Pay-TV outlook

With approval of RKO General-Zenith pay tv experiment in Hartford imminent (probably within next couple of weeks since deadline on pleadings was Dec. 30) thought is being given at FCC to kind of limitations that might be placed on pay tv if service eventually is authorized. There has been no formal consideration and there can't be until tests on RKO General's ch. 18 WHCT (TV) prove feasibility of system.

But here are some of thoughts being brainstormed by FCC members: (1) Limit all pay tv operations to uhf where room for competitive service is available; (2) bar all advertising on pay tv, just as it is barred on police, citizens radio, industrial and other non-broadcast band services; (3) bar "free" tv broadcasters from engaging in pay tv operations (and vice versa) as means of preventing monopoly in same markets.

Power to daytimers

There's good news for 267 daytimers operating on Mexican clear channels. They'll soon be able to seek power boost from present 1 kw limit to 5 kw. Mexico last week notified State Department (and FCC) that standard broadcasting agreement, ratified by our Senate last February, had been approved by Mexican President. Formal exchange of ratification instruments expected in next fortnight, after which FCC will modify rules opening way for power boosts.

Unclear clears

FCC again has deferred consideration of 15-year-old clear-channel case, probably for several weeks, to enable engineering staff to come up with "new ideas." FCC has been deadlocked for several weeks (with Commissioner King not voting) on two proposals—one to duplicate 12 of 24 clears, and other providing for selective breakdown of all 24 clears. What are new ideas? So far engineers haven't evolved them.

Oversight again—Rating next?

It won't be called Legislative Oversight Subcommittee, but odds are 10-1 in favor of new unit to ride herd on independent agencies during 87th Congress. New Commerce subcommittee will be smaller than 9-man Oversight body (maybe 5) and probably will again be chaired by Rep. Oren Harris

CLOSED CIRCUIT®

(D-Ark.). Rep. Harris, also chairman of parent committee, met last Wednesday with Speaker Rayburn to develop strategy, with mild floor fight expected, because it will have permanent staff and appropriation. High on investigatory agenda will be airing of charge that program ratings have caused downgrading in radio-tv quality.

Genesis' exodus?

Some network officials are quietly pointing up importance of unions in future planning for additional live programming originations in New York. For example, CBS-TV is relating its estimated cost of newly-proposed studio facility (see story, page 27) to live tv's operating cost. Thus, unions are involved as to "whether or not they wish to maintain and advance live tv in New York" as one network official expresses it.

Ordinarily so-so statement, official's remark takes on significance because of its timing. It comes on eve of several negotiations: ABC-TV and NBC-TV with NABET today (Jan. 9); CBS-TV with IBEW (Jan. 16); all three networks with Local 1 of IATSE next month, and still pending network-Directors Guild of America negotiations.

Bottleneck breaker

Plan to break bottleneck at FCC submitted last week to Chairman Magnuson of Senate Commerce Committee, would create office of administrator who would handle all non-contested matters which constitute about 80% of FCC's business. Leonard Marks, Washington attorney who served as treasurer of Lyndon B. Johnson campaign, both for presidential nomination and for vice presidency, suggested legislation that would interpose administrator between staff and FCC. Only matters requiring policy judgments would reach FCC. Proposal comes in wake of Landis Report which was highly critical of log-jams at administrative agencies and failure to delegate non-policy matters.

New money for radio?

Mutual is seeking to lure new type of advertisers—those in heavy industry which supply parts for consumer products and/or those which are making at least some products for consumer markets as part of diversification moves. Mutual's theory is these companies, which advertise largely in business publications, can benefit by "semi-institutional" radio campaigns containing some elements of "hard-sell." Network is concentrating on group of such companies in Midwest and hopes to make some sales announcements shortly.

Consultants for life

Unique transaction involving sale of two Iowa radio stations whereby husband-wife owners, in addition to net purchase price of approximately $400,000, will also receive consulting fee for life of $10,000 annually, was consummated last week, subject to customary FCC approval. KBUR Burlington (250 w, 1490 kc) and KMCD Fairfield (250 w-D, 1570 kc) both ABC affiliates, owned by Mr. and Mrs. G. B. McDermott, age 63 and 60 respectively were sold to group headed by Jack Harris, newspaper publisher and owner of KIUL Garden City, Kan., and minority owner in KTVH (TV) Hutchinson-Wichita (5.25%) who acquires 56%.

Overall deal is for $450,000 for two stations, plus cash but minus obligations, or net of approximately $400,000. McDermotts will be paid $20,000 per year in instalments on purchase price, plus $10,000 consulting fee as long as either survives. Minority purchasers include Virginia Harris Rayl, niece of Mr. Harris, 16%; Bob Wells, manager KIUL, 8%; David Steinle, manager KBUR, 3%; William Hensen, manager KMCD, 7%, and Peter McDonald, 10%.

Pension plans 'must'

Pension and welfare funds seem to be becoming "must" for broadcast unions. Latest to seek p & w reported to be NABET for its members at ABC. NABET opens negotiations with NBC and ABC today (Jan. 9) in Cincinnati (see story, page 63). NABET members at NBC already covered under RCA pension plan. Screen Actors Guild won p & w for its members in recently-concluded negotiations and early last year Writers Guild of America pact extended coverage to members employed in live tv, radio and documentary films.

GEARED TO A GREATER DETROIT

President-elect John F. Kennedy and Michigan's new governor, John B. Swainson, interviewed by Dr. Dempsey of WJBK-TV.

Whether it's bringing a Detroit Lions football game from California, a Detroit Tiger baseball game from Briggs Stadium, or rousing an apathetic citizenry to public concern about Civil Defense, WJBK-TV gears its programming to the interests and needs of a greater Detroit and a greater Michigan.

Typical example: Channel 2's Community Projects activities, headed by Dr. John T. Dempsey, News and Public Affairs Director for WJBK-TV and Radio. Known to us and recognized by the community as one of the most highly qualified men in television, Dr. Dempsey is an associate professor at the University of Michigan where he earned his doctorate in political science. Both he and station management continually query hundreds of Detroit leaders to determine what subjects most need airing in the interest of a better community. Result: such timely discussions and documentaries as "Detroit's Daily Dilemma" (traffic); "The Human Side of Politics"; "Detroit's Survival" (civil defense); and "The Michigan Farmer", all presented by limelight personalities on WJBK-TV's Press Conference, Detroit Speaks and Project 2 programs.

This timely localized approach, plus continuing effort in all areas of public service, have come to be expected of WJBK-TV. Providing such service is far more than an assignment or obligation. It is our pride and pleasure to take this active part in the life of the big busy 5th market we serve, where month after month in ARB and Nielsen Channel 2 is audience leader.

Watchdog group plans hearings on election

Senate Watchdog Subcommittee Friday decided to hold week of hearings between Inauguration (Jan. 20) and end of month in its investigation of broadcaster coverage of election campaign.

Still to be determined, Chairman Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex.) said, are specific complaints to be aired and witnesses (including broadcasting industry people) to be called. Sen. Yarborough said staff will choose for hearings complaints that are "illustrative" of thousands received during committee's running investigation. (See story page 48).

He also announced subcommittee will publish complete record of all broadcast material dealing with presidential campaign, including "Great Debates" and all other radio and tv speeches, remarks, press conferences, etc., by Vice President Nixon and President-elect Kennedy, plus all 15-minute network newscasts during campaign. Also to be included are recorded remarks ad-libbed by candidates and never before published.

Record, which Sen. Yarborough believes will be first of its kind, is expected to run to six or seven volumes and will be published without subcommittee comment. Sen. Yarborough said record will be invaluable to Congress, in deliberating future of Sec. 315, as well as to political scientists, historians, broadcasters themselves and general public.

King policy adopted

FCC Commissioner Charles H. King won six-month-long procedural campaign when FCC on Friday announced it no longer would review initial decisions to which no one has objected and which would become effective at end of specified period of time without commission decision. (CLOSED CIRCUIT, Dec. 19, 1960). Only exception, FCC said, is in cases where license revocation is involved. Purpose is to improve efficiency of commission, it said.

Seattle renewals cleared

FCC last week removed all restrictions on its Dec. 7, 1960, license renewals to KING-AM-FM-TV Seattle and KIRO-AM-FM-TV, that city (BROADCASTING, Dec. 14, 1960). Renewal was conditioned on disposal of

Live Olympics

1964 Olympics in Japan will be seen live in U. S. via tv space communication satellites. This is prediction of Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, assistant director of federal government's National Aeronautics & Space Administration. His bet is that active relay satellite system will be operating at 3,000-6,000 mile orbits by then with capability of one tv channel (4.5 mc). Dr. Dryden's estimate was made at White House when presidential policy favoring privately owned space communications systems was announced (AT DEADLINE, Jan. 2).

minor trust in KIRO stations held by Pacific National Bank of Seattle. Majority of commissioners originally raised duopoly question insofar as Mrs. A. Scott Bullitt, majority owner of KING stations, is also on board of directors of that bank. Two weeks ago KING asked reconsideration of conditions of renewal (BROADCASTING, Jan. 2). Chairman Frederick W. Ford dissented to last week's action.

Management survey of FCC

Chicago-based consultant firm of Booz, Allen & Hamilton has been commissioned by Budget Bureau to make independent management survey of FCC, it was learned Friday (Jan. 6). Final contract will be signed shortly and such studies usually take three to six months, it was reported. Commission had asked for survey in effort to improve its efficiency (BROADCASTING, Dec. 5, 1960). BA&H also has Washington office from which survey will be conducted.

3M gift to tv center

For second time in little over year Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co., St. Paul, parent company of Mutual Broadcasting System, will supplement Ford Foundation grant to National Educational Television & Radio Center with additional gift of its own. Non-commercial "network" will receive from 3M $250,000 worth of video-tape for use by new educational tv stations in addition to an almost $2 million contribution given center by Ford Foundation last month (BROADCASTING, Dec. 26, 1959). Previously 3M gave center $10,000 worth of vtr which accompanied earlier foundation grant of $2,706,000.

Sec. 315 deletion asked by Magnuson

Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.), Senate Commerce Committee chairman, on Friday introduced expected bill (S 204) to make permanent 1960 temporary suspension of Sec. 315 affecting presidential and vice presidential candidates (story page 48).

He told Senate last fall's "Great Debates," made possible by one-shot lifting of equal-time clause, should become fixture of national campaigns.

Scheduled for introduction today (Monday) is bill by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) providing for government reimbursement to major parties (those receiving over 10% of vote) up to $1 million, and minor parties (those receiving between 1 and 10% of vote) up to $100,000, for radio-tv time bought in behalf of presidential candidates.

Sarnoff names three to executive vp posts

Election of William R. McAndrew, William K. McDaniel and Aaron Rubin to executive vice president posts at NBC and of Julian Goodman to vice president is being announced today (Jan. 9) by NBC Board Chairman Robert W. Sarnoff.

Mr. McAndrew has headed NBC News since 1954 and was named vice president in 1958. Mr. McDaniel has been vice president, NBC Radio network, since 1960 and earlier had been vice president in charge of sales for radio network. Mr. Rubin has served as vice president and treasurer of NBC since last May. They will continue to function in same areas as executive vice presidents. Mr. Goodman, director of news and public affairs for NBC since 1949, has been with NBC News since 1945.

Farm Bureau chides CBS

American Farm Bureau board of directors Friday castigated CBS for Nov. 25 "Harvest of Shame," Murrow-Friendly documentary on migratory labor. Farm Bureau called show "highly colored propaganda" containing "errors of fact and omission." Referring to it as "rigged documentary," Farm Bureau sent copies of resolution to CBS, FCC, Philip Morris and congressional committees.

McLendon Ebony Radio... the Nation's highest rated Negro group

John McLendon, President and General Manager • Represented nationally by John E. Pearson Co.

The Longest Night of the Year

This was headquarters on judgment day. More than 68,000,000 Americans had taken part in the nation's largest and most important audience participation program. The returns were just starting to come in.

Nowhere had participation been more spirited than here in Central Ohio where WBNS-TV was born and raised. The record-high voter turn-out was a climax to the record interest in our coverage of the primaries, conventions, the four great debates and the major political rallies down to "the last hurrah."

On the issues closest to home, WBNS-TV took a strong editorial position. Through on-the-screen films and narrative, we supported bond issues for metropolitan parks, safer grade crossings, adequate sewage disposal and improved recreation facilities. Our advice did not go unheeded. Proponents of these measures give WBNS-TV credit for a major assist in their overwhelming passage.

This is gratifying proof WBNS-TV can sell good ideas as well as good merchandise to an alert, informed community. This advertising axiom bears repeating: "If you want to be seen in Central Ohio — WBNS-TV."

ATV in Canada

EDITOR: . . . your article on page 93 of the Dec. 5 issue . . . "United States, British interests buying part of CHAN-TV" . . . the last paragraph referring to Associated Television Ltd. is incorrect. . . .

Associated Television Ltd. of London, England, has the following interests in Canada: (1) Totally owns Canastel Broadcasting Corp. Ltd. (2) Owns 25% interest in CJCH Ltd., Halifax, N.S.

[ATV has] no other interests in Canada except those in CHAN [Vancouver, B.C.] which are subject to approval by Canadian Board of Broadcast Governors. Associated Television fully owns ITC of New York, who in turn owns ITC of Canada Ltd., a Canadian subsidiary. We have no interest in CJSS Cornwall, CHOV Pembroke or CJON Ottawa.—W. Jones, Associated Television Ltd., Ajax, Ont.

Highlight of defense

EDITOR: . . . Your editorials in 1960, in my way of thinking, have been extremely well planned and are a highlight in the broadcasters' defense against the continuing inroads of government control and senseless interference. It is a shame that an industry as great and as powerful as ours cannot organize a united defense against these encroachments that have been so prevalent in 1960. . . . —Jack Roth, General Manager, KONO San Antonio.

Big brother is listening

EDITOR: After reading the "Big brother is closely monitoring you" article Dec. 19 (page 50) concerning the FCC's program monitoring, I couldn't help but think how easily the FCC's philosophy in issuing citations could be applied by the broadcaster; i.e., "When in doubt, don't broadcast it."

The first four points listed as "prime targets for the tape" for the most part would never have been executed had station management used discretion.—Jack Gilbert, JMG Radio Programming Consultants, San Francisco.

Appreciation

EDITOR: We compliment the television industry for the increase in the number of current worthwhile programs. The creative political coverage, the increase in serious educational features, the inclusion of more cultural programs and the continued availability of tv facilities to appropriate religious programs, is to us an indication that the industry is taking seriously its public service responsibility. We especially appreciate the continued efforts of NAB and the co-operating stations to maintain a code which eliminates many objectionable items, including the advertisement of hard liquor.

. . . We encourage continued efforts to decrease the featuring of crime, violence, sex and alcoholic beverages and to relegate such programs as are continued to other than prime viewing hours of children and youth.

Further . . . we feel free to set forth our hope that this influence may be used, even though it is in a commercial context, to help us Americans rise above our preoccupation with material things. . . . Lewis E. Strite, President, Mennonite Broadcasts Inc., Harrisonburg, Va.

Clarification

EDITOR: The item in BROADCASTING (AT DEADLINE, Dec. 19, 1960) is in error. I transferred only 50% of WJPB-TV and would appreciate correction.—J. Patrick Beacom, President, WJPB-TV Fairmont, W. Va.

[BROADCASTING, in translating FCC legalisms into layman's language, sometimes fails to make the translation crystal clear, in this case saying that an FCC examiner had approved transfer by Mr. Beacom of WJPB-TV to Thomas P. Johnson, George W. Eby and himself. What should have been said is that Mr. Beacom simply transferred 50% of WJPB-TV to Messrs. Johnson and Eby and retained the other 50%.]

Goodman has 'Money'

EDITOR: Thanks so much for the article you ran on page 42 of the Dec. 12 issue about our radio feature, Your Money and You. There was only one trouble. You left out the "who," the fact that we distribute the show. In fact, one fellow, Herb Levin of WMAJ State College, Pa., went to the trouble of phoning your magazine to find out who the distributor was. And so, let it be known to one and all that we, Harry S. Goodman Productions Inc., 19 East 53d St., New York City, are the distributor of Don Rogers' Your Money and You.—Everett Goodman, Vice President, Harry S. Goodman Productions Inc., New York.

EDITOR: Will you be kind enough to send the latest copies of your BROADCASTING Yearbook to the following people: Most Rev. Joseph B. Houlihan, D.D., P. O. Box 630, Eidoret, Kenya, British East Africa, and Most Rev. James Moynagh, D.D., Catholic Mission, Calabar, Nigeria, West Africa. Kindly send the books to the above mentioned Bishops and send the invoice for them to me . . . —*Most Rev. Fulton J. A UPI MAN
IS AT THE SCENE

Get rid of the corn borer by getting rid of the corn

It's easy enough to criticize the people who are responsible for television commercials, but there's one thing you've got to say for us: we know how to take a joke.

We've been the butts of some pretty mean gags for years now, and yet we never complain, we never explain. For that matter, we never change, either, which may account for the durability of some of the jokes. Take the New Yorker drawing of a group of scientists in the laboratory of a cigarette company. One shows his colleague a cigarette and says: "It's passed all the tests for coolness, kindness and freshness. Now if there was only some way we could keep it from tasting lousy."

The cartoon was published 30 years ago. It's held up pretty well, too. "Kindness" may be a bit creaky, but without "coolness," "mildness," "freshness," tax stamps and tobacco, you couldn't recognize a cigarette today.

Advertising talk, delivered with a straight face, was great stuff 30 years ago. It was even funny, say, five years ago. But like any joke told too many times, it's getting to be a bore. Yet we go right on with the same language. Funny in 1931, not so funny in 1961, when it's going to be dished out to the tune of $14 billion worth. That many clichés sets up quite a drone, and people who once laughed, then took to the faucets, then began nodding off, are now beginning to complain.

Wrong Phew ■ So far we've managed to hold them off. When we're asked to answer for the really heinous crime of boring everyone half out of their wits, we dig up two other crimes and answer for them.

One is that we're exaggerating, distorting the facts, even (perish forbid) lying! As if (a) anybody was being fooled; or (b) anybody would prefer our amorphous, soporific truths to a whole-hearted, wide-awake lie. Nonetheless, we promise to mend our ways, police ourselves, throw the rascals out.

The second charge is that we're forcing people to buy things they don't need. Since we dreamed up the crime, it's easy for us to dream up the answer. We say yes, we're guilty, if forcing people to buy an extra Beethoven record (etc.) is a crime. Just the notion that advertising forces people to do anything, except maybe yawn loudly, at least proves that we haven't lost our sense of humor.

Anyway, the jokes about advertising talk go on, and so does the advertising talk. Can you imagine some of the words we put in announcers' mouths coming out of the mouths of acquaintances? A Y&R house ad tried to reconstruct the scene:

First man (to friend at club): "Have a good lunch?"

Second man: "Yes, indeed. . . . It was packed with delicious flavor—some goodness . . . and every bite was chock full of wholesome nourishment, too . . . including energy, minerals, vitamins, and protein . . . the food elements so vital to robust good health."

Boring In ■ Do you see what I mean? Most of us are bores. Unmitigated, undiluted, uninterrupted bores! The G-Men say we're making our shaving cream too thick; we admit only to selling too many violins; and in the meanwhile the audience is being pushed to the edge of distraction. It isn't only our inane, isolated words, either. We think boring thoughts. We let them coagulate into boring slogans (Mort Sahl: "I don't see why Pepsi-Cola changed agencies. After all, the old agency came up with that great slogan . . . 'Drink Pepsi'").

Assuming that it's not all a plot to lull the FTC's Mr. Kintner to sleep, we'd better do something before the vigilantes get us. Well, what can we do?

Two popular approaches won't work. The first is to try overpowering the clichés with production extravaganzas. But dull ideas are hard to cover. You can hire Steve Elliot or Irving Penn or Sam Goldwyn, you can use a dozen cameras and a cast of thousands, you can put opticals on top of opticals and you can shoot the whole thing in color. If the basic idea about the product is a bore, the commercial will be, too.

A second approach that won't work is to stick a bunch of typical viewers in a room, show them your commercials, measure their reactions and take comfort in the fact that they're awake when the lights go on. The catch is that next to being a traffic cop or a movie vamp, being a judge is just about everybody's idea of heaven. The typical viewer gets over-stimulated and suddenly he isn't typical any more. Nothing bores him. You could show him seven reels of academy leader and he'd still be wide-eyed. But let him look at those commercials on tv at home, after a few arguments with kids and a couple of beers, and he'll be sound asleep before you can say "Air-Cushioned Vibrated ride with a Clean Look of Action."

Boreproof ■ One unpopular approach has a better chance. It's to give the writer and/or art director an opportunity to become genuinely enthusiastic about the product by getting to know all about it. If he's enthusiastic, and if he has a way with words and pictures (a talent worth cultivating if you're a writer or art director). . . . Then he can't be a bore.

If this sounds like obeisance to clients, it shouldn't. Any agency that doesn't believe in what the client sells is in trouble.

The single quality that runs through every good advertisement is conviction: exuberant, vigorous, honest conviction. It's easy to be sold by a salesman who believes in what he's selling. That belief can move mountains of merchandise. In the agency business, it separates the men from the boys.

Back at the typewriter and drawing board, start with honest convictions and you're three-quarters of the way home. Communicate them with some imagination, and ennui will never set in.

I hope we do something about all this. I want my children to grow up in the soaring, not snoring, sixties.

Fred Papert, after graduation from the U. of Missouri in 1946, became a copywriter for Al Paul Lefton Co. Later he was with Benton & Bowles and Young & Rubicam, and became copy supervisor on Rheingold beer at Foote, Cone & Belding in 1955. The following year he joined Kenyon & Eckhardt as creative supervisor on Pepsi Cola. After a time as an advertising consultant, he opened his own agency in January 1960 and billings have gone from $75,000 to over $5 million.

PRODUCTION TURNING EASTWARD?

- $10 million CBS-TV center in Manhattan will boost efficiency
- ABC-TV's new 30-story building planned for upper West Side
- NBC-TV's New York originations show no slackening of pace

The first positive sign that the New York-to-Hollywood trend in network television production could be stemmed, if not reversed, was seen last week as CBS-TV prepared to spend $10 million or more on its New York production facilities.

The move was seen as having great potential for eventually expanding the overall volume of live tv programming.

CBS-TV has authorized an architect firm to prepare preliminary plans for centralizing its production facilities in Manhattan. Last week the network announced that Charles Luckman Assoc., hired for this purpose, has been asked to complete plans and estimates by April 1961.

CBS officials said that concentration of the greater chunk of its widely scattered New York studios under one mid-Manhattan roof would give the network greater flexibility in meeting any additional production demands.

There was uncertainty, however, whether a general boost in New York-originated network production could be expected in the next few years. But contrary to a widely-held belief, said some network officials, a substantial volume of production remains in New York despite the conversion of some of the network schedule from live (in New York) to film (in Hollywood). And live drama for that matter hasn't yet set in the West nor disappeared from network logs. There's been indication that there is life yet in the live tv drama form with injections each season of new blood (BROADCASTING, Aug. 29, 1960).

Though not guaranteeing an expansion in New York production, CBS authorities emphasized in discussing the new building plans that they were in no way limiting such a possibility and certainly were not curtailing the facilities now available and in use.

The existence of tape, moreover, has permitted additional flexibility in production schedules and thus opened the way toward greater efficiency in the use of studio facilities. It is this efficiency that CBS-TV notes would be accomplished with an expanded studio production center. The site is an existing production plant on West 57th Street (near 11th Avenue) which CBS owns. Efficiency would be enhanced, the CBS people say, because the new studio plant would be designed specifically for the tv medium, unlike the many theatres, movie houses and the like that have been converted for tv use.

Westward Movement ■ There's little doubt that a general exodus has been on from New York in series originations. In the 1955-56 season, for example, the three tv networks together were averaging about 25 hours of live nighttime network production in New York each week. The current season averages some six hours of regular series produced live (or on tape) in New York each week, but added to these hours are the numerous specials, both entertainment and information, as well as news shows. In addition the volume of daytime program production in New York is heavier now.

CBS-TV still has the heaviest New York-originated regular nighttime production schedule. Among the CBS-TV regulars are Candid Camera, What's My Line?, To Tell the Truth, The Garry Moore Show, I've Got a Secret, The U.S. Steel Hour and Witness.

Additionally, the bulk of CBS-TV's daytime schedule (particularly serials) falls into the New York area as do those of NBC-TV, while ABC-TV, hardly in daytime tv a few years ago, has been originating shows from New York since it began day programming.

The CBS-TV plant on 57th Street now contains production facilities, storage and rehearsal halls. Under pending plans, the rehearsal halls would be

Now a Television City for New York?

Charles Luckman, the architect engaged by CBS-TV to design a production center in Manhattan, figured importantly in the design of the network's Television City in Hollywood, (see photo above).

At the time of the Hollywood construction, Mr. Luckman was a partner in the architect firm of Pereira & Luckman. Before that he was president of Lever Bros. and was instrumental in the planning of Lever House on Park Avenue, New York, one of the style-setters in post-World War II office building construction.

A few years ago Mr. Luckman established his own architect firm, Charles Luckman & Assoc. His plans for the new CBS-TV production center in New York aren't due for several months, but unless they deviate sharply from his usual style, the center will be an island of modern design amid the old buildings on Manhattan's West Side.

eliminated, the roof literally raised and the building reconstructed to provide a minimum of seven studios for "basic requirements" as well as associated production and distribution facilities for tv.

CBS-TV President James T. Aubrey Jr. emphasized that the project was not related to still another project, already announced. The latter involves plans for a new CBS headquarters building on the east side of the Avenue of the Americas (Sixth Avenue) between 52nd and 53rd Streets, scheduled for occupancy in 1964.

Another Project ■ ABC-TV for some time has had preliminary drawings of a 30-story headquarters building that would be erected on the site of the network's present New York offices in the mid-sixties west of Central Park. The buildings now on the plot would be razed to make way for the new construction that would contain a complex of tv studios, including color equipment, and generally described as the future center for ABC production in the East.

ABC-TV's proposed construction still is in the planning stage with a completion date now targeted for 1964 (originally it had been set for 1962).

The ABC-TV buildings would rise to the north of the proposed Lincoln Center (containing a complex of buildings for the performing arts and including outlets for tv originations). CBS-TV's studio site lies to the south of this zone in an area earmarked for development of luxury apartments, hospital buildings, a New York Times building and other construction.

NBC-TV reports it is fully able to handle existing production demands and any pressures for stepped-up production in the future. Aside from its studios in the RCA Building at Rockefeller Center, NBC-TV operates two Brooklyn color studios, three black-and-white studios on 67th Street and the old Ziegfeld and Colonial Theatres. The Hudson Theatre, formerly used for tv originations (Jack Paar Show) has been dark for about a year. Officials at that network say that "statistically we are originating as much television in New York as we ever have."

CBS-TV currently has 14 studios in operation but widely scattered about New York. Network authorities estimate that the new plant on their owned-site could easily handle the equivalent of nine of these leased studios and additional demands could be met by continuing a leasing arrangement for outside studio space.

As expressed by one official: "The significance in our proposed building is in the dollars involved in the facility. This shows a faith in our medium and in New York as a continuing production center." Officials declined to estimate the cost, but elsewhere speculation ranged from $10 million up.

It also was pointed out that the lack of centralized facilities in New York is partly to blame for the transfer of much tv production to Hollywood.

DUPONT MAY REVAMP ITS TV

Budget, mostly network tv, will probably remain there with changes made in programming approach

E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. is reviewing its television advertising for next season. Sponsor and agency may decide to sign off shows they have on the air now and try a new tv approach. A possibility is one big new show for all the company's "better things for better living through chemistry." DuPont's tv budget for 1960 has been estimated at $7 million gross, mostly network.

Another chemical company is reconsidering network plans for the current season. Dow Chemical Co., nearer the million-dollar tv network level, may reallocate part of the budget originally planned for The Dow Hour of Great Mysteries on NBC-TV. Both the duPont and Dow deliberations are presumed to be about format and scheduling. Both are expected to continue putting substantial emphasis on network tv.

DuPont currently has divisional monies in separate pocketbooks, budgeting separately for corporate advertising on The duPont Show of the Month, for fibers on The June Allyson Show, both CBS-TV programs, and variously for antifreeze products participating in evening shows on all three networks. The monthly 90-minute special, started in 1957-58, and the weekly Allyson half hour, now in its second season, could be casualties in the new planning for next year. (The latter show moved Jan. 2 from Thursday to Monday nights at 10:30 after CBS-TV shook up its Thursday lineup.)

DuPont tv expenditures practically tripled from 1956 to 1960, all billed by BBDO. Another product group, household paints, made tentative local beginnings in tv last year through N. W. Ayer & Son.

Dow has used its mystery hours on NBC-TV for Dowgard antifreeze. The seasonal nature of this business has been offered as a possible explanation for revising plans that originally called for the specials, which started last spring, to go on through next April, for 12 weeks altogether. Seven have been fulfilled, three last season and four in the fall. The 12-show contract with producer Robert Saudek continues in force, lending credence to reports that Dow may pick some new format and advertise other products. Dow makes Zefran textile fiber, a plastic wrapping and other products in the chemical-metal-plastic line.

RAB's pitch for furniture ads

When it comes to buying furniture the woman is the decision-maker 60% of the time, according to a Radio Advertising Bureau report on the furniture industry. The survey, "Top Drawer Medium for Furniture: Radio," links the importance of the female buyer with the large distaff audience available to radio advertisers. According to RAB, young housewives who are starting families and buying homes listen to the radio 17 hours and 18 minutes weekly.

Metrecal's 'semi-institutional' approach

Weight-control Metrecal is defying the proponents of the hard-sell in its first use of television.

The Metrecal showcase is the weekly ABC-TV series treating the Winston Churchill Memoirs (The Valiant Years on Sunday night) on which the advertiser began sponsorship Jan. 1.

The commercials shown on that date (except for the dedication commercial) were to have been repeated yesterday (Jan. 8). They stress an approach that is labeled "semi-institutional" by Metrecal's agency, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York, for want of a more descriptive term.

As explained last week, the "semi-institutional" commercials were demanded by the client itself, the Edward Dalton Co., a newly-created division of Mead Johnson Co., Evansville, Ind. Credited with much of the "creative thinking" is Robert Sessions, a top executive in the Dalton company.

Shown on the Jan. 1 show were three commercials (see pictures): A 90-second "dedication" commercial (b); a two-minute commercial titled "overweight" (c) and a one-minute "closing epilogue" commercial (d).

Public Service? ■ The last commercial is perhaps the most institutional of the three and, in fact, appears to be something of a "public service" message. Using Churchillian phraseology ("not alone in the dark and curtained areas or in the troubled corners of the world . . . the fearful sound of tyranny can echo again." Used as a backdrop is a rear projection screen which is described as the "largest in the East." Flashed on the screen is newsreel footage of the Budapest revolt, of a Congo riot, of the U. S. Capitol, a playground, a meeting hall, a country lane, the United Nations building, etc. The narrator, Martyn Green, theatre and tv actor, appears in all the commercials (he's in the role of Metrecal's "commercial

After the news film footage is run off, Mr. Green gets in a sole and quick plug—"This program is proudly presented by Edward Dalton Co., the makers of Metrecal . . ."

The "overweight" commercials run for two minutes with the camera concentrating all of the attention on a walking man (only his back is seen) who appears to be about 20 pounds overweight. Explained the agency: "The viewer is more inclined to the medical words if his attention is not distracted." The image of a man of medium build but not obese who walks his lonely path in the snow (filmed in between two snow storms) makes up most of the film except for a short interval when he strolls through a playground filled with children and attempts to pick up a basketball but is unable to and kicks it instead.

This film, however, is "in taste." It opens with shots of paintings and sculpture (in keeping with the Vali- ner-Lambert's 52-week order for its Listerine product was effective Jan. 5, while Bandstand newcomer International Shoe Co.'s 46-week contract begins Feb. 15 and Goodrich participation starts in March.

Family Products Dept. of Chas. Pfizer & Co. (pharmaceuticals), Brooklyn, is trying a humorous radio approach, with heavy Bob & Ray schedules on 19 stations across country. For Candettes throat product, the advertiser is using around 50 one-minute announcements and 30-second spots per week on each station till spring. Agency: Leo Burnett, Chicago.

■ An extensive tv campaign will be launched next spring by Edward H. Weiss & Co. on behalf of its client, Wishbone Salad Dressings Div. of Thos. J. Lipton Inc., as part of its multi-million dollar advertising campaign. The Tv drive, probably spot, will be augmented by a print campaign.

ant Years technique) and then moves into the "walking man" sequence.

Pity and Scorn ■ Depicted in the narration is the danger of overweight—"Through the years, overweight has been pictured in terms of pity and, at times scorn"—but also makes the point that fat men are more likely to die suddenly than the slender. Authoritative studies on overweight are reported on as the man is followed by the camera, and as he begins to climb stairs (see picture) three medical check points are cited for the overweight.

The only Metrecal is at the very end—"these thoughts are brought to you by the Edward Dalton Co. etc." At no time in any commercial is there a product shot or brand name shown on the screen.

Filmed initially were five commercials which took up 10 production days. Production house was Filmways in New York with outside shooting in Central Park. William Gargan Jr. (son of the motion picture actor), radio-tv production supervisor, Kenyon & Eckhardt, and Al Sarasohn, vice president-creative group head at the agency who worked on the scripts, are among the executive talent used on the commercials.

Los Angeles station accepts liqueur ads

If there's any public revulsion toward liqueur advertising on radio, KDAY Los Angeles hasn't discovered it. After two weeks of broadcasting commercials for Kahlua liqueur, the station told BROADCASTING it had not received a single phone call or letter of protest.

Liqueur advertising is not acceptable under the NAB radio and television codes, which base their bans on the internal revenue definitions. On the other hand beer, wine, champagne and other fermented beverages are acceptable.

Mal Leeds, general manager of KDAY, said the station will not accept any hard liquor advertising but he does not include liqueurs such as Kahlua (coffee flavored) in that category. It is more than a wine, he pointed out, though not drunk so freely. He classed it as an after-dinner beverage.

The commercials—placed by Marks-Jules Berman & Assoc., Beverly Hills firm distributing Kahlua nationally—consist of one-minute comedy spots broadcast on KDAY 12 times a week on a 13-week schedule that started Dec. 19. The transcribed spots feature a bull-fighter and stooge extolling the merits of the liqueur in comedy dialogue.

A spokesman for the sponsor said other radio stations that had been offered the account classed it as unacceptable.

Cliff Gill, KEZY Anaheim, Calif., chairman of the NAB Radio Code Board, said he could not discuss the KDAY position since the station is neither an NAB member nor a code subscriber. However, Mr. Gill said the Kahlua advertising is indicative of a national trend and the matter will come before the code board at its Jan. 12-13 meeting in Washington. He added any code subscriber is entitled to a board ruling or interpretation on the acceptability of Kahlua or similar products.

50% don't remember tv commercial—Feldman

Half the viewers don't remember a commercial right after they've seen it, George Feldman, senior vice president and creative director of Young & Rubicam, New York, told the eighth annual seminar of the American Marketing Assn. Half of all advertising is "pure waste," a drain that could be alleviated if the copy were made believable, he told the marketers, meeting in Toronto Friday (Jan. 6).

People like advertising, a "fashionably intellectual" anti-advertising point of view to the contrary, Mr. Feldman said in his speech on "Communicating With the Consumer." Tv commercials are a favorite target, but the agency man has research to show that most individuals say they like most commercials.

It's getting harder to sell because of increasing sophistication, wide choice and "a general increase in the sense of fairness" in Mr. Feldman's view. "Witness the empathy there must be for the often unfairly treated Brand X now that various products have come out under that label." Yet comparison, if handled honestly, "and the consumer senses this," can be believable and effective, Mr. Feldman allowed, citing Cheer (Procter & Gamble), a Young & Rubicam account.

Simplicity, good taste and authority all help the advertiser make a commercial case, marketers were reminded. Mr. Feldman had a good word, too, for advertising that doesn't take itself too seriously, citing the tv success of Arthur Godfrey and Garry Moore as "no accident."

The element of authority can be critical in broadcast advertising, Mr. Feldman said. The Borden Co. tested five different "presenters" filming the same commercial message and on testing got recall and belief scores ranging from 35% for one to 80% for another.

The Y&R executive had a word of caution against nibbling a good idea to death, the agency's responsibility for defending it and maintaining a proper atmosphere for creativity.

No sales decision yet on U. S. data report

Preliminary discussions of plans for the pricing and sale of the forthcoming report on the living standards, finances and social traits of U.S. radio and television homes (BROADCASTING, Jan. 2) were held in New York last Thursday (Jan. 5).

The meeting led to no firm decisions but will be followed by another session. It was attended by representatives of NAB, TvB and S. J. Tesaro & Co. of Detroit, which holds a contract from the Census Bureau to prepare the report from Census Bureau data. RAB representatives were unable to attend but are expected to be present when the next meeting is held, possibly this week, participants reported.

The report, due to be completed next fall, has been described as the first county-by-county and city-by-city compilation of data on U.S. business and social life ever attempted. The price to general subscribers will be $3,000 for the complete set, but NAB, RAB, TvB and the Tesaro company hope to halve that cost for broadcasters under a plan initiated by Richard Allerton, NAB research manager. Thus broadcasters would be able to get the data for their coverage areas at a cost of about $1 per county.

Agencies de-merge due to 'conflict of interest'

Because of a "conflict of interest" between accounts of Grant Adv. and of Robinson, Fenwick & Haynes the five-month-old merger of the two national and Los Angeles agencies has been dissolved and each agency retains the accounts it previously handled. Grant, which had moved into the RF&H headquarters building at 1111 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, has returned to its former location, the Hollywood Taft Bldg. at Hollywood and Vine. Robert L. Del-

'Open End' satire used to push coffee sales

Another premium-priced coffee is taking to the air, this one with a "discussion show." Manger Hotels Coffee signed on as a sponsor of Open End last night (Jan. 8) over WNTA-TV New York with its own free-for-all titled "Either End." Adaptations of the commercial satire will be used in spot, distribution to be pushed forth nationally from markets where Manger's 14 hotels are located. A planned radio campaign may use a modified version of

"Either End."

Copy for Manger Hotels, a brand that dates back to 1906, was prepared by the Wexton Co., New York. One point made is the product's Colombian content, taking advantage of a million-dollar tv spot campaign by the National Federation of Coffee Growers of Colombia (placed by Doyle Dane Bernbach, New York).

To make its satirical (and serious-selling) points, "Either End" is done in a kind of stop-motion camera technique. Dialogue is synchronized to dozens of still shots that show comic panels discussing, disputing and drinking coffee.

Manger Hotels Coffee sponsors the 11-11:30 p.m. portion of the David Susskind panel show programmed by WNTA-TV Sundays, 10 p.m. to conclusion. The advertiser also has ordered morning time on WNBC-TV New York and will start in other markets on a schedule still to be announced.

At a production session one of the "Either End" actors cues a scene that focusses on byplay between "Sylvia Spivak (I), eminent divorce lawyer," and the bored "Prof. Hickman Brood, marriage counselor" (yawning). "Moderator" at left warms up for the scene with a Susskind-like gesture as "Dr. Frank Bailey, author of linger, Grant vice president, who has been named general manager of the agency's Los Angeles operation, said that as soon as more space can be secured in the building he will expand his present staff.

'Children Are No Excuse,' delays his characterization to identify the shot. The resulting take shows conflicting reactions to a discussion of "Marriage and love: do they really go together?" Conflict is brewing not only over the marriage question but over one panelist's refusal to drink coffee.

Grant will handle local accounts with the Grant agency prior to the merger. These include The Marquardt Corp., Dr. Pepper Metropolitan Bottlers Group, Tidewater Oil International, and Chrysler Air Temp.

Advertising accounts formerly with Robinson, Fenwick & Haynes will continue with that organization. These include Los Angeles Dept. of Water and Power, Packard Bell Electronics, Loma Linda Food Co., New Products Div. of Schick Safety Razor Co., Leo's Quality Foods, Western Federal Savings & Loan Assn., California Dried Fig Advisory Board, and some half dozen other companies.

Average U. S. income up again

The average (median) income of U. S. families reached a record $5,400 in 1959, a gain of $330 or 6% over 1958, according to the Census Bureau. The median income of individuals was $2,600, which was $130 or 5% higher than 1958. Breakdowns by types of employees are included.

Why a low opinion of marketing research?

Most top management executives underestimate the value of marketing research today. But this is due in large part to the failure of the researchers to communicate their findings effectively to management.

This is the opinion of the majority of 100 midwest marketing executives surveyed Thursday (Jan. 5) during a joint meeting of the Chicago chapters of the American Marketing Assn. and the American Statistical Assn. The study was conducted by a research team from Market Facts Inc., Chicago, in a practical demonstration of how advertisers and agencies can obtain fast answers to modern marketing problems. The demonstration was under the supervision of Dave Hardin, executive vice president of Market Facts Inc. and president of AMA's Chicago chapter.

The study also found that in the opinion of 63% of the marketing executives the contribution of motivational research is being "oversold" by its practitioners, 26% felt "mr" has been undersold. Although the basic validity of the research itself was not questioned, 41% felt statistically oriented research that is based on advanced mathematical and probability theories has been undersold and is just beginning to realize its full potential; 35% felt this type research is correctly positioned in terms of its overall contribution.

Marketing research today makes its best contribution in the area of new product development, the study found. The other areas, in order, are: overall marketing strategy, distribution planning, advertising copy testing, media selection and price planning.

Compared to today, marketing research activities in five years will be "much greater" in the opinion of 71% of the respondents. Twenty-eight percent said it would be "a little greater."

Only 3% of those surveyed felt this future growth in market research will take place in advertising agencies; 21% said the growth would fall to independent research companies that engage primarily in the collection of data or syndicated research studies; 43% said independent research companies that engage primarily in conducting special surveys, and 33% said fully integrated manufacturer research departments would get the new expansion.

SPOT TV EXPENDITURES ARE SURGING

Petry report shows 71% increase in period from 1956-59

A study by Edward Petry & Co. shows that spot television expenditures have grown twice as fast as any other major advertising medium of the top 100 advertisers between the years 1956-59.

Highlights of the study, titled "Trends in the Selection of Media by the Top 100 Advertisers—1956-59" and released Dec. 30 by Petry, include the following:

- Spot tv billing of the top 100 advertisers has risen from $191.1 million in 1956 to $327.5 million in 1959 (up 71%), while corresponding figures for other media were: network tv, from $382 million to $522.7 million (up 36%); magazines, from $252.1 million to $294.7 million (up 17%) and newspapers, from $327.5 million to $338.5 million (up 3%).

- The trend favoring spot tv continued in 1959, as compared with 1958, as spot tv expenditures rose by $58.2 million (up 22%); network tv increased by $45.6 million (up 9%); magazines strengthened by an additional $32.2 million (up 12%) and newspapers rose by $13.5 million (up 4%).

- Only spot tv, of the "Big Four" media has gained in advertisers among the leading 100. The study shows that from 1956-59, spot tv gained 13 advertisers; network tv lost 11; newspapers lost 21 and magazines lost 6.

The Petry study also analyzes expenditure investments by six important product categories—soap-detergents, drugs-toiletries, foods, beer, oil and tobacco. In each one of these categories, except tobacco, the study asserts, spot tv registered the largest percentage increase in the 1956-59 period.

In the tobacco field, spot tv expenditures were listed at about the same dollar levels ($28.6 million in 1956 and 28.5 million in 1959) but spot tv's share of the industry's overall budget declined from 27% to 19%. The study showed network tv made the only substantial gain in the tobacco category, increasing its portion of industry expenditures from 37% in 1956 to 44% in 1959. The report noted that the spot tv "slump" in tobacco had been reversed in 1960, with the first four months of last year showing a 54% increase in spot tv billing over the corresponding period of 1959.

Some outstanding examples of tv growth among industry leaders of the top 100 are included in the study. For example, Procter & Gamble raised its spot tv expenditures from $17.5 million in 1956 to $45 million in 1959. Other advertisers which increased their spot tv part of overall budget substantially during the year period, Petry said, were American Home Products (from 13% to 22%), Bristol-Myers (from 5% to 30%), Warner-Lambert (from 53% to 60%), Standard Brands (from 13% to 26%), Continental Baking (from 63% to 78%), Borden (from 17% to 29%) and Nestle (from 24% to 30%).

STEP LIVELY, PLEASE. Almost as ubiquitous as WIP on the Philadelphia scene is the white marble step, which our city cherishes by the hundreds of thousands.

We Metrodelphians are in step with the times, but we also have an attachment to tradition. Take our white steps, for example. We scrub them with zeal, and display them with fierce pride. Unless you've washed a white marble step, you're probably mystified by this bond between people and stone. But spend some time among us, and you begin to feel as we do about our white steps. You'll also become aware of another attachment—that between an alert community and WIP—most service-conscious of its many radio stations. Here's one example of how WIP stays in step: In last month's blizzard, WIP's automatic telephone answering facility relieved the flood of calls tying up Philadelphia Transportation Company lines. WIP has been giving this kind of service for 40 years. Now, with the added impact of Metropolitan's new concepts of news, service and showmanship, WIP is growing rapidly to the foremost audience position in Philadelphia. Advertisers, too, are getting their schedules into step. WIP, Metrodelphia, Pa.

Lever Bros. drops agency in 'consolidation' move

Lever Bros., New York, last week appointed Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles, New York, for its "All" brand of detergents carrying billing estimated at more than $4 million. Lever also named BBDO to handle the Swan Liquid account, which is in limited test markets only. Both accounts were with Needham, Louis & Brorby, Chicago.

A company spokesman said that the detergent products are advertised "almost exclusively" on television. Products bearing the "all" brand name include: Condensed "all," Fluffy "all," Liquid "all," and Dishwasher "all." Swan Liquid, a light-duty dish-washing detergent, is currently being tested on tv but the number of markets was not disclosed.

The transfer from NL&B was made, the announcement said, to consolidate Lever's advertising accounts. SSC&B already handles a substantial portion of company business, including Lifebuoy, Silver Dust and Breeze. BBDO has Surf, Wisk and Nifty, a new liquid scouring product. Other Lever agencies are Foote, Cone & Belding, New York; J. Walter Thompson Co., New York and Ogilvy, Benson & Mather, New York.

The transfer of the "all" account to SSCB leaves Needham, Louis & Brorby without any of the Lever business.

Raytheon buys symphony

Raytheon Co., one of the world's largest electronic manufacturers, has signed for 13-week sponsorship of Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts in stereo on WGMS-AM-FM Washington. The series, heard Sunday afternoons starting at 2:05 p.m., is Raytheon's first broadcast venture outside the Boston market.

The series was placed by Fuller & Smith & Ross, New York. The opening program Jan. 8 featured Sviatoslav Richter, Soviet pianist. Intermission periods will be devoted to interviews with educational, scientific and governmental personalities. The concerts are taped from Boston's Symphony Hall.

RAB study cites radio's influence on real estate

The price of the house you live in was probably influenced by a hidden and ever potent factor, the Radio Advertising Bureau has reported in a study, "Radio: Best Medium For Building Real Estate Business."

Money spent to promote the sale of real estate has increased from $10 to as much as $250 a house and average real estate annual ad expenses have gone up to 8% of the gross income within the past few years, the study revealed. This rise in costs comes from added competition by other advertisers in quest of the available dollar and consequently, RAB says, radio is the best medium for real estate business because it reaches, through almost universal coverage, the greatest number of potential buyers by the most economical comparative means.

Dodge dumps extra money in newspaper advertising

Dodge Div., Chrysler Corp., Detroit, is allocating an extra $1 million to its planned budget for 1960-61. But these additional funds are being channeled almost exclusively into newspapers.

W. D. Moore, advertising director for Dodge, said the funds will be spent to expand a planned newspaper schedule for the first quarter and will include more than 1,600 newspapers. The campaign will place the accent on two Dodge models—the Dart and Lancer—and will attempt to impress upon the public the name, price and size of the cars.

Another Dodge spokesman said the company decided to strengthen its advertising push early this year because there was "confusion in the compact car picture." He added the company believed that "a lot of explaining had to be done and newspapers are the best medium for making those explanations."

From its regular budget, Dodge will utilize a spot radio campaign in the top 100 markets on behalf of the Dart and the Lancer, starting Jan. 22. The campaign will consist of as many as 75 announcements per week in some top markets. On television, Dodge is a co-sponsor of ABC-TV's Lawrence Welk Show. Commercials will be included on Dart and Lancer. Dodge's agency is BBDO, Detroit.

A united front urged for cost cutting

A forecast that networks and local stations will work with advertising agencies during the 1960's in "holding down the increasing costs of time and talent" was made by Barton A. Cummings, president of Compton Adv., New York, in a speech before the 14th annual Forecasting Conference of the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce last Thursday (Jan. 5).

"Tv networks will accomplish this partly out of self-interest," Mr. Cummings stated. "The law of supply and demand will enter as print offers more effective and efficient means of delivering an advertiser's sales messages."

"As costs of tv time and tv programs continue to mount during the 1960's, agencies and clients will examine other media to keep in line the costs of marketing their products. I think it only fair that there be a re-examining of the costs of tv time and talent. The extra, and sometimes unnecessary, costs of package shows and tv commercial productions are now merely passed on to the advertisers. Let's all of us in the whole tv area tighten our belts a bit to keep costs down."

Mr. Cummings referred specifically to one advertising medium—magazines—that he believes will make "a comeback" in the 1960's. He said that the development of regional editions of national magazines will have the effect of persuading national advertisers to use regional editions to attain extra pressure in selected areas, and inducing regional advertisers to use these editions because of the availability of sectional ads.

Mr. Cummings noted that color tv may well become a factor in marketing in the 1960's, but voiced the belief that a "breakthrough" is not imminent. He claimed that even if production of color sets approximated that of black-and-white receivers in peak years and sales were achieved, it would take about five years to develop 50% color tv set ownership.

KNOW HOW

A curious mind and an insatiable desire to turn impractical ideas into workable and useful devices . . . these are the elements which put the stamp of "Know How" on Thomas Alva Edison. It resulted in more than 1,000 patents during his lifetime. This same desire to make the best even better is what also earns the "Know How" approval of advertisers and agencies for today's quality-minded radio and television stations.

Katz study shows slight increase in radio rates

Rates for national spot radio showed a slight increase in 1960 over 1959 as 1960 daytime rates rose 4% and nighttime rates only 2%, The Katz Agency, national representative, reported last week.

Katz, which incorporated this information in its latest "Spot Radio Budget Estimator," tabulated the cost of 12 one-minute announcements per week in 150 markets for three time periods: early morning-late afternoon (traffic time), daytime (other than traffic time) and evening. Rates used are those published in the November 1960 SRDS Spot Radio Rates and Data, and reflect package plans where available. In addition, the "Estimator" includes a formula for estimating the cost of 12 or 24 announcements per week for schedules ranging up to 52 weeks.

LANDIS STYLE REVAMP OF FCC DEPENDS ON GREEN LIGHT FROM HILL

There are changes in view for the FCC under the incoming Kennedy administration.

These are all dependent on the Kennedy administration receiving Congress' blessing to reorganize the government.

But if such authority is given, then—

- The chairman of the FCC would be given more power, made much stronger in authority, and would have his allegiance directly to the White House.

- The commission would have its membership expanded to nine or perhaps more members. This is predicated on the assumption that since the present seven commissioners seem to have too heavy a workload to permit them to perform what has been described as their primary function (planning and policy-making), additional commissioners would alleviate that situation.

An enlarged FCC also would be able to break itself down into panels, permitting more expedition in the handling of cases.

- The FCC would be more strenuously "coordinated" with other agencies and departments of the federal government, especially in such a subject as advertising.

This, from impeccable sources, is the thinking of the administrative experts in the Kennedy entourage. It is considered inherent in the report submitted right after Christmas to President-elect Kennedy by James M. Landis, former Harvard Law School dean, former chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Board, and former member of the Federal Trade Commission (BROADCASTING, Jan. 2).

The Landis Report, a study made at the behest of Mr. Kennedy two days after his election, urged a revision of Washington's administrative agencies, including more centralization in the White House, White House offices on telecommunications, transportation and energy, and longer tenure for agency administrators.

The entire program is premised on the strong belief that Congress will give Mr. Kennedy power to reorganize government agencies.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) last week introduced a bill to give the Democratic President these powers. They would be subject to item vetoes by either house of Congress if objection is made within 60 days of their submission.

Joining Sen. McClellan as sponsor of the bill to reinstate the 1949 Government Reorganization Act were Sens.

Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.); Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), and Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N. C.).

The specifics of a revised FCC are already on paper, it was understood, but will not be made public until Congress acts on the reorganization bill.

The new chairman of the FCC, it was learned, is not expected to be one of the present commission members. He has been chosen, but his appointment may be delayed for strategic reasons.

This has to do with the Kennedy administration's relations with Congress.

Washington Stirred ■ The Landis Report has stirred the Washington communications scene to a greater extent than almost any single event in recent years.

The consensus is that Mr. Landis' aims are fine but that some of his solutions are too severe.

There is some feeling, too, that he was too rough on the FCC.

Many of the ideas presented by Mr. Landis, it was pointed out, have been discussed and suggested at various times over the last 10 years among government experts, bar associations and political science seminars.

There was no quarrel with Mr. Landis' number one proposal—more capable administrators.

If Mr. Landis' idea is that the power to make decisions be delegated to lower echelon staff people, like examiners or bureau chiefs, it was pointed out, then it is important that personnel at that level also be upgraded.

The major complaint to Mr. Landis' idea was that there be an administrative overseer in the White House. This was considered a contradiction to his charge of pressures on administrative agencies.

"Landis charges that the FCC has been too subservient to Congress," one Washington lawyer said. "But this would make the commission even more subservient to the White House."

Another was more cynical. "What is this," he asked, "ex parte through channels?"

The idea of having an administrative director in the White House, plus the suggestion that there be a White House office on telecommunications, indicates not one more layer above the FCC, but two, according to one comment.

"Seems to me," it was observed, "this only makes for more inefficiency."

Grave doubt was expressed by many that the Landis idea of grants without full hearings could get by the courts. The FCC's experience in 1953 in attempting to contain the effects of the then new protest rule was used as one illustration of the court's unwillingness to permit other than full and comprehensive hearings.

Perhaps the most strident objections were directed to his suggestion that the administrative agencies belong under direct White House supervision.

Congressional Balk ■ This will never get through Congress, was the consensus. Many of the committees on Capitol Hill now have a vested interest in the agencies, one legislative observer noted. "You don't think Magnuson and Harris are going to give up their 'control' over the FCC, do you?"

A veteran communications lawyer mused that formalizing the liaison with the White House was a presumptuous attempt to set up "tables of organization" where none are needed.

"In the Roosevelt and Truman days," this practitioner pointed out, "Larry Fly, Paul Porter or Wayne Coy (former FCC chairmen) saw the President every so often. Not to get marching

Goldwater would gag radio-tv on election night

The practice of broadcasting presidential election returns as soon as they are received would be banned under a Communications Act amendment proposed last week by Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.). He feels the broadcasting of such election return news should be prohibited until midnight, eastern time, when most polls in the country would be closed.

The purpose of the temporary blackout, which would not apply to newspapers or news wire services, "would be to prevent voters in some areas of the country from being influenced by returns, predictions and projected trends which reach them via television and radio before they have voted," the senator said.

He believes his proposal does not affect the Constitutional guarantee of a free press. "It would merely require that the election results be postponed in the interests of fair play," he said. "I believe it would be a proper exercise of congressional authority to regulate interstate commerce."

In Toledo, WOHO has the Mutual advantage!

The Mutual advantage: local programming plus network news. And there's money in this formula. Example: WOHO, the Mutual station in Toledo. Let Sam Sloan, General Manager, tell you—"Our newscasts began to sell more readily since we used Mutual inserts on the hour and picked up Mutual network on the half-hour. Since then, sustaining newscasts have been practically nil." WOHO—one of the 400 local stations you get with your Mutual "buy"—does its own local programming designed to appeal to the local listener. Mutual adds to this programming authoritative world-wide news, commentary, analysis—a prestige showcase for your advertising message. That's why for advertisers, too, there's money in the Mutual advantage. Buy Mutual Radio—a good way to make every advertising dollar work harder.

orders, but to talk over policy and administration. But did McConnoughey or Doerfer see Ike? Either he was too busy or there was Sherman Adams to bar them." This was a Democrat speaking, naturally.

The use of the word "czar" to depict what Mr. Landis has in mind for the White House office of administrative oversight is completely erroneous, according to some who are close to the New York lawyer.

His recommendation that there be an office in the White House to "oversee" the regulatory agencies is for coordinating purposes, they point out.

The point he makes, they explain, can be illustrated by taking advertising on the air as an example.

"Surely the FCC is involved. So is the Federal Trade Commission, which is supposed to police advertising. But in the case of food and drugs, so are the Food & Drug Administration and the Dept. of Agriculture and perhaps the Dept. of Commerce.

"Today there is the loosest kind of coordination between the FCC and the FTC and virtually none at all with Food & Drug, Agriculture and Commerce. Why shouldn't there be someone whose business it is to consider these inter-relationships and bring together the administrators whose responsibilities cross each other?"

This is just one of the functions such an overseer would perform, it was pointed out. A second, significant purpose would be to cross-pollinate the various agencies on updating procedures and cutting down delays and the cost of doing business before them, it was stressed.

Most of those who expressed an opinion on the Landis recommendations—all of which were not for attribution—took issue with the philosophy that the White House should have greater supervisory powers over the so-called independent agencies. One old-line communications lawyer, however, expressed agreement with this viewpoint.

"After all," he said, "they've been floating around in limbo too long. They ought to belong somewhere, and the executive department is the only real place for them."

FCC Ire ■ Several FCC sources were irate at Mr. Landis' reflections on that agency.

"He kept harping on the vhf-uhf situation," one said. "He doesn't know that at one time the FCC had a full vhf allocation for tv which covered 30 channels. This was before the war. The military took most of these away from us in World War II, and never gave them back to us."

A former FCC staff executive disagreed with Mr. Landis' estimate of the qualifications of the FCC staff.

"The competence is there," he asserted. "Only it's chained, held in check because the commissioners are so touchy about being accused of staff domination they rebuff any suggestions that seem unpopular."

Some of the Landis suggestions for improving the efficiency of the FCC are already underway, it was pointed out.

The commission is studying the possibility of dividing itself into panels in order to permit quicker action on cases. It is also considering revision of the law to make appeals to the full commission discretionary, instead of automatic as they now are.

Another vital procedural change under study is the use of summary decisions. This would permit the FCC to issue a grant without a hearing where one applicant was so superior to the others that there is no question about who would be chosen after a hearing. This too, requires legislation.

These studies were announced by FCC Chairman Frederick W. Ford in his year-end report two weeks ago (AT DEADLINE, Jan. 2).

It was pointed out that the Federal Communications Bar Assn. and the Assn. of Federal Communications Consulting Engineers have several committees working on revamping procedures in the interest of overcoming delays and expense.

An American Bar Assn. committee on administrative process is also working along these lines.

Paul H. Chapman Co. against sale control

A station broker last week listed 16 reasons why he thought the FCC should not adopt its proposed rule to require a licensee to operate his station for at least three years except in special circumstances (BROADCASTING, Dec. 12, 1960).

Paul H. Chapman, president of the Atlanta brokerage firm bearing his name, said that the net effect of the rule may be opposite that intended by the commission by decreasing the number of stations on the market. "By restricting the sale of properties . . . the commission would be restricting the supply," Mr. Chapman said. "To this extent there would be a lesser supply and consequently a higher price and profit on trading." The rulemaking should not be enacted for these additional reasons, he said:

It is based on unsound economics; it would unjustly favor the rich and discriminate against the poor; it would discourage local ownership, owner-operators and broadcasting careers; concentration of control may be a result; investment in stations needing financial rehabilitation would be discouraged; it may weaken rather than strengthen the law on transfers; it would be a step backward and discourage progress; delays caused by hearings could result in deterioration of service by stations involved.

"A businessman [station owner] should have the right to fail as well as succeed," Mr. Chapman pointed out. Comments in the rulemaking, designed to curtail trafficking in broadcast properties, are due Jan. 16.

WSPA-TV is subject of dual decision

In what amounted to a two-way decision, two FCC hearing examiners stated that Spartan Radiocasting Co. (WSPA-TV Spartanburg, S. C.) was qualified to hold a broadcast license but at the same time recommended that a 1954 grant to change WSPA-TV's transmitter site be set aside because of misrepresentations.

The decision came on a third court remand, on protest of WAIM-TV (ch. 40) Anderson, S. C., of ch. 7 WSPA-TV's transmitter move from Hogback Mountain to Paris Mountain. The station never constructed at the Hogback site, granted in 1953, and went on the air from Paris Mountain in 1956.

Examiners James Cunningham and Herbert Sharfman, in a New Year's decision, said that the past broadcast record of Walter Brown, Spartan president, and the company is "a commendable one . . . excellent." "It is held that Spartan has succeeded in overcoming the effect . . ." of misrepresentation, ruled by the court as to its proposed transmitter site, the examiners ruled. They said the record is marred by WSPA-TV's handling of the pay tv issue; "but against this one program shortcoming must be set a generally commendable broadcast record."

On the other hand, the examiners stated: "To say the least, there can be no question . . . that Spartan had no fixed intention to locate its permanent transmitter on Hogback. . . . The standard proposed by Spartan [for Paris Mountain interim operation] would sanction an inferior use. . . ."

Four issues in the hearing concerned network affiliations available to WSPA-TV from its original Hogback site with the principal contention being that the shift was made to secure a CBS-TV affiliation. Spartan failed to satisfy the examiners on all four issues and therefore it was recommended that the transmitter grant be set aside.

WSPA-TV now has an application pending to locate its transmitter on a third South Carolina mountain, Caesars Head. This application, along with WSPA-AM renewal, has been retained in the pending file until a final decision on the instant case. The am operation originally was renewed Nov. 30 but this action was set aside by the commission on the last work day of 1960.

Getting down to cases on vhf drop-ins

REPLIES TO COMMENTS ON FCC POLICY CITE SPECIFIC MARKETS

Replies to comments in the FCC's "interim policy" proposals, easing mileage separation requirements and looking toward dropping in vhf tv stations in certain major markets, tended to concentrate on specific markets of interest to the respondent rather than on the overall allocation problem. Over 150 interested parties replied.

Ranks were drawn generally behind the position expressed in the comments filed September 1960 of the Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters or the disparate one of ABC. The former had favored maintaining the status quo on mileage separation on grounds that otherwise service and reception would be degraded. ABC had urged the FCC's policy be immediately implemented (BROADCASTING, Oct. 3, 10, 1960).

Strong Dissent ■ The Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters, just as it did in original comments last September, again strongly attacked any plans to break down present mileage separations. AMST maintained that no comments submitted by other parties contradict the association's own data. "Indeed, the great bulk of the engineering data submitted by other parties (including those urging adoption of the commission's proposals) actually support AMST's position," it stated. "A fair and careful analysis and evaluation of all data before the commission in this case compels the conclusion that the overwhelming public interest requires the commission to adopt the position urged by AMST."

The tv association said that various parties have suggested short-spaced assignments for some 60 communities involving approximately 150 instances of individual short separations. Impact on existing service would be "staggering [creating] vast areas of interference" to existing stations, AMST claimed.

Included in the filing were maps and charts purporting to show how proposed vhf assignments in seven cities would result in interference and loss of service to existing stations. These included proposed assignment of ch. 13 to Grand Rapids, Mich.; ch. 11 Dayton, Ohio; ch. 3 Johnstown-Altoona, Pa.; ch. 7 Louisville, and ch. 12 to Wheeling-Steubenville. It was pointed out that service of 17 existing stations would be destroyed through interference over an area of 16,245 sq. miles if the proposals were adopted.

These figures, AMST maintains, "show beyond any doubt" that statements of ABC and others that mileage separations can be reduced without serious disruption of existing services are completely contrary to fact. Because of the "serious adverse consequences to the public's existing service" which would result if the commission's proposals are affected, the rulemaking should be terminated immediately, AMST stated.

If short co-channel or adjacent-channel mileage separations are made, the association said, it is essential that the commission designate specific markets and that the number be "very sharply limited." "Failure to so limit short-spaced drop-ins would lead to a wave of destructive and degrading interference to existing service throughout the country," it maintained.

ABC Reply ■ ABC, a principal proponent of the commission's plan, said that AMST's history is one of "consistent opposition to any remedial allocations action" and its comment in the instant case is one of opposition to any additional tv stations. Additional vhf assignments should be made immediately in these 15 markets, ABC stated: Grand Rapids-Kalamazoo, Louisville, Syracuse, Rochester, Birmingham, Raleigh-Durham, Charlotte, Providence, Jacksonville, Wheeling-Steubenville, Baton Rouge, Knoxville, Johnstown-Altoona, Dayton and Toledo.

Opposition to vhf drop-ins has come almost exclusively from existing vhf stations fearful of competition or reduction in their services, ABC maintained, or from rural groups. "Both of these areas of opposition have been largely inspired by the AMST," the network stated. "The opposition to the commission's proposed interim policy is purely negative. Nowhere in the voluminous oppositions inspired by AMST is there a single constructive suggestion. No alternative is offered by which the commission might undertake to accomplish some improvement. . . ."

Continuing its attack on AMST, ABC said that the association's second line of defense is an attempt to place procedural and due process hurdles in the way of any effective interim action. "AMST's bald proposal to solve the tv allocations problem with proceedings and hearings and litigation, rather than with tv stations, is especially obnoxious since it comes at the end of a long period of delay and inaction to whose futility AMST has contributed not a little," the network charged.

"Surely it takes consummate gall for AMST to suggest that the commission should pile nine or ten more years (ABC's estimate) of delay on top of the seven that have already occurred," ABC continued. Also, the network maintained, the arguments of some that interim drop-ins will prejudice long-range solutions of the allocations dilemma are without merit.

NBC Brief ■ NBC filed only a brief, five-page reply comment concerned principally with the many requests for channel assignments to individual cities, ranging "down in size to as few as 13,100 people." These requests, NBC said, point up two major dangers which must be avoided in any interim policy:

(1) Unless drop-ins are confined to major markets, they may degrade existing service to the public and also preclude an eventual rational choice among possible long-range solutions. "The commission should confine whatever exceptions may be made to its present basic allocations plan to situations where exceptional assignments are urgently needed," the network stated. "It should not attempt . . . to remedy all shortages of tv facilities in the U. S., or even many of the serious ones.

(2) Unless the commission designates the markets to which it will make drop-in assignments, it will be besieged with requests to whittle away at the basic allocations plan.

Many of the replies were directed at comments by Storer Broadcasting Co. which suggested assignment changes in seven geographical areas. The plan would add one vhf in 21 markets and two in four others. Those having vhfs in the affected areas cited lengthy engineering exhibits to refute the Storer proposal by showing interference and

Ike tv farewells

A television tribute to President Eisenhower will be presented Jan. 10 by NBC (10-11 p.m.) with leaders in international affairs and public life taking part. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who originally had declined NBC's invitation to appear, changed his mind and taped his portion of the program at his Washington office. Herbert G. Klein, news secretary to the vice president, said Mr. Nixon agreed to take part when a later recording date was offered.

President Eisenhower is expected to make a farewell radio-tv address to the nation before leaving office Jan. 20. A definite time had not been selected as the weekend approached.

reduction of population served that would result.

Others claimed Storer's proposals were "without merit," because they would disrupt too many existing facilities. Many of the cities in which Storer had suggested drop-ins did not need another channel, broadcasters with stations in the same city claimed.

Many replies noted that a large number of comments had not dealt with the FCC's proposal but had been confined to specific allocation requests that should be more properly handled in rulemaking petitions. Some respondents merely noted the point; others went on to say that since that was the trend they too had specific allocation sentiments and expressed them.

Several comments suggested that if the commission wishes to make sweeping allocation changes and to set new standards for spacing of co-channels and adjacent channels, it should do so in a market pre-planning case instead of on an ad hoc basis. This position was also set forth by AMST.

In many cases respondents who currently operate vhf's in major markets said they would request full evidentiary hearings before allowing the FCC to modify their existing facilities. They then submitted engineering reports to demonstrate how substandard spacing would adversely affect them.

Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. said that many of the replies were "not responsive" to the FCC's notice and were merely requests for new or revised specific allocations. To obtain three v's in major markets, it suggested, the commission should institute rulemaking in those specific instances it wished to consider. It asked the FCC to adopt specific proposals rather than an "interim policy," and went on record as favoring the present adjacent-channel separation of 60 miles.

Corinthian Broadcasting Corp. and Transcontinent Television Corp. backed the AMST position that no change should be made in present co-channel and adjacent-channel mileage-separation requirements. If change should be needed in the commission's opinion, they said, it should be "held to an absolute minimum." Corinthian objected

Sec. 315 may have a short-lived future

Three developments, as Congress reopened for business last week, gave evidence that Sec. 315 of the Communications Act is due for a lot of attention during the new session.

■ A special House Campaign Expenditures Subcommittee suggested that "the case to eliminate Sec. 315, altogether, should be fully explored" in view of the unprecedented benefits which resulted from Congress' loosening of the statutory shackles on broadcasters during the 1960 election campaigns.

■ Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) of the Senate Commerce Committee, who has said he plans to introduce legislation to make permanent the temporary suspension of Sec. 315 in the case of presidential and vice presidential nominees, hinted there's at least a possibility that he might "go even further"; namely, propose outright repeal of the section.

■ The three-man Watchdog Subcommittee headed by Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough (D-Tex.), and which has been compiling complaints and gathering other data on broadcaster behavior under the loosened restrictions of the 1960 election campaign, was scheduled to meet last Friday morning to act on Sen. Yarborough's proposals to hold hearings with broadcasting industry and other witnesses later this month.

The special House committee, headed by Rep. Clifford Davis (D-Tenn.), held hearings last month to examine the possibilities for reducing the high cost of political campaigning and to consider whether the conventions - to - election - day campaign period should be shortened. Robert W. Sarnoff, NBC board chairman, and Frank Stanton, CBS president, asked the group for outright repeal of Sec. 315 both as a way of holding down campaign expenditures and as a recognition of broadcasters' journalistic maturity in staging the "Great Debates" between candidates Kennedy and Nixon on the tv and radio networks. ABC President Leonard Goldenson urged continuation of the 1960 suspension in future presidential election years.

Important Results ■ The committee last week seemed to agree with Messrs. Sarnoff and Stanton. "Such important results" followed a 1959 amendment of Sec. 315, which exempted news and panel broadcast programs from equal time demands by fringe party candidates, and the temporary suspension covering presidential-vice presidential nominees, which made possible the "Great Debates," that "the committee now feels the case to eliminate Sec. 315, altogether, should be fully explored," its recommendations said.

Deserving of specific mention, the committee said, is the fact that the party presidential nominees occupied more radio-tv time on a non-cost basis than that for paid political broadcasts and thus were able to hold the line on campaign expenditures while enjoying greater broadcast exposure than ever before.

The partial suspension expanded broadcaster freedom "to function as enterprising and responsible guardians of a major medium of journalism," while the value of network news and interview programs and the "Great Debates" saved the parties "many millions of dollars," the report said.

"It is also a pleasure to note that the candidates of both major parties appear to have been presented in a commendably impartial manner," the committee said, adding: "For the reasons stated, the committee feels that the whole matter of Sec. 315 should be fully and completely reviewed."

Laudable ■ The committee said it wants to mention, however, that while the national networks "have displayed laudable maturity and responsible journalism, it is possible that removal of the protection of Sec. 315 for candidates on the local level might, in some instances, lead to abuse by individual stations.

Sen. Magnuson, in discussing his proposed bill, said it will be introduced "pretty soon" and that whether he asks for outright repeal will be determined after he talks with others. What is most probable, however, is that he'll ask initially that the 1960 suspension be made permanent, then change the bill later to provide for outright repeal if this seems advisable.

Sen. Yarborough, whose Watchdog Subcommittee is scheduled to make its report by Feb. 1, said the document (which reportedly will run more than 8,000 pages) has run into printing difficulties, but he hopes it will be published on time. The report will include complaints concerning the 1960 political campaign coverage by networks and stations, gathered from information furnished by broadcasters (the subcommittee queried them), the FCC (which queried broadcasters, too) and others. It also will include amounts of time made available to candidates by broadcasters, both paid and unpaid, and broadcaster policies and practices in handling political broadcasting, as ascertained by the FCC questionnaire.

specifically to the comment by McHenry T. Tichenor (KGBT-TV Harlingen, Tex.) asking that ch. 11 be dropped in to Austin, Tex., at a 54-mile channel shortage from KHOU-TV Houston. The company also opposed assignment of a v to Muncie, Ind., on grounds it would adversely affect established uhf service and the drop-in of ch. 5 to Houston because of co-channel shortages between KALB-TV Alexandria, La., and KENS-TV San Antonio, Tex. Transcontinent made similar requests in relation to suggested drop-ins in areas in which it operates vhf stations on grounds that separation shortages would cause a decrease in its service.

Capital Cities Broadcasting Co. said it had felt the comments were supposed to be general so it had not brought up its contention that its WTEN (TV) Albany, N. Y., operates under a marked competitive disadvantage. It complained that other comments had not restricted themselves in this manner and pointed out that five parties had advanced proposals which would affect operation of one or more Capital Cities stations. "While these proposals are demonstrably unsound from an engineering standpoint, they are legally inappropriate in this general proceeding," the company stated, adding it would refrain from comment until such time as the FCC gives the proposals consideration.

Newhouse Broadcasting Corp. recommended the FCC "make the present vhf-uhf allocations work," instead of changing policy. It further suggested that the commission call a public investigatory hearing inquiring into the pros and cons of all-channel receivers, not unlike its color standards hearing. Then manufacturers would cooperate to produce sets with vhf and uhf receivers and broadcasters would actively seek uhf allocations, Newhouse predicted.

In many instances permittees of uhf stations in certain markets replied to comments that the commission should drop a v in that market instead of the u they hold. They indicated they would then apply for that v. In most cases proponents of this argument said that operation of a uhf outlet in that market was economically unfeasible.

Other Replies ■ Some parties filed replies that had not originally filed comments. Their reasoning in essence was "If the commission is considering allocations in our market, here's what we want." Or in other cases, "These comments endanger our current facilities and we oppose them on these engineering or public service grounds."

Some small companies favoring specific grants quoted the suggestions of the networks, Storer and other large companies in favor of adoption of the commission's interim policy, and stated that AMST was chronically opposed to change it represented established tv stations and that the FCC should discount this opposition for that reason.

The other side of that coin was expressed by those whose facilities would be imperiled by drop-ins if the policy were adopted. They claimed that the commission's plan was similar to that proposed by ABC and said although that network would benefit, the public interest would suffer.

The Joint Council on Educational Television rapped the similarities between ABC and FCC proposals and opposed any change in current spacings. If changes are to be made, it argued, the channels dropped in should be reserved for noncommercial educational use.

Triangle Stations liked the FCC idea of a third v in certain major markets, but agreed with AMST that the commission should institute a single pre-planning procedure in which it would designate in advance the specific markets to which short-space assignments would be made.

The instant rulemaking proceeding was instituted in January 1960. Comments were first called for the following April but the deadline was extended on different occasions because of the difficulty in obtaining new, proposed propagation curves. Original comments were submitted last Sept. 30 and the matter now is before the commission for final action.

Temperance charges denied

Charges by a temperance leader that portions of the inaugural ceremonies for President-elect Kennedy Jan. 20 would be sponsored by beer advertisers were officially denied last week by Samuel C. Brightman, publicity director of the inaugural committee. The charges had been made by Erwin F. Bohmfalk, president of the National Temperance League. The major networks will have sponsors for coverage of the inaugural parade and ball but the inaugural committee will review commercials for good taste (BROADCASTING, Dec. 19).

Another extension for jury

A third lease on life was given last Thursday (Jan. 5) to the New York grand jury that was formed July 4, 1960, to examine testimony of tv quiz show winners before an earlier grand jury. An application by the district attorney's office to advance the jury's life to April 28 was approved by Judge Charles Marks. The four-month extension is the latest of a series. Originally scheduled to terminate Oct. 28, 1960, the jury was extended to Dec. 1, 1960 and then until Jan. 6.

The seeds of hope are sown by many hands

"We cannot live only for ourselves. A thousand fibers connect us with our fellow-men; and along those sympathetic threads, our actions run as causes, and they come back to us as effects."

—Melville

Take a look at the facing page.

What you see are some fairly familiar symbols of some pretty important public service causes— notices that catch your eye almost every time you stop, look, or listen these days.

What you won't see though is the effect these campaigns have had on a lot of people.

Start with the heads of business firms who contributed the money, advice and advertising support needed to make this work of The Advertising Council possible. Add to these the volunteers in advertising agencies whose gifts of time and talent brought these messages to life.

Their creative efforts in turn inspired still other people who run our magazines and newspapers, radio and TV stations, outdoor and transit advertising companies to contribute $181,900,000 worth of free space and time during the past twelve months alone to bring these meaningful messages home to you.

These seeds were sown in fertile ground—the hearts and minds of the free people of this country.

Only a few of these causes called for money. None of them had an axe to grind. Created in an atmosphere of voluntary cooperation, they inspired confidence in individual action. And they won your support.

As a result, ours is a stronger country, a freer country, a safer country.

Thanks to your response, classrooms grew where there had been none before. More kids went to college. Untold forest fires went unlit, and many people riding the highways owe their lives to the safety program.

You saved your money through buying Savings Bonds, and strengthened the cause of freedom through getting out the vote and sending aid abroad.

For these reasons business, advertising and media—as the private voice of public conscience—believe in furthering these public service causes through The Advertising Council.

FCC ALSO GETS REPLIES TO GRAND RAPIDS COMMENTS

Amidst the flurries of reply comments on mileage separation and vhf drop-ins at the FCC last week (see story page 46) the ancillary issue of proposed channel allocations in the Grand Rapids, Mich., and Providence, R. I., markets also received attention in separate replies.

The FCC asked for comments on a proposal to delete ch. 6 from New Bedford, Mass., and drop it into Providence as that city's third vhf tv station. (BROADCASTING, Oct. 10, 1960).

Thirteen parties filed comments with only two opposing the change and two suggesting a counterproposal to delete ch. 3 (WTIC-TV) from Hartford, Conn., add it in Providence and give Hartford either ch. 24 or ch. 46. Several of the replies opposed the counterproposal.

WTIC-TV Hartford protested the plan to remove its facility from Hartford, requesting that the commission summarily dismiss that proposal on grounds it is irrelevant to the issues of the rulemaking as proposed. The company submitted three bound replies of some 80 pages each, giving engineering and programming reasons why it should remain where it is.

ch. 2, opposed the move of ch. 3 to Providence because of short spacing on an adjacent channel. It urged that ch. 3 be retained in Hartford.

Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters filed against any channel shift, but urged the FCC, if it is disposed towards adding ch. 6 in Providence, to wait for a final decision in its interim policy docket. It opposed the suggestion moving ch. 3 to Providence because of short spacing with WGBH-TV and WBZ-TV Boston. It opposed bringing ch. 6 to Providence because it claimed service would be degraded through short spacings with WRGB (TV) Schenectady, WCHS-TV Portland, Me., and WHDH-TV Boston.

Hold Similar Views ■ WRGB and WCHS-TV each filed oppositions to the shift to Providence on the same grounds advanced by AMST.

The proposal to delete ch. 3 from Hartford was repeated in the replies by its original proponents, WWLP (TV) Springfield, Mass., and WHNB-TV New Britain, Conn., in order to deintermix Hartford. WKNY-TV Kingston-Poughkeepsie, N. Y., joined them in requesting deintermixture of the Connecticut Valley area. The stations did not disapprove the immediate question at hand—that of shifting ch. 6 to Providence—provided it would be reserved for educational use.

The Joint Council on Educational Television requested that ch. 6 be shifted to Providence and reserved for noncommercial educational use. It said that it would not be in the public service to operate a uhf etv station in that vhf market.

Three parties who stated they would wish to apply for the ch. 6 facility if it moved to Providence urged the commission to expedite such a move. One prospective applicant said he favored the shift of ch. 6 to Providence over that of ch. 3 since the latter would require a lengthy hearing.

ABC, in line with its position in comments on the FCC drop-in policy, urged the FCC to make the move of ch. 6 promptly.

The Michigan Case ■ In the rather more complicated Grand Rapids rule-making, replies were received on the comments made to several FCC allocation proposals for that area. Among the issues was which vhf channel, if any, should be dropped into Grand Rapids.

In the replies, proponents of each of the suggested solutions reiterated their positions and sniped at positions put forth by rivals.

Atlas Broadcasting Co., licensee of WMAX-AM-FM Grand Rapids, says that more vhf service is badly needed in the market and for engineering reasons requests ch. 13 at substandard spacing. The company said the action should be instituted immediately rather than after a final decision on overall drop-ins has been reached. Atlas refuted the claim of Fetzer Broadcasting that assignment of ch. 13 to Atlas will cost WWTW (TV) Cadillac, Mich., a great deal of money and inconvenience. It was also against proposals to assign only an educational vhf channel in Grand Rapids.

ABC supported Atlas' position.

Four respondents also urged the grant of ch. 13 to Grand Rapids but said the FCC should insist it be put in at standard spacing—not at a reduced mileage separation from existing stations. These were: WJIM-TV Lansing, Mich.; WOOD-TV Grand Rapids; WTOL-TV Toledo, Ohio, and West Michigan Telecasters Inc., which announced its intention to apply for the new channel if it is allocated there.

Claims Great to Service ■ Storer Broadcasting Co. said it would be premature of the FCC to go into the Grand Rapids matter before final decision in its overall interim policy. It said that dropping in ch. 13 at Grand Rapids at substandard spacing and also adding ch. 13 at Alpena, Mich., as suggested would so seriously affect operation of Storer's WSPD-TV Toledo, Ohio, and Crosley Broadcasting's WLWI (TV) Indianapolis, both ch. 13 outlets, that the four stations would then serve 471,194 fewer persons than are now served by WSPD-TV and WLWI alone. Storer favored the status quo in the Michigan market, but suggested if the FCC feels a change is required that it put in ch. 13 in Grand Rapids at standard spacing. If the commission feels substandard spacing is required, Storer's alternative is to put ch. 11 in Grand Rapids and grant the Joint Council on Educational Television's request for an etv station on ch. 9 in Cadillac, Mich.

Crosley filed a reply supporting the Storer position, generally, particularly that reduction of service of WLWI should not be allowed.

WLPA (TV) Alpena, Mich., urged the FCC to make its allocation there before deciding the interim policy question. It recommended putting ch. 13 in Grand Rapids and giving it ch. 11 in Alpena in place of its currently assigned ch. 9.

AMST took a position similar to that in the general allocation proceeding, asking that the FCC not assign any channel at substandard spacing. If the commission feels there is an urgent need for such a drop-in at less than minimum mileage requirement spacing, it should defer action until the entire drop-in and interim policy proceedings have ended, AMST said.

Fetzer Broadcasting Co. took issue with some comments which maintained that Grand Rapids was more closely allied with Muskegon, Mich., than with Kalamazoo. Fetzer stated its WKZO-TV Kalamazoo also serves Grand Rapids. Fetzer's comments urged ch. 11 be allocated to Grand Rapids rather than ch. 13.

HARRIS WON'T TAKE NO FOR AN ANSWER

He re-introduces network regulation, trafficking bills

Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) of the House Commerce Committee last week introduced legislation aimed at licensing and regulating networks and prohibiting so-called trafficking in station licenses. He thus took the first step toward redeeming his promise, made last year, to hold committee hearings on the two issues. His bills on network licensing (HR 1164) and station property transfers (HR 1165) represent two of the most formidable threats facing broadcasters this year.

Committee hearings on network licensing and regulation are assured in the Senate, too. Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), chairman of the Communications Subcommittee, has, like Rep. Harris, submitted himself to holding hearings on the subject.

The substance of Rep. Harris' proposed legislation is not new. His proposals were originally introduced last year when he tied them together in a single measure. But the House Commerce Committee did not report last year's proposals to the floor and Rep. Harris explained the reason as being that hearings had not been held.

The network regulation bill would bring radio and television networks under FCC regulation by requiring them, like individual stations, to apply for operating licenses. They would be required to exercise control over broadcast matter and would be prohibited from giving unfair advantages in broadcasts to products or services in which they might have interests. The bill would also make it illegal for a network to enter into a contract with an affiliate that would inhibit the latter's operation in the public interest.

The anti-trafficking bill would remove the ban against the old Avco rule, require licensees to operate their stations for a minimum of three years and require a local public hearing in transfer applications where only one prospective purchaser is involved. The last provision is qualified to the extent that it would permit the FCC to approve the transfer without a hearing if it publishes the reasons it feels a hearing is not needed.

■ There's big news in the Shreveport-Texarkana area. Four items are especially worth noting: 1. KCMC-TV (soon to become KTAL) is constructing the South's tallest tower midway between Shreveport and Texarkana. 2. When this new tower goes into operation, in early spring, call-letters of the station will change to KTAL. 3. Rising 1587 feet above average terrain, the new tower and full 100,000 watt power will make KTAL the only station putting a city-strength signal into both Shreveport and Texarkana. 4. Advent of KTAL will bring three-network service to the Shreveport-Texarkana area for the first time. ■ RESULT: alert advertisers are already getting set for increased business in the rapidly expanding Shreveport-Texarkana market, with increased spot-orders. It's time NOW to get in touch with the nearest office of Blair Television Associates.

HARRIS' FINAL OVERSIGHT REPORT:

Re-emphasis on a needed permanent control agency

Final report of the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee contained no surprises and pretty much followed the script of earlier staff recommendations for the FCC and radio-tv (BROADCASTING, Dec. 26, 1960).

Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) and his subcommittee (Democrats John B. Bennett, Mich.; William L. Springer, Ill.; Steven B. Derounian, N. Y.; Samuel L. Devine, Ohio; and Republicans Peter F. Mack Jr., Ill.; Walter Rogers, Tex.; John J. Flynt Jr., Ga.; John E. Moss, Calif.) submitted their final views, with strong minority dissents on non-broadcast matters, to the new 87th Congress last Tuesday (Jan. 3).

As in the earlier staff report, the full committee recommends a regular Subcommittee on Federal Administrative Agencies to replace the Oversight Subcommittee which expired with the new Congress.

The report also recommends regulation of networks, measures to prevent trafficking in licenses, further study as to use of ratings in overall programming policy of stations and a closer examination of programming at renewal time by the FCC.

Delay is the most critical problem in government by commissions, the congressmen said. "Improper influence thrives on delay. So also do excessive costs and volume of record," the report stated. "The chief factors contributing to mounting administrative commission backlogs are lack of clearly defined and published standards and policies; lack of planning for future technological developments in the industries being regulated; excessive interventions; cumbersome procedures; absence of incentives for speedy decisions . . . and the necessity for certain commissions to perform the conflicting statutory duties of promotion and regulation."

Hearings of the subcommittee, principally panel discussions in 1959, indicate a variety of remedies, it was pointed out. "The time has now come for Congress to utilize this data in drafting necessary legislative measures and, through the recommended regular subcommittee, to exercise continuing watchfulness over agency operations," the report continued.

The FCC is criticized for ". . . little or no forward planning for the infinitely increased range of communications now being developed as the result of space exploration and study." (Note: In this regard, the commission has recently appointed Paul M. McDonough, formerly administrative assistant to the chairman, to work in development of space communications policies.)

A Landis Conflict? ■ No direct mention is made of the recent study and recommendations on regulatory commissions prepared by James M. Landis under mandate of President-elect Kennedy (BROADCASTING, Jan. 2, also page 42). However, the report "recognizes that effective reform of the administrative process requires teamwork between the executive and Congress. . . . It would be tragic to have a conflict develop between the executive and Congress over the question of which branch has supreme control over the federal agencies."

The FCC and other agencies, it was pointed out, exercise powers delegated to them by Congress and Congress has the constitutional responsibility of supervising and overseeing their operations. One recommendation, designed to remove an area of alleged executive influence over the agencies, was that the Budget Bureau's power to censor agency appropriations requests be removed.

Rep. Harris promptly carried out one recommendation in his own report. He re-introduced a bill (HR 14), titled "Independent Regulatory Agencies Act of 1961," which prescribes ethical standards of conduct for agency proceedings and bans improper ex parte contacts. The same measure, then HR 12731, was approved by the House Commerce Committee during the 86th Congress but was not acted upon by the House or Senate during 1960.

Minority Views ■ The Republican members of the subcommittee claimed that the earlier staff report was ". . . unfair, unjudicial and beneath the dignity of a congressional committee. . . . We want to completely disassociate ourselves from, and disclaim any responsibility for, the so-called staff report." The minority principally objected to conclusions drawn and charges made against the Interstate Commerce Commission and Civil Aeronautics Board ". . . without having afforded the accused their day in court."

The four Republican members said that "perhaps the most shocking political whitewash to come out of a congressional committee in many years is that which is accorded Thomas G. Corcoran." Hearings were held on the role Mr. Corcoran played in a matter before the Federal Power Commission and both the staff and subcommittee report said that his actions were proper.

Ironically, in his appearance before the subcommittee, Mr. Corcoran's legal counsel was former Rep. Joseph P. O'Hara (R-Minn.), member of the subcommittee until his retirement from Congress in 1959.

A SNEAKY PROBLEM FOR TIME BUYERS

On Friday, April 1, 1898, three new clocks were all started at precisely twelve noon. At noon the next day clock A recorded the correct time,* clock B had gained one minute and clock C had lost one minute. This state of affairs was allowed to continue without correction. Can rep firms really serve competing media?

MOST SAY YES AS THEY DISAGREE WITH FRANK MILLER

Headley-Reed Co.'s going-out-of-business statement that no rep can serve two masters—both broadcasting and newspapers—appeared to find little support last week among other station representation companies.

There were some dissents, but the consensus found in a spot check of leading representation authorities was that while television and newspapers obviously are competitive media, they are no more so—and no more impossible to handle within the same sales company—than, say, television and radio. The one condition that was uniformly specified was that newspapers and radio-tv should be sold by different organizations or divisions, not by the same salesmen.

The idea that both media cannot be sold unstintingly within a single company had been advanced by Frank Miller Sr., president of the Kelly-Smith newspaper representation firm, in explaining why Kelly-Smith decided to sell Headley-Reed, its radio-tv sales subsidiary. The Bolling Co. bought Headley-Reed, effective Feb. 1, at a price reported to be in excess of $500,000 (A DEADLINE, Jan. 2).

Competition Stiffening ■ Mr. Miller said broadcasting and newspapers "are becoming more and more competitive" and that it is no longer possible for a newspaper sales representative to hold an interest in a radio-tv representative "and continue to put forth full efforts in newspapers' behalf." He said Kelly-Smith, which founded Headley-Reed as a radio division in 1936, would henceforth "sell newspapers in the most effective manner possible, as it has for better than 50 years."

Headley-Reed's departure will leave two companies operating as major forces in the representation of both radio-tv stations and newspapers. They are The Katz Co. and the Branham Co., both of which conduct their broadcast and newspaper operations through completely separate departments or divisions.

Katz officials declined to comment formally on the Miller statement and Branham officials were reluctant to say much, but it was obvious that they not only disagreed with Mr. Miller's contention that the two media are incompatible now, but also looked for no difficult competitive complications in the foreseeable future.

Separate Salesmen ■ Along with many of their colleagues who sell radio and television only, they clearly felt that so long as the sales operations are kept entirely separate there is no lessening of the effectiveness of either. At some future time there may be some instances—and in Branham's case there are some now—where a newspaper client may not wish its rep to handle a competing local

The NAB's new boss sets up shop

Gov. LeRoy Collins (second from right) vacated his Florida executive offices last week and made a fast shift to NAB Washington headquarters where he moved into the presidency. His first official act Jan. 5 was to get together with the association's top-level administrative-advisory executives.

Asked what he had told the executive group, Gov. Collins said, "I didn't tell them; I asked them." He added, "They'll be telling me. I'm satisfied we have a strong organization." Later in the day he held a staff meeting with all department heads, secretaries and clerical employees.

All You Need to Know About Aspirin, or More

CHEMISTS and pedants call it acetylsalicylic acid. Chap name of Gerhardt whipped it up in 1853, but it wasn't until deadlines became common that anyone could think of a use for the stuff. Actually, Heindrich Dreser, researcher for Bayer in Germany, was looking for a palliative for rheumatoid arthritis sufferers who couldn't stand the side effects of salicylates, real stomach bombs widely used around 1899, when he tried old Gerhardt's concoction. It worked.

One thing led to another. Some character with arthritis and a hangover took it, felt better, and schnapps sales boomed. It was serendipitous for drinkers but eventually tough on Bayer. The name aspirin evolved after a generation of prescription-fillers got headaches trying to read acetylsalicylic acid, scrawled by doctors not famous for calligraphy. It became acetyl-spiric, then aspirin, and not a minute too soon.

Bayer's U.S. patent expired in 1917, followed in a few years by schnapps itself, it said there in the 18th Amendment. After a long legal hassle, Bayer saw the courts decide that the name had entered the public domain, or whatever words enter when they become common nouns.

That aspirin relieves pain and reduces fever is pretty well established. The reason for this is another matter, perhaps hidden deep in the Antarctic of the body. Some 17 billion aspirin are produced annually in the U. S. newspaper, or vice versa, it was said, but this was not regarded as an impediment to the effective handling of both.

A number of broadcasting-only representatives singled out Katz' success as evidence that the two media can be handled compatibly within the same shop. The tone of their argument was that "there's nothing to get in the way of handling both media — newspapers and radio-tv very often are owned by the same people, and in any case, we're handling both radio and television without favoring one or slighting the other." Or: "There's no reason why radio-tv and newspapers can't be sold by the same principals, so long as one salesman isn't trying to sell both."

A few broadcasting-only representatives felt, however, that Mr. Miller was right and that rep companies should concentrate their sales fire. One even ventured to support this contention by adapting an argument with which most representatives have been sympathetic in the past. "It's just like the old network thing," he said. "A rep has no more business selling both radio-tv and newspapers than the networks have in trying to run spot sales organizations on the side." But that appeared to be a minority viewpoint.

Networks begin talks with technical unions

Network labor executives, who recently completed a strenuous round of talks leading to contracts with the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists and the Screen Actors Guild, embark on another schedule of negotiations this month. NBC and ABC open talks today (Jan. 9) with the National Assn. of Broadcast Employees & Technicians in Cincinnati, while CBS begins its contract talks with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in New York on Jan. 16.

The pacts, which cover technical employees largely at the networks and owned stations, expire on Jan. 31. Approximately 2,300 workers at ABC and NBC are under NABET's jurisdiction, while about 1,500 CBS employees are members of IBEW.

Neither union nor management officials would disclose any information at this time on contract proposals. It is reported that the unions will seek basic increases in salaries and safeguards against job displacement because of automation.

Voice of Democracy winners

State winners from all 50 states and District of Columbia were announced Jan. 4 by the Voice of Democracy broadcast scriptwriting contest. The high school students (26 girls and 25 boys) won all-expense trips to Washington in February. The four top national winners will be announced at a Feb. 22 awards luncheon. The contest is sponsored annually by NAB, Electronic Industries Assn. and state associations of broadcasters in cooperation with the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Sindlinger's new service

Albert E. Sindlinger Inc. will announce the inauguration of its new nationwide daily tv activity service at a luncheon to be held at New York's Sheraton East Hotel on Tuesday (Jan. 19). Service will make available ratings within a week of telecast based on new sampling taken daily.

ABC to meet with affiliates

ABC is holding two meetings in Miami Beach this week. Network Executives and the board of governors of the tv network's Affiliates Advisory Assn. will meet Thursday and Friday (Jan. 12-13). Station managers of the network's owned-and-operated radio and tv stations stage their annual meetings during the entire week, starting today (Jan. 9). The conferences will take place at the Balmoral Hotel.

The board of governors also will begin its meetings today, led by Chairman Howard W. Maschmeier, general manager of WNHC-TV New Haven before convening with ABC-TV executives on Thursday. Presiding at the station managers meeting will be Stephen C. Riddleberger, ABC vice president for owned and operated stations. Future plans of the owned and operated stations will be discussed.

Call letter change ■ KCMC-TV Texarkana, Tex., has been authorized by the FCC to change its call letters to KTAL (TV), effective with its change of transmitter site to Vivian, La., expected this spring. The new transmitter installation will more than triple the number of people reached by the station, it is claimed. The program, presented during a period the station is normally off the air (7-7:30 a.m.), was put on tv to increase the number of dealers who could attend the meeting.

A barometer indicating video-tape's growing use

The growth of National Video Tape Productions from one mobile Ampex unit and three remote pickup units in 1959 to its present range of tape services is indicative of the increasing use of video tape by agencies, advertisers and stations.

National Video Tape Productions Inc. is an 18-month-old division of Sports Network Inc., New York. It has adopted the slogan "total tape service" to dramatize its aim to please all possible tape clients, an aim also backed up by the company's investment in new equipment, enlarged facilities, additional personnel and expansion into new areas of production.

Jack Bozarth, vice president, Sports Network Inc., described the company's growth formula as a determination to meet all tape demands on the client's own terms. By such acceptance, the division claims it has expanded far beyond original on-location services.

The heart of National Video Tape Productions' expanded operations is a newly completed tape control center (see photos), where some $400,000 worth of equipment provides full facilities for tape editing, duplicating and playback, as well as arrangements for transmission of live or tape presentations or programs to any location. The tape control center is linked with the company's large production studio in E. Rutherford, N. J., two new smaller studios adjoining the control center at 36 W. 44th St., and is tied into the New York Telephone Co.'s switching center for hookups with agency subscribers. The tape division also utilizes AT&T lines leased by Sports Network Inc., which Mr. Bozarth said is AT&T's fourth largest broadcast customer—topped only by the three tv networks.

Mr. Bozarth emphasized that his company is ready to aggressively compete for complete commercial production. In the program area, the company has signed with Dot Productions Inc., New York, to tape for tv a series of off-Broadway plays.

In the past year, Sports Network-National Video Tape Productions' equipment and/or personnel has participated in such diverse projects as pilot tapes, documentaries, sports coverage of baseball, football, hockey, wrestling, and basketball, and closed circuit telecasts of sales, medical and educational meetings. Commercials have been taped for a wide range of advertisers, including Frigidaire, Armstrong, Florida Citrus Fruit Growers, General Electric, Western Union and Schaefer beer.

The company now employs a staff of 36. A large chunk of the company's business is obtained through sub-contracting and leasing of equipment and personnel, while still another plan offered clients suggests complete production, with directors, writers, and talent supplied under National Video Tape's direct supervision.

The company's fleet of three mobile video tape units and three camera-equipped mobile units also will be enlarged in the next few weeks with the addition of a new "deluxe" bus unit assigned permanently to the New York area. Other units will increase assignment schedules in other parts of the country, new business sought from stations not yet equipped with tape facilities.

Live programs in Rutherford, N. J., studio of National Video Tape Productions and Sports Network Inc. are fed to the new tape control center in New York.

Complete tape facilities for playback, editing and recording are contained in this new tape control center at New York headquarters.

during nearly 70% of the daytime hours

The latest Nielsen figures tell this story: Nearly 70% of every weekday more women watch WJAR-TV than watch the other Providence station! If you are selling products to women the conclusion is obvious. And, if you are selling products on which both men and women decide, you'll have the women on your side (and most of the men, too, at night) if you advertise on WJAR-TV.

BELOW-THE-LINE LABOR TALKS BEGIN

Motion picture unions want 25% wage hike, other benefits

The International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Projection Operators and the six so-called basic craft unions begin new contract negotiations with the producers of motion pictures for theatres and tv today (Jan. 9) in Hollywood.

Major demands of the unions include a 25% across-the-board increase in wages and changes in the industry's pension and health-and-welfare plans.

Some 60 representatives of the 29 unions and about as many from the Assn. of Motion Picture Producers and the Alliance of Television Film Producers will sit down at AMPP headquarters at 2 p.m. today. Their goal is to reach agreement on new contract terms before the present pact expires on Jan. 30. This agreement, the first to be negotiated jointly between the craft unions and AMPP and ATFP, was a two-year contract.

The unions are asking for a 21-month contract now, with a termination date of Oct. 31, 1962, returning the agreements to the expiration date of former years. The reason is said to be that the fall is normally a time of peak employment in film production, so negotiations then would find the unions in a stronger bargaining position.

Dependents, too ■ The major change in the health and welfare plan asked by the unions is for inclusion of dependents as well as workers. It is estimated that to give dependents 80% of the protection now enjoyed by the workers would cost the film producers, who bear the entire cost of the plan, about eight cents per worker per hour. The unions also are asking for double the present life insurance coverage to a total of $5,000 per participant.

In the pension plan, the major demand is for a plan that would give each worker 45 years of age with five years employment a 25% interest in his normal retirement benefit, rising 5% a year to 100% at age 60 with 20 years of steady work to his credit. The unions also want to reduce the retirement to 62 years for women, retaining the 65 years for men and an increase of $25 a month over the present $90 pension payment, plus disability payments and a death benefit of $1,000.

Other demands include the right to reopen the contract's wage provisions if the U.S. consumer price index rises 2%, rather than 5% as in the present contract; Golden Hours (extra-overtime with pay 2½ times scale) to start after 10 consecutive hours of work instead of 14 hours; changes in the meal period provisions and in other phases of studio work.

Unusual are three demands that would forbid motion picture production "outside the limits of the United States and its territories," and would also prevent the producer from moving any equipment or operations included in film production from his present studios to anyplace outside Los Angeles county without the permission of the unions.

Below-The-Line ■ The IATSE locals include such workers as electricians, carpenters, grips, stagehands, property men, hairdressers, costumers, make-up artists and publicists. The basic crafts unions are teamsters, culinary workers, plasterers, etc. Together, they are responsible for the below-the-line facets of film production. (The above-the-line phases are writing, acting, directing—the so-called creative parts.)

The negotiating committees of all the unions met for a final strategy session last Friday evening (Jan. 6). Although all members of these committees are normally authorized to take part in the overall contract negotiations, it was agreed that with so many unions involved, it would be more practical to limit each one to its business agent plus one member of the negotiating committee and this was done.

For the past month, individual unions have been meeting with the employers to work out their individual problems and these meetings will continue in the mornings, with the general sessions starting at 2 p.m. each day. Richard Walsh, president of IATSE, will join the negotiators in about two weeks. Meanwhile, George Flaherty, Hollywood representative of IATSE's international office, will head the IATSE delegation.

CBS Films sales held steady in past year

CBS Films Inc. domestic sales held firm in 1960 despite a general slump in the syndicated film market, a year-end summary revealed last week. Record levels of 1959 were maintained and sufficient groundwork laid to make the outlook for 1961 extremely promising. The film company reported new business is already running 10% ahead of a year ago with three new half-hour shows ready for production this month.

Altogether five shows will be offered for network programming during the 1960-61 season. Production of one, a comedy, has been completed while another comedy show is currently being filmed in Hollywood. Each of the new programs will feature performers, all, with one exception, never before given tv exposure on a regular basis.

Among other items, the survey showed that CBS Films international sales were up 30% over 1959, that the firm had established a new production department in Hollywood and that licensing activities had increased with 1960 bringing record gross and net figures.

Guild Films granted bankruptcy petition

A bankruptcy petition was granted to Guild Films Co., New York, by U.S. District Judge William B. Herlands on Dec. 29. Guild is expected to file a detailed report on its assets and liabilities shortly. Judge Herlands named Laurence A. Kobrin, New York attorney, as receiver.

Guild earlier had filed a petition to reorganize the company under Chapter 10 of the Bankruptcy Act. This petition was denied by U.S. District Judge John F. X. McGohey. Chapter 10 permits a company to remain under the control of its owners while undergoing reorganization in bankruptcy proceedings.

In its petition for reorganization under Chapter 10, Guild had listed liabilities amounting to approximately $9 million and had noted that it had assets but had not given their value.

Groups charge tv cruelty to animals

You gotta' quit kicking our dog around! This was the essence of the feeling expressed by representatives of international humane societies towards tv and film producers.

Film makers were charged with inflicting more and more outright cruelty on animals and with putting more apparent cruelty and violence on the screens, at the New York meeting of the Legion of Decency, the Humane Society of the United States and the World Federation for Protection of Animals. The three organizations pledged to fight the emphasis on "violence and brutality," stating that the self-governing codes of the movies and television were "largely ineffective."

Executives of the humane societies conferred with Ed Bronson, executive of the NAB Tv Code Review Board to give him their views on how animals should be treated on tv.

PETER FRANK DID, PARLAYING $500 INTO $2.4 MILLION IN 5 YEARS

To Peter Frank, who celebrated his 35th birthday Jan. 2, radio is no moribund industry. It's a goldmine of opportunity whose surface he has only scratched.

His feeling is understandable. His investment of $500 made less than five years ago has blossomed into a multifaceted operation that last year did a gross of some $2.4 million and in 1961 should hit $3.9 million.

"Radio's greatest need today is for a large, integrated organization that can supply a station with the major part of its needs in programming, production and promotion," Mr. Frank believes.

And Mr. Frank, through his Peter Frank Organization, is doing his best to meet that need. More than 300 stations are now subscribers to "The Big Sound" radio program and production services produced by one wholly-owned subsidiary, Stars International, and distributed domestically by another, Richard H. Ullman Inc. Many stations use IMN and Target jingles, for which Ullman is exclusive distributor. And Ullman also sells the Spotmaster tape cartridge recording and playback machines manufactured by Broadcast Electronics, in which Mr. Frank is a stockholder.

Merchandise ■ Just added to the PFO list of radio station services is a new one that enables "Big Sound" stations to buy merchandise in the relatively small quantities they need locally at the national mass-volume rates. The merchandise includes penny items like lollipops, balloons and pencils but also offers pieces of jewelry or apparel and appliances costing up to $25 apiece that are suitable for prizes.

"In addition to the many items available to stations individually, we are instituting a continuing merchandise plan that will offer a new item each month," Mr. Frank said. "Some of these we will develop ourselves and license a manufacturer to produce them for us. Others will be bought from manufacturers who already have them in production, probably on the basis that we'll take their complete supply to give our stations exclusively. In either case, we'll operate on a mass-volume basis that will give the stations a chance to get their prizes and promotional pieces at a much lower cost than they could get on their own."

PFO's introductory item, a white duck sailor hat imprinted with whatever slogan a station desired, was offered at 50¢ per hat, two-thirds of the usual wholesale price. "We sent out a sample with a test letter and sold half a million with no other publicity or promotion, so we think we're on the right track," Mr. Frank said.

Barter, Too ■ Along with Stars International and Richard H. Ullman Inc. the Peter Frank Organization owns outright Omar Music, which furnishes more than 40 tv series with all or part of their theme, bridge and background music, and holds 40% interest in Del Wood Assoc., a New York based advertising agency specializing in the broadcast barter business.

Mr. Frank himself is also an equal partner with James Higson, former program director of KHJ-TV Los Angeles, in Higson-Frank Enterprises, radio management consultant firm that has filed applications for am stations in Fresno, Calif., Houston, Tex., and Indianapolis. Mr. Higson has a construction permit for an fm station in Newport Beach, Calif., his residence since leaving KHJ-TV, which will be the test station for a fully automated program service to be offered to good music stations.

In 1956, Mr. Frank was an associate producer for Robert Maxwell Assoc., producer of the Lassie tv series. He was also vice president in charge of business affairs and expansion, but today he comments, "We were always about to expand, but we never did." Robert Maxwell, producer Rudy Abel and Mr. Frank didn't think much of the background music then used on Lassie. They felt it could be improved, so, together with Television Programs of America President Milton Gordon and R. Kraushaar, composer, they organized Omar Music Co.

Omar thrived from the start, providing music for the TPA programs as well as Lassie and adding others until today it claims to be the largest firm in its field. Omar's 1960 revenue includes more than $50,000 billings to clients plus about $35,000 in performance fees from ASCAP and BMI.

Northward Ho ■ Early in 1958, Stuart Mackay, general manager of All-

Canada Radio & Television Ltd., Canadian station representative firm, came to Mr. Frank with an idea for a program service for Canadian radio stations: five-minute interviews with Hollywood stars which subscribing stations could use to glamorize their music and news program formats. Stars International was organized to provide the taped interviews and announced the new service at the May 1958 convention of the Canadian Assn. of Broadcasters in Montreal. By June the first Stars International package of 40 interviews (two apiece from 20 tv, movie and recording artists) was on the air; by August, 35 Canadian stations were broadcasting them.

Mr. Frank, who still was working for Robert Maxwell Assoc., spent that summer in Montreal as assistant producer on the Cannonball tv series, but before he left Los Angeles he had become sole owner of Omar Music as well as president-partner of Stars International. Will Scott, just returned to civilian life after 11 years with the Armed Forces Radio Service, had joined Stars International as executive vice president and producer of its programs, "and with him on hand I could go off to Canada with a clear conscience," Mr. Frank reported. "I'd learned long before that there were many things I couldn't do myself, so the smart thing to do was get someone who could do them and then let him do them with no interference from me, but just enough supervision to let him know I was interested in what he was doing." This theory has worked out well in practice: Mr. Scott today is executive producer of Stars International, in charge of all of the more than 20 "Big Sound" services.

By the time he got back to Hollywood in the fall of 1958, Mr. Frank was enthusiastic over the successful introduction of the new program service into Canada and saw no reason why it couldn't go just as well with U.S. radio stations. "The program pattern had completely changed from the days when the radio networks sent star-studded programs to their affiliates," he stated. "The network personalities had moved into television; radio programming had become pretty much a matter of records and news, both available to all stations, so there was a desperate need for some program items that would give a station a supply of stardust to sprinkle over its schedule, to give a sparkling image that would stand out from all the other stations in town. The stations needed the stars; the stars needed the radio exposure; all we had to do was to get the two together."

Big Splash ■ Stars International had done such a good job of putting stars and stations together, with the able assistance of Richard U. Ullman Inc., which became the exclusive U.S. sales representative on Jan. 1, 1959, that in the two years since then the company has issued 8,886 individual radio program and production items and now provides stations with 33 "Big Sound" features. Bulk of the service features the familiar names and voices of entertainment personalities, who give temperature and time reports (there are four separate voice recordings for every Fahrenheit degree from 20 below zero to 120 above, three voices for each five-minute time segment of the 24 hours) or ask for time or temperature from the local disk jockey who is thereby brought into flattering association with the star. Literally hundreds of name performers have served as announcers of "Big Sound" spots, which also include weather reports, introductions for newscasts, sportscasts, record albums and individual records, public service announcements, comedy vignettes, holiday greetings, open end birthday greetings, etc.

Music, Music ■ There is also music—a dozen categories of cues, bridges, themes, intros, separators, underscores, etc. for commercials and programs, as well as news intros and headline backgrounds, plus what are called "space age musical production cues," "attention getters" and "comedy sound effects." There are also three radio features: Memo from Mary (guidance on personal problems), Terry's Kitchen (household hints) and Your Hollywood Reporter (latest news of entertainment personalities), each produced so it can be programmed at any length from 10 seconds to 30 minutes. And the stars also are available for custom made announcements of station calls, slogans and special events.

In March 1959, Mr. Frank resigned from Robert Maxwell Assoc. to devote full time to the rapid expansion of "Big Sound" programming and before the year was out he had bought the interests of Messrs. Mackay and Scott, after what he described as "a friendly disagreement over whether we were expanding too rapidly, as they felt, or should step up our pace." He also became sole owner of Stars International. To prove that the disagreement was truly "friendly," Mr. Frank points out that Mr. Scott is still executive producer of "Big Sound" and still participates in the earnings of Stars International.

During 1959 Mr. Frank formed RPF Enterprises as the basic holding company for most of his interests. On Oct. 24, 1960, RPF became The Peter Frank Organization and on the same date the new company acquired full ownership of its distribution arm, Richard H. Ullman Inc.

Last September, Herbert N. Eiseman, who had been head of music at Desilu and previously in the music publishing business, became executive vice president of Omar Music with the assignment of finding new fields beyond its basic background music service for tv series. Eiseman Music Co. was formed to create station and commercial jingles. Johnny Mann, composer-arranger, was named musical director. His first assignment was to create new jingles for KFWB Los Angeles, which began using them about Thanksgiving time.

Eiseman Music, Ullman and IMN (for Intermountain Network, its original owner) also have formed Target Jingles to create and produce jingles for stations and advertisers. "We now have the biggest assortment of station jingles in the country," Mr. Frank asserted. "We have jingles for every type of station including six middle-of-the-road jingle services." Eiseman, IMN (in which Mr. Frank, for once, has no ownership) and Target produce the jingles; Ullman sells them.

Barter Evolution ■ As "The Big Sound" spread throughout the land, stations began to ask whether they could not get these program services in exchange for time rather than cash and soon these requests represented a volume of potential business which could not be ignored. Mr. Frank pondered the problem and decided to set up a new company to handle the barter business while Ullman maintained its cash-only sales policy.

The new firm, Del Wood Assoc., is operated independently, with its own offices and personnel, none of whom have any connection with Ullman. Mr. Frank does not even have a controlling interest.

"Del Wood Assoc. deals only with advertisers who are either new to radio or have not used the medium for a number of years," he explained. "We tell station managers and station representatives that Del Wood won't go after any business they can sell themselves for cash. But if they are willing to do business on a barter basis, we'll handle it for them as pleasantly and painlessly as possible. To do this Del Wood has had to add various services for its clients, many of them new to advertising, until now it has become a well-rounded advertising agency. And despite our original reluctance to enter the barter field, it now accounts for about one-third of our station billings."

Simon Ronald Peter Frank (who dropped his first two names early in life) was born in New York City. The family moved to California in 1929 when he was three and he grew up in a house filled with visitors from the East, friends of his father, financial men who had come to Hollywood to see how they could cut down on studio overhead in those depression days when the banks had taken control of the movies. "My father's closest friend was Nat Levine, first president of Republic Studios," he said.

Producers, writers and, occasionally, stars also came and went. When young Peter was through school (UCLA topped off by a master's degree in business administration from Columbia) he spent several months knocking on studio doors, puzzled at the cool reception he got until he discovered that his father had let it be known that he didn't want his son working in motion pictures.

Back to Hollywood ■ But after a year as an executive of Autobridge, where he developed a plastic canasta tray, Mr. Frank met Eugenie Leontovich, Russian actress, who hired him as her business manager and later gave him a chance to produce. His production of "The Cherry Orchard" in which Miss Leontovich co-starred with Charles Laughton, in 1949 brought him an offer from Dore Schary which took him to Hollywood to work at MGM successively as a production assistant, assistant director and film editor.

In 1953 he became a producer of documentaries for Charles A. Palmer, but after he married Barbara Tishman (daughter of the builder) he wanted to stay put instead of traveling around the world in search of subject matter. So he went to work for BBDO in Hollywood as a tv account executive for Campbell Soup, which became sponsor of two tv series, Lassie and Dear Phoebe. After a year at the agency, he resigned to join Robert Maxwell Assoc., producer of Lassie.

Tall (6' 1½"), slim (195), with black hair which is already beginning to thin out in front, Mr. Frank looks forward to increased activity on the radio front. He has already given Air Australia Ltd. exclusive distribution rights to "The Big Sound" in Australia, New Zealand, Singapore and South Africa and he is considering an invasion of Latin America.

Peter and Barbara Frank and their two daughters, Robin 4½ and Jody 1½, live in Beverly Hills, where he enjoys bridge, poker and drinking, "like everyone else," but spends an hour a night with Barron's and other financial papers trying to analyze what the market is going to do, "probably a hangover from my schooldays when I majored in math," he said. Weekends, if he isn't in New York where he spends at least a week a month, he may get in some golf or water skiing, but he's had to give up tennis, fencing and hunting "because there just isn't time for them."

Maybe you've been one of these unfortunates . . . who've spent thousands of dollars . . . plus many man hours . . . to record valuable information on magnetic tapes . . . only to find the data useless from accidental distortion or erasure.

Unexpected exposure to an unpredicted magnetic field, and presto!—your valuable data is filled with irritating odd noises. Distortions may result in virtual data erasure.

Unprepared tape users never realize the danger of loss until it's too late.

Such losses have become increasingly common from damaging magnetic fields during transportation or storage. These fields may be produced by airplane radar or generating equipment or other power accessories. Also by generators, power lines, power supplies, motors, transformers, welding machines, magnetic tables on surface grinders, magnetic chucks, degaussers, solenoids, etc.

Since 1956, many military and commercial tape users successfully avoid such unpleasant surprises. Their solution is shipping and storing valuable tapes in sturdy NETIC Tape Data Preservers.

Data remains clear, distinct and distortion-free in NETIC Preservers. Original recorded fidelity is permanently maintained.

Don't take chances with your valuable magnetic tapes. Keep them permanently clear and distinct for every year of their useful life in dependable NETIC Preservers. Can be supplied in virtually any size and shape to your requirement. Write for further details today.

For complete, distortion-free protection of valuable tapes during transportation or storage. Single or multiple containers available in many convenient sizes or shapes.

WEEK FULL OF CRISES

Networks focus attention on Laotian, Cuban developments

NBC-TV was turning out specials last week almost as fast as world developments were turning out crises.

Twice in two days, on little more than a few hours' notice, the network came up with background news programs tied to fast-breaking international developments. The first, a half-hour on the Laotian crisis, was presented Monday night. It was also the first "unscheduled" program sponsored by Gulf Oil Co. under its "instant sponsorship" deal with NBC. The second, a quarter-hour on the break in diplomatic relations with Cuba, was shown Tuesday night less than three hours after the break was announced.

CBS-TV meanwhile planned to deal with both crises in one program, an Eyewitness to History half-hour under Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. sponsorship at 10:30-11 p.m. EST last Friday (Jan. 6). This required a quick turnaround by CBS-TV too: It had been planning a report on the convening of Congress for that date.

NBC News started scouting film footage that might be used for a special on Laos on Friday (Dec. 30, 1960), when the Laotian situation began to warm up, but the final decision to proceed with the program was not reached until about noon the following Monday, nine hours before air time.

News and public affairs director Julian Goodman and producer Chet Hagan got the preliminary work under way with the screening of NBC news-film shot in Laos in recent months by Hong Kong correspondent James Robinson and NBC cameramen based in that area. At noon Monday Mr. Goodman put the idea of a special to William R. McAndrew, vice president for NBC News, and they agreed it should run that night at 9 p.m. NBC President Robert E. Kintner gave them the go-ahead.

Mr. Goodman notified producer Hagan, who in turn alerted director

Robert Priaulx and correspondents Robinson, Cecil Brown (Tokyo) and Frank McGee, who was anchorman for the program. Messrs. Robinson and Brown, frequent visitors to Laos, were in New York for NBC's yearend news roundup. Mr. Hagan also contacted NBC News in Washington and set up reports from White House correspondent Ray Scherer and Washington correspondent Robert McCormick.

Getting Gulf sponsorship for the special was less complicated. The company recently put up more than $1 million for "special news reports" covering fast-breaking national and international news. When NBC is setting up such a program it notifies Gulf officials, who have the right to refuse sponsorship but say they don't expect they'll do so very often (BROADCASTING, Dec. 12, 5, 1960).

After the Monday night Laos show NBC News did it all over again, more or less, with the special report on Cuba at 11:15-30 p.m. Tuesday.

'Heckle & Jeckle' for sale

CBS Films Inc., N.Y., is offering Terrytoons' The Heckle and Jeckle Cartoon Show for syndication sale to stations and sponsors throughout the U. S. effective Jan. 1, 1961. Although the series of 26 half-hours, or a library of 104 cartoons, was not placed officially on the market until first of year, following stations placed early orders: WNBQ (TV) Chicago, WCCO-TV Minneapolis, KLZ-TV Denver, WMCT (TV) Memphis, WSIX-TV Nashville, WNDU-TV South Bend and KCPX-TV Salt Lake City.

NBC-TV buys British special

NBC-TV has bought from Independent Television Program Co. Ltd. an hour special, A Night at the Palladium. It will be scheduled sometime next spring, the network said.

Val Parnell, Palladium impresario and managing director of Associated TeleVision Ltd., is executive producer of the special, being taped during regular stage shows at the London house.

NOTHING IS CHEAP

Fate takes expensive swipes at 'Gershwin'

A "comedy of errors" plaguing the forthcoming CBS-TV presentation of The Gershwin Years (Sunday, Jan. 15, 8-9:30 p.m. EST) has upped the production budget. Latest episode in CBS-TV's version of "the perils of broadcasting" occurred on Thursday (Jan. 5) when the tv company paid $907.80 to buy out and darken for one night the entire 199-seat house of the off-Broadway East 74th St. Theatre. The unusual transaction was made to acquire the services of Carmen de Lavallade, star performer of "Ballet Ballads," the new song and dance production that is currently playing in the theatre.

Immediately after her Wednesday night performance, Miss de Lavallade was flown to Key West, Fla. by the network where a ten-minute dance sequence from "Porgy and Bess," subsequently to be shown on the Gershwin program, was retaped. The sequence has been a particularly costly one for CBS. It was originally taped early in December in a marshy area of New York City that authentically recreated the folk opera's famous Catfish Row. Three other performers besides Miss de Lavallade were included in the sequence which initially cost $10,000. At this point fate played its hand. Due to a technical blunder most of the sequence tape was erased and then the elements, adding snowfall to injury, made the marshy location a little Antarctica. Producer Leland Hayward after much floor pacing decided to restage the sequence in sunny Key West which necessitated transporting and continuing on the payroll Miss de Lavallade, her three co-performers and a small staff of production workers. As a bar to added costs the network utilized a technical crew covering the Jan. 2 Orange Bowl football game in Miami for the retaping.

As a windup to the expensive capers with 'Gershwin,' Miss de Lavallade was flown back to New York in time for her Friday evening performance.

There's a profit in selling color tv sets

GEN. SARNOFF PREDICTS GLOBAL COLOR TV BY 1964

A pledge that at least 50,501 RCA color television sets would be sold for the four-month period ending Feb. 28 was made last Thursday (Jan. 5) by dealers representing 67 RCA distributor areas throughout the United States.

The pledges came at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, at which Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, RCA chairman, and John L. Burns, president, outlined the six-year progress of color tv to its present status, which Mr. Burns described as "a $100 million-a-year industry" today.

The dinner was attended by dealers from 52 of RCA's 67 distributor organizations. Curtis Head, president of D&W Furniture & Appliance Co., an RCA Victor dealer in Abilene, Tex., said the dinner was a tribute to RCA for the leadership the company has taken in making color tv a "profitable reality." He presented Gen. Sarnoff and Mr. Burns with a bound volume containing the pledges, signed by 3,972 of approximately 10,000 RCA Victor color dealers throughout the country.

Global Color Tv ■ Gen. Sarnoff told the dealers that it was "entirely possible" that color tv would be broadcast globally by means of communications satellites as early as 1964 when the New York World's Fair opens. He recalled that the 1939 New York World's Fair ushered in black-and-white tv, and added:

"Officials of the 1964 New York World's Fair are already anticipating their own debut for world-wide television in color. From a technical standpoint, I am certain that date is feasible, that it will be possible to televise the Fair in natural color, over remote parts of the world by means of a satellite communications system."

He referred to the dealer pledges by saying that "The enthusiasm with which they have been put forth reaffirm the simple and unmistakable fact that color tv is the basic entertainment medium of the future." He compared the doubts about color tv six years ago with doubts expressed about other products and services, mentioning radio broadcasting, talking pictures and television itself.

"The pattern has been the same with color television," Gen. Sarnoff asserted. "First, it was ignored, then it was harshly criticized. Today, it is an important growth factor in the American economy, supported by a swelling chorus of critical praise. Nobody asks anymore: 'Where are all the Texas oil millionaires who can afford color sets?'"

Mr. Burns stated that color tv today is moving toward acceptance by the public, by advertisers and by tv stations. He observed that six years ago color tv set sales were scarce, but pointed out that in 1960, black-and-white receiver sales dropped 7% for the industry, while color sales rose by nearly 30%.

"Today color is a more than $100 million-a-year industry," he declared, "and RCA, together with its enterprising dealers and distributors, is enroute to higher and higher profits."

W. Walter Watts, president and board chairman of the RCA Sales Corp., said that color set sales were "breaking records in practically all areas due to the special effort being put forth by our dealers." He explained that the idea for dealer pledges was sparked by the company distributors, working through a committee headed by Thomas F. Joyce, president of the Raymond Rosen Co., Philadelphia. Mr. Watts pointed out that RCA distributors have played "a big part" in the surge in color tv set sales, because they convinced additional dealers that color tv can be sold today at a profit.

Tv set production down, sales climb, EIA reports

Tv set production slumped almost by 450,000 units for the 11 months of 1960, but sales remained 130,000 units

New translator ■ Adler Electronics Inc., of New Rochelle, N. Y., has developed a vhf tv translator to provide high quality reception in unserved areas. The Adler VST-1, together with standard vhf receiving and transmitting antennas, automatically picks up a vhf television signal off the air and converts it to a different channel for rebroadcast. Standard home receivers can pick up the broadcasts. Features of the VST-1, which was designed in accordance with the FCC ruling authorizing the use of such translators, include: 1 w output power; automatic, unattended operation; heterodyne conversion techniques; and remote control facilities.

Photoelectric control unit ■ Farmer Electric Products Co., 2300 Washington St., Newton Falls, Mass., has announced a combination electronic timer and photoelectric scanner. The unit provides multiple programming sequences, adjustable delay and hold-in times, and provides for light and dark operation. Information is available on six systems that provide scanning ranges from 2 inches to 18 feet.

Thimble tube ■ A thimble-size Nuvistor electron tube which makes possible improved television reception in weak signal areas has been introduced by RCA Electron Tube Div., Harrison, N. J. The tube, a high-mu triode called RCA-2CW4, is the third commercial tube utilizing the Nuvistor design concept.

New 3M division ■ Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. announces it has changed Zenith Plastics Co. from a subsidiary into an operating division. Zenith, organized in 1943 and a subsidiary since 1956, makes reinforced plastics components for military, aerospace and marine industries and proprietary products for consumer and industrial markets. New status is intended increase in Zenith's effectiveness in plastics industry, according to C. P. Pesek, 3M vice president (engineering and staff manufacturing) responsible for Zenith operations.

New plant ■ The General Instrument Corp., N. Y., manufacturers of semi-conductors and other electronic equipment, has opened a $3 million dollar plant devoted to development and mass production of transistors and other semi-conductor devices at Hicksville, N. Y. The 50,000 square foot plant, which is located on a nine-acre site, has already started commercial manufacturing operations and will be in almost full production by early 1961.

Vtr first ■ By putting into operation its second RCA video tape recorder, effective Jan. 1, KOB-TV Albuquerque, N. M., claims it has become the first tv station in New Mexico offering its advertisers complete vtr facilities. The station's new multiple tape operation will be used mainly to dub commercials and to pre-tape spots scheduled during tape broadcast periods.

Schafer's new year's sales surprise

Unveiling what he terms "a New Year's surprise" for his territorial sales engineers is Paul Schafer (kneeling), president of Schafer Custom Engineering Div. of Textron Electronics Inc., Burbank, Calif. The "surprise" is an all-new cartridge-type tape recorder, the Model 3,000, which Mr. Schafer describes as "the only one designed exclusively for broadcast station use."

All elements of the recorder are completely machined. It features a capstan idler which is brought into play position by precision linkage. The company claims that electronic maintenance is simplified by plug-in transistorized amplifier boards. Production is set for this month.

Civic servants honored with special WDW awards

As a means of extending public recognition for exceptional service—and of helping to stimulate such service—by city and county employes, WDW Decatur, Ill., has inaugurated a public-service award program.

The award goes each month to that member of the city police, fire, street or water departments, or of the Macon Co. sheriff's office, who is regarded as having demonstrated outstanding service and devotion to his job "above and beyond the call of duty." Included in the WDW Superior Service Award is a $25 U.S. savings bond, a certificate of commendation and a letter taking note of the award.

Award candidates are nominated from the various departments by their supervisors, with the final selection made by the WDW news staff. City officials cooperated with the news staff in setting up the award system.

Any four-foot actors?

Four-foot-tall actors stand to pick up a little work around the country this year. In fact, there is a potential of more than 180 tv dates. That figure is approximately the station line-up for Kellogg's Huckleberry Hound and other cartoons, and they all have been offered a new costume package for "personal appearances" by the cartoon characters.

The four-foot figure is a new member of the troupe, Baba Looie. The burro is sidekick to the star of Quick Draw McGraw, and the two are set to accompany Huck on one section of the promotional tour, the characters recreated at each date by local talent. Costumes have been prepared in two packages by Ed Justin, merchandising director of Screen Gems, distributor of the Hanna-Barbera cartoons. The other package features Huck with Yogi Bear and his new girl friend, Cindy Bear. In the first few days after the costume acts were offered, 27 stations responded.

Each act employs tape for lip-sync dialog and new songs. One of them, "Yogi Bear, the Casanova of the Cave Set," is a duet for two bears. The other is an equine duet, "Quick Draw's A-Comin' and Baba Looie Too." Kits also contain suggested formats and production run-down.

Air dates are being coordinated with department store promotions which tie in cartoon merchandise with the tv shows. The distributor also is suggesting other angles, such as a sanitation

WSTV helps a good cop make good kids

A policeman in Steubenville, Ohio, sickened by the number of teen-age arrests duty forced him to make, has done something about it. WSTV there has aided him in this campaign.

"Teenagers aren't bad," says George Thomas, the policeman, "It is mostly their background and surroundings. Give them the proper guidance and they'll be O.K." And so he spends his spare time in a canteen he has established for teenagers. There they can pass their time in a wholesome atmosphere, dancing and having fun, but discreetly supervised.

Officer Thomas personally approached four Steubenville businessmen and got them to sponsor the program that originates from the canteen over WSTV every Saturday night from 10-11 p.m. Through the program, adults have become interested in the canteen project and are supporting it.

And the 200-plus teenagers who now make the canteen a "second home" on weekends appreciate the radio coverage of their "social affairs."

department tie-in with Quick Draw declaring he's "gonna clean up this here town."

Baba Looie's and Cindy Bear's outfits are new. Last year's costumes covered more than 150 dates at department stores, football games, parades and other local events. In addition, Screen Gems has a professional Huck-Yogi act on the road each season.

Kellogg (through Leo Burnett Co.) has Huckleberry Hound and Quick Draw McGraw on around 180 stations. The new Yogi Bear show starts this month for Kellogg on 130 stations replacing Woody Woodpecker.

WLOS-TV goes to the registered dogs

The traditional puppy contest was given a new twist by WLOS-TV Asheville, N.C. Area kennel clubs and the station joined forces to develop a children's contest with all the normal appeal that puppies provide.

The kennel clubs have frequently complained about the "drawing puppies out of a hat" technique usually employed in such affairs. The three AKC sanctioned clubs provided six purebred pups as prizes (dachshund, weimaraner, cairn terrier, shetland sheep dog, chihuahua, and basset hound). Club members appeared on WLOS-TV children shows and explained different breeds and their care.

Viewers were asked to name any one of the pups and give reasons for wanting it. Nearly 5,000 entries were received. In the picture, a sleepy-eyed basset hound examines a chihuahua as their proud new owners beam.

A prize with a message

KBON Omaha, Neb., has gone serious—but with a light touch—using humor, originality and a prize that defies the imagination.

Sitting virtually in the shadow of the Strategic Air Command, the station, noting that public apathy towards the civil defense shelter program was rising, decided to do something about it.

Combining the efforts of many local civic organizations in a two-week promotion, KBON offered as a grand prize, a completely stocked fallout shelter built in the basement of the winner's home. All entrants received a pamphlet from the Omaha office of Civil Defense on how to build a fallout shelter. KBON officials expect to announce the winner this week. Civil Defense officials feel that KBON's efforts on fallout shelters will be widespread and lauded the station for its tactfulness in bringing to the front a serious situation.

A busy month at WLOL

WLOL Minneapolis-St. Paul tied a promotion into the Rose Bowl fever that swept the Twin Cities last month, and saw its popularity soar. Designed to sell WLOL as the "Sound of the Cities," the promotion consisted of a 10-day contest in which listeners were asked to identify 20 city sounds broadcast over the station. The winner received a Rose Bowl trip for two, including air transportation, hotel accommodations and game tickets.

Running at the same time as this contest was another in which a different mystery tune, introduced by a sound of the city, was played each hour, with the first listener telephoning the station with the name of the song winning a Helbros watch. Together, the contests produced an avalanche of mail for WLOL and a jammed switchboard. The station said it monitored 2,701 calls (with more backed up that never did get through) and counted 2,551 pieces of mail.

Nor did these contests exhaust WLOL's promotional activity last month; it also hitched a ride on Echo I. Noting that the Post Office was to issue a stamp on Dec. 15 commemorating the communications satellite, the station offered a first-day cover and cachet of the stamp to listeners who requested it. Almost 1,000 did, and received from Washington, envelopes bearing the stamp and the first-day postmark.

WLOL was interested in promoting the stamp not only because of its theme, "Communications for Peace," but as a matter of state pride—Echo I was built in Minnesota.

Christmas spirit ■ KOL Seattle and the Post-Intelligencer buried their competitors' hatchets for the pre-Christmas season to jointly promote the newspaper's Christmas Fund drive. As a special incentive to give, each contributor to the fund had his name flashed across KOL's moving letter telenews sign. More than 1,000 contributors were recognized during the campaign. Use of KOL's sign was mentioned daily in the newspaper.

It pays to gripe ■ Grippers in Evansville, Ind., have discovered a sympathetic and sometimes generous benefactor. WJPS there is sponsoring a "Gripe Contest" and listeners are invited to "squawk" to their un-frustrated delight with a weekly prize of one silver dollar each awarded to five contestants submitting the most constructive complaints. The campaign has proved to be one of the more successful of the station's several past promotions. Most frequent gripes submitted concern noisy train whistles and better mail, telephone and traffic services. WJPS forwards all gripes to the proper authority.

Business greeting ■ A recording of the "Jest of Flair"—selected portions from ABC Radio's Flair, program service—has been sent to advertisers and to agencies as a "New Year's reminder." In a note accompanying the recording, Robert R. Pauley, vice president in charge of the network, commented, "Hope you enjoy it and add Flair and other ABC shows to your schedule in 1961."

Endurance contest ■ WIL St. Louis personalities Ron Lundy and Robin Scott conducted a marathon broadcast to raise funds for the Boys Club of St. Louis. They raised over $11,000 in pledges before a doctor advised Mr. Lundy to drop out of the endurance contest due to "traumatic laryngitis." Mr. Scott established what WIL claims is a St. Louis marathon record of 67 hours and eight minutes. Each contributor was given a guess on which WIL-man would lose consciousness first and at what time for $100 prize.

Help Wanted—Management

You may be an assistant, or a full-fledged sales manager, who is old fashioned enough to believe in loyalty to your employer; but young enough to have initiative and real talent for selling yourself and your station. One reason you would leave your present job is because you find little opportunity for advancement. You have had some years of radio sales experience, and have a fair knowledge of station operation. If this sounds like you, there is a real opportunity here with an old, established 5000 watt, CBS affiliate in an eastern area. You would oversee local sales, and handle regional and national sales yourself. If you know you can meet these requirements, give full particulars, along with snapshot, in first letter. OUR RESPECTS to Arthur Hatcher McCoy, executive vp, John Blair & Co.

He has a 'two platoon' system working for him

Radio ought to get its message across to the national advertiser.

That's the simple though compelling and exhaustive objective that permeates the media air that Arthur H. McCoy breathes as executive vice president of John Blair & Co. It has surrounded him—and colored his actions—from the year 1940 when he first became associate associated with the radio station representation field.

One of the more novel approaches to the radio rep business has just been formulated by the Blair organization and only last week placed formally into effect.

This is the so-called Blair Group Sales department in which Mr. McCoy has played the role of architect in the past three years he's been in Blair's top management.

Two Platoon ■ Mr. McCoy describes the new setup as a "two platoon sales system" established at the rep firm, though he confesses it has had all the pain, frustration and planning which usually accompany formation of a new company. The new department, made up of eight people who represent skilled hands in sales, marketing and media, will concentrate on new business development (for example, demonstrate to an advertiser how he can use a specific spot radio campaign). The much larger John Blair & Co. sales force will continue to concentrate on "selling stations in depth for business that's currently breaking," Mr. McCoy explains.

Mr. McCoy, born in Roseville, Ohio, and raised in Pueblo, Colo., followed a midwesterner's path in moving along in radio sales from a pre-war post in Chicago to a post-war executiveship in New York.

Mr. McCoy was an early bird in the business, joining Free & Peters in February 1940, while in his senior year at Northwestern U. He got that job (in the bookkeeping department) on the strength of his approach to his career. (In an interview with the university's placement director, Art McCoy, then studying marketing, explained he wanted to sell radio time, the first such request the director had and one he well remembered when F&P asked the school to place a graduate in its Chicago office.)

Bookkeeper to Salesman ■ In a year's time, bright and steady Art McCoy had earned himself a sales niche at F&P (which included putting out promotion pieces, and "running off my own stuff" on the mimeograph).

In the winter of 1944, Mr. McCoy became a resident of New York for Free & Peters where his major activity was on Sonovox, a sound effect technique (as used in the now historic Bromo Seltzer radio commercial that gave in its sound effect the idea of a bubbling, effervescence). He worked with the Navy on the application of the process as an aid in teaching the Morse code.

While in New York and nearly a year later (September 1945), Mr. McCoy helped found Lewis H. Avery Inc. (which became Avery-Knodel a year later), as treasurer, founding partner, director and stockholder. When tv arrived, he became director of radio sales. He proudly notes, "I've always concentrated in the radio field."

In May 1955, Mr. McCoy moved to sales with John Blair & Co. and in the spring of 1957 was elected vice president and sales manager. In September 1957 he became executive vice president.

Drum Beater ■ Art McCoy has the trim, business-like figure that strongly suggests cool efficiency and the executive's ability to see things with an objective view. In fact, he appears to be anything but the drum beater he is.

But he's a drummer in the literal and musical sense. In college years he played the drums in the band and in the symphony orchestra. During that period he also appeared with dance bands at dude ranches for three summers (last summer he was at a dude ranch but as a vacationing dude, not as an entertainer), gave private lessons on the drums to help finance his way through college and finally sold them "after I got married to pay the grocery bill."

The McCoy touch with the drumsticks is seldom applied nowadays—"only when asked at parties." But it has left him with an enthusiastic interest in music.

On The Links ■ Another key interest is golf. That has been keen enough to prompt Mr. McCoy to organize, three years ago, an annual Blair golf tournament (trophy is awarded), in obtaining membership in the select Metropolitan Advertising Golf Assn. (made up of the elite in advertising) and in maintaining regular play at the Whipoorwill Country Club (in Westchester County).

Mr. McCoy also has a soft spot for mountain country ("it's one weakness I have"), a holdover from his Colorado youth. In fact, he often takes to the trails in upstate New York (he lives in Chappaqua, N. Y. in upper Westchester). He indulged himself with an intake of scenic (and mountainous) beauty at Yosemite only last summer.

His wife is the former Fay Walpole of Pueblo to whom he was married in September 1940. They have a daughter, Barbara, 17, and a son, Craig, 15.

His business organization affiliations include membership in Radio & Television Executives Society, the University Club and in Station Representatives Assn. where for three years he was chairman of the Radio Trade Practices Committee and where he helped develop SRA's all-industry slide presentation on spot radio about two years ago.

With the SRA activity in his background, Mr. McCoy is quick to point to radio's troubles of today—barter in radio—which he declares must be stamped out in 1961. He asserts the practice is the only "major black cloud" in what otherwise would appear to be a year of great opportunity for the radio medium.

The coming to fruition at Blair of a specially-created group to work on new business development is regarded by Mr. McCoy as a personal achievement. As he puts it, the department "came into focus" during his Blair tenure: "I blueprinted and followed it through."

A new sales system

President Collins

WITHOUT fanfare LeRoy Collins last week retired as governor of Florida and assumed the presidency of the NAB. Thus he became the spokesman for the nation's broadcasters—an assignment no less rigorous than that of running the affairs of a state.

While Mr. Collins has never served in Congress or held federal appointive office, he is seasoned in public service and politics, after six years as head of his state and a quarter century in public life. His selection for the NAB came before the elections and was made without regard to partisan considerations. It happens that Mr. Collins is a Democrat with excellent party acceptance. His judicious handling of the Democratic convention last July as permanent chairman had much to do with his selection for the NAB presidency.

Mr. Collins takes over a going organization. The three-man regency which had so ably directed NAB policy since the death last March of Harold E. Fellows, saw to this. But Mr. Collins does not have to accept what he has inherited. Except for the secretary-treasurership—the only elective office other than his own—he will have a free hand in making policy and choosing personnel.

It will take time for Mr. Collins to appraise his organization. We hope he is given the help of a chairman of the board, selected from the association's membership. This would give him the benefit of experienced counsel and give recognition, from year to year, to an outstanding broadcaster.

Mr. Collins comes to his new post with no blueprint. He recognizes broadcasting as something "more than an industry" and looks upon it "as a vital and indispensable part of America and its culture." This is a philosophy with which all broadcasters will agree.

He should not be deluded by the sweet talk about harmony between the regulators and the regulated. History proves that they are basically in conflict.

What is and always has been needed is a national policy that will recognize broadcasting as a free institution. That is Mr. Collins' mission. He will have the help of every clear-thinking broadcaster as he undertakes it.

Wanted: a united front

THREE years is a long time, but it may not be a moment more than needed to find a workable solution to a complicated problem that is sure to confront television advertising three years from now.

The problem is that of negotiating another talent union contract upon expiration of the one recently agreed upon, after weeks of painful bargaining, between the television networks, agencies and film producers on one hand and the Screen Actors Guild and American Federation of Television & Radio Artists on the other. Getting a sensible contract would be difficult in the best circumstances; under the conditions that have existed up to now, it just may be impossible.

The whole system of negotiating doesn't make sense. On the management side the networks are the principal negotiators, working out terms not only for themselves but also for spot television. The advertising agencies, who hire much of the talent at whatever fees are decided upon in the negotiations, are consulted as "observers" and sign "letters of adherence" when a contract is reached, but they do not participate as negotiators. Television stations, whose livelihoods may be jeopardized by the terms reached for spot commercials, are represented by an NAB "observer," but they must rely on the stout-mindedness of the network representatives and have no voice of their own around the bargaining table. And the advertisers, the poor devils who pay the bills, are "observers" too, and no better off.

No wonder, then, that the air has been full of recriminations flung by stations and advertisers who don't like the shake they got in the last go-round. The networks, beset by charges that they "sold out" spot advertising in return for a minimal rise in network talent rates, have kept their silence thus far, but we would venture that they might be the first to welcome some advertiser and station support in the in-fighting as preferable to shouts of "they can't do this to us" from the sidelines.

The only thing that makes the present system bearable is that, as yet, nobody has come up with anything that makes more sense. Station people, or many of them, feel that they have no status as negotiators because for the most part they do not themselves hire talent and hence have no cause to sign the union contracts.

Advertisers have shunned direct participation in talent union bargaining at least partly because, although they pay the bills, they are reluctant to sign any union contract they don't have to: if they signed with the talent unions and anything went awry and a strike resulted, they might be picketed and this would be bad for business.

We are glad to see signs that at least some advertisers are beginning to have second thoughts about this aloofness. We are equally encouraged that not only the NAB but also the Station Representatives Assn. and the Television Bureau of Advertising are devoting fresh thought to the problem of more direct representation of stations. This problem needs all the brains that can be mustered.

We don't know what the solution is. Presumably the networks would not wish to yield their place at the bargaining table even if they could. But perhaps they and the producers might be joined by a professional negotiator who would be hired by the other elements involved and thus would be responsible directly to them for the protection of their common interests. There is some question about whether the unions would negotiate with stations directly, because stations don't hire much talent, but perhaps some such joint approach might be acceptable if advertisers, as the bill payers, became contract signatories. This course might not be feasible, and it might be illegal. The antitrust laws are wondrously contraceptive sometimes.

If there is a solution we venture it isn't apt to be found without individual effort and combined cooperation of all elements concerned both directly and indirectly. If such a cooperative search seems rash without prior approval of the Justice Dept., the National Labor Relations Board or whomever, that approval should be sought without delay. Until a workable solution is found, the unions will carry an advantage into these negotiations and, no matter what the outcome, somebody will feel he has been hurt and cries of "foul" will be heard long afterward.

Has won more Public Interest Awards than any other radio station in the country.

Is the only radio station to win the award twelve consecutive times.

Has won the award every year since it was created.

Won the Alfred P. Sloan Award (administered by NSC) in 1948 and 1950.
