald Ostensoe, AAW senior vice president, was elected president for 1960-61. He heads his own public relations firm in Portland, Ore. Other officers elected were: Gordon Rowntree, James Lovick & Co. Ltd., Vancouver, B.C., senior vice president; Florence Zimmer, First Federal Savings & Loan, Phoenix, vice president at large; Harry L. Bright, Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., San Francisco, secretary; Robert L. Hemmings, Smith & Hemmings, Los Angeles, treasurer.

Winners in AAWs all-western advertising crafts competition were announced by William P. Dumont, chairman of the awards committee (see tv-radio winners below). Among campaigns selected for display at the convention were station promotion campaigns for KRLA Los Angeles, produced by Eisaman, John & Laws, that city, and for KABC-TV Los Angeles, produced by Jack Brembeck, station promotion-publicity director.

Speaking on the responsibilities of media in helping to restore the public's trust in advertising, Felix S. Coste, president, Outdoor Advertising Inc., had this to say about television: "Television is a potent selling medium. Let's acknowledge that. Also the audience has a selection which by logic—if not in practice—should enable listeners to weed out undesirable programs just as the tv people say they can.

"But in tuning out one program,

BOUNDERS IN SACK SUITS

It's station rep day at the Annual Time Buyers Outing. By a series of eliminations, our man from H-R and another from Nameless Reps, Inc., have achieved the finals of the sack race (not to be confused with Bag Holding, which is another puzzle entirely). They are to race to a point one hundred feet distant, and return.

Clockers have 'em cased, from preliminary heats, as a 3x2 one-gaiter up against a 2x3 one-gaiter. (One covers three feet per bound and makes two bounds while the other, covering two feet per bound, makes three bounds. Neither can change his length of bound.) Both are adroit enough to negotiate the turn without loss of time.

The prize, twelve unbreakable appointments with twelve time buyers of twelve agencies of his choice, is won by the H-R man. Was he the 3x2er or the 2x3er?

You too can be a winner. Each correct solution wins a fresh copy of Dudeney's "Amusements in Mathematics," published by Dover Publications, Inc., N. Y. C.

MAY NETWORK GROSS UP 6.8%

Billings hit $55 million, NBC down 1.4%

Advertisers placed more than $283.2 million in network tv gross time billings for the first five months of the year. This represents 8.7% more billing than the $260.5 million grossed in the January-May period of 1959.

In May, ABC-TV climbed nearly 30% (29.5) in billing to reach the $12.8 million level, while NBC-TV showed a slump of 1.4%—dropping in May from $19.6 million in 1959 to $19.3 million in 1960. Together, the networks totaled more than $55.4 million in May, an increase of 6.8% over the same month last year.

CBS-TV showed an appreciable gain for May, compiling a gross time billing of $23.1 million, or a 4% gain, in the figures released today (July 4) by Television Bureau of Advertising.

STATION PROFITS RISE IN 1959

NAB survey shows curve is up for both television and radio Television stations in general enjoyed the highest profit in four years during 1959. Radio stations, too, showed a nationally improved profit margin last year.

An NAB analysis of typical tv and radio station income and expense for 1959 and the previous year shows tv profit rose from 11.4% in 1958 to 14.3% in 1959. Radio profit rose from 7.2% to 7.7%.

The figures were compiled by the NAB broadcast personnel-economics department, headed by James H. Hulbert. They show increased operating expenses in 1959 for both tv and radio stations.

In breaking down the sales dollar of the typical tv station, NAB found that 44% of income comes from national and regional business; 29% from local and 27% from networks. In the case of the typical radio station, 15% of the sales dollar came from national and regional business and 85% from local.

Network income was less than 1% at the typical radio station.

Total revenue at the typical tv station was over $865,300, or up 10% from 1958. Total expense was up 6% to approximately $742,000. Programming costs decreased to 36% of the expense dollar in 1959 compared to 38% in 1958. Technical cost ratio is unchanged and both sales, and general and administrative costs are up 1%.

Salaries Up, Too ■ The wage and salary bill for the typical tv station increased about 6% from its 1958 level but represented 44% of the expense dollar in both years. Film expense was nearly 12% of total tv station expense, the same ratio as in 1958. In 1960, broadcasters estimate an increase in total revenue of the typical station to $924,100, up 6.8%.

NAB's analysis showed revenue of the typical radio station up from $99,200 in 1958 to $104,000 in 1959, with stations estimating an increase of 3.2% to $107,300 in 1960. The four radio expense categories were divided in almost the same manner as in 1958.

Highest profit margin among tv stations was found in the case of outlets in markets of 1 million or more population having over $2 million income. Lowest margins were at stations in markets of less than 25,000 population and those with income under $300,000 where the typical station operated at a substantial loss.

At the typical radio station highest profit margin was noted in markets of 2.5 million or more population having over $750,000 income. Lowest margins were at stations in markets of 100,000-250,000 population and those with incomes under $50,000.

NAB's study of typical or median (middle) stations is based on returns from 1,092 radio and 265 tv stations. Following are the 1959 profit-expense picture of typical radio and tv stations:

Stick to rate cards, Va. radio group told

Radio can increase its share of national advertising above the present 6% if it solves the problem of over-commercialization and standardization of rates and discounts, Allan Sacks, account executive of J. Walter Thompson Co., New York, told Virginia Assn. of Broadcasters June 30 at its 23rd annual meeting held at Virginia Beach. In 1959, he said, radio realized about $248 million of the $6 billion spent for national accounts.

A decade ago, the sudden loss of business to tv created panic in radio, resulting in frantic grabs for business and over-commercialization of more attractive time periods, Mr. Sacks said. "Then came the special deals, neglecting established rate structures, in favor of making a fast buck," he said, adding that radio leaders are taking steps to correct it.

Mr. Sacks said fm "is beginning to reap the rewards of a more moderate schedule of commercials and many of the country's leading advertisers are dabbling a toe in these waters to take advantage of the commercial isolation they find there."

cations attorney, warned about troubles ahead growing out of closer scrutiny of station operation through the FCC's new Complaints & Compliance Division activities. He predicted grave consequences if pay television takes hold, asserting it could well become the opening wedge for public utility regulation and fixing of rates and profits of both radio and television stations at "about 6% of investment."

He suggested station ownership or management should exercise the right to be present when staff members are interviewed and no written statements should be provided investigators. "Above all," he urged, "don't lie down and play dead when an investigator calls. You have rights under the Constitution and otherwise."

Pat Rheume, manager, member service of Radio Advertising Bureau, New York, told the VAB that radio's big challenge is to capture more of the local business against entrenched newspaper competition. With population movement toward the suburbs, he said, current data shows that radio penetration is far more potent than newspaper circulation and radio represents an infinitely better retail buy-per-thousand, or on any other basis, than any other advertising medium.

CANON 35 DEFEAT Ohio board decides recordings not barred

The barriers set up by the American Bar Assn.'s Canon 35 do not prohibit the taping of courtroom proceedings for delayed broadcast.

This decision, which if universally applied could open doors long locked against broadcasters seeking to present actuality coverage of court cases, has been reached by the Board of Commissioners of Grievances and Discipline of the Supreme Court of Ohio.

The three-man board held unanimously that Canon 35's ban on "broadcasting from the courtroom" does not apply to the tape-recording of courtroom proceedings for subsequent broadcast outside the courtroom.

The decision was issued in a radio case. But if strictly interpreted, it might be extended equally to television tape.

Observers at first had one reservation: They thought the victory for broadcasting might be somewhat less than clear-cut because the board's decision was also influenced by the fact that the program involved did not record the testimony of witnesses. At

Milwaukee 'tourist attraction'

A modified version of the famed tv tower in Stuttgart, Germany (model shown in picture) has been proposed for Milwaukee. The plan has been formulated by Gene Posner, owner of the Milwaukee stations WMIL-AM-FM and WXIX-TV. He has asked the Milwaukee County Park Commission to construct a $2 million, 650-foot tower as a tourist attraction.

Mr. Posner proposed that the county itself erect the tower on public land. He claimed that the cost would be recovered to the county by leasing facilities to radio-tv stations and by charging admission to visitors to an upper-level "crow's nest" restaurant and observation platform. He stated that the Stuttgart operation has been so successful that a second tower has been erected in Dortmund, Germany.

Pointing to the success of the German towers, Mr. Posner claimed that such a tower in Milwaukee would attract tourists from all over the world. He further stated that the U.S. tower would surpass its predecessor in flexibility of operation and design.

The Milwaukee broadcaster said last week that his stations would lease facilities in the tower and that other area stations would be invited to do the same. He said that several stations, including WRIT and WEMP-FM, have expressed interest in the project.

The Milwaukee County Park Commission has taken the proposal under consideration. WXIX-TV, which first publicized the action, has hired an engineering firm to study initial plans and send its drawings to the commission. The station reported also that it has received over 200 favorable letters, commenting on the proposal. Mr. Posner also noted that to date he has received nine applications for permission to open and operate the "crow's nest" restaurant.

another point, however, the decision did specifically reject—without reference to the policy of not recording testimony—the argument that tape-relayed broadcasts violated Canon 35.

'Spirit' Not in Question ■ The Board also rejected the notion that delayed broadcasts violated the spirit if not the letter of Canon 35 and similar court rules. If the intention was to forbid taped delays, then the rules should say so specifically, the board maintained. It made clear, however, that its decision dealt with whether the canon and the rules do prohibit such broadcasts—not whether they should do so.

The program was Traffic Court, a weekly half-hour on Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.'s KYW Cleveland from April 5, 1957 to May 13, 1959. It was discontinued by the presiding judge after the question of Canon 35 was raised in the Cleveland Bar Assn.

For the broadcasts, KYW recorded up to three hours once a week in a Parma, Ohio traffic court presided over by Municipal Judge George P. Allen. The recording was then edited into a 30-minute program broadcast a night later. The only cases recorded were those in which guilty pleas had been entered; these did not require sworn testimony. Contested cases and those in which defendants objected to the microphones were not recorded. Broadcast matter consisted of the court's admonitions to defendants, imposition of penalties, etc.

The Cleveland bar's professional ethics committee called in Judge Allen in May 1958 to explain why he permitted the tapings and what the public reaction had been. The committee then reported to the bar's executive committee that it considered the procedure a violation of Canon 35 even though the programs were limited to uncontested cases. The question was referred to the bar's grievance committee.

When he learned of the report, Judge Allen went before the grievance committee, said he had been advised by his counsel that he was technically in violation of Canon 35 and reported that he would therefore discontinue the broadcasts immediately. A month later, in June 1959, the Cleveland bar filed a formal complaint with the Supreme Court board, charging Judge Allen with violating Canon 35. The board's decision thus overrules not only the bar association but the judge's own counsel.

WBC authorities said they could not predict immediately whether Traffic Court would be resumed as a result of the ruling.

As adopted in Ohio, Canon 35 holds that: "Proceedings in court should be conducted with fitting dignity and decorum. The taking of photographs in the courtroom during such proceedings

An exception

KXYZ Houston is not troubled by Canon 35 which bars broadcasters from courtrooms. With the permission of the judge, defense attorneys and district attorney, KXYZ has tapped into the courthouse public address system to broadcast the murder trial of Joseph Selby. News director Victor Emanuel announced plans to air the opening of the trial live, use actuality inserts in newscasts as the trial develops and return to the courtroom for live pick-ups only when occasions warrant. The MBS affiliate has been broadcasting various trials by this method for two years. No broadcasting equipment appears in the courtroom.

and the broadcasting or televising of such proceedings from the courtroom tend to detract from the essential dignity of the proceedings, distract the witness in giving his testimony and create misconceptions . . . in the mind of the public and should not be permitted."

TV'S INFLUENCE ON POLITICS

Westinghouse surveys political scientists

Television exerts an important influence on political campaigns, according to Westinghouse Electric Corp., sponsoring for the third consecutive time the CBS coverage of political conventions, pre-election activities and election night returns.

Based on a survey conducted for Westinghouse by the research department of Ketchum, MacLeod & Grove, the sponsor found that 28 political scientists representing 28 colleges and universities in 23 states had divergent views on tv's political impact. Among majority conclusions are these:

- Use of showmanship in presenting candidates on tv is not undesirable from the voter's standpoint if direction is limited to performance and does not influence policy or ideas.

- Television has increased voter interest.

- Voters are now more critical of candidates' appearance and performance.

- There is a greater effort to create a good impression, and more concentration on nationally televised speeches in place of "whistle-stop" campaigning.

- Public exposure on tv increases the impact of the conventions, but there is no assurance that they are now regarded as more important than in the pre-tv era.

- Political science students are considerably better informed, though not always in "depth." They get to know personalities and procedures better.

- Educators are evenly divided on whether tv exposure increases student respect for democratic processes, with a slight leaning on the side of decreasing respect.

- Tv coverage makes political science teaching harder in some respects and easier in others.

- Much can be done to improve convention and campaign coverage.

FM AUDIENCE SURVEYED

Heritage study shows high buying power

A depth analysis of the listening and buying habits of fm homes, conducted for International Good Music Inc. (Heritage Fm Stations), shows above-normal purchasing and an average tune-in of 50%. The study was done by Alfred Politz Media Studies.

Highlights of the survey were made available by a new subsidiary of International, Heritage Stations Representatives, formed to represent affiliated fm stations in 25 major markets that will carry the Heritage automated program service (BROADCASTING, April 11).

Operations of the Heritage group will get under way on a nationwide basis this month. KGMI (FM) Bellingham, Wash., the test station, took the air in March, according to David Mintz, executive vice president of International. KGMJ (FM) Seattle started Heritage programming May 25.

Other stations scheduled to start Heritage service are: KFMU (FM) Los Angeles, today (July 4); KFMW (FM) San Bernardino and KBAY-FM San Francisco, July 11; WLOL-FM Minneapolis-St. Paul and KGMG (FM) Portland, Ore., July 25; WWOL-FM Buffalo, and WIBC-FM Indianapolis, Aug. 1; WSAI-FM Cincinnati and KFMX (FM) San Diego, Aug. 15. Definitely slated later in the summer are stations in St. Louis, Chicago, Baltimore, Boston, Miami, Atlanta and Memphis. Mr. Mintz said, but call letters will not be announced at this time. Negotiations are underway to sign other fm stations in the top 25 markets, he added.

Sales Plan ■ HSR will sell time on all or part of the group to national and regional advertisers, based on a single rate card, single contract, one billing and similar programming. A West Coast office has been opened at 625 Market St., San Francisco, in charge of Hamilton Brosius. Fred Bernstein directs the New York office at 28 W. 44th St. Rod McArdle is in charge at the Chicago office, in Tribune Tower.

The Politz survey covers five West Coast markets—Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, Portland, Ore. and Seattle. The West Coast figures have been adapted to a presentation typifying national buying habits of fm homes.

The survey shows that 31.1% of all California homes have fm sets, a considerably lower figure than some other studies have found. Heritage contends the figure is accurate and without inflation. Fm circulation of 25.4% was found in Portland and Seattle. Tv saturation in the five-market area was placed at 90%.

It was found that 27.2% of all homes in the study area have incomes above $7,000 a year whereas 38.3% of fm homes are in that income category.

Audience Differences ■ Listening

habits of the fm audience were found to differ sharply from am tune-in, varying only slightly from fm sign-on to sign-off. On the other hand, the am audience was described as highest in the morning with a 9 a.m. peak, a noon peak and then a gradual decline to a low listening level at night. Fm, it was stated, has a high tune-in at night.

Other information in the study covers educational standards of the fm audience; home tenure; child status; size of household; home listening of individuals by sex, age, position in household; marketing characteristics such as purchase of autos, appliances, insurance, securities, charge accounts, food product usage, cosmetics, travel, home improvement, beverage and tobacco.

Heritage has been making presentations to agency groups in New York. An extensive promotion campaign is planned through Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan, San Francisco. It will include page ads in consumer magazines, radio and tv spots and local newspapers.

Programming is on tape fed into Ampex automation equipment. "No loud, jarring commercials or singing jingles are allowed, and spots average four one-minute announcements per hour," it was stated. "The efficiency of operation allows each station to profitably add to their local staff top news and announcing personnel and will permit these people to work fulltime toward unexcelled local programming, free from the worry of turntables and selecting records."

NBC status with RAB is questionable now

NBC appeared last week to be half in and half out of RAB. Its owned radio stations have been out since the first of the year. Since RAB membership requirements do not normally permit a network to belong without its o&o's (and vice versa), there was speculation last week that either they would re-join or NBC Radio's membership would be terminated.

Neither RAB nor NBC would discuss the issues or the amount of dues involved. Unofficially, it was understood that NBC authorities were questioning the importance—to them, at any rate—of some of the services that RAB offers. The differences may also have an economic flavor: Privately the NBC stations' dues were estimated to be in the order of $25,000 a year. RAB obviously still hoped to persuade the stations to reconsider—just as it was able to do when CBS Radio officials expressed doubts about their own stations' membership earlier this year.

RAB asks 10 questions of station operators

Ten questions by which radio station operators can gauge their effectiveness with the public, advertisers and government were outlined last week by Kevin Sweeney, Radio Advertising Bureau president, before a dinner meeting of Wisconsin stations in Baraboo, Wis.

The ten questions are: "Did you have luncheon with customers or prospects twice or more often during the past week? Have you spent an hour or more with the largest local advertiser in other media in the past six months, showing him why he must spend at least one-third of his budget in radio? Would the governor of your state be able to identify you as to your occupation if he saw your name on a long list of persons invited to a reception? Have you written either your representatives in the House or either of your senators in the U.S. Senate to tell radio's side of the payola story? Do you have a clearly enunciated and understood policy on the music you play?

"Do you have one programming experiment in progress? Do you have at least one person who works exclusively on news? Have you editorialized on any local, controversial issue in the past year? Have you ever taken issue with General Electric, Zenith, RCA, Emerson on their distributors when a co-op policy blocks the purchase of radio by dealers in your area? Do you insist on some standards of performance from your salesmen in regard to the number of daily calls, number of new-business calls, amount of business sold and coverage of the prospect list?"

Mr. Sweeney asserted that an answer of "yes" to less than five of those questions "means your station is not geared to compete for audience, business or the regard of the community in the next decade."

Out-of-home radios to reach record high

Out-of-home radio listening reached a new winter peak this year and promises to go on to a new all-time summer high, Dr. Sydney Roslow, director of Pulse, said last week. He based his report and prediction on a study of trends found in out-of-home surveys conducted by Pulse in 29 major markets. He thought the growth of the pocket-size transistor radio would be instrumental in carrying summertime out-of-home listening, always the peak of the year, to record heights.

The 29-city winter study was conducted between January and March and found that an average of 4.6% of all radio families—compared to 4.5% a year ago and 4.2% in 1958—reported listening to radio in cars, at work, or in other out-of-home places between 6 a.m. and midnight. Dr. Roslow estimated that on a national basis this represented an average of 2,287,900 families engaged in out-of-home listening during any given quarter-hour of the day.

In the 29 measured cities, out-of-home listening added an average of 28.7% to the in-home audience—two percentage points more than during the same period a year ago. But not all of the 29 markets showed out-of-home gains; 15 dropped from last winter's totals, mostly by small margins. These losses were more than offset by gains in 11 while the figures in the three others were unchanged. Markets where out-of-home listening was highest in relation to the in-home audience were Kansas City (37% added to in-home audience), New York (32.9%), Dallas (32.3%), Fort Worth (32.2%), Los Angeles (30.1%), Birmingham (32%) and Chicago (30%).

CBS makes etv grant

CBS Inc. last week presented $75,000 in equipment and funds to help non-profit educational tv station KETC (TV) St. Louis to stay on the air. The gift was presented by Dr. Frank Stanton, CBS' president, who addressed the St. Louis Educational Television Commission.

The gift included an antenna, a microwave relay system and a cash grant on behalf of KMOX-TV St. Louis (CBS-owned). Ray Wittcoff, the commission chairman, said the educational station would have been blacked out were it not for the CBS help. A gathering of 175 educational, business and community leaders attended Dr. Stanton's address.

Newsman's reprieve

A technicality, that he had been served with the citation less than the statutory 10 days before his appearances in court, caused the dismissal of a contempt citation against Pat Michaels, KTLA (TV) Los Angeles newsman by Judge Russell S. Waite of Riverside, Calif., Superior Court. The citation had been issued when Mr. Michaels refused to answer questions of a grand jury regarding the source of his information about anti-Semitism in Elsinore, Calif., used in a tv expose, City of Hate. In its citation, the grand jury held that the section of the California Code of Civil Procedure giving newspaper reporters "privilege" not to reveal news sources does not extend to broadcast newsmen. District Attorney William O. Mackey was expected to file a new citation shortly.

Every 3½ days (or 84 hours) since its introduction, broadcasters have bought a brand new, newest Gates BC-1T 1000 watt AM transmitter. What does this mean? It means that more BC-1T's have been sold to broadcasters than all other 1 KW models combined. It means that the Gates BC-1T is the largest selling 1000 watt broadcast transmitter manufactured in the world today. Here are 10 reasons why:

- Lower low frequency response than any kilowatt made today—for the new sound.
- Crisp sparkling new sound highs through extended high frequency response.
- Lower than low noise via the largest filter system of any 1 KW made today.
- Inbuilt dummy antenna, full size for 100% modulation with fail safe included.
- 50 cycle transformers throughout. 60 cycle American users have a 20% bonus safety factor as 50 cycle transformers must be built that much larger.
- No back door, all servicing from the front, including dead front, too. Save valuable floor space by installing near or against the wall.
- All relay control and protection, no circuit breakers. Easiest transmitter manufactured to remote control.
- Dual suction cooling with filtered air intake at bottom front.
- RF driver is modulated along with final amplifier for lower distortion at high modulation.
- Big Gates-made edgewound variable inductors in final tank and Pi-Net . . . no variable air condensers to flash over.

NBC-RKO DEAL IN COURT AGAIN

■ KRON-TV files antitrust charges, asks full hearing before FCC

■ Move follows failure of Westinghouse attempt to intervene

The largest station deal in history—involving NBC and RKO General exchanges and acquisitions in four major markets—is becoming the most disputed.

Several major developments took place last week as KRON-TV San Francisco, which stands to lose its NBC-TV affiliation, initiated these moves:

- Filed a civil antitrust suit against NBC, RKO General and individuals involved in ownership and operation of the competitive KTVU (TV) Oakland, which NBC wants to buy.

- Asked FCC to set KTVU's license application for hearing. (KTVU has been operating on a construction permit since it took the air in March 1958.)

- Asked FCC to consolidate in one hearing all the applications involved in the NBC-RKO deal, involving outlets in Philadelphia, Washington, Boston and San Francisco.

Court Action ■ A further development last week was a decision by the U.S. District Court, Philadelphia, denying a Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. petition to intervene in the NBC-RKO swap of Philadelphia and Boston outlets. This removed one of the obstacles to the exchange.

Applications for the individual station transfers had been filed with the FCC June 3 (BROADCASTING, June 6).

The NBC-RKO deal involves: NBC acquisition of WNAC-AM-TV and WRKO-FM Boston in exchange for WRCV-AM-FM-TV Philadelphia; NBC purchase of KTVU; RKO purchase from NBC of WRC-AM-FM-TV Washington. In addition RKO would sell its WGMS-AM-FM Washington to Crowell-Collier Publishing Co.

Judge William H. Kirkpatrick, in denying the Westinghouse request to intervene, denied a plea based on what Westinghouse termed irreparable injury through loss of its Boston NBC affiliation if the network takes over the present RKO outlets in Boston. Reduced ability to compete in the sale of advertising and elimination of competition in the market had been claimed.

The chain deal had developed last autumn after NBC and its parent RCA had signed a Dept. of Justice consent decree requiring the network to sell its Philadelphia properties and to clear any additional station purchases through the department. This decree had grown out of a government antitrust suit brought in 1956 after Westinghouse exchanged its Philadelphia outlets for NBC's Cleveland stations. Westinghouse got $3 million out of the exchange.

Justice Dept. has stated it had no objection to NBC's latest moves, the 1959 consent decree requiring NBC clearance of such transfers. On the other hand Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), calling the consent decree "worthless," has threatened to reopen

NBC seeks to delay rep divestment order

NBC has asked the FCC to allow two years after judicial review for its affiliated television stations to find new spot sales representatives. Under an FCC ruling, NBC has until Dec. 31, 1961 to divest itself of affiliate representation.

The network, which is appealing the commission ruling prohibiting tv networks from representing affiliated stations other than network-owned outlets, told the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington that it is "entitled" to have the status quo maintained during judicial review. This cannot be accomplished, NBC said, unless the two-year period "commences after final judicial determination." Otherwise, "it is inevitable that the represented stations will begin taking active steps aimed at severing their relationship with NBC." This would "undoubtedly begin to occur prior to final judicial determination," NBC declared.

The network asserted that once a station changed representatives, "it is problematical" whether it would be willing to return to NBC in the event of a court reversal because of the expense and trouble involved.

The network said that "some" of its affiliates also were filing similar requests for time extension and that they would "summarize the various business problems which would confront them" if they were forced to engage in finding new representatives during the period of judicial review. KOA-TV Denver, KSD-TV St. Louis, WAVE-TV Louisville and WRGB (TV) Schenectady, all NBC affiliates, have joined with the network in its appeal to the court.

his antitrust subcommittee's hearings on network monopoly.

Barrier Removed ■ Judge Kirkpatrick's ruling thus removes one block to the series of station transfers. KRON-TV had entered the Philadelphia case but later withdrew.

KRON-TV (Chronicle Publishing Co.) charged in its antitrust suit, filed June 29 in U.S. District Court, San Francisco, that RCA and NBC have conspired since 1954 to dispose of Cleveland and Washington outlets so they could get stations in two larger markets (fourth to eighth in size—Philadelphia, Detroit, Boston, San Francisco and Pittsburgh). They have used NBC's "power to grant or withhold network affiliation," KRON-TV charged.

In addition KRON-TV charged RCA-NBC tried to eliminate competition from other station buyers in major markets and to induce KTVU to withdraw from the broadcasting business. If NBC acquires KTVU, it is claimed, competition for NBC-TV San Francisco affiliation will be permanently eliminated. This, it was contended, will cut network program sources available to KRON-TV and the Westinghouse-owned KPIX (TV) by 50%. And CBS is likely to buy a station in the market, it was added, should the NBC package deal go through, and the Bay Area station that doesn't sell to CBS will be permanently denied a chance to affiliate with a tv network.

Impact on Spot ■ KRON-TV said the opportunities to sell spot programs would be substantially reduced by the NBC-KTVU deal. It charged NBC's spot rate at some of its o&o stations is higher than the station rate for network programs and in some cases NBC stations won't even quote a spot rate because time is reserved for network programs. The o&os are used by the network as "price leaders" in alleged efforts to force independent station affiliates to boost their own spot rates above the network scale, the petition claimed. Finally KRON asks that the tv station licenses of NBC, RKO and KTVU be revoked for violation of Sec. 313 of the Communications Act.

The charge is made by KRON-TV that RKO, a General Tire & Rubber Co. subsidiary, is "in command" at KTVU. In its filings, KRON-TV says "substantial questions of trafficking and

SENATE SUSPENDS SEC. 315 Now it's up to the House to follow suit

The Senate last week gave its approval to a plan to allow broadcasters to present major party presidential and vice presidential nominees during this election year without being subject to committees and broadcasters. Speaking of Sen. Yarborough's proposal for a debate format, he said there might be "a thousand" reasons why a candidate would not wish to appear in a debate with his opponent. In the 1952 campaign, he said, one candidate offered to debate, but his opponent refused. Other senators agreeing with Sen. Yarborough's three-man watchdog subcommittee has been assigned the function of watching for broadcast abuses of Sec. 315 as regards exemptions of the section enacted last year for candidates' appearances on news and panel shows and also under the Sec. 315 suspension for presidential and vice presidential nominees, if enacted. The subcommittee's report also is to be made early next year.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has released a statement supporting S. J. Res. 207. The American Civil Liberties Union has gone on record as favoring legislation which would "affirmatively require" broadcasters to make time available for political campaigning to all legally-qualified candidates for every office. ACLU also supports legislation to place the networks under FCC regulation.

Mr. Sarnoff's offer of free time was immediately after the senate suspension. He said that NBC was ready to offer an hour series entitled The Great Debate, if the bill cleared congress. Shows devoted to discussion between candidates on issues. The second half of the series would feature candidates being interviewed a la Meet the Press. Mr. Sarnoff said that his network will remain open to suggestions by the candidates themselves.

Mr. Trez presented ABC's proposal that each network voluntarily give up three different periods of prime time payoffs" are raised in the KTVU application and cp. Roles of Ward Ingram and William D. Pabst, former RKO General (General TeleRadio) employees and directors, are cited. And system, was described as "very close" to RKO ownership. Activities of Ed. Stoddard P. Johnston (Channel Two Inc.), competing applicants for the Bay Area facility, were reviewed. They obtained stock interest in KTVU. These individuals and Harry R. Lubcke are named in the case as defendants. KTVU has "no salvage assets," KRON-TV told the FCC, saying that equipment and office furniture are leased from Mr. Brown, and its transmitter the city of Oakland and its site and building from Crocker Estate Co. Thus, it is contended, KTVU would be trafficking by selling its only asset. a cp. for $8 million.

Qualifications of RCA and NBC as licensees are questioned in the petition through a listing of 18 anti-trust cases involving RCA plus the Federal Trade Commission consent decree involving alleged payola activities of RCA's recording subsidiary.

Pressure Charged ■ KRON-TV recalled NBC's overtures to purchase its facilities and charged NBC used "economic bludgeoning" in its negotiations. An offer of $8 million was made by NBC, to expire in 10 days, it was explained. Effects of the KTVU purchase on competition in San Francisco are projected in the FCC filings.

RKO's ownership in CKLW-TV Windsor-Detroit, is reviewed by KRON-TV in a discussion of RKO's multiple ownership of stations. RKO also is described as seeking "almost complete coverage of the heavily populated area extending from New York to Washington," thus becoming "the dominant broadcaster in the Middle Atlantic States area."

Aggregate value of the facilities involved in the NBC-RKO package deal is placed by KRON-TV at more than $60 million. It's all so complicated, says KRON-TV, that an evidentiary hearing should be held by the Commission. NBC is trying to swap stations in Cleveland (10th market) and Washington (11th market) for Boston (sixth market), it is charged.

KRON-TV added, "NBC is receiving at least $500,000 more for the stations it is selling than it is paying out for the stations it is buying. . . . It could only be accomplished—and it was accomplished—by using NBC's power as a network to grant or withhold network affiliation as the hidden persuader in each purchase and sale negotiation."

nine weeks before the election. Each hour, he said, would be rotated on the different networks for the use of presidential or vice presidential candidates. He said that after approval by the Justice Dept., he would seek the "necessary acquiescence" by the FCC and ask for a meeting with other network officials and political leaders to work out a commonly acceptable schedule.

The ABC president warned that candidates would end up debating a total of 24 hours during the nine-week period if each of the networks allocated eight hours. He suggested that such lengthy exposure of candidates on tv would contribute to sagging interest on the part of both the viewing public and the candidates themselves.

Film firms absolved in anti-trust case

U.S. District Judge William Herlands June 29 dismissed an anti-trust complaint brought by the government against Columbia Pictures Corp., Universal Pictures Co. and Screen Gems Inc. The trial was heard in New York last spring (BROADCASTING, March 28 et seq).

Judge Herlands ruled that the acquisition in 1958 by Columbia Pictures of 657 pre-1948 features from Universal for distribution by SG to tv did not constitute price-fixing nor did it tend to lessen competition in the tv field. Judge Herlands' decision gave Columbia the right to distribute the Universal features freely. Since April 1958, when the government action was initiated, Columbia was restricted by court order to offer for sale no more than 50 pictures during a given year.

Columbia spokesmen viewed as significant a portion of Judge Herlands' decision which asserted that "feature films are not a separate line of commerce and there is nothing unique about feature films as tv programming." The government had contended that features were different from other types of tv programming and were sold and scheduled on the air in a different manner.

Blackout bill vote

The Senate last week voted 73-12 to send back to the Senate Judiciary Committee a bill which would allow minor baseball clubs to impose blackouts in their cities of telecasts of major league games on days when the minor league team is playing at home. The bill proposes the same provisions for professional basketball, hockey, football and collegiate football.

The bill provides as an alternative that the sports team being telecast could agree to split its tv receipts with the home team.

LAW SCHOOL DEAN SET FOR FCC

But appointment of Charles King is tangled in recess legalities

A Detroit law school dean, Charles Henry King, is poised in the wings ready to become the seventh member of the Federal Communications Commission.

However, just when Mr. King will assume his new post was very much up in the air late last week with the announcement that Congress would recess for the presidential nominating conventions and then reconvene in Washington. This action can delay the beginning of Dean King's official duties for several weeks.

President Eisenhower sent the name of the dean of the Detroit College of Law to the Senate last Monday (June 27) to fill the one-year (until June 30, 1961) remaining in the term of former FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer. "There is not a chance in the world" that the Senate Commerce Committee, which must act on the nomination before the full Senate, will take up the King nomination this session, a committee spokesman said last week.

He was of the opinion that the committee was not expected to approve the nomination during this Congress. Mr. King's name, under law, had to be placed before the Senate prior to adjournment before he could get paid as a commissioner under a recess appointment.

Recess Appointment ■ A White House spokesman said last week that the President planned to give Mr. King a recess appointment soon after the 86th Congress adjourned sine die. At the time, it was expected that this adjournment would come no later than this Saturday (July 9).

Now, however, Congress plans to return to Washington to continue the present session Aug. 15. This means, the White House said last week, that unless the Senate confirms Mr. King during the August session he will not receive a recess appointment until after final adjournment—probably sometime in September.

There was considerable speculation in Washington last week whether the President has the power to put Mr. King on the FCC while the Senate is recessed for the conventions. A half-dozen legal opinions were received from as many "experts." In any case, the White House spokesman said, such an appointment is not contemplated—which means the commission will operate with six members at least until September.

Under Senate rules, since the current recess is for more than 30 days, the nomination of Mr. King will be returned to the White House and must be resubmitted in August. Although a recess appointment was planned eventually, the name was sent to the Senate before adjournment to assure that Mr. King could draw the $20,000 annual salary of a commissioner. Title 5, Section 56 of the U.S. Code provides that no money shall be paid to a recess appointee until confirmed by the Senate if the vacancy for which he was appointed existed 30 or more days prior to sine die adjournment. An exception, covering the present situation, provides for the appointee to be paid during adjournment if his name was pending before the Senate at the time of adjournment.

The present vacancy was created in the middle of March when former FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer resigned. The President first appointed Edward K. Mills Jr. to succeed Mr. Doerfer, but Mr. Mills' name was withdrawn after a conflict of interest was disclosed by the nominee himself (BROADCASTING, May 23).

Dean King's name first entered the speculation as to who would be appointed to the commission some three weeks ago (CLOSED CIRCUIT, June 13). After being tapped by the President last week, Mr. King said that he had no idea who proposed his name for the FCC. He said that he has known David Kendall, White House aide who handles such appointments, for over 15 years and that Mr. Kendall is the only person from the White House staff to contact him. Mr. Kendall also is a native of Michigan.

Administrator Extraordinary ■ In 1944, the fortunes of the Detroit College of Law almost had reached the point of no return and the school was about to have to close its doors. In a move to keep the classrooms from being locked permanently, the board turned to one of the school's young graduates and faculty member to place the college back in the good graces of lawyers and prospective students.

That the selection of Mr. King as dean and chief executive officer was a wise choice is self-evident through the tremendous advances made by the college under his administration. During his tenure, the college has been fully accredited by the American Bar Assn. and the Assn. of American Law Schools. The student body has grown from 68 to 550 and there are now 24 faculty members compared to five in 1944.

Charles Henry King was born in Gulfport, Miss., Aug. 8, 1906. Young Mr. King did not have much trouble choosing his life profession as his father, grandfather and great grandfather all were lawyers. After completing elementary school in Bradford, Pa., and high school in Detroit, he entered the law school which he now heads.

While an undergraduate he wrote a book, An Outing of Evidence, which sold enough copies to pay his final year's tuition. "I still see a copy of it lying around every once in awhile," Mr. King said last week. He received his LL.B. degree from the Detroit College of Law in 1933 and immediately went into private practice in that city. "In those days you took whatever you could get," Mr. King mused when asked if he specialized in his practice.

Two years after graduation, the newly-appointed commissioner joined the College of Law faculty on a part-time basis and in 1937 returned to his alma mater as a fulltime professor. In 1939, he began commuting to Ann Arbor for graduate work at the U. of Michigan and received his masters degree in law in 1940.

He has been with the law college ever since, the last 16 years as the school's administrative head. Dean King also has practiced law on the side, mostly appellate cases before the Michigan

Supreme Court. In addition, he has gained state renown as the author of several legal articles published in law periodicals. In 1946, he received wide recognition for an article on Michigan law during the war years, designed to bring returning servicemen-lawyers up to date on state legal developments.

GOP Activities ■ Mr. King has been an active Republican in state circles and in 1952 headed the Michigan Robert A. Taft for President Club. That same year, he also was an unsuccessful candidate for the state supreme court. "I was highly unsuccessful," he remembers. He has never been a candidate for nor held any other elective or appointive political office.

A neophyte to the broadcasting industry, Mr. King freely admits that his only experience with radio and tv has been an occasion stint in front of the camera or microphone on panel or news shows. He also disclaimed any particular knowledge of the unique problems of the FCC and the industry it regulates. The commission's annual summer hiatus was well received by the new commissioner as a chance to give him time to "bone up" on commission activities.

"The August recess certainly will give me a long period during which I can acclimate myself, get my feet on the ground and learn what the FCC is all about," Mr. King said. "I'm sure the problems before the commission are going to be new to me and will require a great deal of homework on my part to act intelligently."

Mr. King, who is taking a leave from the college to serve on the FCC, tentatively plans to come to Washington about July 15 although the date he will be eligible to be sworn in is still indefinite. When asked if he would be susceptible to a full seven-year appointment to the FCC if the Republicans win in November, Mr. King said only "That's a bridge I am going to have to cross when I come to it." His present plans, he pointed out, are to return to Detroit College of Law when the Doerfer-Mills-King term expires a year from now.

Dominoes, Golf Are Hobbies ■ "Is there anybody in Washington who plays dominoes?" Mr. King asked while being interviewed about his new job. He confessed that a friendly game just about every day with his lunch will be one of the things he will miss the most upon leaving Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. King (the former Quida Jolls of Detroit, whom he married in 1933) enjoy a round of golf together as often as possible. He shoots in the high 80's, about 10 strokes better than Mrs. King's usual score, and is on the board of directors of the Colony Gowan Golf Club.

HARTKE SEEKS STUDY OF FCC

Charges 'chaos' in spectrum allocations

There is "chaos" in many parts of the telecommunications field and "serious overlapping" by government agencies, Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) said in introducing last week a resolution (S J Res 211) calling for a five-man Commission on Organization of the FCC & Telecommunications Management to study:

- The organization and method of operation of the FCC and the laws applicable to that agency;

- The allocation, management and control of the radio spectrum under the Communications Act to determine how the frequencies may be used to the maximum degree;

- The role of the federal government in management of U. S. telecommunications resources;

- The organizational setup for carrying out government responsibility, particularly the "division of responsibility" under the Communications Act to determine whether changes should be made in existing organizations and/or the law to improve management of such resources.

- Present FCC methods and procedures used in carrying out its broadcast and non-broadcast functions to determine if any changes should be made to insure "efficient and orderly administration."

Two members of the five-man group would be appointed by the President, one by the FCC, one by the president of the Senate and one by the speaker of the House, and would make a report and recommendations to the President within six months on any changes it feels are needed in the FCC or other government agencies. An identical report, leaving out classified data, would be made to Congress.

Sen. Hartke, a member of the Senate Communications Subcommittee, said the FCC is "hampered by split decisions and by lack of power to function in some fields of communications, sharing authority with a variety of agencies."

Radio transmissions to and from outer space are overcrowding an already-overcrowded field, he said, adding that "no single individual or group of individuals knows what parts of the broadcast band are being used and on whose authority." He said he planned to offer "some kind of legislation" next year to try to "straighten out" communications problems, but that, meanwhile, a study is "essential."

Sen. Hartke said the radio communications field has "grown like Topsy," with overlapping of agencies and of civilian and military control. Legislation of "some kind" must come soon, he said, "perhaps centralizing authority and clarifying development."

Sen. Hartke's resolution differs from resolutions introduced last year by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) and Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman respectively of the Senate and House commerce committees, in that the two resolutions last year (S J Res 76 and H J Res 331) did not call for study of the FCC organization and functions. S J Res 76 and R J Res 331 envisioned possible reallocation as between government and non-government uses. Sen. Hartke's proposal is in more general terms. Magnuson and Harris proposals provided for appointment of a five-man commission by the President, who would appoint only two members under Sen. Hartke's plan. The Hartke resolution also differed substantially from a resolution (H J Res 292) introduced last year by Rep. William Bray (R-Ind.). No action was taken on any of the proposals of last year.

FCC says ch. 10 STA is in public interest

The reversal by the U.S. Court of Appeals last February of an FCC special temporary authorization to WABF-TV Baton Rouge was a special case involving special circumstances. It has not affected commission policy concerning temporary grants in comparative cases.

The FCC made this point last week when it filed opposition in U.S. District Court to a stay against an STA in the Vail Mills ch. 10 case. Requested by co-applicant, Veterans Broadcasting Co., the stay to a temporary grant made in 1957 to Capital Cities Broadcasting Co. for operation on WTEN (TV) charged that continued operation of the station would deprive Veterans of a fair and impartial hearing.

The commission told the court that the operation of WTEN on a temporary basis is in the public interest, providing needed service to the Vail Mills area. There is no similarity between Vail Mills and the Baton Rouge case, the FCC affirmed. Baton Rouge, the court was told, involved a different set of legal and factual situations which are not present in this proceeding. The commission again reiterated that "no effect whatsoever will be given to any expenditure of funds by WTEN pursuant to temporary authorization. . . ." The commission said that the grant was made on a temporary basis with the understanding "that such operations must cease as soon as any permanent grantee is ready to go on the air."

Oral argument before the court has been set for July 7.

In a tentative vote taken May 27 after FCC oral argument, the commission favored Capital Cities in staff instructions.

An August 1959 initial decision by Hearing Examiner J.D. Bond to Capital Cities took note of the fact that five congressmen are minority stockholders in the company and made it "manifestly superior" in the area of civic participation. This decision was denounced as "political payola" by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) on the Senate floor (BROADCASTING, June 27).

WHO OWNS KRLA? FCC to seek answer in renewal hearing

Because of past programming, contests and promotions and a question in the FCC's mind as to who actually owns the station, KRLA Pasadena, Calif., is going to have to face an FCC hearing on its application for license renewal.

In announcing the hearing last week, the commission set the following issues, among others, to be resolved: whether program proposals made by the present licensee, Eleven Ten Broadcasting Corp., when it purchased the station were given in good faith; a September 1959 "find Perry Allen" contest and the manner it was conducted; whether program logs were altered to show religious programs that were not actually broadcast, and whether the actual owner is Donald Cooke, as listed in FCC records, or his brother Jack Cooke, a Canadian citizen.

Donald R. Cooke, a station representative, purchased KRLA (then KXLA) last March for $900,000 from Loyal King (BROADCASTING, March 30, 1959). When he took over operation of the station the following September, KRLA programmed for three days only a continual stream of announcements heralding the change. Regular programming began with "KRLA's Top 50 tunes", Rocket News, chiefly one sentence bulletins delivered in high-pitched staccato and separated by wailing whistles and time signals (AT DEADLINE, Sept. 7).

The station also held a "find Perry Allen" contest to focus the spotlight on a new disc jockey. On the Allen contest, the commission stated in a Sec. 309 (b) letter late last year that KRLA has admitted Mr. Allen actually was working for WKBW Buffalo, N.Y., on Sept. 4, 1959, the same day, the commission charged when KRLA stated over the air that he could be found in a Los Angeles restaurant (BROADCASTING, Dec. 21, 1959).

(Mr. Allen was "found" in Buffalo by representatives of KFWB Los Angeles. KRLA at first refused to pay the prize money to KFWB, later gave Robert Purcell, president of KFWB, a check for $10,000.)

The FCC announcement also questioned whether the new KRLA owner ever intended to fulfill the programming promises made at the time the transfer application was filed with the commission. A final issue will be whether Jack Cooke, an alien, actually owns and controls the station in violation of FCC rules. Date for the hearing has not been set.

FCC switches course on field strengths

Signals were changed by the FCC for the third time last week in its proposed rulemaking to adopt new field strength tropospheric curve charts for vhf channels as part of an over-all plan to reduce mileage separations (BROADCASTING, June 13, May 9). Covered in last week's change were the upper-band (chs. 7-13) vhf channels only. This action supersedes an earlier change in all 12 vhf channels, announced early in May, for the upper band only with curves for chs. 2-6 remaining the same in the lower band.

PAYOLA STEAMROLLER DETOURED

Senate to hold hearing on controversial sections of House bill

The Senate last Wednesday slammed the brakes on a snowballing, catch-all payola bill (S 1898) that had passed the House with ease the day before. Chairman John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) of the Senate Communications Subcommittee said his group will begin hearings in early or mid-August on provisions in the measure which would authorize the FCC to suspend broadcast licenses for up to 10 days and impose fines of up to $1,000 a day for misbehavior.

During House debate on the bill, members had batted down several floor amendments—submitted by congressmen sympathetic to broadcasters—which would have softened or modified the controversial suspensions and forfeitures. Before their overwhelming approval of the bill by a standing vote (208 to 15), they also voted down two attempts led by Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Mich.), ranking Republican on the House Commerce Committee and its oversight subcommittee, to write amendments into the bill for FCC regulation of the networks.

The Senate's recognition of the controversy over the suspension and forfeiture provisions and Sen. Pastore's decision to hold hearings does not mean the bill is dead. The August hearings are scheduled so as to give the committee time to hear testimony on the controversial sections and make recommendations to the full Senate on what action it feels should be taken.

House Debate ■ The almost solid House approval of the bill came after debate spread over four days, which began with a 70-minute denunciation by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman of the House Commerce Committee and the Legislative Oversight and Communications & Power subcommittees, against Life magazine and the Knight Newspapers for carrying stories which charged that Rep. Harris and other congressmen had been living high on government expense accounts (BROADCASTING, June 27). The series of stories has brought drastic revision of expense account practices by House members.

In his speech which brought cheers and handshakes from both Democratic and Republican members, Rep. Harris hinted that Time Inc. and Knight, both broadcast licensees, were among the chief foes of his payola reform bill and that the stories were published in retaliation for the oversight subcommittee's exposures of irregularities or irresponsibility involving the two publishers as broadcast licensees.

Before passing the bill, the House rejected these proposed floor amendments:

- That the $1,000-per-day forfeiture not be invoked unless a violation continues for five days after written notice has been served. By Rep. Charles R. Jonas (R-N.C.). 49 for, 90 against.

- That the licensee be allowed to go through a show-cause proceeding before a forfeiture is ordered instead of going directly to court after the order. By Rep. Jonas. 76 for, 105 against.

- That the forfeiture be reduced to a $200 maximum. By Rep. Jonas. Rejected by voice vote.

- That the forfeiture provision be deleted where a licensee has defied a cease and desist order. By Rep. George Meader (R-Mich.). 64 for, 91 against.

Ouch

At least four state broadcaster associations last week took positions against the license suspensions and forfeitures proposed in the payola bill (S 1898) passed by the House and now in the Senate.

Lee Ruwitch WTVJ (TV) Miami, president of Florida Assn. of Broadcasters representing 131 radio and 12 tv stations, urged Florida Sens. Spessard Holland and George Smathers and Chairman John O. Pastore of the Senate Communications Subcommittee to call for a hearing before passage of the "disastrous" provisions.

Tom Johnson, KTOK Oklahoma City, president of Oklahoma Broadcasters Assn., sent letters to the state's congressional delegation urging "serious and thoughtful reflection" on the problem of suspensions and forfeitures for violation of "such vague or ambiguous provisions as those now proposed."

Norman G. Gallant, WFAU Augusta secretary-treasurer, Maine Assn. of Broadcasters, wrote the Maine delegation the association is opposed to "punitive type" suspensions and forfeitures, saying the FCC already has sufficient authority to correct abuses and that broadcasters who intentionally or unintentionally violate laws and rules should have the opportunity to correct such malpractices.

John Shott, WHIS-TV Bluefield, president of West Virginia Broadcasters Assn., asked state broadcasters to register "strong opposition" to suspensions and forfeitures with their congressmen and senators.

- That the entire forfeiture section be deleted. By Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth (R-Colo.). Rejected by voice vote.

- That the FCC be required to regulate (but not license) all networks of two or more stations; that the FCC require reports on network ownership and operational policies, practices and activities; that it classify networks and issue rules requiring them to operate so as not to adversely affect the ability of affiliated licensees to operate in the public interest. By Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Mich.). 16 for, 101 against.

- Motion to recommit the bill to the House Commerce Committee with instructions to report it to the floor with an amendment that would require the FCC to license national (50-market) networks for three-year periods under conditions prescribed by the FCC in the public interest. By Rep. Bennett. 35 for, 149 against.

Amendments adopted by the House:

- That the license suspension may be invoked only for false statements "knowingly" made, "negligent or intentional" failure to operate as set forth in the license and "negligent or intentional" violation or failure to observe laws and FCC rules. (Thus, the FCC would have to establish "knowing," "negligent" or "intentional" offenses before invoking suspension.) By Rep. John Flynt (D-Ga.). Agreed to by voice.

- That forfeitures be invoked only where a licensee has "intelligently or intentionally" failed to operate his station substantially as set forth in his license or has "negligently or intentionally" violated or failed to observe laws and FCC rules. (The FCC would have to establish deliberate failure to operate as set forth in the license or negligent or intentional violations or failure to observe laws and FCC rules). By Rep. William Avery (R-Kan.). Agreed to by voice vote.

- That the existing provision in the Communications Act allowing FCC members to accept honorariums be struck out. By Rep. Harris. Agreed to by voice vote. (Rep. Harris explained that this provision was non-controversial and that a bill to strike out the honorarium provision already had been approved by the Senate).

House opponents of the suspensions or the forfeitures charged these provisions were:

- Unnecessarily harsh, especially to small stations (forfeiture).

- Only the beginning of the "harm" that will be done. Rep. Cleveland Bailey (D-W.Va.) asked whether proponents had considered broken program and advertising contracts that would result from suspension.

- Duplicative. Rep. John Bennett (R-Mich.) said either the suspensions or fines would be adequate for FCC sanctions, but both would be more than necessary.

- Confers excessive power on the FCC. Rep. Ken Hechler (D-W.Va.) felt it would give the FCC power to intimidate stations because of the variability of the maximum and minimum suspensions or fines that may be imposed. Rep. Robert Hemphill (D-S.C.) thought it would lead to bureaucracy in government.

- Permits the FCC to impose censorship indirectly on station programming—Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth (R-Colo.).

- Set a precedent for other governmental agencies to ask for similar powers, especially the forfeiture provisions—Rep. George Meader (R-Mich.).

- Excessive. Rep. Jonas proposed $200 instead of $1,000 forfeitures in an amendment which was defeated.

- Deprives a licensee, in forfeiture cases, of show cause processes as in cease and desist orders, and forces him directly into court—where issues “will be very narrow”—without notice, without hearing and without opportunity to “interpose a defense”—Rep. Jonas.

- Inhibits growth of small businesses (forfeiture) by imposing a fine on a small station licensee “for each day he contests and challenges” the FCC order, plus cost of litigation.—Rep. Meader.

Rep. Avery’s amendments to confine suspension and forfeiture sanctions to offenses committed deliberately, knowingly or negligently would remove objections to the two provisions. He acknowledged other agencies might ask for similar sanctions, but said congressmen would “cross those bridges when we come to them.”

Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.) said the provisions will deprive no licensee of due process; that they are subject to “full and complete judicial review at every point”; and that it would be impossible for the FCC to act arbitrarily or capriciously even if it so wished.

Rep. Harris said the forfeitures provision was added to the bill so the FCC could impose that instead of a suspension where it saw fit, thus offering an alternative to taking a station off the air. The provisions not only assure that licensees carry out their responsibility, but affords them protection and proper procedure, he said. Deletion of the forfeiture provision would make the penalty more severe for the station, he said.

Harms Stations ■ Rep. Bennett, in opposing the bill, said the absence of provisions for network regulation penalizes the stations for the sins of the networks. Noting the oversight subcommittee recommended licensing of networks, he said the networks dominate tv programming, yet are not held re-

How Harris’ payola strategy hit a snag

Rep. Oren Harris’ stratagem for getting his multiple payola and other amendments to the Communications Act enacted without a hearing on the Senate side ran into trouble last week because of his insistence on license suspension and forfeiture features.

His House Commerce Committee’s decision a few weeks ago to junk Rep. Harris’ own bill (HR 11340) and graft its provision, in redrafted form, onto a Senate bill

(S 1898) the House group has been sitting on since it passed the Senate last year was made in the hope the Senate would agree to the House amendments, including a virtual rewriting of an FCC pre-grant procedure designed and approved by the Senate to replace the McFarland Letter and protest provisions of the Communications Act.

Whether Rep. Harris’ plan might have worked became conjectural last week. The Senate Commerce Committee, apparently well briefed on the controversial nature of the suspensions and forfeitures, met Wednesday morning, the day after the House passage of the bill. The Senate group knew Senate and House leaders were at that moment in the process of deciding whether to recess at the end of last week and come back after the national political conventions to finish uncompleted legislation or to adjourn until next January.

The Senate committee decided it ought to hold hearings on the suspensions and forfeitures if Congress were to return in August. It planned to meet again the next day (Thursday) when congressional intentions about an extended session would be known. If it had been decided that Congress would adjourn instead of returning in August, the committee then planned to face the problem of whether to insist on hearings (and thus kill the bill), ask for Senate agreement on the House amendments or suggest a Senate-House conference to iron out differences.

Shortly after the Senate committee adjourned its Wednesday morning meeting the plan to return in August was announced and the committee was relieved of making that decision. Chairman John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) of the committee’s Communications Subcommittee thereupon promptly announced that hearings would begin in early or mid-August on the penalty provisions.

REP. HARRIS
Suspension and forfeiture . . .

SEN. PASTORE
. . . calls for a hearing

sponsible for programming. At the same time, he said, stations are held responsible for programming, but are unable to prevent such deceptions as tv quiz fixes and such practices as the payola and conflict of interest situations involving Dick Clark on ABC-TV. He charged that Rep. Harris refused to hold hearings on his own, milder bill for network regulation in the public interest, despite numerous requests.

The payola bill, without the network regulation provisions, is a "farce and a sham," he said. "It is mere window dressing; a sop to the public for all the big scandal headlines." He charged Rep. Harris with "sidestepping" a showdown on network regulation on grounds no hearings had been held on network regulation and said the oversight subcommittee's 3½ years of hearings provide a valid basis for legislating.

Enaction of the payola bill without network regulation, he said, "will take off the heat which has been built up by 3½ years of investigation. It will be said, and the radio and television networks will do their best to spread the word, that all the evils have been cured by this bill. The public may swallow this story and that will be the end of any reform legislation. . . .

On Payoffs ■ Rep. Bennett also assailed the bill as it covers payoffs among applicants and urged that anti-traffic-ing provisions (included in the network-licensing bill, HR 11340, not acted on by the House Commerce Committee) be added to the bill. The bill's provisions exempting mergers from prohibitions against payoffs exceeding actual and prudent expenses, he said, "effectively destroyed" what the subcommittee tried to do to prevent blackmail situations among applicants for new facilities. "A merger can be a form of payoff," he said, and "the same blackmail situation can occur." The bill provides a method of evading the prohibition through merger, he said.

Rep. Steven Derounian (R-N.Y.) supported Rep. Bennett's views and cited testimony by network officials that they should have exercised more diligence in the quiz rigging cases.

Answering Rep. Bennett's criticism, Rep. Harris said the committee has not yet held hearings on network regulation and transfers; that perhaps "needed changes" will have to be made.

But, he said, he is not satisfied that licensing the networks might not be the same as government control of programs.

What About Others? ■ If networks are to be regulated because they furnish most of the programming, he asked, should not independent producers be regulated when they produce programs? And how about advertisers and sponsors, who contract for the programs? Rep. Harris noted some sponsors were "deeply involved in the problems" developed by the oversight subcommittee. "I think we had better be careful," he said.

Rep. William H. Avery (R-Kan.) said the amendment proposed by Rep. Bennett provides nothing not already in the bill and thus will "accomplish nothing." If networks have been derelict, he said, he is certain they will now assume "their full responsibility." Adoption of the network regulation proposal, he argued, might result in defeat of the bill in the Senate.

Opponents of the Bennett amendment also held that since it did not provide for network licensing, it would be unenforceable.

The bill as finally passed by the House provides:

- Repeal of the existing honorarium provision for FCC members.

- Statutory authority for the FCC to grant licenses for less than 3-year periods without going through rulemaking proceedings presently needed to accomplish this purpose.

- A 30-day waiting period before FCC grant of an application for a new broadcast facility, a major change or a transfer.

- A system to replace the existing protest procedure whereby a party in interest may file a petition to deny grant

CRAVEN ON PROGRAM CONTROL

States views in letter to Sen. Magnuson

A member of the FCC last week took a verbal swipe at those who advocate government regulation of programming balance and content.

"Unfortunately, the advocates of this philosophy of government intervention in the processes of free speech are vague as to how constitutional guarantees affecting freedom of speech should be applied," Commissioner T.A.M. Craven stated last week in a letter to Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.), chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee. Commissioner Craven continued:

"While they advance the argument that radio broadcast channels are in the public domain and that broadcast licensees must operate in the public interest, they do not support this argument with any logical justification involving government intervention to enforce the 'right to speak' and the 'right to hear' in the field of broadcasting. Apparently, adopting the theory that the end justifies the means, they give little or no thought to the illegalities and the impracticalities which surround both the end and the means."

Commissioner Craven, an outspoken critic of any FCC effort to get into programming, wrote his letter to Sen. Magnuson in answer to a statement submitted by the American Civil Liberties Union on S 3171, requiring free tv time for major presidential candidates. In that statement, ACLU maintained that the FCC "should have, and energetically exercise," the power to require radio and tv to provide the means ". . . to the people's age-old constitutional right of freedom to speak and freedom to hear. The union looks forward hungrily to the day when the American people . . . will be assured of an effectively modern right [through radio-tv] to speak and to hear."

Commissioner Craven maintained that the ACLU strayed far afield from the subject matter of S3171. "As one of seven commissioners who is charged with the administration of the Communications Act, I find that the philosophy advocated by the ACLU would require that the commission take actions which to my mind are contrary to the Constitution. . . ."

Non-Existent Legal Power ■ In his letter to the senator, the commissioner said that it is abundantly clear that the FCC does not have the authority to regulate programming. He pointed out that "even the most ardent advocate of government control of radio" would not require that an auditorium be made available to someone who wanted to make a speech—or force people to go hear the speech. "And yet today," Commissioner Craven stressed, "there are those who would have the commission energetically exercise a non-existent legal power to force all broadcast stations to program so as to give maximum range and balance in subject matter and treatment of the people's constitutional right of freedom to speak and freedom to hear, apparently giving no thought to the loss of private rights which flow from a governmental act of this nature. . . .

"Aside from the abuse of constitutional rights and other possible adverse effects of government compulsion in the use of private radio property, there are practical limitations surrounding the use of broadcast stations by citizens who choose to exercise what of an application without hearing or before a hearing begins, such petition to contain information to show the petitioner is a party in interest and that the grant would be against the public interest and to include affidavits of persons with personal knowledge of the facts alleged. The applicant would then be allowed to reply and the FCC then could deny the petition, giving reasons, or order a hearing, allowing parties in interest to participate upon qualification. The FCC could make temporary emergency grants for up to two 90-day periods, however.

- Requirement for applicants for new facilities or major changes to give notice, according to FCC rules, in the area to be served.

- Requirement for the FCC to consider whether it would be in the public interest to hold hearings in the area to be served.

- Prohibition of agreements by which one, pending applicant pays another applicant for the same facility to withdraw unless approved by the FCC, the FCC first to determine that the amount involved does not exceed an amount "legitimately" and "prudently" expended by the withdrawing applicant in prosecuting his application.

- Exemption, where merger is contemplated in the agreement of the necessity for the FCC to determine whether the amount of payment is excessive.

- Authorization for the FCC to suspend stations licenses for up to 10 days for false statements "knowingly" made in applications or reports, any grounds warranting denial of an original application, "negligent or intentional" failure to operate as set forth in the license, "negligent or intentional" violation or failure to observe Communications Act provisions or FCC rules, violation or failure to observe cease and desist orders and violations of the U.S. criminal codes. Requires a show-cause order to be issued before suspension is ordered.

- Relief for a station from having to make an on-air announcement for services or property furnished free or at nominal cost unless furnished in consideration for exposure beyond that "reasonably related" to the use of such property on the broadcast.

- Authorization for the FCC to require "appropriate announcements" in the case of program material furnished for political programs or programs treating controversial issues.

- Authorization for the FCC to waive requirements for announcements where it sees fit.

- Requirement for the licensee to exercise "reasonable diligence" in seeing that announcements are made when required.

- Requirement for station employees, networks and their employees, independent program producers and their employees or other non-licensees to inform the licensee of cases where payments or other services or property are furnished and an announcement is required and requires those who make payments or furnish property to do the same, with penalty of a $10,000 fine and a year's imprisonment.

- Authorization for the FCC to impose fines of up to $1,000 a day on a broadcaster who "negligently or intentionally" fails to operate substantially as set forth in his license or "negligently or intentionally" violates or fails to observe provisions in the Communications Act or FCC rules, or who violates or fails to observe an FCC cease and desist order.

- Prohibition of any person from helping contestants in broadcast contests of intellectual knowledge or intellectual skill to influence the outcome; prohibits persuasion, bribery or intimidation to cause a contestant to refrain from using his skill or knowledge in such a contest; prohibits deceptive plans to prearrange the outcome of such contests and games of chance; prohibits participation in producing or broadcasting a program knowing such deceptions are taking place. Penalty for violations: $10,000 fine and a year's imprisonment.

they consider to be their constitutional rights to address the nation over this modern medium for mass communication. One does not need the mind of a mathematician to understand that there are insufficient channels and time to permit all persons to use such limited facilities."

It is obvious, Commissioner Craven continued, that careful discretion must be exercised as to when and for whom stations should be made available. "And who is more qualified to exercise this discretion—seven government representatives sitting in Washington who logically cannot be appraised of the needs and desires of the many heterogeneous communities . . . or the licensees who must meet the needs of the persons they serve in order to survive?" Commissioner Craven asked.

"The answer is inherent in the question. Nevertheless, advocates of government control of expression would have the commission substitute its judgment for that of the licensees of the stations. Apparently, no concern is given to the fact that such substitution could be accomplished only through arbitrary action on the part of the commissioners and by the most flagrant disregard of the licensees' primary responsibility."

The FCC can best exercise its statutory functions by requiring licensees to set forth reasons for believing their programming is geared to the public interest, Commissioner Craven said. By following such a course, the commission would not be passing upon program contest or balance or arbitrarily deprive the licensee of freedom of expression, he stated. "Nor would the commission be usurping authority in areas from which it is precluded by the Constitution and the Communications Act," he concluded.

Commissioner Craven asked that his statement be incorporated in the files of the Commerce Committee.

Vhf booster measure goes to White House

The Senate last week concurred with a minor House amendment to a bill (S 1886) to legalize vhf tv boosters and the legislation went to the White House.

The bill excepts vhf tv boosters from the Communications Act requirement that transmitting apparatus of broadcasting stations must be operated only by persons holding an FCC operator's license. It also authorizes the FCC to waive the requirement for a construction permit for vhf boosters now in operation.

Meanwhile, the FCC last week extended the period of "grace" for existing vhf booster stations 30 days from June 30 (Thursday). The Senate originally passed the bill Sept. 9, 1959, and it was approved by the House June 24, with amended language.

JUST ANOTHER PART OF TV

Video tape not motion picture, court says

A New York State Supreme Court justice has ruled that under United Scenic Artists' contracts with the three tv networks, video tape is just another part of television broadcasting and does not involve work entitled to extra pay.

Justice Samuel M. Gold made the ruling in staying arbitration proceedings sought by the Scenic Artists' New York Local 829 against NBC, CBS and ABC. The union had claimed that video tape productions are in the same category as motion picture productions and therefore should be governed by motion pictures' higher pay rates.

In denying this claim Justice Gold noted that the union contracts with the networks, signed in November 1958, deal with employment "in connection with [the networks'] operations in television broadcasting in New York City," and that video tape at that time was already a part of the networks' television operations.

On the union's claim that video tape and film productions are closely akin, Justice Gold had this to say: "It is to be noted . . . that motion picture film is produced in motion picture studios and that the use of motion picture cameras and equipment is required, whereas video tape recordings are produced in television studios with television cameras and equipment."

The decision denied, too, the union's contention that the contracts were limited to live broadcasting. The union had advanced this claim as another argument for exempting vtr from the contract provisions.

FCC error claimed in Rochester grant

A long time controversy centering on the late Frieda Hennock, former FCC Commissioner, and her participation in the 1953 FCC sharetime grant of ch. 10 in Rochester, N.Y., has once again been brought before the commission. Federal Broadcasting System, licensee of WSAY Rochester, losing applicant in the 1953 grant, last week protested the license renewals of sharetimers WVET-TV and WHEC-TV on the basis of the Hennock affair.

Minutes of the FCC meeting at the time the grant was made showed the vote to be 3-3 but a final decision was granted on a 3-2 vote with Miss Hennock abstaining. Miss Hennock later told the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee that a legal quorum was not present. Although not voting, she issued a strong dissenting opinion saying that the grant was "the worst thing that ever came out of the commission." BROADCASTING, April 7, 1958).

Federal told the commission it had received a letter from Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.), member of the oversight subcommittee, which "shows that the renewals were improperly issued and . . . not in the public interest." Federal said Rep. Moss received a letter from FCC Chairman Frederick W. Ford on May 4, "which shows Miss Hennock to have been present during the vote . . . when in fact she had been absent."

Federal quoted the following excerpt from Mr. Ford's letter:

"Following the March 11th meeting, it was the understanding of the Minute Clerk . . . that Commissioner Hennock was not participating in consideration of the Rochester ch. 10 applications . . . Notations listing [her] as not participating were prepared . . . but Miss Hennock's legal assistant called the clerk and informed her . . . that the entry was to show Commissioner Hennock as abstaining from voting . . . It appears however that during consideration of the Rochester ch. 10 applications Commissioner Hennock was absent from the meeting room intermittently and hence, under the standard terminology used to describe such a status, was not participating."

Federal told the commission the court of appeals had treated Miss Hennock as being physically absent from the meeting room. If, as it now develops, she was both present and absent intermittently, the affirmative vote of three members of the FCC was not the affirmative vote of the majority present, Federal asserted.

New temporary grant for ch. 9 Baton Rouge

Ch. 28 WAFB-TV Baton Rouge, La., last week received its second special temporary authorization from the FCC to operate on ch. 9 pending a final grant for regular operation. The special authority is for 90 days, or until a regular grant is made for operation on ch. 9. Modern Broadcasting Co., which owns WAFB-TV, is the sole remaining applicant for the vhf channel and holds a favorable initial decision (BROADCASTING, June 20).

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington had upset an earlier FCC temporary authorization for operation on ch. 9 by WAFB-TV pending the outcome of a comparative hearing (BROADCASTING, Feb. 15). The channel was reallocated to Baton Rouge following its removal from Hattiesburg, Miss. A second applicant for ch. 9 Baton Rouge, Community Broadcasting Co. (WIBR), had its application dismissed, receiving out-of-pocket expenses and an option to purchase 20% of Modern.

On policy group

The two most important senators to broadcasting—Sens. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) and John O. Pastore (D-R.I.)—have been appointed to the Democratic Policy Committee by Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.). Sen. Magnuson is chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee and Sen. Pastore heads the committee's Communications Subcommittee. The policy group clears legislation for Senate consideration.

Broadcasters oppose FCC Conelrad plans

Broadcasters don't like the FCC's proposal which would require them to install standardized Conelrad alert signal equipment (BROADCASTING, May 2, March 21). This was the indication from over 30 new comments on the proposals which have been filed with the commission.

In general, all broadcasters were

IN THE HILL HOPPER

Here are capsulated versions of new legislation of interest to broadcasters and advertisers:

HR 12625. Rep. Joseph E. Karth (D-Minn.)—outlaw practice of advertising or offering a product for sale at less than its delivered cost (for purpose of inducing customers to come to a place of business). Provides for recovery of triple damages to competitors injured by such "loss leader" or "bait advertising" practices and for injunctive relief through the courts. Penalty, $5,000 and a year's imprisonment. June 14. Judiciary Committee.

HR 12655. Rep. John Brademas (D-Ind.)—repeal the manufacturer's excise tax on radio and tv sets. June 15. Ways & Means Committee.

HR 12662. Rep. Joseph E. Karth (D-Minn.)—prohibits advertising claims falsely representing that a product is being offered at wholesale price. June 15. Commerce Committee.

HR 12758. Rep. Philip J. Philbin (D-Mass.)—permit tax-exempt organizations to engage in propaganda or in influencing legislation if the purpose of such practices is relevant to the purposes which qualify such organizations for tax-exempt status. June 21. Ways & Means Committee.

HR 12831. Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.)—term as "misleading" the advertising of prescribed drugs by brand name if the brand name is not also accompanied by the generic name of the drug. June 27. Commerce Committee.

concerned about the added cost of the new equipment which is estimated anywhere from $150 to $500. Both NBC and CBS favored the rulemaking idea, but stipulated that it should be discarded if cost to station owners is too high. ABC supported the NAB comments which show that cost of the equipment can run as high as $1,500 and would cost the broadcast industry some $10 million.

The proposed rulemaking would make all stations install equipment making automatic broadcast of the Conelrad attention signal and the triggering of public receivers. KHF-AM-FM Wichita, Kan., stated that the plan adds "more to the burden" already borne by broadcasters. WCCO-AM-TV Minneapolis stated that, in general, there are no receivers which can receive the proposed attention signal.

Deadline for comments was June 13.

■ Government briefs

Common carrier hearing ■ FCC has granted protest of Springfield Television Broadcasting Corp (WRLP [TV] [ch. 32]) Greenfield, Mass., and designated for hearing applications of New England Microwave Corp., to provide common carrier tv relay service to a catv system at Athol, Mass. The commission authorized New England Microwave to continue construction pending a final decision.

Idaho grant ■ The FCC has granted an application for ch. 10 in Pocatello, Idaho. The grant was made to Sam H. Bennion, sole owner, who proposes to operate the station with power of .595 kw visual and .296 kw aural. Mr. Bennion, a petroleum distributor, has also applied for tv stations in Idaho Falls (ch. 8) and Twin Falls (ch. 13), both Idaho.

Site change ■ The FCC has granted WKZO-TV Kalamazoo, Mich. an application to change its transmitter site. The station's transmitter will now be located 22 miles north of Kalamazoo and 18 miles south of Grand Rapids. It will be changed from a location 7 miles north of Kalamazoo and 32 miles south of Grand Rapids. In making the grant to WKZO-TV, the commission denied a petition by WKNX-TV Saginaw, Mich., which sought to withhold action or deny the Kalamazoo request.

Two repeaters ■ Grants were made by the FCC last week for two Minnesota translator stations. Owned by Leech Lake Tv Corp., the new stations will translate programs of KDAL-TV and WDSM-TV, both Duluth. Operating on chs. 72 and 76, the repeaters will be located in Walker, Minn.

Kahn comments ■ Kahn Research Labs

Inc., Freeport, L.I., N.Y., has won a point with the FCC. Its petition for rulemaking to permit am stations to operate with a compatible single sideband will be the subject of further FCC study (BROADCASTING, Jan. 25). The commission has invited comments by Sept. 30 on the Kahn petition. The firm claims that its system will better reception, with less interference, by existing receivers without modification. FCC now seeks answers to specific questions concerning the need and desirability for the proposed rulemaking.

No extra ID ■ A request for a waiver of rules to allow WJPB-TV Harrisonburg, Va., to identify itself with two other cities has been turned down by the FCC. The ch. 5 station sought to identify itself as Harrisonburg-Staunton-Waynesboro.

More on towers ■ At the request of Storer Broadcasting Co., the FCC has extended to July 19 the time for reply comments to its rulemaking proposal regarding construction, lighting and marking of antenna structures. The commission has proposed amending the rules to eliminate the Airspace Panel and give its authority over antennas to the Federal Aviation Authority.

Court upholds FCC's Red party questions

By a 2-1 vote, the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington last week upheld the FCC's right to ask the holder of a broadcast license whether or not he has ever belonged to the Communist Party or any organization advocating the overthrow of the U. S. government.

The question of the commission's right was put to the court by Morton Borrow, holder of a first class operator's license and employed by WPEN Philadelphia, whose application for license renewal was dismissed in December 1959. Mr. Borrow refused to answer the two questions and asked for a hearing which was granted. After revocation of his first class permit, he appealed to the court (BROADCASTING, May 30).

The court majority, Chief Judge E. Barrett Prettyman and Circuit Judge Wilbur K. Miller, said "it would be difficult to imagine" a question more relevant or more material to the qualification of a radio operator than the one on seeking to overthrow the government. Power to use radio should not knowingly be granted to those advocating such action, the court ruled. Dissent was issued by Circuit Judge George T. Washington who said FCC should not be empowered to deny a man his livelihood and hit the "flimsy framework" of the commission case.

WHAT'S NEW ON DAYTIME TELEVISION

Network plans for fall show there are few changes in store

Weekday television is shaping up for the fall with program shuffles on each network. New serials are born to replace those that die. A mobile tape show is added by one network as a similar series is scuttled by another. Two game shows will have their first time out this fall on separate networks, and a morning variety show is leaving. Otherwise, viewers will have roughly the same selection of games, drama and reruns they are used to. One standard, Queen or a Day, is sure to remain but its dial address is uncertain between ABC-TV, which made a deal to get the show, and NBC-TV, which has it now and intends to keep it.

Major changes in the three schedules are noted below, followed by the Monday-through-Friday, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. lineups.

ABC-TV to fill a new hour at the top of its card, ABC is doubling Day In Court, adding a "morning session" in the 11-11:30 leadoff spot, and programming a new afternoon series, Road to Reality, at 2:30-3 p.m. Two established afternoon hours are being acquired, while two others will be struck. Love That Bob moves from 12:30 to the half-hour 60 minutes earlier. The network had announced for this spot a new serial, Hope Springs, but this apparently has been abandoned with intended acquisition of Queen For a Day. Reruns of The Texan, currently on the CBS nighttime schedule, replace Restless Gun, 12-12:30, the latter banished. ABC wants to start Queen For a Day in the 12:30 half-hour beginning Oct. 10 but is prepared if necessary to fill with something else until expiration of the NBC contract at the end of the year. NBC is contesting ABC's announced acquisition of Queen, holding it has a verbal agreement for renewal (BROADCASTING, June 27). The rest of the current ABC schedule stands, with Road to Reality in for the Gale Storm Show, which is dropped in the fall.

CBS-TV ■ Three new half-hours, a game and two serials highlight the fall lineup (BROADCASTING, June 27). The game, Video Village, replaces at 10:30-11 a.m. Jack Linkletter's mobile tape show, On the Go. Far Horizon, which may show up at 11:30 under a different title, and Full Circle are the new 30-minute serials, the latter already on the air instead of For Better or Worse, which left the network last month.

NBC-TV ■ Changes are localized in the afternoon, with Queen For a Day moved to the end half-hour of the day, 4:30-5 p.m., and a new entry, The Jan Murray Show subtitled Charge Account, substituted at 2-2:30. This is described as a game with elements of comedy and marks the return of the old Treasure Hunt m.c. after that show was cancelled in last fall's purge of prize programs. The network is enthusiastic about another addition, Here's Hollywood, which will tour the film capital on tape, presenting interviews, fashions, fan news, interior decorating and film-location features. Here's Hollywood goes in at 4-4:40 p.m. in the place of Comedy Playhouse reruns which will be seen no more. Make Room for Daddy, 3:30-4 p.m. reruns of the Danny Thomas Show now on lately on CBS-TV Monday nights, will replace From These Roots, which is being dropped.

WGN-TV to syndicate Notre Dame football

The U. of Notre Dame will televise all its football games this fall on a national delayed basis, with WGN-TV Chicago's syndication sales department handling sales and distribution rights for the video taped versions.

For Notre Dame, it will mark the second straight year of delayed telecasts. For the Tribune Co.'s station, it will assay WGN-TV's first solid entry in the vtr syndication field. Among other properties slated for distribution: the award-winning Great Music from Chicago and The Blue Fairy. Over 100 stations are expected to carry the 1960 ND football schedule.

A third principal in the agreement is Newspix Inc., N.Y., which will provide transmission and network facilities. The fourth: Notre Dame's own commercial property, WNDU-TV South Bend, Ind.

Plans were announced Thursday by Thomas Hamilton, general manager of WNDU-TV; Mickey Greenman, president of Newpax, and Edward W. (Moose) Krause, ND athletic director.

The telecasts will be produced by WNDU-TV and video taped for delayed playback, in most cases for Sunday televiewing. Harry Wismer will handle play-by-play and Mr. Krause the color background. Games will be edited to one complete hour with every play and will be offered for sponsorship. The telecasts will run Sept. 24 through Nov. 26.

Is a charity telethon worth it?

Is a charity telethon worth the effort?

The National Foundation (polio, arthritis and birth defects) and WTTG (TV) Washington were asking themselves this question last week after a detailed accounting was made public of the expenses and donations involved in a 14-hour Jan. 9-10 telethon that the station aired for the cause. The results:

Contributions—$6,000 from the studio audience, plus $16,000 from viewer pledges (viewers actually pledged a total of $41,000, but later $25,000 worth couldn't be collected); expenses—$21,850; net profit for the charity—$150.

Where did all the money go? Officials felt that was a question, considering the fact that WTTG donated $9,600-worth of air time, station talent participated in various promotions and extensive free facilities and cooperation were given by local food and transportation firms, hotels, the telephone company and others.

According to the National Foundation's accounting for the total of $21,850 in expenses, $5,000 was spent for talent on the show, headlined by Eddie Bracken and John (Sheriff of Cochise) Bromfield, plus about 20 others; $3,500 went to WTTG to reimburse the station for union personnel (weekend overtime) and other technical expenses; $2,500 as fee to telethon producer Chris Sheldon; $1,000 as fee to Kodinsky Telethon Consultants, New York; $1,500 for rental of George Washington U.'s Lisner Auditorium, plus $500 to adapt the auditorium to telethon use; $1,000 fee to Theatre Authority; $750 fee to William Morris Agency; $500 to telephone company for 90 phones to use on air for collecting pledges (bill was actually $3,700, but the phone company said to forget $3,200 worth of it); $1,200 for orchestra, and $4,400 for incidental expenses such as press luncheons, art work, mailings and long distance phone calls to arrange talent and other details.

Frederick Rummage, executive director of the Metropolitan Washington Committee of the National Foundation, considered the telethon was, overall, a success. He praised Producer Sheldon and commented, "for a UGF (United Givers Fund) town, I think we did a good job. Only an extremely poor percentage of collection of pledged contributions (about 39% as compared to the national average of about 85%) prevented a financial success—which wasn't our only objective. Publicity, too, was a goal and we accomplished that."

WTTG officials were reluctant to be quoted, but unofficially it appeared that the chances of any future telethons are nil.

heavyweight championship bout on June 20.

Irving B. Kahn, TPT president, said that virtually complete returns from 229 viewing locations indicate that 484,894 paid admissions accounted for gross receipts of $2,251,162. In addition, he said, the closed-circuit telecast beamed to 13 community antenna systems will raise the gross to $2,274,662. He said that other sources, such as radio, motion picture and foreign tv, will raise the gross by at least $450,000.

Detroit specialty fm

Jazz fans and classical music connoisseurs will each have fm stations devoted to their interests in Detroit soon. WABX (FM), which schedules only concert and classical music, went on the air May 4. WIPE (FM), with an all-jazz format, expects to begin broadcasting before the end of the year.

Cerritos Broadcasting Co., which operates KNOB (FM) Long Beach, Calif., another all-jazz station, has been granted a construction permit by the FCC on 92.3 mc with initial power of 10 kw. The antenna tower will be 150-foot tall, located atop the Cadillac Bldg., which will also house WIPE's studios.

WABX has announced a policy of accepting spot announcements only on the hour and half-hour, guaranteeing the listener 30 uninterrupted minutes. The good music station operates on 99.5 mc with 36.4 kw. It is located atop the David Stott Bldg. in downtown Detroit.

FILM COMPANIES SEEK DEALS

Packages include big post-48 features; stations are probed on possible pricing

There was a new and sudden spurt of activity last week by holders of feature films yet to be shown on television.

The activity included a probing of stations on possible pricing for a Screen Gem's package of Columbia Pictures' product released theatrically in the post-1948 period, and a dangle before the tv industry of Samuel Goldwyn's feature film holdings.

An SG spokesman acknowledged that its sales officials have approached stations throughout the country to ascertain their views on Columbia's post-'48 features. He said that within a few weeks, after collecting the opinions of tv station executives throughout the country, SG and Columbia will decide whether or not to release the features. The spokesman added that no sales policies have been decided with regard to the sale of the features as a bulk package or in several groups. He estimated some 350 Columbia features are in the post-'48 library.

The Goldwyn product actually is in two parts: a package of 45 pre-1948 films and a number of post-'48 movies. The pre-'48 pictures are being sold first.

Enter Erickson ■ Rodney Erickson, a Warner Bros. consultant and ex-Young & Rubicam executive, is handling the sale of films for the Goldwyn company. For this purpose, he's reactivated Rodney Erickson Enterprises Inc., New York, which has been assigned the sales task. Mr. Erickson, who has completed an assignment selling NBC-TV's political coverage this year, obtains a percentage of the sale gross.

At present, Mr. Erickson aims for a network sale of such titles as "Wuthering Heights," "Pride of the Yankees" or "Little Foxes." In the pre-48s also such films as five Danny Kaye and two Bob Hope features. Mr. Goldwyn's "Hans Christian Anderson," which was released in 1952, will be offered slated for Christmas season showings. Once the network phase is over for the few top pictures, the package of films will be placed in syndication (via markets and stations).

It is expected that the Goldwyn package will bring one of the largest sums of any theatrical film collection yet made available for home viewing via television. One of the package is "The Best Years of Our Lives" released in 1946 and a winner of top awards. Many of the movies date from the early days of sound pictures, some films starring Ronald Coleman and Eddie Cantor (BROADCASTING, May 9).

EDUCATORS GIVE AWARDS

Networks, stations honored for programs

ABC, CBS and NBC were honored with Silver Bell awards presented by the National Education Assn. for distinguished interpretive reporting on education. The awards were made last week at the second general assembly of the NEA at its convention in Los Angeles.

In television, CBS won two awards—for documentary interpretation ("Who Speaks for the South?" produced by Fred W. Friendly), and for discussion ("How Can We Improve Our Education for Leadership?") in the Great Challenge series. NBC won two awards—for documentary interpretation ("Back to School" produced by Reuben Frank), and for dramatic interpretation ("The Secret of Freedom" produced by Robert D. Graff). ABC won an award for dramatic interpretation for a segment of the Leave It to Beaver series ("Teacher Comes to Dinner" produced by Joe Connelly and Bob Mosher).

In radio, CBS won an award for documentary interpretation for "Education Limited," a segment of the Hidden Revolution series produced by Arthur Rabin. In the same category, NBC won an award for "Education in America," 90-minute program in the Image America series produced by Peter Lasally. The National Educational Television & Radio Center also won an award in this category for Everybody's Mountain, a 14-week series produced by Robert Lewis Shayon and broadcast through the facilities of the 79-station National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters.

A number of individual stations were presented awards for state or local reporting. Those stations are KRON-TV San Francisco; WNEM-TV Bay City, Mich.; KMOX-TV St. Louis, Mo.; WRVA-TV Richmond, Va., and KOMO-TV Seattle. The award to KRON-TV San Francisco was made for a 13-week series produced in cooperation with the California Teachers Assn. and carried by 20 stations. The New Jersey Broadcasters Assn. was given an award for cooperation with the New Jersey Education Assn. in placing a daily five-minute radio program on 15 member stations.

Similar awards were made to newspapers, magazines, press associations and companies for public service advertising on behalf of education.

UAA files court suit against W. Va. catv

United Artists Associated Inc., New York, filed suit last week in New York Federal Court against NWL Corp., operator of a catv system in West Virginia. The suit charges infringement of copyright.

UAA, which is affiliated with United Artists Corp., distributes Warner Bros. features, Popeye cartoons and other shorts and cartoons. It has sold such films to tv stations in Pittsburgh, Steubenville, Ohio, and Wheeling, W. Va. NWL operates catv's in Clarksburg and Fairmont, both West Virginia.

The suit charges that NWL receives the telecasts of these tv stations and reproduces programs over its own facilities "without payment and without consent of the copyright owner or the tv stations." UAA seeks an injunction, damages and "an accounting of profits."

A similar case (BROADCASTING, June 13, brought by KXLF-TV Butte-Helena, Mont., ended with a court decision that the tv station had no property interest "by copyright or otherwise" in any programs broadcast or in any "signals or programs" received on the catv system.

SEG wins support

Board of directors of Screen Extras Guild Thursday (June 30) unanimously voted to ask the guild's membership for authorization to call a strike against the Alliance of Television Film Producers. A report on the situation will be made at the annual SEG membership meeting July 8. Following that, the membership will be polled by a secret mail referendum. Meanwhile, a National Labor Relations Board hearing on SEG charges of unfair labor practices by ATFP started last week. The guild alleges that ATFP is unfair in refusing to bargain independently of the Assn. of Motion Picture Producers. SEG contracts with both organizations expired April 2, 1959.

If the Screen Extras Guild calls a strike against the Alliance of Television Film Producers and the Assn. of Motion Picture Producers and other producers of motion pictures for tv and theatrical release, it will have the support of the Associated Actors & Artists of America, AFL-CIO parent of all U.S. performers' unions. Approval and support of such a strike was voted by the AAAA international board at its annual meeting in New York. SEG contracts with the producers expired April 2, 1959, and no new contract has been negotiated. SEG asked for separate negotiations with ATFP, contrary to previous joint ATFP-AMPP bargaining sessions, and on ATFP's refusal to bargain individually SEG went to the National Labor Relations Board, which issued a complaint against ATFP on which hearings began Wednesday (June 29).

SAG-AFTRA merger now seems unlikely

Possibility of a plan of mutual cooperation between the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists and the Screen Actors Guild rather than a merger of the two talent unions has arisen, it was revealed following a three-day meeting of the merger committees of the unions in Hollywood, June 24-26.

A joint statement issued following the sessions said that "there was full discussion of the Cole merger plan," but added that "both SAG and AFTRA committees have reservations regarding the organization plan drawn by Mr. David Cole." Mr. Cole was hired jointly by the two unions to draw up a plan for a merger if his studies should prove that merger is a feasible idea. His recommendations, issued early this year (BROADCASTING, Feb. 22), were strongly in favor of a merger.

After the meetings, which included a lengthy discussion of an alternative plan of mutual cooperation between the two organizations, both committees were to report back to their national boards. The SAG committee made its report last Monday (June 27) and was instructed to continue its exploration of the cooperation plan.

NEW COMPACT TUBE FROM GE

'Compactron' will reduce set cost and size

General Electric Co. last week (June 28) announced development of a new electronic device called "Compactron," a tube-like unit described as promising significant cuts in size and complexity of radios, tv sets, hi-fi, electronic organs and industrial gear.

In disclosing the potential of the Compactron, I. D. Daniels, general manager of GE's electronic components plants at Owensboro, Ky., said costs "will be reduced appreciably while preserving the superior performance characteristics of tubes in relation to other existing miniaturized devices."

A radio receiver using two Compactrons measures 2½ inches high and deep, 10½ inches wide, with most of the width ascribed to "the generous size of the speaker." Tv sets with the device would have 10 compactrons compared to present 15-tube circuits using three diodes, or 24 transistors and 11 diodes.

W. F. Greenwood, marketing manager at Owensboro, said savings in material and labor would make possible a 20% lower price per function than tubes and considerably lower than transistors, with marked simplicity in production methods and integration of more functions into a single unit. Sales potential is envisioned as "tens of millions of dollars by the end of 1962."

Compactrons will be especially useful in color tv, reducing bulk, expense and circuit complexity it was stated. A new anode material developed by GE and a supplier is said to cut heater power requirement of the cathode as much as 40%.

Merger talks start for Ampex and TMI

Ampex Corp., currently serving the data processing and computer industry with magnetic tape handling equipment through its subsidiary, Ampex Data Products Co., hopes to strengthen its service to this field through a merger with Telemeter Magnetics Inc. Negotiations are currently underway between the two companies, with George I. Long Jr., Ampex president, heading up his company's representatives, while Erwin Tomash, TMI president, is chief spokesman for his company.

TMI manufactures punched ferrite cores of various sizes, which are magnetically bistable and are a basic memory element in all modern computers. TMI is 85% owned by Paramount Pictures Corp. and is a spin-off from Paramount's International Telemeter Division, whose engineers, in developing memory apparatus for this company's pay-tv system, came up with other memory products not needed by pay tv but usable by manufacturers of computing equipment. So it was separated from ITC by Paramount and set up as a separate organization.

"We're both in the memory business," an Ampex spokesman said, "and combining forces will enable us to serve the computing and data processing industry more effectively." Despite TMI's previous relationship with IT, the telemeter pay tv system is in no way involved in the projected merger, he emphasized, nor has it any relationship to Ampex's operations in tape recording radio and tv programs.

Jerrold to redeem 1975 debentures

Milton J. Shapp, president of Jerrold Electronics Corp., Philadelphia, last week announced to stockholders at the annual meeting that a call has been issued for the redemption of the company's 6% convertible subordinated debentures, due June 1, 1975. The issue in the amount of $2,750,000 is Jerrold's only long-term debt, he stated, and the redemption offer is an indication of the company's increased financial strength. (For 1959 Jerrold figures, see BROADCASTING, June 13.)

Of the original convertible debentures, $400,000 worth was outstanding as of June 24. These bonds may be redeemed at the redemption price of 105% of the principal amount or they may be converted at the conversion price of $5.75. Thus each bond of $1,000 may be converted into 173 shares of Jerrold common stock, the company announced.

At the meeting Mr. Shapp told stockholders that for the first quarter ended May 31, 1960, sales are running at approximately last year's level. Jerrold does not report quarterly.

Olympic to produce color television sets

Olympic joined the still relatively small band of color television set producers last week.

The company's 1961 line will include a 21-inch color console with a suggested retail price of $695 and a "stereocenter" combination featuring a 21-inch color receiver, am-fm and phonograph for $995. The suggested prices are for mahogany cabinets; blonde costs $20 extra; walnut, $30.

The color sets are among 50 tv models in Olympic's new line. The "stereocenter" combinations can provide different audio programs at two locations simultaneously for am and fm stereo broadcasts.

Savers of space ■ General Electric's newest electronic development, the Compactron, is described as a space saver. Two Compactrons (right) are said to do the work of five miniature tubes (left) in performing identical functions in a radio receiver. The diagrams show the functional role of the old and new components. Research into new uses continues.

WHICH JOB WOULD YOU TAKE?

If you're like most of us, you'd take the job with the more tempting salary and the brighter future.

Many college teachers are faced with this kind of decision year after year. In fact, many of them are virtually bombarded with tempting offers from business and industry. And each year many of them, dedicated but discouraged, leave the campus for jobs that pay fair, competitive salaries.

Can you blame them?

These men are not opportunists. Most of them would do anything in their power to continue to teach. But with families to feed and clothe and educate, they just can't make a go of it. They are virtually forced into better paying fields.

In the face of this growing teacher shortage, college applications are expected to double within ten years.

At the rate we are going, we will soon have a very real crisis on our hands.

We must reverse this disastrous trend. You can help. Support the college of your choice today. Help it to expand its facilities and to pay teachers the salaries they deserve. Our whole future as a nation may depend on it.

It's important for you to know more about what the impending college crisis means to you. Write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, N.Y.

OUR RESPECTS TO . . .

Joseph Louis Herold

Joe Herold has been credited by his industry friends with what was, and may still be, a world's television record—from a box of paper clips to station programming in 28 days. This deft maneuver was accomplished in the Sept. 1-28 period in 1952, at KBTv (TV) Denver, second post-freeze station to go on the air.

At the time Joe had accumulated extensive experience as technical midwife to new tv stations. His first effort in this new art had taken place at WOW-TV Omaha, where he had been technical director under the late Johnny Gillin (WOW-AM-TV; KODY North Platte, Neb.). In 1947 Joe started his tv career by setting up a closed-circuit training program for the anticipated WOW-TV operation. With the title of tv manager, he had a staff already trained when WOW-TV took the air in the summer of 1949.

Two other developments important to his career took place in 1949. First he became interested in selling, a natural transition for any alert young man who had served many years under Johnny Gillin, one of the industry's top managers. Second, he agreed to a blind date with Lillian Mary Dixon, secretary to Harry Bannister at WWJ Detroit. Miss Dixon was stopping in Omaha on her summer vacation. The date eventually led to the altar.

Goodbye Omaha ■ After Johnny Gillin's death in July 1950, Joe's grief at the loss of his best friend developed into a case of itchy foot and he left Omaha after living there for two decades. Incidentally, he had been active in tv training at Creighton U. there, and many of his students are now in the industry. Many of the techniques he pioneered in Omaha are still standard operating procedure. Among industry "firsts" he is credited with microwave innovations, remote originations, educational programs and low-budget live commercials. He had conducted detailed costs analyses through weekly surveys of station operating costs.

All this tv experience equipped Joe for the assignment that took him from Omaha in 1950—television consultant for Union Radio & Television (CMUR-TV Havana, Cuba), where he supervised staff training and installation of the new station. A year later he performed a similar job at Radio Televisao, Paulista, at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

RCA called him next in anticipation of the end of FCC's freeze on tv station grants. With RCA he operated as an independent station-planning consultant, assisting in the design and organization of more than 20 U.S. stations. His "Tv Station Planning" series, worked out while at RCA, was circulated all over the world.

Denver Debut ■ Shortly after the freeze was lifted in the summer of 1952, Joe received an offer from the late Tom Eckerman of KVOd Denver to manage the then-authorized KBTv. He had helped put KFEL-TV, first post-freeze outlet, on the Denver air. There was a stock interest in the KBTv deal and he accepted. Work was started Sept. 1, programming was under way Sept. 28 and the formal debut took place Oct. 12.

"We were the only tv station ever written up in Field & Stream magazine," he recalls, explaining: "There was a fishing-worm hatchery in the basement of our temporary rented quarters."

Joe Herold is still at KBTv, serving as manager, but he retains a deep interest in the engineering side of television, a trait that dates back to the youthful days spent as "sparks" on Great Lakes steamers.

He's on the extrovertish side, earthy, often blunt, pleasant and mixes easily in a crowd. He oozes enthusiasm, especially when he starts talking about his mountain ranch in the Clear Creek Canyon area 35 miles west of Denver. This secluded paradise, at an elevation of 9,600 feet, provides a weekend hideaway, fine fishing for guests and a chance to display what he describes as an outstanding talent at a charcoal grill. Even at meetings in distant cities—the NAB Tv Code Review board in Washington, for example—he's apt to get a faraway look as he yearns for the whispering aspens and rainbow trout.

Tv Code Planner ■ The tv code connection provides an industry-service outlet he takes seriously, recognizing the need for nationwide video programming and advertising ethics that will meet the critical storm. He is chairman of the code board's planning subcommittee, which has been directing expansion of board membership and code operations.

Joe recognizes the need to show the public and government that voluntary regulation will work. His station was one of the first to join the code structure when it was set up in 1952. He loses his infectious grin when he hears the familiar charge that the NAB code group consists "of fat cats who can afford to throw out borderline and banned accounts," citing the board's diversified membership.

Joseph Louis Herold was born March 8, 1907, in Falls City, Neb. He took his secondary school training at Ursuline Convent. At 19 he moved to Valparaiso, Ind., attending Valparaiso U. He transferred after a year to the School of Engineering, located at Milwaukee. There he specialized in electronics and radio engineering, learning the code and getting his operator's ticket. His first job was on the SS Puritan, a passenger steamer.

Back Ashore ■ After a couple of years on the lakes, he developed a yearning for his native Nebraska and joined the engineering staff at WOW, not far from his old home town. Johnny Gillin was a student at Creighton U. and part-time announcer at WOW. The two became close friends. "We grew up together at WOW," Joe recalls. "When Johnny became manager, he made me technical supervisor."

He'll long be remembered for his role in staging the courtroom demonstrations that led the Colorado Supreme Court to admit cameras and microphones to court rooms. Besides a long list of civic roles, he is chairman of the Denver Area Tv & Radio Assn., formed to stage the court tests.

In his tv code function, he contends the ethical document must be thoroughly understood by all station personnel right down to the traffic girl who makes up the log.

He feels a moral obligation in his code service. "The industry has been good to me," he says. "The least I can do is to serve in what I regard as the most important of all industrywide functions."

KBTv's HEROLD

A long list of 'firsts' in tv

Last stand

IT'S now or never if broadcasters are to be spared imminent danger of being suspended or fined or both for infractions of any of the FCC's endless regulations.

The Harris amendments, incorporating the suspension and fine provisions, passed overwhelmingly last week after the author, Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), had mesmerized the House on a subject wholly unrelated to the legislation. His oration was directed against the exposé of congressional expense accounts in the Knight newspapers and Life. But the nation's broadcasters will take it on the chin unless there is a near-miracle between now and adjournment which, fortunately, is delayed until after the political conventions.

The penalty amendments, authorizing the FCC to suspend stations for up to 10 days and fine them $1,000 for each "offense", can be stopped only in the Senate, or by the unlikely extreme of presidential veto. Rep. Harris, by attaching his amendments to a Senate-passed bill (S 1898) covering unopposed procedural changes in the Communications Act, skillfully spirited this loaded legislation through the House. But his strategy boomeranged when the Senate Commerce Committee last week, instead of appointing conferees, decided on further hearings, since Mr. Harris & Co. had totally changed the nature of the Senate bill.

Broadcasters object only to the suspension and fine amendments. Contrary to what the House was told, there has been no opposition from responsible quarters to the provisions that would outlaw payola or quiz-rigging. Broadcasters welcome it. Certainly Time Inc., which publishes Life, and the Knight newspapers can't be accused of seeking to block the Harris amendments. They have been among the most vitriolic of the many newspapers and magazines that have attacked broadcasting.

Mr. Harris' anger over the expense account exposé is understandable. The Detroit Free Press stands accused of highly questionable ethics in publishing a purported elbow-bending picture of Rep. Harris which the congressman brands a phoney. And he was given the run-around by Knight executives when he tried to get an explanation. Mr. Harris made the most of this in his impassioned speech. Practically every member of the House, irrespective of party line, was sympathetic. The expense account exposé smeared all. Thus it was easy for the adroit Arkansan to sell his colleagues his amendments, lock, stock and loaded barrel.

However contrived, the deed is done in the House. We've said before that it would be far better to have no legislation at all at this session than to accept the Harris amendments with the suspension and fine provisions. Every Senator should be so importuned so that the word gets to the Senate Commerce Committee. And broadcasters must be prepared to put their best foot forward when hearings are held by the Senate Committee to expunge from S 1898 those House-imposed sanctions that sprang from frenzy rather than calm legislative deliberation.

Somewhere short of greatness

THE most descriptive word for the television networks' 1960-61 nighttime program schedules, so far as they can be judged from paper plans, is "competitive." If any network gains a measurable advantage, it will do so through superior production and execution rather than novel or even particularly imaginative program concepts.

An examination of the regular lineups, which were charted in detail in these pages a week ago, shows an astonishingly high number of new entries—46 programs or more than 40% of the weekly total. What makes the figure astonishing is that these new programs, though uncommonly large in number, do not promise to change the face of nighttime television in any significant degree. The percentages have changed somewhat, but not enough to avoid the impression that adventures have been replaced with adventures, westerns with westerns, situation comedies with situation comedies.

Television's critics will find nothing to cheer in this prospect, and little to applaud in the news that only about half as many specials—the glamor packages on today's tv shelves—are being planned this year as last. But the critics never cheer a schedule anyway, and are not apt to until it is dominated by whatever happens to be their private program fetish at the moment. They cry for more public-affairs programs, and there will be more of them this fall than ever before, both in the regular evening lineups and among the specials, but it is unarguable that there won't be enough to satisfy the professional belittlers.

We must confess that we would like to feel more excitement than we do in contemplating the regular weekly shows in the fall schedule. They contain an inadequate measure of the creative vitality that ought to be associated with television. For $6.8 million worth of weekly programming it looks awfully uninspired.

It is true, of course, that it is necessary to attract masses of people most of the time in order to inform or inspire them some of the time. Certainly, without audiences there would be no television—and this means the kind of television the critics like as well as the kind the people like. The new fall schedule cannot be accused of ignoring this fact of life. We have no doubt that the people will like it; indeed, we think it almost certain that audiences will be bigger than ever. Advertisers certainly cannot complain. But we cannot escape the nagging question: Is it enough for this medium to be good—when it could be great?

No reasonable person expects that greatness can be achieved in program after program, night after night throughout a season. At best, the majority of regularly scheduled programs can provide entertainment that is diverting if not elevating.

Yet the opportunity—and the urge—to do an occasional piece that will rise above the level of simple diversion must exist in television if the medium is to take maximum advantage of its unequalled physical resources.

It is this opportunity that seems lacking, in at least some degree, in the schedules that have been fashioned for next autumn.
