MEDEA 1250: $\Delta Y \Sigma T Y X H \Sigma \Delta' E \Gamma \Omega \Gamma Y N H$

With these words ends Medea's dramatic speech in which she makes the decision to kill her children. These four words, coming as the end of so profoundly emotional a speech, seem remarkably flat.\(^1\) This does not make the text wrong, but it does seem to me that a small emendation gives us exactly the emotionally powerful and contextually appropriate concluding statement that we need. Read $\gamma o \nu \hat{\eta}$. Medea is ill-fated in her children (who must die and at her hands).\(^2\) This comes directly out of her previous remarks on the pain and difficulty caused her (so to speak) by her children and leads immediately into the choral ode on children and the risks of being a parent. This is similar to Tyndareus' remarks at Orestes 540-1, where he observes that he has been ill-fortuned in respect of his daughters: $\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\dot{\omega}$ $\delta\dot{\epsilon}$ $\tau\ddot{a}\lambda\lambda\alpha$ $\mu\alpha\kappa\dot{\alpha}\rho\iota\sigmas$ $\tau\dot{\epsilon}\phi\mu\kappa'$ $\dot{a}\nu\dot{\eta}\rho l$ $\tau\dot{\lambda}\dot{\eta}\nu$ $\dot{\epsilon}s$ $\theta\nu\gamma\alpha\tau\dot{\epsilon}\rho\alphas$. $\tau\dot{\epsilon}\nu\dot{\alpha}\sigma$ $\dot{\delta}$ $\dot{\epsilon}$ $\dot{\epsilon}\dot{\nu}\dot{\delta}\omega\mu\nu\dot{\omega}$.\(^3\)

- ¹ The seemingly similar sentiment and language at Hecuba 785 is, in fact, very different. The rhetorical question effectively makes that statement signify, 'Hecuba is the most wretched woman ever'.
- ² Cf. γάμοις δυστυχεῖν at Ph. 424. As for the grief that can be caused by [the loss of] children, cf. also Alc. 882-3.

MENIS AND PELEX, PROTAGOR AS ON SOLECISM*

Citing what has become a well-known, albeit bewildering, statement of Protagoras, Aristotle says at Soph. El. 173b17–22 the following about solecism (σολοικισμός):

ἔστι δὲ τοῦτο καὶ ποιεῖν καὶ μὴ ποιοῦντα φαίνεσθαι καὶ ποιοῦντα μὴ δοκεῖν, καθάπερ ὁ Πρωταγόρας ἔλεγεν, εἰ ὁ μῆνις καὶ ὁ πήληξ ἄρρεν ἐστίν· ὁ μὲν γὰρ λέγων 'οὐλομένην' σολοικίζει μὲν κατ' ἐκεῖνον, οὐ φαίνεται δὲ τοῖς ἄλλοις, ὁ δὲ 'οὐλόμενον' φαίνεται μέν, ἀλλ' οὐ σολοικίζει.

(DK 80 A 28)

This passage has confounded many, and the opinion has prevailed that Protagoras once argued that the feminine nouns $\hat{\eta}$ $\mu\hat{\eta}\nu\iota s$ ('anger') and $\hat{\eta}$ $\pi\hat{\eta}\lambda\eta\xi$ ('helmet') should in fact be masculine. It has been asserted that Protagoras either believed that these
