SUGAR-COATED CANDY LOVERS

It's not a holiday unless sweets are being sold, and what holiday is more jam-packed with jars of sugar treats and heart-shaped boxes of chocolate than Valentine's Day. As singles scramble for dates and couples conjure up their best attempt for gifts, Spring Semester hits full swing with midterms hanging dauntingly in the foreseeable future. The pressure may seem heavy at times, but remember to take a deep breath, relax and read Campus Talk.

This month we sit down with actress Sadie Katz to discuss her career, as well as her work on Chavez Cage of Glory. We also chat with NBC The Voice contestant E.G. Daily about her past work on Pee Wee's Big Adventure and Rugrats. Look your best with make-up tips and how to find the best beauty deals around. If lack of love has got you down, learn some new methods for dating with the Catalyst app.

Try not to let commercialism get the best of you this month. Enjoy Valentine's Day if you must, but remember that you shouldn't need a national holiday to celebrate the way you feel about someone.

UNDERGRADS (PRE-ASSOCIATE'S DEGREE):

You're figuring out what it's like to be on your own for the first time. I get it. I bought bags of Blow Pops by the carful just to stay alive during exam week. When it came time for summer classes, I napped through 80 percent of my day and did my homework on the bus. There is no limit to my understanding of the newly-adult status, but something's just gotta give when you're not sure where your carpet ends and walls begin.

You can handle:

- 1) Putting your dirty clothes in a pile, or hopefully in the hamper. In a pile next to the hamper?
- 2) Better toilet etiquette. If you can't aim, lift the seat. If touching the seat is icky: Learn how to aim!
- 3) Drinking from a cup. You could drink from the container, but you're running the risk of sharing germs with your roommates now. Good luck with that herpes and/or mono.

UNDERGRADS (PRE-BACHELOR'S DEGREE):

Life gave you a few lemons, and you made spiked lemonade. Now you're like half of a real person, so you have to have at least half of the responsibilities of one. Take a few more lemons, as well as a few more good habits.

You can handle:

- 1) Wearing unwrinkled clothing. When you shower in the morning (which is also a necessary habit), hang your clothes for the day inside the bathroom and let the steam get the wrinkles out.
- 2) Cleaning (not just Febreezing). This one I am horrible at, so I set a timer and literally race to clean everything in 10 minutes. Lame? Maybe. (Yes.) Does it work? Yes. (Very yes.)
- 3) Sleeping regular hours. Despite what others may say, it is possible and necessary to adopt regular sleeping habits so your brain can function like a pseudo-lifelike human, or at least like one working for a degree.

Yeah, you've seen things. Heard things. Smelled things you wish you hadn't. You've got a few degrees under your belt to prove you've got what it takes to man up, so it's about time you started living like it. Just because your résumé looks fancy doesn't mean your pad does. Or you, for that matter.

You can handle:

- 1) Using your weekends wisely. Video game binges were acceptable in long-past days; teaching assistantships beckon you at adulthood's gate.
- 2) Cooking. Frozen meals do not count. Ramen does not count. Leftovers do not count.
- 3) Decor. Posters, any kind of posters (but especially ones with naked women on them), aren't funny or rebellious anymore. Burn them or frame them.
- See? That wasn't so hard. Eventually you'll be able to let your mom see your apartment without her fainting at the door. Who knows what kind of "friends" you'll snag with this new, responsible bachelor-y aura about you? Probably the kind who are happy to be free of the smell of your urine. Go you!

INTERVIEW BY SARAH G. MASON

SADIE KATZ

Actress, writer and producer Sadie Katz has leapt feet-first onto the Hollywood scene. In response to her most recent project, Chavez Cage of Glory, Katz speaks with me about what it's like acting alongside Hector Echavarria, shares a funny story about her (naked) run-in with Glee actress Lea Michelle, and gives her thoughts on what it takes to be a successful actor.

For people who aren't familiar, tell me a little about Chavez Cage of Glory.

It's a very sweet story with a lot of rad fight scenes [laughs]. It follows the story of a man named Hector Chavez – played by Hector Exchavarria – who is a Mexican internet cage fighting sensation. I play his wife, Gia, and we have a son who's having heart surgery. It's a fight story with a lot of heart. Danny Trejo and Steven Bauer are in it, along with a other journeymen actors like Patrick Kilpatrick and James Russo, so it's a great cast.

How would you say this is different than your typical fighting movie?

There's something very unique about this film. It's made for Latino audiences, but the subjects of race or interracial marriages are never mentioned in the film. That really struck home with me because I have a son who's half Mexican.

Who is someone who inspires you?

Here's a fun story: I was at the Olympic Day Spa with my two girlfriends, which is an all-nude women's spa. Inside, there's a Jacuzzi, a sauna, a steam room, and then there's this thing called a cold dip. My girlfriends and I didn't want to go near that one because it's freezing cold. Well, you know who walks in? Lea Michelle from Glee. First of all, she's naked, so I feel a little intrusive, but you can't help but look [laughs]. Anyway, Lea Michelle gets up and goes right into the cold dip. There was something about watching her that was really amazing. She didn't flinch as she got into that freezing water, and there was a part of me that said, "If I want to be as successful as her, it's that kind of silly determination and focus and fearlessness that I need – it got her to where she is today."

Is that the kind of strength it takes to be an actor?

Being an actor in this day and age, you can't be affected by anything that happens to you until you're ready to let it in. Even lately, when I have different moments walking down the red carpet or giving interviews, I have to be above being affected until the right time comes, like that chance where you have to be affected in your work. When you look at the pros, they're in their own, strong world.

You aren't just an actor, though. You've also had experience writing and producing.

Yes, my upcoming film called Scorned is being released this February 14 for Valentine's Day. It stars Anna Lynn McCord from 90210 and Billy Zane from Titanic. "Scorned" is about a girl who we actually named Sadie [laughs]. She discovers that her boyfriend cheated on her with her best friend and she kind of loses it and sets out to get her revenge. It's sort of like Misery and Saw mixed together for young people.

Where did the idea for the story come from?

The thing is, I had a boyfriend cheat on me, and my writing partner and I were talking about it. I'm serious, I was really losing my mind about it [laughs], but in some ways it was funny because I was saying so many irrational things like, "I could just kill him right now." Somehow, we started talking about that idea. I think there isn't a girl in the world who, after her boyfriend cheats on her, doesn't have fantasies of tying him up and torturing him until he apologizes. My writing partner thought I was crazy, but it gave us the idea.

E.G. Daily's voice is taking her far. From her beginnings as the star of Pee Wee's Big Adventure to voicing cartoon Tommy Pickles on Nickelodeon's Rugrats, Daily is now using her pipes to win NBC's The Voice and - hopefully - to do some good along the way. Today, Daily talks with me about her journey to the top, her memorable moments and her big plans for the future.

How has your background in entertaining helped you on The Voice?

My background has really helped me; I've used my voice as an entertainer for decades doing voiceover work, using my voice as an actress, as Tommy Pickles, or in Happy Feet, and more. The Voice really tied it all together for me because all of a sudden I got to use my voice and I had this platform where I was finally exposed.

Tell me what it was like to be on the show.

It's crazy! First of all, I didn't expect to be on the show. I went to the audition because a friend had signed me up for it and I was intriqued - she's a woman who I hadn't known for very long but who really believed in me. I looked at the audition as an opportunity to learn some new cover songs, and I was just doing it for the joy of it. To actually get on the show, it felt like living a dream.

What was your biggest struggle?

Most of the time, it was a complete joy. I was the happiest I'd been in a long time. I would say one of the hardest things was that, here are people you've been spending weeks and weeks with all sequestered in a hotel, and you get close to them, and then you find out someone didn't make it to the next round. It's hard. As you go on this journey and you win, there are people who don't win. For me, it was hard seeing friends who didn't get to follow their dreams further.

How did you prepare vourself to go onstage?

Sometimes I listen to my headset. I listen to pretty, soft music or I'll play a beautiful Rascal Flatts' song – anything really moving that gets me feeling good and warm and calm inside. Then I just try to connect. I try to connect with the hairdressers and the makeup artists. I just try to be human, a human being, and be present in the moment. Then when I get to that place where I'm just calm and present in the moment, whatever nerves I'm feeling aren't going to be as intense.

What about some of the criticism? How were you able to handle that?

I really appreciate it, actually, because the criticism and the judges are good. All those coaches know what they're talking about. They're all experienced and have been doing the show for a while now, so they're good at discerning your strengths and weaknesses. They can help you grow.

What do you think is the biggest lesson that you learned?

The biggest lesson is that it's not about the end result. It's about the journey and challenging yourself. I won because I was willing to risk falling on my face; I was willing to look foolish; I was willing to be courageous at this point in my life and my career. I just said, why not try something else? Why not? I've had a lot of success in other places of my life by just saying why not? This was one more time in my life where I wanted to keep challenging myself. It was an incredible risk, and I won, and I got to sing Breathe on television. I'm so proud of my song, which is actually on iTunes, so people can check it out or download it.

What do you think is the biggest misconception about Hollywood?

I'd say the age conception. People seem to think that you have to be 17 to sing, but that's what I love about country music – it's ageless. I think people want to hear great talent, and they're not interested in just listening to teenagers. People have great respect for talent, for real artists, and real artists come in any age, any shape, any body, any demographic, male or female.

What is up next for you, then?

Well, I've been in rehearsals for some live shows. We're going to do some local, intimate live shows. I'm also doing some more benefits for animals, because I love animals so much and I wish to help the causes that support animals. I'm doing more movies, a lot of character of Little Julius. So just a whole bunch of stuff! Lately I've been getting a lot of press from the show, which is a lot of fun. It's fun connecting with people, and that's one of the things I love to do.

If you look 10 years down the road from now, what do you wish you will have accomplished?

I want to be doing bigger things, as far as being able to really make an impact. Getting a record deal or an album out isn't just about me: I'd love to be able to sing at an event that could make a difference for the planet like a charitable event that reaches peoples and helps to fund different projects.

MOST RIDIC HOLIDAYS OF THE MONTH ECROIDARY

In the olden days, "the holidays" was a phrase used to describe two months at the end of the year. Not any more! With greater technology comes greater boredom, and a greater need to celebrate the mundane. Mankind has cooked up new holidays to keep you going throughout the year, easing your troubles between Easter and Cinco de Mayo. In true CT fashion, we have compiled the most incredibly weird and unnecessary holidays, in order from "Slightly Acceptable" to "Why on earth would that exist?" Take a look, and jot down your favorites.

INTERVIEW BY LAUREN DOUGLASS

A CATALYST DAILE

"There has to be an easier way!" That's what Peter Simmons – founder of the innovative new app, Catalyst – thought after meeting a woman at a bar but leaving without so much as her last name. It's moments like these that leave many singletons frustrated, but that's all about to change. Catalyst is the social network app that's revolutionizing the world of dating, and Simmons is here to tell us how.

I actually came up with the idea because of how I met my fiancé. I met her at a bar, and though I knew we had a connection right away, we never exchanged anything except for our first names. I couldn't friend request her on Facebook and I didn't have her cellphone number. Fortunately, this was during the height of the Blackberry era, so she actually scanned my barcode and we were able to stay in touch that way. Reflecting on how we met, I really wanted to create a service that allowed people to exchange personal information in a non-intimidating way without disclosing their personal social media sites.

YOU MENTIONED NOT INTIMIDATING. HOW DO YOU DO THAT?

We focus on your exact location as opposed to other dating services that focus on your general location. When you check into a restaurant, bar, café, gym or other location, you immediately see a "menu" of everybody there, and you can anonymously like different people at your location. Should they choose to anonymously like you back, you both are notified that it's mutual and you start instant messaging each other from across the room. It's a lot easier to go up to someone when you already know there's that mutual attraction.

We focus on your precise tracking location, which is unique. Beyond that, we have a really distinctive take on the profile picture; every 24 hours, users are encouraged to take a selfie of themselves within the app. It's a fun feature to help you create an ever-expanding social-photo journal of your own experiences. Plus, who you see in the app is exactly who you're going to see in real life. That means no old Facebook pictures; it's really a reflection of how you look that day or that night.

Also, we really embrace our slogan: "The social network that goes out with you." We didn't want to brand ourselves solely as a dating service because we have a much broader service in mind. For instance, we also offer a friends feed feature, which allows you to see what your friends are doing on the town.

WHAT ABOUT THE SAFETY FEATURE?

We focused on protecting the users' privacy as much as possible; that's a huge concern for us. You won't be contacted by anyone unless you have an interest in them first. You can also block specific users from knowing your location.

CAN YOU EXPLAIN THE ANONYMITY OF THE APP?

The nature of our generation is that we're much more comfortable existing behind a screen. We really wanted to leverage that comfort zone and then translate it into real-life, social experiences. What you see when you check in is what you would see in real life: That person's profile for that day and their first name. There's minimal personal information displayed or exchanged without you first anonymously liking someone.

WHAT ABOUT REJECTION? HOW DO YOU WANT PEOPLE TO HANDLE THAT?

You don't have to fear rejection. A user will simply get a notification that someone at their location has liked them, but they have no idea who it is exactly. It's a great confidence booster for the other person because it's replicating 8th grade when someone would pass a note, telling you so-and-so has a crush on you. It recreates that excitement when it says you've been liked by someone.

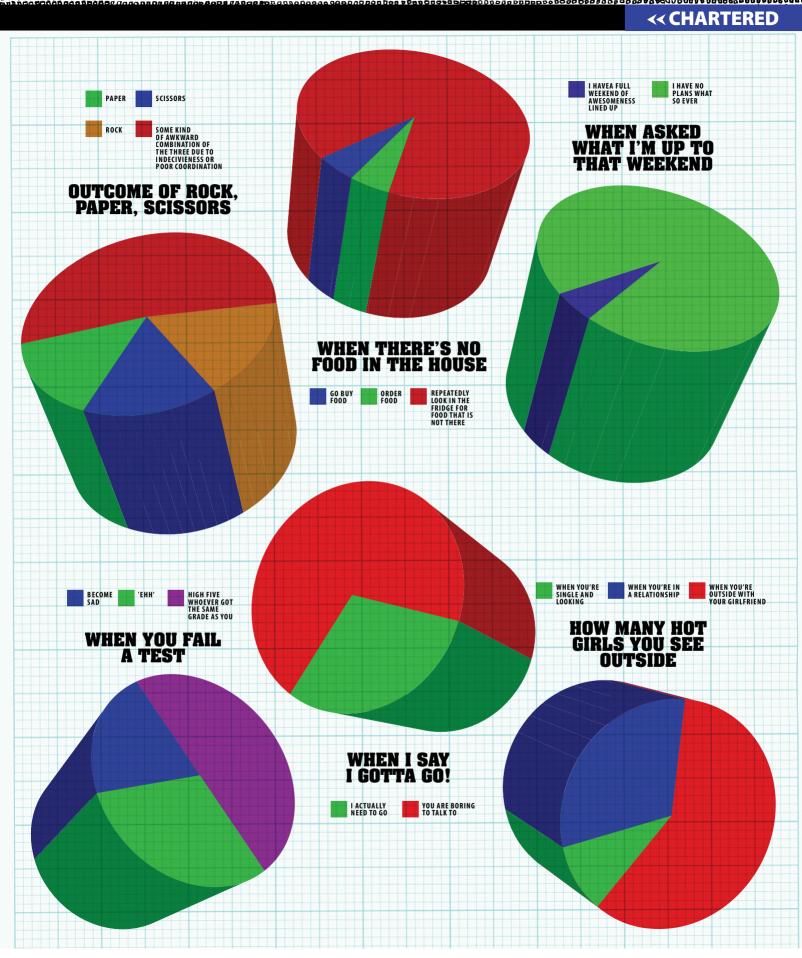

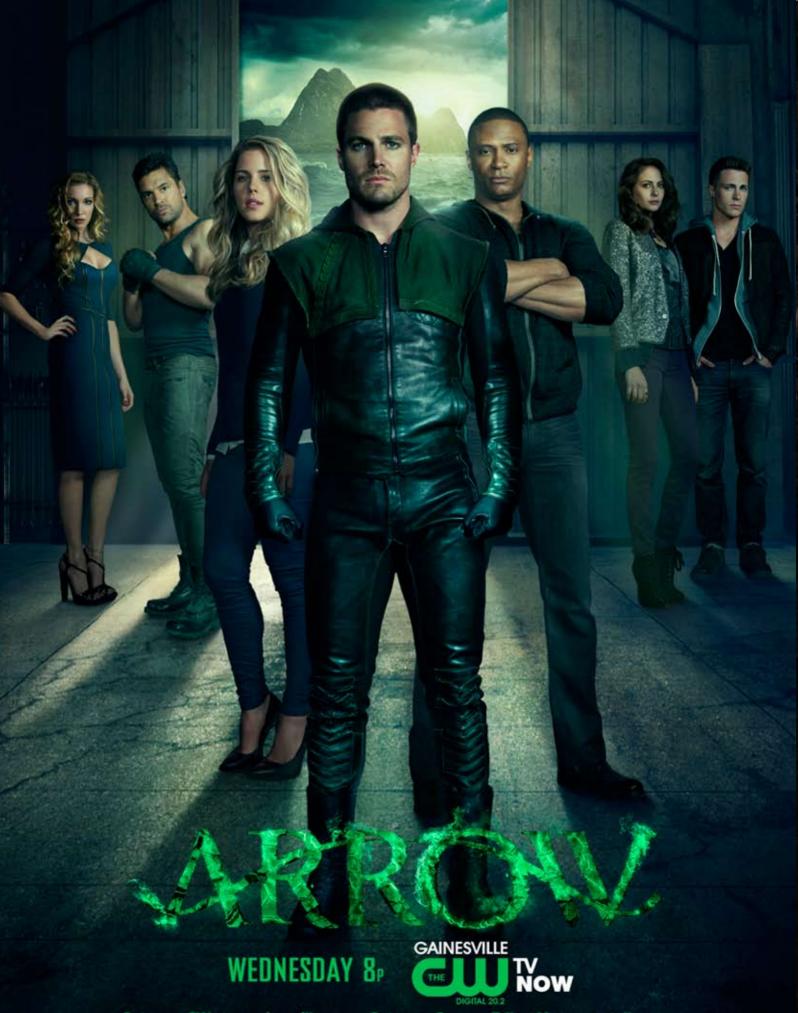

TRUST ME, I'VE DONE IT A THOUSAND TIMES!

KISSING [ ]

We decided that fo Valentine's Day, we would scientifically test the hottest kisses out there for sexiness rating on a scale from one to hot. Our sexiest male and female CT staffers went out to the bars and worked over some very unexpected patrons. Some kisses were annoying, some were sexy and some left us wanting to take a shower. But, we had a hell of a time trying them all out.

THE BUTTERFLY FLUTTER HOT RATING: I

Place your eye really close to your partner's cheek and flutter your eyelids against their skin/eyelashes in a rapid motion. This is supposed to feel really good, uh... but it is a little too high school for us!

GUYS... DON'T USE!

Unless, that is, you want to be seen as a douche!

GIRLS... ONLY TO BE USED ON BOYFRIENDS!

THE UNDER-WATER KISS HOT RATING: 3

When you want to bring out your playful side, hold your breath underwater and lean in blindly for a wet kiss.

*An underwater kiss is little hard to do in a bar, so we improvised. We poured beer over our heads and went at it.

GUYS... Be prepared to be slapped if you pour beer on a girl's head.

GIRLS... If you are brave enough to try this, wait until the end of the night when he won't notice that you just poured beer on his head.

THE GOOD-BYE KISS HOT RATING: 7

Basically, this kiss is supposed to represent your unwillingness to let the other person out of your sight. Grab your partner passionately and move into a strong French kiss. Guys, grab the back of her neck and the small of her back. Girls, grab the back of his neck and one arm. Every couple of seconds, make sure to stop kissing for a second and then go back for more. The end of the kiss should be you slowly pulling back. Works every time!

GUYS... Best if used to SHOW HER WHAT IS TO COME!

GIRLS... Best if used after he breaks up with you to SHOW HIM WHAT HE'LL BE MISSING!

THE EARLOBE LAP & THE NIP KISS HOT RATING: 9

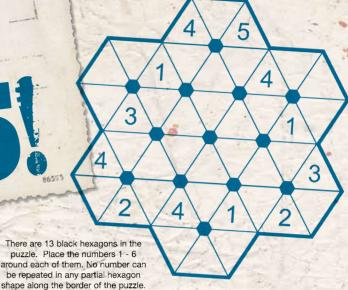

The ear is supposed to be one of the most sensitive parts of our body. Carefully and SOFTLY bite with your lips starting at the neck, moving to the ear and finally to their bottom lip. Take the tip of your tongue and make circle movements on the bottom of their earlobe. You should make sure that you exercise control to avoid the loud slurping noises and saliva in their ear.

GUYS... If you perfect this technique, she's yours! Practice Makes Perfect!

GIRLS... If you perfect this technique, he's yours! Practice Makes Perfect!

*We would like to thank all of you man-whores who helped us test out these kisses. By the way, stop calling us... we don't need your assistance any longer!

WELL

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

A motorist driving by a Texas ranch hit and killed a calf that was crossing the road.

The driver went to the owner of the calf and explained what had happened. He then asked what the animal was worth.

"Oh, about $200 today," said the rancher.

"But in six years it would have been worth $900. So $900 is what I'm out."

The motorist sat down and wrote out a check and handed it to the farmer.

"Here," he said, "is the check for $900. It is post-dated six years from now." Q: Why do women spend so much more time on improving their looks rather than improving their minds?

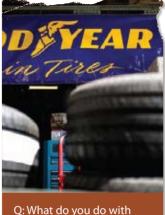

A: Because most men are dumb but very few are blind!

Q: What's the definition of a male chauvinist pig?

A: A guy who hates every bone in a woman's body except his own.

Q: How can you tell if your wife is dead?

A: The sex is the same but the dishes keep piling up.

Q: What do you do with a year's worth of used condoms?

A: Melt them, turn them into tires and call it a Goodyear.

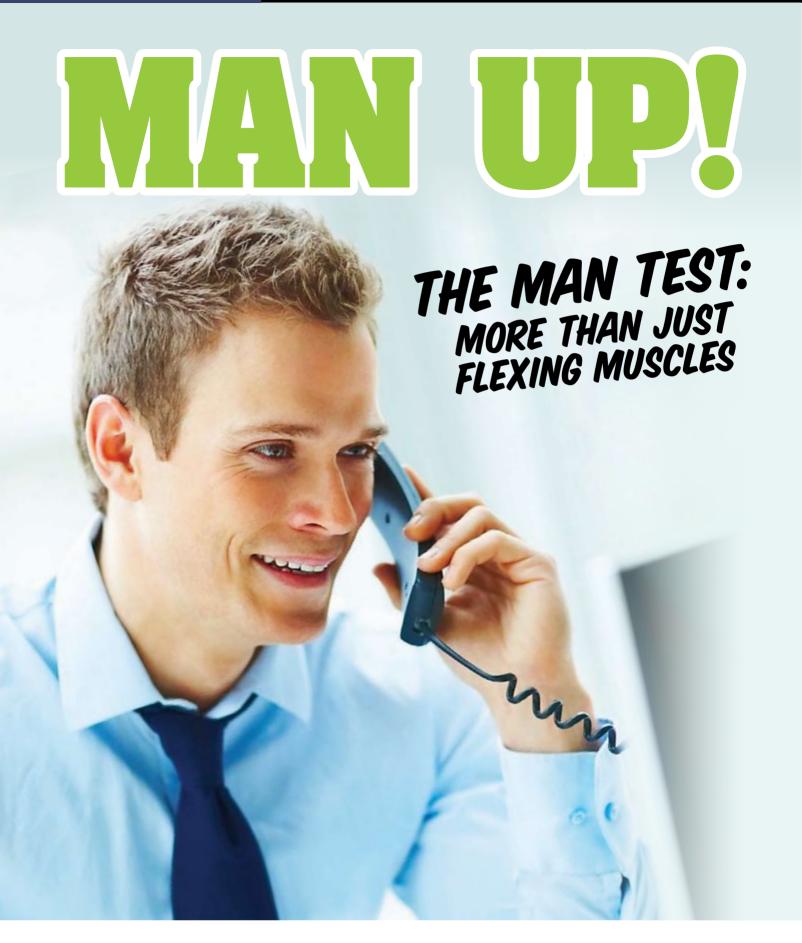

Q: What's the difference between love and herpes?

A: Love doesn't last forever.

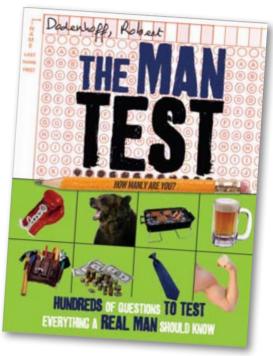

In our modern, technological society, it's not uncommon for an adult male to have, um, "overlooked," and/or "missed out," on many of the common skills associated with traditional "manliness."

Author Robert Dodenhoff breaks down many of those skills in an ultimate test of manhood. Never mind sports stats and useless action movie facts, in "The Man Test," Dodenhoff challenges your knowledge with real categories that make a man, from finance and negotiation to etiquette and domestic skills.

YOU CAN FIND THIS TEST AND MORE WHEN YOU PICK UP "THE MAN TEST" AT AMAZON.COM FOR $12.99.

The Man Test: Business Etiquette

Politeness and consideration for others is like investing pennies and getting dollars back.

- Thomas Sowell, Creators Syndicate

Perhaps the most vital area of etiquette involves the ways in which you handle yourself in business environments. Yes, you might start in the proverbial mail room, but if you want to succeed in any company, your business manners better reflect the best practices of the boardroom. Making the right impression will favorably impact your ability to get ahead for years to come.

- (True/False) You invite one of your vendors to lunch. As you are the customer, it's appropriate for him to pick up the tab.
- 2) You're about to introduce a senior executive to a junior executive. It's appropriate to introduce them in this manner:
  - A) Mr. Senior Executive,
     this is Mr. Junior Executive
     B) Mr. Junior Executive, this is
  - Mr. Senior Executive
    C) Start with the person who extends his hand first.
- 3) (True/False) At business functions requiring name badges, the badge should always be worn on your left side.

- 4) Someone is about to give you a toast and everyone begins to stand. You should
- A) Stand with them as a sign of respect
- B) Wait to see if the toaster gestures to you to stand
- C) Remain seated
- 5) The most important elements of a proper handshake are
  - A) Neutral expression, wait for him to extend his hand, shake twice
  - B) Smile, grasp palm-to-palm, look the person in the eye, pump three times, say his name
  - C) Smile, grasp gently, look the person in the eye, pump four to five times

When shaking hands, be sure to greet the other person by name, such as, "Very nice to meet you, Mr. Norton," his name out loud will help you to remember it at a later time.

5) 8. Smile, grasp palm-to-palm, look the person in the eye, pump three times, say his or her name.

of the toast either. If you would like to respond by offering another toast, by all means stand up while you are doing it.

4) C. Remain seated. Always remain seated when someone is toasting you, as it's a sign of humility and respect. To do otherwise, would seem egotistical – as you would be lauding yourself. You should not drink at the conclusion

3) False. When you're extending your hand for a handshake (and looking to grasp the other persons), his name tag will be in the same line of sight, making it easier for you to read it without being too obvious.

2) A. Mr. Senior, executive, this is Mr. Junior Executive. Seniority rules here. When introducing one or two people to a group, always introduce the "group" to the individual(s). For example, "Bill, Joe, Sarah and Julie, I'd like you to meet Kate." Follow these rules in social situations: Always introduce the woman, e.g. "Jerry, please take a moment to meet my good friend Jessica." When introducing two people of greatly different ages, always introduce the younger person to the older one, e.g. "Grandpa, I'd always introduce the younger person to the older one, e.g. "Grandpa, I'd like you to meet my best friend form my school, Joey Smith."

came from you.

1) False. Even though you're the customer, if you did the inviting, you should expect to pay. If the vendor insists on paying, however, reluctantly give in – but state that you had expected to pay because the invitation for lunch

ICRRISE'S VALENTINE'S IJ ISSANTINES

When you think of Valentine's Day, you think of roses, pink chocolate hearts and expensive gifts from your loved ones... but that's not how it always works in the real world. For some, this affectionate gift-giving day is as depressing as having a final exam on the night your team plays in a National Championship game. The urban definition of Valentine's Day is a day that's been known as the "perfect time to hate your life, even more than usual, for being single day!" While that may be taking it to the extreme, plenty of people go on crappy dates just because it's V-Day, and those horrible dates can truly become the stuff of legend! We, here at CT, love to laugh at them.

went on a blind date last Valentine's Day, only to discover that I was set up with my stepsister. My friends knew I had a stepsister, but they never knew her name or where she went to school. We're not friends at all, so when I walked in with my buddy she got really angry and stared screaming about how mad she was that I would "pull this stunt" on her. I tried to explain, but she wouldn't listen. Worse, when she left, she took her friend with her, leaving my buddy and me alone with just each other for dinner. It actually turned out to be cool, because there were two girls going on a "date" with each other. Chris, 19 was totally stoked about my dinner and a movie with this hot girl from class. But, half way through the film (while I was almost to first base), this big guy busted into the theatre, pulled me right out of my seat and punched me in the face. They left together and I ended up with a sore jaw. Turns out our date was just a way for her to get back at her (ex-convict-looking) boyfriend for forgetting her birthday. Josh, 20

really ruined my Valentine's date last year! This really sexy punk guy had taken me to a concert, and we were back at my place hooking up hard core. I guess it was too hard because his tongue ring sliced my lip open, and I didn't realize I was bleeding into his mouth until he started tasting it! He said he was really grossed out and I haven't seen him since. Sara,18 had been hanging out with this guy for a month, land I wanted to take our relationship to the next level... to be Facebook official. I know girls aren't supposed to beg for that, but I thought giving it to him as a Valentine's Day present would be unique. So, I asked around for some ideas, and it turned out my friend made himself a Facebook profile costume for Halloween. Well, I borrowed it. On Valentine's Day, I met him at the restaurant. When I got there, I walked into the restaurant with the profile on. When he saw me. I was the one completely shocked. Instead of the "awww" reaction I was expecting, he sort of looked at me funny, shook his head and walked out of the restaurant, leaving me standing there embarrassed... and looking even more like a complete idiot. Icing on the cake, I got stuck in the doorframe on the way out and had to be helped by a waiter. He never talked to me again, and I still don't know what went wrong. I know I'm never gonna get creative again.

ast year, I was asked out to a Valentine's dinner by this guy I didn't know too well. He took me to a very expensive place and was a perfect gentleman throughout the meal. I really thought I could hit it off with him... and then the check came. He excused himself to go to the restroom and TOTALLY DITCHED ME! Apparently, he had a bet with his friends that he could get a "random girl to pay for his dinner." I cried pretty hard that night! Laurel, 21 tried to do something romantic to get this beautiful girl on my dorm floor to go out with me, but it really backfired. I bought two-dozen roses and placed the pedals all around her side of the room. When she came home. I watched from around the corner to see her reaction. It turns out... she's allergic to roses (her roommate could have warned me), and her friend had to rush her to the hospital, because she couldn't breathe. She also had to have people clean her dorm room and wash all her sheets and blankets before she could walk back in. I didn't get that date I wanted! Brian, 20

As long as other positional guidelines of the flag code are observed, any single state flag may be flown at the same height as the U.S. national flag (although the state flag may optionally be flown at a lower height as a show of deference to the national flag).

A House Painted White.

FALSE - While it is true that the term "White House" came into more general use after 1817, the President's House had been given a coat of whitewash as early as 1798 in order to protect its locally-quarried sandstone against the deterioration caused by winter freezes, and from then on white paint was used for the exterior.

'S' Stands For

TRUE -Truman's parents couldn't decide on a suitable name. When the doctor finally registered the birth, the parent's chose the name Harry after his maternal uncle. As for his middle name, they couldn't decide to honor Harry's maternal grandfather (Solomon Young) or paternal grandfather (Anderson Shipp[e]), so they left it with the letter 'S'.

HOW TO FIND THE BEST BLAND THE BEST BLAND TO SHARE THE BEST BLAND THE B

As women, we spend a lot of time and money to look our best. Often, however, we spend more money than we have to. Beauty products are available in a variety of places and at a variety of prices. Here's a guide to help you find the best deals at each.

These days, you can find a huge variety of beauty products at drugstores, often at affordable prices. Unfortunately, you can't try on the makeup in a drugstore like you can in a department store, and there usually aren't beauty consultants on-hand to help you decide what to purchase. So, what's a smart beauty shopper to do?

If you're thinking about trying a new beauty trend (like a new nail color), check out the least expensive brands first. Then, once you're sure you like they way it looks, move on to higher-quality brands. You can check your local drugstore's website for coupons or the in-store sales section for the best deals. Also, keep an eye out for special beauty events at drugstores, especially around the holidays or the start of a new season.

ONLINE

Finding great online deals on posh products is easier than you may think. Sign up for email alerts from fashion websites like Ideeli.com or Gilt.com to get deep discounts on your favorite products. Amazon.com is also an excellent resource if you want to grab online beauty deals.

If you're interested in trying trendy new luxury products, Birchbox.com will send users a sample of high-end beauty products each month for only $10. That means you won't have to pay a lot for a product just to find out you don't like it. You can purchase only the products you've already tried and loved.

Want to try out products for free? Pitchme. com puts the power in the hands of the consumer by allowing them to choose the products they want to try on a bi-weekly basis and the only cost is your feedback! Consumers can choose samples from some of the world's leading brands for free in exchange for simply letting the brand know what they think. Once delivered, members simply provide feedback through a small survey within 30 days,. If they love a product, they are conveniently redirected to retailers where the products are sold.

AT THE BEAUTY SALON

You don't have to pay $100 or more to get a great haircut. Consider checking out the beauty schools in your area. Though some can be a bit dodgy, Aveda Institutes are often a fantastic option. For a low price, you'll be able to get a cut that looks like it came from a high-end salon. You can find a local option at Aveda.com.

ON TELEVISION

Television shopping channels may not be your favorite to watch, but they can have luxurious items that sell for much cheaper than in beauty salons or department stores. If you see a brand or product you want but it's still too pricey, look for its next scheduled appearance; it will likely be priced lower the second or third showing.

DOLLAR STORES

Dollar stores are a great place to obtain beauty basics, such as cotton balls, cotton swabs and nail files. However, beware of beauty product expiration dates. Often, dollar stores receive discontinued items, and many products include only the cheapest ingredients.

So, what are you waiting for? Start exploring these budget-friendly beauty buys today. Your wallet will definitely thank you, and you'll look incredible, too!

FEBRUARY 25 Play as Garret, the Master Thief, in this reinvention of the first-person shooter. The Master Thief stalks the streets performing missions to restore balance to the polarized citizens. A used story, but a relatable one as always, Thief depicts a city in turmoil, as the rich prosper and the less fortunate face misery and repression.

Players take control with the freedom to choose their path through the levels and how they approach and overcome each challenge. The game features direct missions, as well as a Hub world where numerous side missions and information will be available.

CASTLEVANIA: LORDS OF SHADOW 2 PS3 XBOX 360PC

FEBRUARY 25 Taking place in an open, modern-day world, Dracula returns yearning for release from his immortal chains. Threats abound as players must face Satan, who returns to bring about the apocalypse, and the Belmont clan who has entered Dracula's castle seeking his destruction. Dracula must reacquire his powers and make a pact with death to defeat the devil and gain his eternal rest.

BRAVELY DEFAULT

FEBRUARY 7 The 3D RPG captures the charm and elegant simplicity of classical RPGs. The amount of detail in the environments is undeniable in this beautifully crafted world. Players must become a Warrior of Light and journey to the land of Luxumdarc in a classic tale of personal growth and adventure.

LIGHTNING RETURNS: FINAL FANTASY XIII PS3 XBOX 360

FEBRUARY II With the

visuals and open-world game-play that has come to be expected with the Final Fantasy franchise, Lightning Returns focuses only on Lightning. Serah's older sister is on a mission to save the souls so they may be brought to a new world, but with only 13 days to spare, not everyone can be saved. Armed with new weapons, player customization and battle abilities, players face a race against time to fully understand their destiny.

DONKEY KONG COUNTRY: TROPICAL FREEZE WII U

FEBRUARY 21 With all newly-designed levels, Donkey Kong and his friends must save their home and banana hoard from marauding Vikings in the second entry from Retro Studios platformer series. The Snowmads have invaded and frozen Donkey Kong Island. Players must jump from island to island as they explore a variety of new environments, such as lush mangroves and burning savannas.

HOMESICK FEELING

After a couple months of being out of the house and developing your own life, the feeling of homesickness starts to kick in. Obviously after 18 years of living with your parents, living on your own is a huge new adjustment. Everyone is feeling this way a little bit, even if they don't always say it. When you are having a low day and wish you had the comfort of home to cheer you up, you have to find some things to temporarily replace that while at school. Nothing replaces family, but you can still get that homey feel when they are not right here with you.

Find groups, Greek life, drop-in sports, anything to meet new people and get your mind off the people you are missing. These activities are fun and allow you to enjoy plenty of people who you can focus on building friendships with.

SKYPE

It can be very refreshing to get off the phone with your family and begin seeing them in person. Skype allows you to chat and interact with your parents, siblings, or even see your dog.

PRINT PLENTY OF PICTURES

Decorate your whole bedroom with pictures of family and friends that show your best memories with them. You could even make a little scrap book to flip through when you are feeling lonely.

WRITE LETTERS

In college there are not many times that you receive mail in the dorms or at your apartment. If you begin writing friends and family, it keeps you excited for that next time a letter is coming.

ASK FOR CARE PACKAGES

Along with letters, ask your mom, grandma, aunt, or someone else crafty to send you a little care package with cookies and things to remind you of home. Even having them send a living room blanket or something can give you a small touch of home!

GET AHEAD IN YOUR SCHOOL WORK

To consume more of your time, get ahead in your studies. Even if you are just sitting around watching a movie feeling lonely, make some note cards for your test next week. This will put your mind on something more beneficial than feeling down.

FIND LOCAL HOME COOKING

Whether it is at your friend's house whose parents live a few miles away, or a downtown restaurant, it is nice to have some home cooked food. All college students get sick of having the same old campus food every day and night, so be sure to have a homey meal that reminds you of your parents.

These tips should make the lonely time as a college student a bit more uplifting and positive. Everyone gets homesick sometimes, but instead of getting down about it, have some fun. And remember, only a few weeks until family time at Thanksgiving!

If there's one thing I've learned since exiting my 10th grade Goth phase and entering semi-adult existence, it's that you can do a lot with a little bit of makeup. Winter time is the perfect time to explore bold looks with little more than mascara and dark lipsticks. It's also the time that I can revert back to that dark-clothed girl who secretly still loves plum pouts and heavy eyeliner. Here are some of my top tips for simple techniques that'll look daring and feel effortless.

campus talk | february 2014

Since the winged eye has become popular again, I've been doing a simpler version that requires less effort. Instead, I use two coats of mascara to sweep only the outer half of bottom and top lashes. It draws the look of your eyes outwards so you get the same cat eye effect, minus adjusting liquid eyeliner mess-ups at 8 am. Cold weather means red noses and rosy cheeks, so if you have to use concealer, only apply a thin layer to your nose and the edges around your nostrils. Don't forget chapstick to soothe against harsher winds; carry it with you to reapply throughout the day.

THE OLD LOOK

If you're in a hurry or wake up tired, use concealer on the dark circles and red streaks at the corners of your eyes. Then, apply a swipe of mascara to the center lashes on your top and bottom lids, not the edges. Giving your longest lashes length in the middle will give your eyes a wide-open effect, and the lightening of any darkness will make them look less sleepy. Add a touch of blush to the apples of your cheeks to brighten your face and give it some healthy color. Definitely avoid eyeliner, especially if you put it on your inner rims, as it makes your eyes appear smaller and more squinty. With all the yawning and eye-rubbing you'll be doing, mascara won't smudge or give you the raccoon effect like most eyeliners.

Totally useless fact: Thirty-five percent of people who use personal ads for dating are already married.

<< A LITTLE TOUCH CAN GO A LONG WAY

Trying out darker shades of lipstick can always be a bit frightening, especially when there are so many wrong shades to choose from (that just made it sound scarier, didn't it?). Read our tip at the bottom for how to choose the right shade for you, and you'll never be disoriented in the makeup aisle again.

One of the dangers in trying brash colors is that you'll look clownish instead of Marilynesque. To keep it classy, use concealer to cover up all the red or dark areas of your face, including around your eyes, lips and nose. The reason you want to clear up these parts is so there's no other hue competing with the one going on your lips.

Then, layer on the lipstick. Try smudging it on with a fingertip at first, to get a feel for the level of depth you're going for. Gradually apply more until you're comfortable with the color, then use a small amount on two or three fingertips to smudge along the edge of your cheekbones. Make sure it's even and only enough to get a hint of color. You should use the same color going on your lips with your cheeks so, again, there aren't any other shades competing on your face.

Swipe mascara on the top and bottom lids, also coating the lashes on the inner and outer corners of your eyes. To make this look a daring one, it needs the full effect of all your eyelashes flaring out like falsies.

Voila! You've got your vixen, daytime, and trying-to-look-awake looks with a few tiny steps. Now, you can skip some unnecessary moves while testing out a new version of you. Or maybe it's a new version of an old look, like the one I've been tweaking for years.

> why those shades work so you can pick your own pinks, reds, and plums in the future. The trick is in finding out your skin's undertone. You probably already know what this is, based on how you look in different colors.

If you look best in warm tones, like reds, pinks and browns, your skin has an orangey undertone (not implying that you're an Oompa Loompa or anything). The best lipstick for you is one that has the same shade, so you want to pick out a dark brick or muddy magenta hue to blueish undertone (also, not saying you're a Smurf). Violet-pinks and cranberry will be your best match, because they won't wash you out like a scarlet will.

WHAT: Documentary WHO: Philip Seymour Hoffman, Edward Norton, John Cusack

WHEN: February 6

With an all star cast of actors and authors, this documentary explores the private world of J.D. Salinger, the reclusive author of "The Catcher in the Rye." The film is the first work to go beyond The Catcher in the Rye author's built up wall: His childhood, arduous work methods, marriages, private world and the secrets he left behind after his death in 2010.

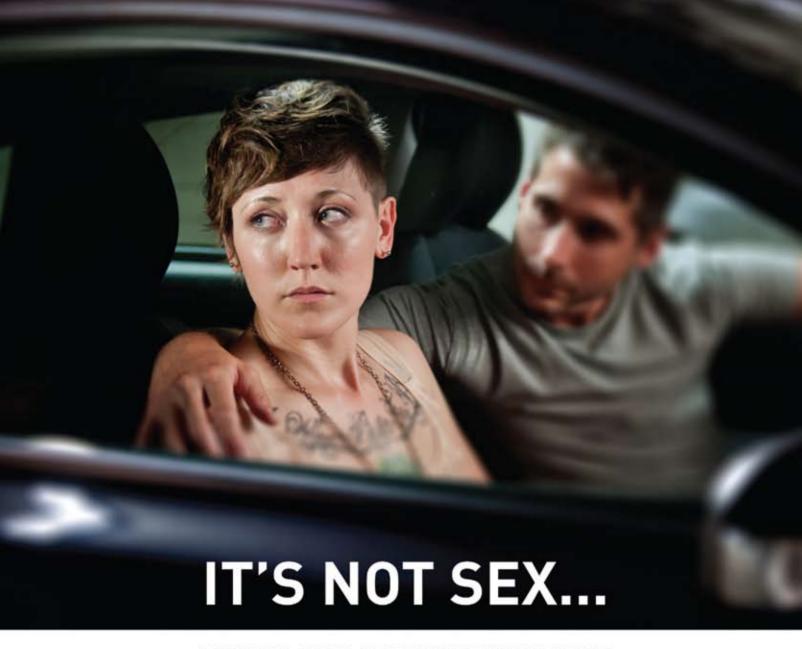

An Irishman had been drinking at a pub all night. The bartender finally said that the bar is closing. So the Irishman stood up to leave and fell flat on his face. He tried to stand one more time; same result. He figured he'll crawl outside and get some fresh air and maybe that will sober him up.

Once outside he stood up and fell flat on his face. So he decided to crawl the 4 blocks to his home. When he arrived at the door he stood up and again fell flat on his face. He crawled through the door and into his bedroom. When he reached his bed he tried one more time to stand up. This time he managed to pull himself upright, but he quickly fell right into bed and was sound asleep as soon as his head hit the pillow. He was awakened the next morning to his wife standing over him, shouting, "So, you've been out drinking again!!"

"What makes you say that?" he asked, putting on an innocent look.

"The pub called. You left your wheelchair there again."

Q: Why won't Separation of Church and State ever stick? A: Because as long as there are tests, there will always be prayer in schools.

Have you ever noticed that women are like lava lamps? They're fun to look at but not very bright.

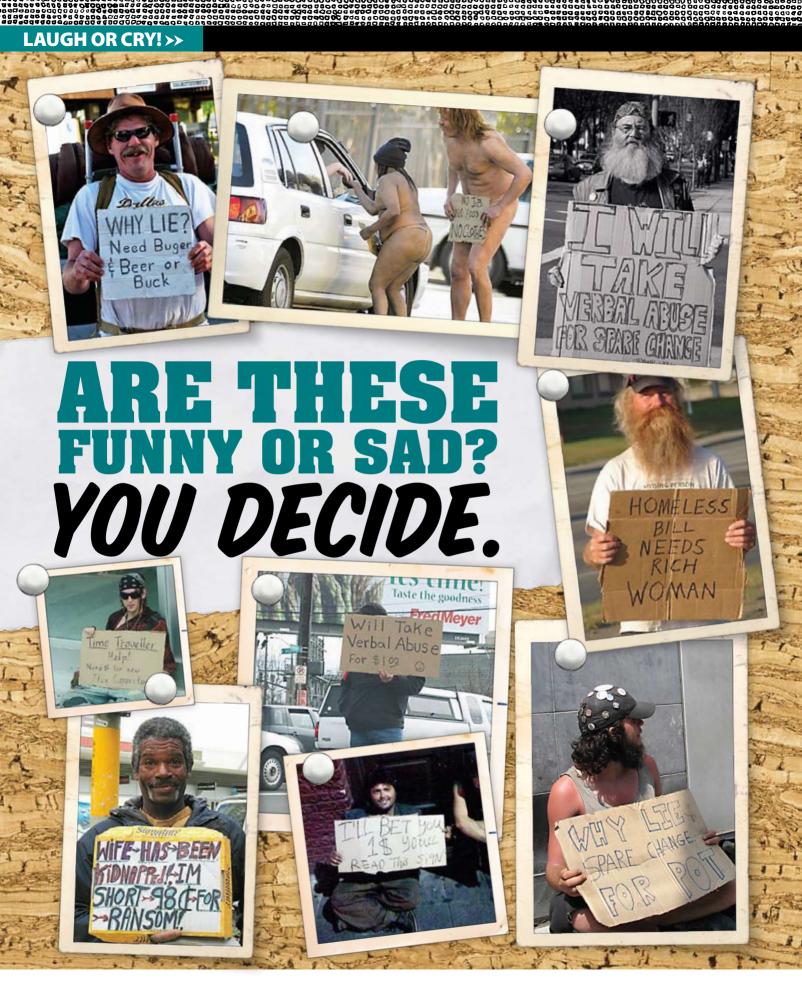

Kentucky does.

Q: What's the difference a peeping Tom?

A: One snatches watches and the other watches snatches.
