As a child, it's difficult to believe that Halloween could ever get better than it felt at that moment, but then you get to college. Forget all of those restrictions cast down from parents and lawmakers; in college, Halloween is a full-on, free-for-all of candy, costumes and pranks, only to be topped off with booze, parties and the potential slew of other nefarious activities. Is there a better way to celebrate the passing of midterms? I think not.

The steam and stress is on the rise this month with midterms looming. To support you in such a time of need, we've packed the tricks, as well as some treats, for your reading delight. We sit down with Julie Zeilinger to discuss her book College 101. Pianist and songwriter Ferras chats with us about touring with Katy Perry and his latest EP. If dating has got you down, we've offered up some tips to rescue you from your relationship woes. We've also thrown in plenty of jokes, jabs and jumbles to get you though the lull between classes.

This Halloween, somewhere in between pranking roommates, crashing parties and viewings of The Nightmare Before Christmas. don't forget to pick up a book from time to time to study, because nothing is more appropriate for hitting the books than an endless, twitchy sugar high.

We all have these people in our lives: They cut in front of us in line, they are rude to us in class, they make our jobs a living hell, they cut us off in traffic, they talk loudly on their cell phones when we are trying to study in the library. In short, they violate basic rules of polite behavior.

But don't worry, here at Campus Talk, we have developed a few simple

WAYS TO

Leave the copy machine set to reduce 200 percent, extra dark, 17-inch paper, 99 copies.

In the memo field of all your checks, write "for sexual favors".

Specify that your drive-through order is "TO-GO".

If you have a glass eye, tap on it ccasionally with your pen while talking to others.

Stomp on little plastic ketchup packets.

Insist on keeping your car windshield wipers running in all weather conditions "to keep them tuned up".

Reply to everything someone says with "that's what you think".

Practice making fax and modem noises.

STRANGERS

Highlight irrelevant information in scientific papers and "cc" them to your boss.

Make beeping noises when a large person backs up.

Finish all your sentences with the words "in accordance with prophesy".

Signal that a conversation is over by clamping your hands over your ears and grimacing.

Disassemble your pen and "accidentally" flip the ink cartridge across the room.

Holler random numbers while someone is counting.

Adjust the tint on your TV so that all the people are green, and insist to others that you "like it that way".

Staple pages in the middle of the page.

GHEWING GCHOKING GFAME $ FORTUNE

Here's the deal, I'm not too big on chewing food, at least not as much as I should. I just like to taste it and get it into my gut ASAP. It's not like anyone ever got rich or famous because they were good at chewing their food. The down side of not chewing properly is choking on a piece of bagel as big as a baby's foot. After a couple of close calls I learned how to give myself the Heimlich maneuver. You never know when it could come in handy and it's a lot simpler than trying to get the point across by pantomiming to a bunch of dopes in a

Not to get too far off the subject but how would I go about getting a maneuver named after me? That Heimlich guy must really be living on easy street. I'm just guessing here but I'd wager that Mr. Heimlich came up with the name first – just because it sounds cool – and then invented his little technique for popping a half-eaten steak out of a guy's gullet. He was probably going to use The Heimlich Maneuver as the title for a spy novel but he was too lazy to write it.

bagel shop that you're choking to death.

Take an existing technique and rename it, that's probably what old Heimlich did and now he's choking with laughter all the way to the bank so I'll just use "The Scheck Maneuver" as the new name for an old procedure. Something desperately in need of a new name is the "snot rocket" or "Italian handkerchief." Excuse me, I'm laughing out loud because I just called plugging up one nostril and blowing snot out of the other a "procedure," like it's something clinical. Granted, a snot rocket is gross but so is forcing someone to eject a piece of recently eaten food.

Come to think of it I'd rather have my good name attached to something a little more dignified than what people do when they don't have a tissue. I want the Scheck maneuver to be something fun or glamorous.

POSSIBLE THINGS TO BE HERETOFORE KNOWN AS THE SCHECK MANEUVER:

- When you slap the crap out of someone who is hysterical.
- When you reach into a vending machine and take something from the first row without paying.

- When you pass out from drinking and find yourself the next morning inexplicably on a park bench in another state.
- When a friend passes out and you drive them without their knowledge to another state and leave them on a park bench.
- The act of both text messaging and tuning the radio while driving in heavy traffic.

When I decide which of these to use you're welcome to the others because I think that everyone should have their own maneuver.

THE WAY TO

Thanks to technology, text messaging, slang, laziness and even lack of education, the English language is well on its way to being nothing more than an illegible series of letters, acronyms and one-syllable abbreviations of former words. Most recently, I was reading an article on Yahoo News that, instead of using the word "nominated", they used the modification, "nommed". In similar fashion, the word "nominations" was reduced to the one-syllable invention, "noms".

RANK OFFENSES

MILITARY INSIGNIA EXPLAINED TO NON-VETERANS

First of all, I'd like to state once and for all that I was honorably discharged from the United States Air Force and my leaving had nothing to do with a certain incident on a Greek island involving two topless Swedish tourists (consenting adults), a huge sheet of plastic, and four gallons of high quality olive oil – any rumor to the contrary is a horrible slander instigated by Al Qaeda.

Next, I'd like to say that nothing irks vets more than to see movies screw up U.S. military uniforms. Every veteran is an expert on how a uniform should be worn. This isn't because vets are all fastidious dressers but simply because the military puts a LOT of emphasis on the uniform. If you showed up at your post with your uniform looking like it does in many movies and TV shows you'd be escorted directly to the nearest military prison while given ample opportunity to review current dress code norms. It's time to set the record straight on military insignia and dress.

In the short version explaining military insignia, enlisted men and women have their rank (in the form of stripes) on their sleeve while officers have it on their shoulders. Although the insignia are different for each service branch an easy rule to remember for enlisted people is that the more stripes the higher the rank. For officers rank progresses with silver trumping gold from bars, to clusters, to an eagle, and then stars.

As far as the medals and decorations military folks wear on the uniform things can get a lot more complicated. Most of the ribbons you see above the breast pocket of uniforms are given out simply for doing your job. As Woody Allen once said about life, showing up is about 80% of military decorations. Then there are other badges, tabs, and patches that elite units pay for with blood, sweat, tears, and usually enormous amounts of alcohol, at least at some phase of the operation. Quite often when dealing with decorative ribbons and uniforms it's difficult even for military people to tell the difference between a true hero and someone who was just along for the ride.

Everyone should remember that just showing up for military service is a hell of a sacrifice and merits respect. At least that's the opinion of this pacifist (mostly), peace-loving vet.

SUPERMARKET QUESTIONS

YOU NEVER THOUGHT TO ASK

The big carts on wheels. The lightly misted vegetables. The comfortable music. To you, these things are just a part of any normal grocery shopping experience. But have you ever thought to ask why?

Why do supermarkets often offer the "10

for $10" deal? "Ten cans of soup for just ten dollars – what a deal!" But is it really? Often, sale items are clumped together in a way that makes them seem cheaper. Because of the way "10 for $10" is written and because of how sale items are often thrown together in huge, overflowing bins, consumers feel like they're getting a ton for their buck. However, supermarkets can easily take a 90-cent can of soup and promote it with a 10 for $10 deal. It's a buy-in-bulk trap, so always calculate individual prices of comparable items and don't be fooled by so-called savings.

Why do supermarkets mist their vegetables? They do it to make them seem fresher. Some grocery stores even include the sound of rain – but don't be duped. The mist can actually make vegetables rot faster, so choose the driest ones and shake off whatever excess moisture you can.

Why do supermarkets play slow music?

They do it to calm you down and encourage you to linger longer around the aisles. This is a tactic that's also used around the holidays when grocery stores play nostalgic Christmas music – yes, hearing "Rudolf the Red Nosed Reindeer" when strolling through the supermarket can actually inspire you to spend more. If you want to beat this ploy, wear headphones and listen to fast music. Upbeat tunes can energize you so that you'll be in and out in a flash.

Why do supermarkets provide huge carts

on wheels? Simple – you can fit more in them. Since their creation in 1938, supermarket carts have tripled in size, and it's estimated that a 50 percent increase in shopping cart size causes consumers to spend nearly 40 percent more on groceries in a single visit – talk about returns! Also, if you've ever seen the cutesy carts for kids, beware. As your little shopper helps Mommy with the groceries, they're bound to find (and beg for) all of the snacks and treats placed at kid-height. Refrain from picking up a kid cart and use a handheld basket when possible.

Why do supermarkets always put milk and eggs at the back of the store? This trick has helped to drive profits for eons, but educated shoppers can avoid falling for it. Eggs and milk are kitchen staples, so by placing them at the pack of the store, supermarkets force customers to walk past enticing goodies and eye-catching deals. Often, consumers will splurge on items they don't need on the way to the milk. Make sure you aren't one of them.

The next time you're shopping for bread and butter, you might want to look around at all the meals, deals and steals and ask, "Why?"

STEP ONE - EVALUATE

Identify how you are currently spending money. At first this may seem overwhelming, especially for those of you who don't keep receipts. Luckily, many debit and prepaid cards offer online services that help you to keep track of your purchases.

STEP TWO - SET GOALS

After identifying and evaluating your current spending habits, the next step is to set short and long-term goals. The 50/20/30 rule will help guide you to create these goals. Typically, 50 percent of your income (no matter how small) should be used towards essentials like food, housing and transportation. Twenty percent of your income should be used for financial priorities, including savings and debt payment. And 30 percent of your income should be used for your lifestyle expenses like eating out, shopping, entertainment, and any other miscellaneous expenses.

track your spending. This step is crucial – if you don't stick to the plan, the first two steps are useless. The best way to ensure that you follow through on your budget is to make it a habit. Every night before you go to bed or first thing in the morning before class, check your accounts on your phone or computer to see where you spent money the previous day and how much of your budget is left.

If you're looking for a tool that enables you to be more conscious of your spending habits, try using a prepaid card. Prepaid cards offer most of the features of a traditional checking account at highly competitive fees. Prepaid cards are great for staying under budget because you can only spend the amount of money you pre-load onto the card. You can never spend more than you make, so say goodbye to those annoying overdraft fees! Best of all, by signing up for a prepaid card, you're not putting your personal credit history at risk. What does this mean for you? No debt!

For example, try CARD.com – a mobile alternative to traditional branch banking that makes banking fun, convenient and personalized. They issue prepaid debit cards with cool designs like Elvis, Walking Dead, Star Trek, Shark Week and Garfield, free of charge.

With CARD.com, cardholders can transfer funds between accounts at no cost – so the next time you're in a bind, mom and dad can send you money instantly! And because you control your account through its user-friendly mobile app for iOs and Android, you can easily check that status of your account anywhere, anytime. The app also allows you to direct deposit (using photo capture!) any amount of your paycheck, giving you the option to either use your prepaid card strictly for shopping, or to handle all of your expenses.

Budgeting takes time and consideration, but if you follow the steps above, you're well on your way to creating a responsible budget that works for you.

THE MAKINGS OF THE MODERN

In this age of manscaping, open-mindedness, emotional expression and overall sensibility, the modern man has undergone a great deal of evolution since the past's "John Wayne" representation of what supposedly makes and doesn't make a 'man'.

While this evolution is a positive concept in this regard, there are some traits from the past, however, that should remain essential to the makings of a man, and more importantly, what makes someone a good person.

PRIDE AND ARROGANCE ARE TWO DIFFERENT THINGS. MAKE SURE YOU'RE NOT ON THE SIDE OF ARROGANCE. WALK TALL AND LOOK STRAIGHT AHEAD; DON'T SHUFFLE ALONG STARING AT YOUR FEET. ALWAYS PUT A SMALL AMOUNT OF YOUR PAYCHECK DIRECTLY INTO YOUR SAVINGS ACCOUNT EVERY MONTH.

ONLY RESORT TO VIOLENCE WHEN THERE IS AN ACTUAL THREAT. WHEN YOU TALK TO SOMEONE, ALWAYS LOOK THEM IN THE EYES.

COLLEGE 101 >>

THE BEST FOUR YEARS OF YOUR LIFE

AN INTERVIEW WITH AUTHOR JULIE ZEILINGER

"College will be the best four years of your life." For many, this old adage comes true. But what happens when it doesn't? College student Julie Zeilinger unveils the lessglamorous truth about freshman year and doles out big-sisterly advice in her new book, College 101: A Girl's Guide to Freshman Year. Here, she talks with me about her inspiration for the book and what she hopes freshman girls can take from it.

What inspired you to write College 101?

It was my experience going through freshman year. College was depicted as being the most incredible four years of my life, but I realized college is actually an incredibly challenging and complex experience. It was for me, and I know it is for many of my peers. I feel like we should be more open and honest about that. I felt like I was struggling alone because everyone seemed to be having the best time ever and wasn't dealing with stress or health issues like I was. Really, the goal of the book is to open dialogue about the real struggles freshman face like crazy financial issues, debt battle, physical health, emotional health, sexual health and socializing in general.

What do you think makes this book different from other advice books?

Many other advice books are written by adults, and more often than not they're written by college admission officers. That's great and those books definitely serve a purpose, but I just know that when I was an incoming freshman, I needed information from people who had just been through it. I wanted their strategies for dealing with these issues. In my book, I really deal with my own personal experiences and opinions and I also talk to college-aged women all across the nation about their experiences their advice.

Who is this book geared toward?

It's a girl's guide. I think a lot of the information in the book can apply to both men and women, but what often gets lost in the conversation is that there's a very specific gender dynamic that happens in college. It's in social culture and Greek culture, which is a very pervasive thing on many campuses and involves a lot of sexism and a lot of double standards when it comes to drinking. Of course, we've also seen something over the past few months that's really exploded in the news, and that's sexual assault on college campuses. The current statistic is that one in five college women will experience some type of sexual assault during their time in college – that's insane. These are all issues that aren't being talked about that are very specific to women.

How would you describe your writing style?

I try to be very appropriate and humorous. The goal – and I think I've accomplished this – is to feel like you're talking to an older sister. It's real, honest advice that freshman actually want and need to know.

Why is it difficult for freshman girls to get this advice from, say, their parents?

The problem is that college is constantly evolving. There are things that make college today very unique – social media, Greek culture and drinking culture are a few examples. There's also this very pervasive myth that college is going to be the best time of your life, so when college girls are struggling, they think it's because there's something wrong with them. They don't want to talk about it and they don't want to admit they're failing or struggling in any way. In reality, though, it's something we're all going through together.

If you could share one piece of advice from your book, what would it be?

There's a lot of specific advice in the book, but one overarching piece of advice is to be open and honest with each other. I can't even count how many people I talked to while writing this book who said, "I thought I was the only one going through this. I thought everyone else was having a great time." That honesty is key.

What's something that you think a lot of freshman girls do wrong in those first few days at a new school?

Your social life changes so much when you get to college. In high school, there's a clique model where you've got a small group of close friends, but in college your social life opens up and you can explore relationships with all kinds of people. It's so crucial during orientation and in those first few weeks to try to get to know as many people as possible. Everyone's in the same boat and will be really willing to talk to you. Keep your dorm room open, join extracurricular activities or sit with new people in the dining hall; just try to break free of that high school social model.

Any final thoughts?

I hope that young women read this book and take something from it. I want to make this a much more widespread conversation.

College is an incredible time – there's truth to that – but at the same time, we all know what a big transition it is. It's a challenging time in your life and we should all talk about the issues to make it easier on ourselves.

"We should really hang out sometime."	"I want to ask you out, but I'm afraid you'll say no."	"Cool, it's a date." If you're into him, don't be afraid to say the d-word. He put himself out there, so meet him half way.

"I don't play games."	"If you fall for that, I'm clearly a master."	If he likes you, he'll say so. If he's sending you signals but hasn't made any serious moves, then he's playing games. Luckily, the ball is in your court and you can choose whether to toss it back.
"My ex is psycho."	"I messed up and now she's mad."	Know what you're getting yourself into. If he's still got a crazy ex-girlfriend, it means feelings between them haven't had time to settle. You're better off keeping your nose out of that one.
"How many boyfriends have you had?"	"Are you looking for something serious?"	Be honest, but buffer it. "I've had two boyfriends over the past year, so it feels great to live up the single life." It lets him know that you're currently happier on your own.

Or is he? Take the same scene, the same Mr. Dreamy, but a different night – suddenly, he may seem like a total catch.

Women may get a bad rep for being fickle, but it turns out these mood swings are based on more than a whim. According to UCLA researchers, women's preferences for mates change throughout their menstrual cycle. Through careful analysis of past studies, the UCLA team found that ovulating women have evolved to prefer men who display masculine traits like muscular bodies, strong jaws and dominant behavior – think "sexy." Interestingly, women who are not ovulating instead prefer men who have more long-term mate qualities, like the ability to listen.

According to the UCLA researchers, women experience complicated preference shifts during different times of the month no matter what's actually happening in their personal lives. From an evolutionary standpoint, these findings make sense.

When women ovulate, they are at their most fertile. Mix that with a man who displays masculine traits – another sign of fertility – and the odds that her offspring survive quickly increases.

For many years, women were thought to be immune from such primitive impulses. Until the past decade, the science community accepted the notion that human female sexuality was different from sexuality in all other animals. Findings such as this challenge that wisdom and help shed some light on women's curious laws of attraction.

The takeaway is an important one. The more informed women are about their sexual decision-making, the better choices they'll be able to make. Just because that guy at the office ignites sparks doesn't mean he'll make a great long-term partner. On the flip side, just because Mr. Kind and Shy doesn't light your interest right away, doesn't mean he's not the one for you.

SIGNS OF ATTRACTION

When you spot a love interest, your brain releases norepinephrine, which makes your heart race and gives you the push you need to strike up a conversation with that special someone. Another side effect of norepinephrine? Sweating palms. Our palms have nearly 3,000 miniscule sweat glands per square inch, which seem to work on overdrive when we spot someone we're attracted to.

Q: Why does a sorority girl

A: To keep her ankles warm

Two factory workers are talking.

The woman says, "I can make the boss give me the day off."

The man replies, "And how would you do that?"

The woman says, "Just wait and see." She then hangs upside-down from the ceiling.

The boss comes in and says, "What are you doing?"

The woman replies, "I'm a light bulb."

The boss then says, "You've been working so much that you've gone crazy. I think you need to take the day off."

The man starts to follow her and the boss says, "Where are you going?"

The man says, "I'm going home, too. I can't work in the dark."

Tried in a hostile town, a guy didn't think he had a chance of getting off a murder charge, so shortly before the jury retired he bribed one of the jurors to find him guilty of the lesser crime of manslaughter.

The jury was out for over three days before eventually returning a verdict of manslaughter. The relieved defendant collared the bribed juror and said: "Thanks. How ever did you manage it?"

"It wasn't easy," admitted the juror. "All the others wanted to acquit you."

GGRE BLASTER

The key to rock hard abs is a solid diet, hydration, plenty of exercise and a few killer ab workouts. Need a few ideas to get started? We've got you covered.

AB PULSE UPS

LIE flat on your back with your hands under your butt (for lower-back support) and your legs straight up in the air. Your body should form a 90 degree angle. SQUEEZE your butt and lower abs while you PUSH your legs directly upwards (as if you're trying to touch your toes to the sky). LOWER your butt back to the ground. That was one "pulse." REPEAT the motion 15 times for a full set.

HANGING LEG RAISES

HANG from a pull-up bar. While keeping your core tight, your back flat and your legs straight, RAISE your legs until they're parallel with the floor. HOLD for a half second, then LOWER your legs back down. REPEAT the motion 20 times for a full set.

CRISS-CROSSES

LIE on your back with your arms by your sides. EXTEND both legs out at a 45 degree angle. CROSS your left foot over your right, then switch so your right foot is over your left. REPEAT the motion 40 times for a full set.

U-BOAT

SIT with your knees bent and your feet flat on the ground. LEAN BACK and prop your upper body on your elbows. LIFT your legs to a 90-degree angle (knees should be touching, toes pointed). MOVE your legs to the left, then to the right, as if you were tracing a "U" with your knees. REPEAT the motion 20 times for a full set.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS

START in a push-up position.
BEND one knee into your chest,
then JUMP and switch legs so that the other knee is at your chest. REPEAT the motion 20 times for a full set.

PICK A CARD ANY CARD

Sometimes words just aren't enough to make a good impression. When that witty, dynamic dialect seems to fail, why not try leaving a mark with some good ole' fashioned magic? Because anyone who says they don't love magic, ... well they are just a liar.

THE SWITCHAROO CARD TRICK

PREPARATION:

Before starting the card trick, find the two black 6's and the two black 9's. (The 6 of Spades, the 6 of Clubs, the 9 of Spades, and the 9 of Clubs.) Then, take the 6 of Spades and the 9 of Clubs and place one of them on the top of the deck and the other on the bottom. Keep the 6 of clubs and the 9 of spades separate.

PERFORMANCE:

- Show the deck of cards to your audience. (The person you are showing the card trick to.)
- Hold the 6 of clubs and the 9 of spades in front of the person.
- Ask them to tell you what cards they are.
- They will say the 6 of clubs and the 9 of spades, of course.

- They will say that they are sure.
- Then hold up either of the cards and ask them what card it is.
- After they respond, place that card in the middle of the deck. Now do the same with the other card.
- Once both cards are inside the deck, Place it down on the table and tell the person to tap the deck three times.
- After, ask them if they have any magic moon dust.
- If they say, no say you will loan them some and reach into your pocket and pretend to sprinkle dust on the cards.
- If they say yes, tell them there's no such thing as magic moon dust.
- Now rub your hands together and blow on them so your fingers are slightly moist. (This is important.)

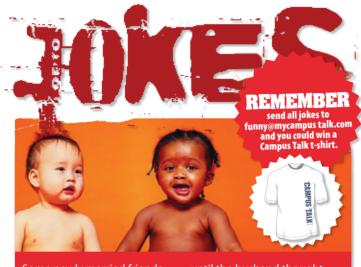

- Pick up the deck by putting your thumb on top and your other fingers on bottom.
- Hold the deck very lightly. Swing the deck back and forth, and on the third swing throw the deck to your other hand, but make sure you hold onto the top and bottom card.
- Your moistened fingers will help.

FINALE:

After all that, your victim will still remember the cards, but only vaguely.

When you show them the 6 of spades and 9 of clubs that you "pre-placed" they will be astounded, unless they have an awesome memory.

Some newly married friends were visiting us when the topic of children came up. The bride said she wanted three children, while the young husband said two would be enough for him.

They discussed this discrepancy for a few minutes until the husband thought he'd put an end to things by saying boldly, "After our second child, I'll just have a vasectomy."

Without a moment's hesitation, the bride retorted, "Well, I hope you'll love the third one as if it's your own."

He who smiles in a crisis has found someone to blame.

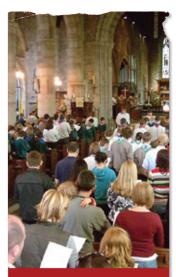

A college physics professor was explaining a particularly complicated concept to his class when a pre-med student interrupted him.

"Why do we have to learn this stuff?" The young man blurted out.

"To save lives," the professor responded before continuing the lecture.

A few minutes later the student spoke up again. "So how does physics save lives?"

The professor stared at the student for a long time. "Physics saves lives," he said, "because it keeps the idiots out of medical school."

An elderly couple is sitting in church. The woman says to her husband, "I just let out a silent fart. What should I do?" The man turns to her and says, "Well, you can start by changing the battery in your hearing aid."

MICRO-EXPRESSIONS

Although this one might be tough in a dark club, microexpressions are facial expressions that flash on a person's face for a fraction of a second and are said to reveal the true emotion being stashed behind the lie.

- A micro-expression tends to be an emotion of distress.
- · It is recognizable by the eyebrows being drawn upwards towards the middle of the forehead, creating short lines across the skin of the forehead.

NOSE TOUCHING AND MOUTH COVERING

Far more noticeable in a night on the town, people often touch the nose more when they are lying and far less when telling the truth.

- This is thought to be due to a rush of adrenaline to the capillaries in the nose, causing it
- A liar is more likely to cover his or her mouth with a hand or to place hands near the mouth, almost as though they are shielding the lies being spewed.
- · A tense mouth or pursed lips can also indicate distress.

your booze escapades, it might be helpful to have a slight understanding on determining if your person of pursuit is, in fact, a dirtbag and thus, full of shit. As any gambler would say, everybody has tells and some are pretty universal.

EYE MOVEMENTS

If a person is wearing sun glasses indoors or at night, then their douche level is already pretty high, so probably safer to avoid. Another good reason to avoid them would be the fact that eye movements can also reveal lies.

- · Right-Handed People
- · When remembering details, eyes shift up and to the left
- · When making something up, eyes shift up and to the right.
- Left-Handed People
- · The reverse is true.
- People also tend to blink more rapidly ("eye flutter") as they're telling a lie.
- More common in men than in women, another tell of a lie can be rubbing the eyes.

EYE CONTACT

Despite the commonly-noted correlation of honesty and person maintaining eye contact, a liar does not necessarily always avoid eye contact.

- By nature, people break eye contact and look at non-moving objects to help them focus and remember
- · Liars may purposely make eye contact to falsify their sincerity and can train to do so through practice
- · Some liars have shown to increase the level of eye contact in response to the belief that investigators believed contact as a tell.

AN EYEFUL A DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Staring at women's breasts is good for men's health and makes then live longer, a new survey reveals.

Researchers have discovered that a 10-minute ogle at women's breasts is as healthy as half-an-hour in the gym.

A five-year study of 200 men found that those who enjoyed a longing look at busty beauties had lower blood pressure, less heart disease and slower pulse rates compared to those who did not get their daily eyeful.

Dr Karen Weatherby, who carried out the German study, wrote in the new England Journal of Medicine: "Just 10 minuntes of staring at the charms of a well endowed female in roughly equivalent to a 30 minute aerobics workout.

Sexual excitement gets the heart pumping and iproves blood circulation.

There is no question that gazing at breasts makes men healthier.

Our study indicates that engaging in this activity a few minutes daily cuts the risk of a stroke and heart attack in half.

We believe that by doing so consistently, the average man can extend his life four or five years."

A PLEA OF IGNORANCE

Although marijuana isn't even close to legalization in the Sunshine State, Guy Lanchester, 46, believed cocaine to be quite the opposite, at least, that's what he told the cops. The biggest discrepancy with his story is that officers busted Lanchester trying to ditch the bag of blow in a flower planter at the Pier House Resort in Key West.

A security guard called police when he saw Lanchester walk onto the property with two other people and then heard a scream. Arresting officer Darnell Sealy responded. Once on the scene, Sealy asked Lanchester what was in his hands. Lanchester then stuffed his hands into the flower pot and pulled them back out. Police discovered less than a gram of cocaine in the flower pot.

Upon being booked, Lanchester allegedly told police, "I don't understand ... I thought cocaine wasn't illegal in Florida," according to the New York Daily News.

LIQUOR BEFORE BEER, NEVER FEAR. BEER BEFORE LIQUOR. NEVER SICKER.

According to the rhyme, if you drink liquor first and then switch to beer later on, you'll leave the bars feeling top notch. If you choose beer before liquor, however, your stomach will pay the price. The truth? Order makes no difference. Beer, wine, liquor back to beer...you can even mix them together (ew?). The amount of alcohol you consume is the only true indicator of how you'll feel later on.

DON'T "BREAK THE SEAL" OR YOU'LL BE GOING ALL NIGHT.

If you think once you use the restroom that you've opened the floodgates for endless bathroom urges, think again. First, a quick anatomy lesson – there is no seal. Second, alcohol is a diuretic – it's going to make you pee no matter how hard you try to hold it in!

ENERGY DRINKS MIXED WITH ALCOHOL MAKE YOU DRUNKER.

Not true. Energy drinks simply energize you, which may make you feel less drunk. To compensate, many club-goers end up drinking more – that's why it seems like energy drinks make you drunker.

EAT A BIG MEAL BEFORE YOU GO OUT AND YOU'LL STAY SOBER.

Unfortunately, eating ten hotdogs for dinner doesn't give you the green light to smash as many beers as you want. Eating before drinking does slow the absorption of alcohol, but it doesn't restrict alcohol from entering your bloodstream. The good news? This slowed alcohol absorption can help stave off a severe next-day hangover.

ALCOHOL IS RESPONSIBLE FOR YOUR BEER BELLY.

Well, not exactly. Calorie for calorie, alcohol won't make you gain weight faster than, say, soda. Believe it or not, studies have shown that women who enjoy one drink each day can actually weigh less that those who don't drink at all (or those who binge drink) due to the way the body metabolizes small amounts of alcohol. As for the beer belly? It's all back to calories. Calories can come from booze or the double decker cheeseburger and fries you picked up on your way home – alcohol doesn't change a thing about it.

USE THE LINES ON A SOLO CUP TO MEASURE HOW MUCH ALCOHOL TO POUR.

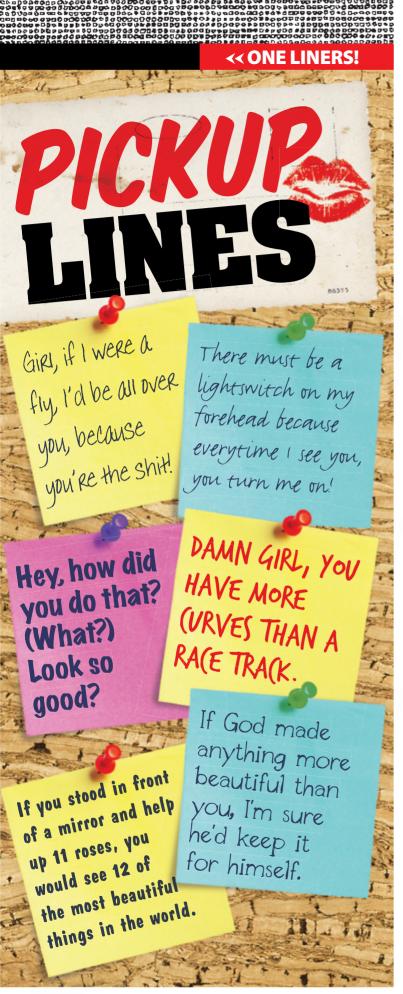

Nope. The company has stated again and again that the lines on their cup are not meant to guide your consumption.

TEQUILA WILL MAKE YOU CRAZY, WINE WILL MAKE YOU SAD AND WHISKY WILL MAKE YOU FLIRTY, SO CHOOSE WISELY.

Actually, there is no evidence to suggest that there are different types of drunk. It's only the amount and speed at which you drink that controls your mood.

YOU NEED TO SOBER UP?

Get some fresh air, take a cold shower, exercise and eat! Sadly, time is the only element that leads to sobriety. If you've been drinking and you need to sober up, hunker down and wait it out – taking a jog or hopping in the shower won't speed the process.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE HYPE WEARS OFF

As students – especially freshman – Gator Growl grants an opportunity to show school pride beyond that of a dirty t-shirt. Packed with excitement, speeches, celebrity and skits, the event conjures a great deal of hype around the city, and that buildup can be constituted. But, after the first year or so, the hype becomes only that: Hype.

Gator Growl kicks off on October 17 this year at Flavet Field, but here is a list of things, that I'd rather be doing.

WITH AGE COMES ... BAD SURGERY >>

VICTIMS OF TIME

Everybody is different. That holds true when it comes to aging as well. Some people age gracefully, while others age anything but gracefully. The majority of people have the advantage of aging without a spotlight. Celebrities – lucky for us – don't always have that advantage. For the sake of some giggles at other people's expense, we've compiled some before and after shots of celebrities who did not have time on their side. In fact, in some cases time seems like it was plotting against them.

FREE FROM FORM THE CRAZY CARLS BREAK OUT

With a new single and video on the Web waves, Orlando-based The Crazy Carls are pushing the boundaries of pop and the formulaic pool of rockers.

The indie-pop band is rooted in many music genres from reggae to funk. Creator of the band, Alex Baugh, takes on the task of lead guitar, lead vocals and songwriter. Through their music, the band strives to defy labeling by always keeping their sound fresh with rich vocals and sensitive lyrics.

Most recently, the group has released a new single "To The Stars" from their forthcoming third studio release (out in early 2015). This November, the band hits the road on tour through the southeast US with Aaron Carter. As a performer, Baugh knows how to work the audience with his mesmerizing guitar solos and funky swag. He sings in a fun pop fashion similar to Maroon 5 – whom The Crazy Carls recently covered with their version of the song "Maps".

The band's latest CD Owl Tattoo features pop songs that carry similar styles. It features superb dance music with high-energy tracks like "Celebrity" and "Red Lipstick". Other songs like "Leave Me Tonight" and "Fire In the Hole" tell intimate stories of personal experience. Their latest CD of eight songs can be found on iTunes, Amazon, Spotify and many other

TUNE IN TURN ON PLUG IN

THE LAST INTERNATIONALE WE WILL REIGN

It's nice to hear a band with some musical 'balls' again. While they still exist in dive bars and small town clubs, it's rare to hear them on a national level these days. No synth, no strings, no auto tune - The Last Internationale brings it from start to finish on We Will Reian. Their motive isn't much new, but it's a breath of fresh air in the modern music scene and front woman Delila Paz bares it all on the microphone with a rawness unheard for decades. Despite an unbending political focus, right- and left-based music fans can appreciate the activist trio's grunge/punk/blues punch and the storytelling lyrical know-how primarily found in folk – not to mention the addition of former Rage Against the Machine drummer Brad Wilk and production by Brendan O'Brien (Pearl Jam, Soundgarden, The Black Crowes, Rage Against the Machine). Standouts include the radioready Killing Fields, 1968 and the more laid-back Baby It's You.

THE WIND AND THE WAVE FROM THE WRECKAGE

The Austin, Texas-based, best friend duo harken back to an upbeat, traditional combination of folk, country, and pop. The experience of Dwight Baker and Patricia Lynn – both of former Austin bands – shines through in their debut album. Heartfelt, sonically pleasing, yet lined with driving rhythms and Lynn's spark of vocals, the album rarely slows to a sense of boredom. It stands strong for a night on the porch or an afternoon drive in the country, setting an array of visuals in each song. Standouts include the screw-work anthemic Raising Hands Raising Hell Raise 'Em High, the single, With Your Two Hands and the dirty, blues guitar riffs of The Heart It Beats the Thunder Rolls.

SIA 1000 FORMS OF FEAR

The creative mind behind many of the hits filling nightclubs and bars, Sia's unique style shines on its own on 1000 Forms of Fear. With writing credits for Madonna. Britney Spears, Beyoncé, Celine Dion, and Rihanna, for whom she penned Diamonds, Sia's ability to write a hook is evident throughout the album. The more fascinating part is to hear the actual voice behind the many hits and the guirkiness that made those songs so unique. Standouts of the album include Chandelier, Free the Animal, Straight for the Knife and Burn the Pages.

MAGIC! DON'T KILL THE MAGIC

With Rude, a top, mid-year single of 2014, behind them, the reggae-pop-indie band has tried to spread the charm of the bouncy piece to a full-length. While catchy, and tolerant for background music (as with most reggae/fusion music), the band fails to bring the charm that made Rude work so well. Listening to the album start to finish, doesn't leave the listener with much to remember and, overall, trite. Tracks like No Evil, Stupid Me and Rude give listeners something to look forward to, however, it's easier just to listen to Bob Marley, Sublime and 311 to satisfy a reggae fix.

«AVENUES OF AUTHENTICITY

Born in Jordan, the LA-based artist met Katy Perry in 2007 after being signed to Capitol Record; the two bonded quickly. His first album, 2008's Aliens & Rainbows, was critically acclaimed being called "fabulous pop of astounding depth and beauty" by All-Music. Despite such change, Ferras was let go due to changes in management.

Ferras and Perry stayed close as he continued to pursue his art. The result: A spot as the inaugural artist on Perry's Metamorphosis Music label and a new EP of lavish sonics and a cautiously-paced scale of emotional highs and lows in lyric-form.

Ferras opened for Perry in June for the North American leg of her Prismatic World Tour in support of his latest EP. With his own tour wrapping in October, Ferras will start work on a new full-length album.

CT spoke with Ferras to discuss his career, his creative drive and his musical path of personal connection and authenticity.

How did you get started with a career in music?

I trolled craigslist for any type of music related thing I could find or audition for. I auditioned for a television show called Performing As (where I "performed as" Elton John") on the show. "Barbra Streisand" ended up winning the competition but I was the real winner because I ended up meeting people who worked for the show that ended up getting me in front of the president of Virgin Records.

What separates you from other pop acts?

I am me, other pop acts are other pop acts. People are different so by being myself I'm naturally separated because I am a different person than someone else.

What's the writing process like?

Therapeutic. Electric. Exhausting. Emotional.

Is there a moment that you know when you have a hit? You know you have something special when you are obsessed with what you've created.

Do you know what the song is going to sound like before you team with a producer, or is it more of a collaboration?

You never know what you are going to get. A producer brings your writing to life and gives it a screen to be viewed upon so to speak.

What goes into putting on one of your shows? Patron, pianos and leggings.

What's it like touring with Katy Perry?

Much better than touring with someone who isn't the Queen of Pop.

How has she influenced you?

She's the same person she was eight years ago when I met her. She's stayed true to herself, trusts her instincts and has a great work ethic. All of that is quite inspiring.

How did the two of you become best friends?

Trying to get into Hollywood clubs and late nights jamming on the piano and singing gospel songs until 4 a.m. We both grew up in church, we both are from Santa Barbara – we have a lot in common.

Are you working on an LP or just focusing on touring presently?

Tour is my focus until October ... then I start work on my full length. I'm also shooting a video early next month.

Any words of advice for up and coming artists?

Be yourself. There's enough of everyone else. Write from your heart – be authentic and connect with what you are doing. If you don't think its great, no one else will.

FLIP TWITTER THE BIRD WITH GOTTWIEN THE THE BIRD WITH GOTTWIEN THE B

Between Facebook, Twitter and countless other social networks, there is an inherent endless amount of pointless commentary, information and T.M.I scenarios available on the Web. The problem with this flood of unfiltered thoughts is that the majority of people exposed to it, and taking part of it, do not care except for when they are guilty of creating it and any information that might actually be worthwhile is lost under the gobs of tweets, memes and gifs.

With Go Tweet Yourself, a once-hushed voice of innocent bystanders can be universally heard in saying 'enough is "enough." Nobody wants to see the pictures from your business trip to Omaha. No one wants a page-by-page account of what's going on in Twilight or Hunger Games or whatever other teenage, pop-drama artifice of a film might be floating around the blogishpere. On top of that, nobody wants a virtual drink, that's why there are bars!

Authored by Janelle Randazza, Go Tweet Yourself offers up 365 reasons why all of thosesocial networking sites suck. The humorous book is an author's account of a mission against the modern motivations of a society narcissistically strung to oversharing. Go Tweet Yourself says what we've all wanted to say when killing time on the toilet, scrolling through the marginalized nonsense available on our phones.

REASON 197 > Couples who share

Nothing says you're in a needy, codependent, and symbiotic relationship like a joint Facebook account. The only time such things should be allowed is if the two people sharing an account are eligible for AARP benefits and if one of the is a total Luddite. If you are a couple in your twenties, thirties or forties, this is completely unacceptable and essentially the Web 2.0 equivalent of once control-freak spouse talking for the other.

REASON 198 > Less than 2 percent of all pics posted were taken in this decade – what the hell do these people really look like?

Well this is kind of odd. You're posting photos from when we took algebra together? Considering you have since graduated from college and went to get your PhD, I'm assuming you've had a few more experience since then notable enough to have your picture taken. I'm not calling you old or anything, but a lot of time has passed since the ninth grade. And I think i heard you're married, so I'm guessing you've got amore recent photo or two kicking around. Or is this one of thoe things like you'd rather we "remember you as your were?"

REASON 200 > You think your profile pic makes you look ironic and hip, but it really just makes you look like an idiot with too much time on your hands

Wow. That's quite an angle on that photo. And you've done some mad photo editing. How long did it take you to do that? A simple snapshot wouldn't' have done, eh? Why is that? Is it because you couldn't convey your supreme artsinesss with your point-and-shoot? I'm glad we can see how Studio 54 you are deep inside now that you've run your photo through the Warhol-O-Matic feature. Because, you know, none of us have ever seen that before.

Janelle Randazza (Boston, MA) has Friendstered, Facebooked, and Twittered her way into a writing career where she turns out articles on everything from Warcraft widows (The Boston Phoenix) to Sicilian winemaking (Yankee Magazine). She is also a semi -professional music groupie, but avoids stalking her favorite bands on MySpace.

MOST RIDIC HOLIDAYS OF THE MONTH

In the olden days, "the holidays" was a phrase used to describe two months at the end of the year. Not any more! With greater technology comes greater boredom, and a greater need to celebrate the mundane. Mankind has cooked up new holidays to keep you going throughout the year, easing your troubles between Easter and Cinco de Mayo. In true CT fashion, we have compiled the most incredibly weird and unnecessary holidays, in order from "Slightly Acceptable" to "Why on earth would that exist?" Take a look, and jot down your favorites.

ANNABELLE

WHAT: Horror

WHO: Ward Horton, Annabelle Wallis, Alfre Woodard, Eric Ladin

WHEN: October 3

First revealed in The Conjuring, the demonic doll, Annabelle, returns to the big screen in her own feature. Produced by James Wan (Saw, Insidious), Annabelle delves into the horrific beginnings of the beautiful, rare vintage doll. She was bought by Johnny Gordon for his expectant wife Mia. On a dark, fatal night, members of a satanic cult invade their home, attacking the happy couple. Blood and terror fill their home. Worst of all, the cultists have conjured a malevolent entity far more sinister than any of the cultists actions, and Annabelle is its vessel.

THE JUDGE

WHAT: Drama

WHO: Robert Downey Jr., Robert Duvall, Vera Farmiga,

Balthazar Getty
WHEN: October 10

Estranged from his family, big city lawyer Hank Palmer (Downey Jr.) returns to his childhood home where his father, a hard-nosed, long-standing judge for the district has become a suspect in a murder. Through great angst and frustration, Palmer must try to re-connect with his resentful father to discover the truth behind the accusations.

WHIPLASH

WHAT: Drama

WHO: Melissa Benoist, Miles Teller,

J.K. Simmons, Paul Reiser

WHEN: October 10

An ambitious young jazz drummer, Andrew Neyman (Teller) is stubborn and singleminded in his pursuit to earn the top spot in his east coast music conservatory. Neyman's greatest challenge: Terence Fletcher, an instructor equally known for his teaching talents as for his terrifying methods. As head of the top jazz ensemble in the school, Fletcher discovers Andrew and transfers the aspiring drummer into his band. Neyman's desires bend to obsession, as the ruthless instructor pushes him to the brink of his ability and sanity.

BIRDMAN

WHAT: Comedy, Drama WHO: Michael Keaton, Zach Galifianakis, Edward Norton, Andrea Riseborough

WHEN: October 17

In a loose interpretation of art imitating life, Michael Keaton (a former Batman) plays a washed-up actor who once played an iconic superhero. As he mounts a Broadway pay to reclaim his former glory, he must overcome his family trouble, and even more strenuous – his ego.

WHAT: Action, Sci-Fi WHO: Tom Cruise, Emily Blunt, Bill Paxton

WHEN: October 7 Major William Cage, an officer who has never seen a day of combat, is thrown into a seemingly impossible mission. Promptly killed in the battle, he is hurled into a time loop in which he must relive his final day of combat over and over again, each time with the same deadly fate. As each loop passes, he becomes stronger and more capable, giving him a better chance at defeating the alien enemy.

DIE IN THE WEST

WHAT: Comedy, Western WHO: Seth MacFarlane, Liam Neeson, Charlize Theron, Neil Patrick Harris, Sarah Silverman WHEN: October 7

After being dumped by a fickle girlfriend because he is a coward, Albert begins to fall for a mysterious woman who rides into town. She helps him find his courage as the romance between them develops. Conflict occurs when her husband, a famous outlaw, shows up seeking revenge and Albert must man up to face him.

the Internet. After 10 years and two kids, the once-hot-and-heavy relationship between Jay (Segel) and Annie (Diaz) has fizzled. To spark the romance, they decide to shoot a sex tape for their own private collection. One mistaken upload to the cloud later, their privacy and reputations are on the line as their sex tape has been sent to all of their friends, family and co-workers. As the couple's race to reclaim the video leads to a night they'll never forget, they find that the video will expose even more than private matter then they had thought.

DELIVER US FROM EVIL

WHAT: Crime, Horror, Thriller WHO: Eric Bana, Édgar Ramírez, Olivia Munn

WHEN: October 28 NY police officer Ralph Sarchie (Bana) joins forces with an unconventional priest (Ramirez) after a series of crimes shows signs of supernatural proportions. With the priest's experience in the rituals of exorcism, the two must combat the possessions that are terrorizing their city.

A new business was opening and one of the owner's friends sent flowers for the occasion. But when the owner read the card with the flowers, it said, "Rest In Peace". The owner was a little peeved and he called the florist to complain.

After he told the florist about the obvious mistake, the florist said, "Sir I'm really sorry for the mistake, but rather than getting angry, you should imagine this: somewhere there is a funeral taking place today, and they have flowers with a note saying, "Congratulations On Your New Location".

A: They take the psycho path.

For a second everything went quiet in the cab, then the driver said, "Look mate, don't ever do that again. You scared the daylights out of replied, "Sorry, it's not really your fault. Today is my first day as a cab driver. I've been driving a funeral van for the last 25 years."
