PORSCHE DESIGN P'8464 SUNGLASSES

Shield your eyes in style in Porsche Design P'8464 Sunglasses ($380; Fall 2009). With sporty inner racing stripes inspired by the Porsche GT3 VIP Cup Car, the P'8464s also sport milled aluminum temples with polyamide fronts for extreme lightness and comfort, and lens 20 shapes that are suitable for prescription lenses.

NIKE AIR MAX LEBRON VII

The Nike Air Max LeBron VII ($160; October 24) features a new custom Max 360 Air sole with 80 percent more air than the previous full-length unit, strategically contoured with a thinner forefoot and deeper heel to put the cushioning where it's needed most. For even more comfort and stability, it features Nike Flywire tensile fiber technology, a seamless integrated bootie, various visual hints to LeBron all over, and a full-grain leather upper with patent leather detailing throughout.

A lot of guys don't like the idea of wearing rings for fashion — they think that it might somehow make them "girly." Well, there's nothing "girly" about this ring. The Stainless Steel and Concrete Ring ($170) keeps it real manly with a wide, thick stainless band that has a=2 Ocore inlay of concrete. Wear this, and display your man ring with pride.

TAG HEUER MONACO LS

Tag's legendary Monaco series is back and looking better than ever. The new Tag Heuer Monaco LS Chronograph Calibre 12 ($TBA) is a modern masterpiece, featuring a high-tech face with separate indicators for the date, chronograph minutes and hours, and a linear system for the current second, water resistance up to 100 meters, and your choice of either a black alligator or stainless st eel strap.

THE FRONT POCKET WALLET

A lot of people have started keeping their wallet in their front pocket lately. Most will tell you it is because they have so much money that it hurts to keep it in their back pocket when they sit down on it, but the real reason for most is better security from pickpockets. This wallet is specially shaped to fit any pocket with it's rounded corners. $50.

WATCH MOVEMENT CUFFLINKS

The innards of watches always make for interesting display items, so why not display them somewhere they'll get noticed — like on your wrists. These Watch Movement Cufflinks ($125) are made with real antique watch pieces, set in sterling silver. The intricate workings between cogs and gears make these a subtle way to show off your love of engineering.

KENNETH COLE SLEEK STEAKS

If you're like us, and basically only get to wear dress shoes on nights out, you need a pair that will look classy when paired with a nice suit, but will also look stylish when worn with a good pair of jeans and a blazer. The "Sleek Steaks" by Kenneth Cole ($160) fit the bill rather nicely. A silver buckle adds a little bit of flair to the slender=2 Otoe, and the padded footbed helps you keep "happy feet" over long days of wear.

FITBIT

Ever wonder just how good you're doing on your exercise regimen, or just how much you toss and turn at night? Wonder no more. Fitbit ($100; late 2008) is a tiny wireless tracker that you clip onto your clothing to track your daily movements — including steps, miles, calories burnt, and more — that wirelessly syncs with the Fitbit website, letting you keep track of all your activities. It's like Nike+iPod for your life.

4MULA 102 BARBOX SOAP

Plain ol' Zest may have been fine back in the High School showers, but a man needs a more refined cleaning agent. A cool mix of Peppermint, Rosemary, and Eucalyptus, 4mula 102 Barbox Soap by 4mula ($28) uses environmentally-friendly materials and features an ergonomic design that helps keep the bar off of the counter, plus the two larger bars conceal and hold the smaller bar.

TANITA BC554 IRONMAN GLASS SCALE

All of us like to be in shape, but if you're the kind of Uncrater that needs to know stats like body fat percentage, body water percentage, and muscle mass, check this out. The Tanita BC554 Ironman Glass Scale ($100) features small metal plates that use Bioelectric Impedance Analysis technology to determine these factors, giving you even more to brag about down at the gym.

FITDECK EXERCISE PLAYING CARDS

The FitDeck Exercise Playing Cards ($10\$15) are an interesting take on getting in shape without equipment. These stacks of playing cards contain illustrations and instructions describing different exercises, stretches, and movements that require only your bodyweight to perform, but still allow you to build and tone muscle and increase fl exibility effectively. There's even a FitDeck with exercises you can do in the office, helping to increase blood circulation, keep muscles limber, and eliminate the stress that's part and parcel of a modern office job. And then there's the Navy SEAL FitDeck.

NAUTICA OCEANS

Smell good and help out mother nature at the same time with Nautica Oceans ($65). The environmentally friendly fragrance features a longlasting, biodegradable water-based formula that includes notes of ocean air, lemon tonic, sea salt rose, and teakwood, and arrives in 100% recyclable, eco-friendly packaging manufactured using wind power in a carbon neutral facility.

WAHL LITHIUM ION TRIMMER

Get more power and longer life with less charging from the Wahl Lithium Ion Trimmer ($40). As the world's first groomer with a Lithium Ion battery, the new Wahl offers a one hour charging time, more than two hours of run time, and more than twice the torque of a normal NiMH/NiCad trimmer, and includes a charging base, trimmer blade, detailer, dual shaver, and clipper blade.

LIVESTRONG FITNESS EQUIPMENT

Give your home gym an extreme makeover with the new line of Livestrong Fitness Equipment ($800-$1,700; Fall 2009). Highlighted by a race-inspired indoor cycle with a 40-pound flywheel and a Kevlar multi-ribbon belt drive, the lineup also features four treadmills and three ellipticals, offering niceties like builtin speakers and iPod docks, industrial-strength components, LED displays, multiple workout programs, and more. Of course, each piece carries Lance Armstrong's seal of approval, and proceeds from each sale go to help the Lance Armstrong Foundation and the fight against cancer.

Because of this, the thinking used to be that caffeine makes you dehydrated. After all, you're losing all that water, right? Maybe not.

It turns out the fluid in the beverage itself offsets caffeinated beverages. In fact, according to a ou've heard the warnings over the years: Caffeine makes you dehydrated; coffee causes fertility problems; caffeine isn't safe for kids; and whatever you do, don't drink caffeine while you're pregnant or training for an athletic event.

So how true are these warnings? Is there any research to back them up? You might be surprised by the answer. Here are five common caffeine myths finally busted by science and research.

Myth #1: Caffeine makes you dehydrated

DESIREMAGAZINE SEPTEMBER 09

of Sport Nutrition Exercise and Metabolism, even If you're a fan of coffee or you drink a lot of among athletes there was no reason to believe caffeinated beverages moderate caffeine consumption contributes you may be to dehydration. How much consumption is "moderate"? About 300 mg, or three 8 ounce familiar with one cups of coffee. Myth #2: Never drink caffeine if you're training for an athletic event Several studies have been conducted to find out if there's any truth to this myth. In 1997 the International Journal of Sports Medicine published a study that found caffeine consumption during prolonged physical activity did not produce the diuretic effect at all. So there's no reason to believe it would dehydrate an athlete in training. Some studies have even suggested that a small amount of caffeine (less than 250 mg, or 2 and a half cups of coffee) during or just prior to exercise can increase endurance during workouts. Studies have been performed on many different types of athletes from rowers to runners and all had varying levels of athletic improvement when they consumed caffeine prior to working out. These studies, of course, were performed on healthy adults. Some people, such as pregnant women and children, may have lower caffeine tolerances. Even for people with low tolerances, however, a small amount of caffeine before exercise has not proven harmful. Myth #3: Never drink caffeine if you're pregnant As mentioned previously, pregnant women may find they have lower tolerance for caffeine than they previously had. Even still, several studies have been conducted on caffeine's effect on a fetus during pregnancy. In 2001 a study was find a relationship between caffeine consumption and birth weight. No relationship was found. Other studies have also failed to find a direct connection between caffeine and low birth weight or birth defects.

Despite the lack of findings, most studies still recommend that pregnant women never consume more than 300 mg of caffeine (three 8 ounce cups of coffee) per day. This is because all women have different caffeine tolerances and there may be other contributing factors such as pre-existing health problems or tobacco use.

For this reason it's recommended that pregnant women discuss their personal health and caffeine intake with their doctor.

Myth #4: Caffeine causes fertility problems

This is another myth aimed primarily at women. There is actually a nugget of truth here, though. A 2005 Japanese study suggests there may be a certain genetic marker that some women carry that may react with caffeine to lower fertility. However, that would not be true of the general population.

Most studies have shown that caffeine itself does not lower a woman's fertility, but caffeine combined with alcohol and/or tobacco use can create fertility problems. This can be a problem for women who drink alcohol mixed with popular energy drinks.

As mentioned before, it's a good rule of thumb to consume less than 300 mg of caffeine daily, including any energy drinks. This is especially true if you're having trouble conceiving.

Mvth #5: Caffeine isn't safe for kids Several studies have been conducted that found no relationship between caffeine and behavioral disorders or health problems in children. Just like adults, different children will have different tolerances. But overall there do not seem to be any negative effects when small to moderate amounts of caffeine are consumed by children. It should be noted that children have a smaller body mass so a moderate amount for children will be less than for an adult. Also, the sugar content in soft drinks and energy drinks should be taken into account for kids. These five caffeine myths have been around for a long time, but science is starting to examine their validity. As with anything, talk to your health care practitioner if you have questions about how caffeine might effect you. And remember everyone has their own personal tolerance, regardless of what studies find.

NEUHAUS T- 2 AMPLIFIER

Turn your PC or Mac into a concert hall-worthy Hi Fi with the Neuhaus T-2 Amplifier ($800). Connecting to your computer via USB, the T-2 takes the digital audio stream and uses its custom DAC to convert the sound to analog, then amplifies it using vacuum tubes, providing a warm, powerful sound that's closer to the original recording than you'll ever get out of your headphone jack. A Black high gloss piano finish, four other audio inputs, oversized volume and input selector knobs, and a view of the tubes in action leaves the T-2 looking as good as it sounds.

LOGITECH HARMONY 900 REMOTE CONTROL

Take control of your home entertainment system with the new Logitech Harmony 900 Remote Control ($400). Using a completely redesigned RF system, the Harmony 900 can control up to 15 devices courtesy of IR blasters that you place in front of your components, so you can keep them in a cabinet up to 100 feet away. Other features include a touchscreen for simplified macro controls, such as "Watch TV" or "Listen to Music," and four distinct button zones, making it easier to find and use t he controls you need.

NIKON D300S

Two years after the release of their successful semi-pro DSLR, the D300, Nikon follows up with the "s" version of the D300. It's housed in the same magnesium body as the D300 but this version has some more tricks up its sleeve. First of which is the ability to shoot 720p video with stereo sound. Another new feature is the dual card slot where you can sto re your shots on a CF as well as an SD card. Perfec t for backing up your photos or for dedicated storage (one can store video only and the other stills). The D300s also has a faster frame rate at 7fps, and can be bumped up to 8fps when you attach the macho battery grip. A quiet mode is also available on the D300s when shooting in silence is a must. It still has the same 12.3MP sensor, 51-point AF, and the same 31, 920,000 dot LCD screen. Available now for pre-orders. $1,800.

"It Doesn't Exist"

FIVE MYTHS AND TRUTHS ABOUT BISEXUALITY

erhaps one of the most misunderstood sexual orientations, bisexuality is a hot topic in today's world. From movie stars to friends, many people claim to be bisexual now, perhaps because of increasing acceptance.

Still, myths have a way of lingering, and it can be hard to know what to think when you're not experiencing an attraction to both genders yourself (or even if you are!). Here are five common myths that surround bisexuality, and the truth about each.

1. "Bisexuality doesn't exist; you're gay or you're straight, period."

For someone who isn't bisexual, it's hard to understand how a person could be attracted to both genders, but bisexuality does indeed exist. Bisexuals have existed throughout history, so it isn't a recent development, either.

2. "Bisexuals are making a choice to be that way, or they can't choose between being gay or straight. It's just a phase."

Some people use bisexuality as a label for themselves while struggling to accept who they are (whether that be gay or straight). Others are truly bisexual for their entire lives. Bisexuality is not a choice, just like homosexuality or heterosexuality are not choices, either.

3. "True bisexuals love both genders equally. If you love one gender more, you're straight/gay."

You don't have to love both genders exactly equally to consider yourself bisexual. Most bisexuals feel varying levels of attraction to people of one gender or the other. In a more extreme form, this may mean they are physically attracted to one gender, while being emotionally attracted to the other, or they simply feel differently about each gender.

4. "Bisexuals are promiscuous and can't stay in monogamous relationships like 'the rest of us'."

Bisexuals are no more promiscuous than homosexuals and heterosexuals. Some bisexuals date lots of people, while others don't date at all, just like everybody else. Furthermore, they are certainly capable of monogamous relationships, even a stable and long-lived marriage. Being bisexual does not affect your ability to stay in a committed relationship, it only affects the genders you're willing to consider when looking to enter one.

5. "People only say they're bisexual because it's a trend."

While some people try to use bisexuality as a way to become popular, they often find it backfiring on them. Being bisexual is sometimes harder than being gay or straight. Bisexuals tend to be thought of as "gays in denial" by both the gay and straight communities. As a result, bisexuals often feel trapped in between both communities.

As you can see, myths about bisexuality still persist. As people learn the truth, however, they are slowly beginning to recognize bisexuality as a valid sexual orientation.

DESIREART

In 1994 at the age of 23 years old Tony Mauro left the city of Buffalo,NY where he grew up and spent most of his adult life bound for the west coast to pursue his career as an illustrator. He landed in Los Angeles in November of 94' and began working in the entertainment industry as an illustrator and designer. "fantasy art was always an area that intrigued me" says Mauro.

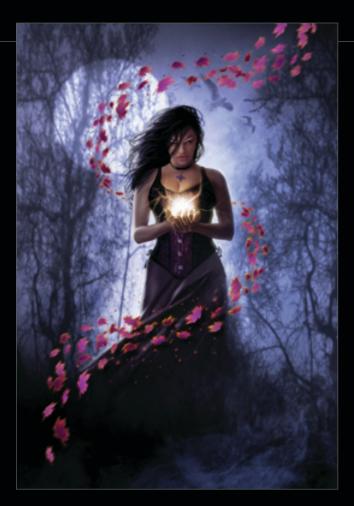

"I used to love Boris Valeijo, Olivia, and Sorayama and still do" His other passion was for dark gothic art like Brom and Beksinski. So attempting to put the two together was always Tony's vision for his fantasy art. Tony graduated from the Art Institute of Pittsburgh in 1991 with a degree in visual communications and a major in airbrush.

After spending six years as an airbrush illustrator he eventually crossed over to the computer.

Which he fought as much as possible like most traditional illustrators do. The first several years in Los Angeles were spent working with an illustration and design studio in Santa Monica, This was where Tony refined his computer skills and began developing the style that he uses today. For about two and a half years Tony worked almost exclusively on designing posters, calendars, book covers, and video box covers for the hit show "The X-Files".

His transition into Pin-up/Fantasy art came shortly after that when he started developing the "When Darkness Falls" Vampire Series. Using what little knowledge of photography he had from shooting his own reference as an illustrator He started photographing friends and acquaintances on evenings and weekends. Those photographs would later serve at the foundation for his vampire series. By the time he was wrapping up the series he was being contacted by Playmates, Penthouse Pets, and some adult film stars wanting to get involved in the project that was starting to develop quite a buzz among the model circuit in Los Angeles. Tony categorizes his art as photo-based illustration.

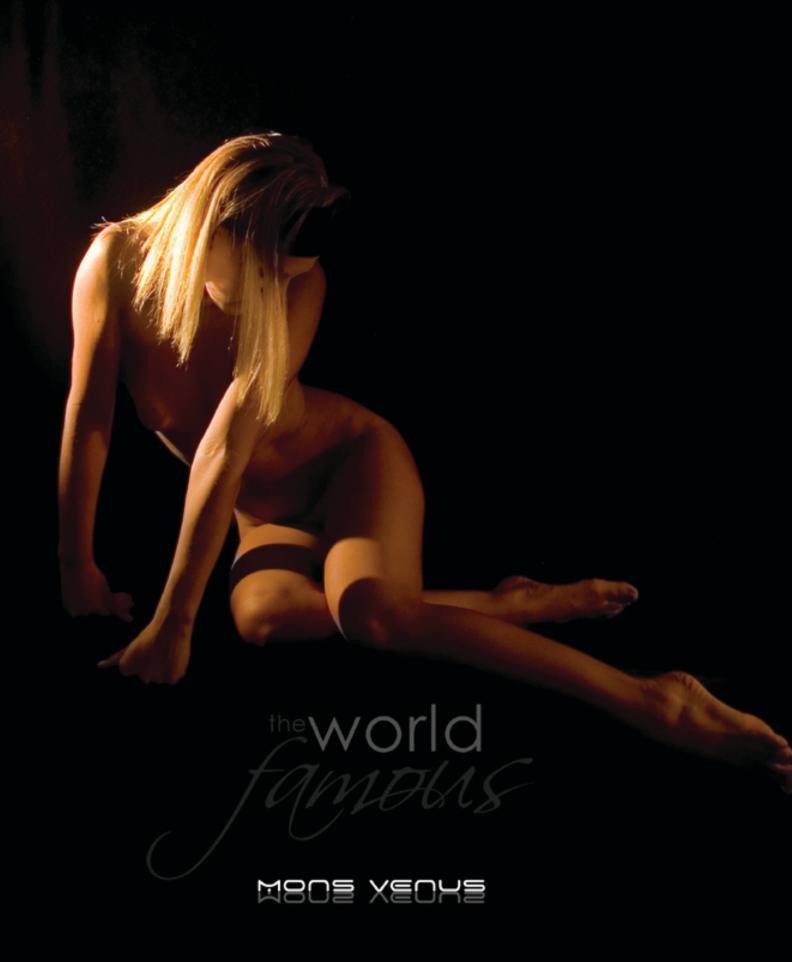

Tony travels around the country doing pin-up, comic and horror conventions to market and promote his prints. In the year 2004 Tony's debut book was released worldwide by a publisher in Germany. Titled "The Dark Art of Tony Mauro" the book is also available at Amazon.com.

Commercially Mauro has spent the last 9 years designing movie posters for every major film studio in Hollywood. Some of the campaigns he is credited for designing are The Pirates of the Caribbean Intl, M. Knight Shyamalans The Village, The Pink Panther, Friday Night Lights, The Chronicles of Narnia and Black Christmas to name a few. You've probably also seen his work gracing numerous video game box covers such as Marvel's Ultimate Alliance, Medal of Honor, Brothers in Arms, Diablo, WarCraft 2, Clive Barker's Undying and most recently Spiderman Friend or Foe.

Tony has recently returned to his home town of Buffalo, NY to focus more of his time on his fantasy art while still freelancing for the entertainment industry designing movie posters as well as crossing over into the world of publishing and book covers.

Tony's website is www.DARKDAYPRODUCTIONS.com. You can a find a large span of his work there.

unrise Adams is a blue-eyed, blonde Texan with an All-American look who was nominated for 2002 Starlet of the Year by AVN shortly after she launched her career in adult movies as a Vivid Girl.

At 5' 7", Sunrise is a slender, well-proportioned beauty who excels in sports and once played football on her high school team – the first girl ever accepted on the squad. She also was on the track and field team, played basketball, rode horses and played softball on her dad's team. She now lives in the San Fernando Valley, where she raises two puppies, a pit bull and a Rottweiler. She signed her first adult film contract with Vivid, which made her a Vivid Girl in 2002. Her first film, "Portrait of Sunrise," has become a top renting and selling feature in both video and DVD formats.

While pursuing her career in adult films, Sunrise also attends college, where she is majoring in business and economics and is preparing for a career later in real estate. Sunrise has done considerable mainstream modeling and acting, but she says, "the adult side of entertainment has always intrigued me and Vivid is an awesome company to work for. BATTLE OF THE EXES s your ex showing increased interest in you? Are you getting phone calls and text messages? When you spend time together, is your ex even flirting? If you're hoping to get back together with your ex, than these signals may have you smiling. However, be careful: before committing your heart once again, be patient and make sure your ex really does want to get back with you.

HOW TO TELL IF YOUR EX WANTS TO GET BACK WITH YOU

What's the best thing to do in this situation? Start by playing a little hard to get. If your ex isn't seriously interested in you, then playing hard to get will protect your own emotions and prevent you from saying or doing things you'll regret later. But if they are interested in getting back together, then playing hard to get will just add fuel to the

After a break up, it's natural to go through a phase of missing each other and fantasizing about getting back together. If you had been together for a year or more, you'll obviously miss your ex more than if you'd only been together for a few weeks. However, along with the nostalgia comes past regrets. Even while you're fantasizing about getting back together, the very things that led to the breakup may be holding one or both of you back from getting together again.

For this reason, when your ex shows renewed interest in you, it may just be that he or she is missing you a lot. It doesn't necessarily mean the two of you are ready to be together again. Also, if the relationship ended painfully, your ex may even be playing with you or trying to get the upper hand. Finally, your ex may be having trouble finding someone else, and may be interested in you only as a fall back. This may be hard to accept if you genuinely want to get back together, but it's less painful to consider this possibility now than to jump into a new relationship with your ex—only to have them dump you again.

Take things slow and let your ex reveal their true intentions. You'll protect your feelings and will have a better chance at healing the relationship. And don't worry—if your ex really does want to get back together with you, he or she will find a way of telling you!

2010 AC COBRA MK VI

The AC MkVI is an open-top sports car based on the design of the Le Mans winning AC Cobra with many of the original car's characteristics while incorporating modern technology. The cars are not imitations - they are new generation of AC Cobra incorporating relevant advanced technology.

"Every year approximately 1,500 copies of the cars AC built in the 1960s are sold in America," says Alan Lubinsky. "Why would anyone buy a replica when they can own an authentic AC roadster that is lighter and better and has been engineered and built to such demanding standards?"

Weighing only about 1,025 kg, the lightweight AC MkVI GTS sports car can hit 100 kph in approximately 3.3 seconds.

"The AC MkVI is wickedly addictive," says Gullwing's Juergen Mohr. "One drive in this scorchingly fast sports car creates an adrenalin rush that will last a lifetime. The AC MkVI offers heritage, performance and timeless styling that stirs the soul."

The AC chassis has been at the heart of some of the most legendary cars in history. Texan Carroll Shelby imported a number of rolling chassis from AC in the 1960s to build the legendary "Cobras" that dominated international sports car racing. The Shelby American team inserted a performance tuned Ford V8 and gearbox into a chassis and body supplied by AC for the North American market. Since then AC has manufactured a car that has been imitated by numerous companies.

AC expects to appoint a distribution network in Europe in the coming months to sell and maintain the AC MkVI.

2010 ASTON MARTIN ELITE LMV/R

Final concept images have just been released for the 2010 Aston Martin LMV/R (Le Mans Vantage Racer). Only 30 of these race cars for the street will be produced for the world. Following in the footsteps of the Ferrari Scuderia and Stradale and Lamborghini Superleggera, the Elite LMV/R is lighter than the factory Vantage due to most of the body panels being made from carbon fiber. The Scuderia, Stradale and Superleggera were built for the purists who wanted a race car for the street, a more nimble version of the production street car that they were built from. These cars aren't for everybody due to their harsher ride and loud exhaust systems. This is the company that the LMV/R will now be amongst but even more rare and special. The Superleggera's US production was 172 cars, the Ferrari Stradale seen 1,288 examples built and the Scuderia production is supposed to top out at about 1,500 cars. Compare these production numbers to the 30 LMV/R's that will be built and you can see how special and rare the LMV/R will truly be. To take a Vantage and turn it into an LMV/R, many components are used.

All LMV/R's will be assembled in Florida and sent to and from the dealership that sold the car within the US. All LMV/R's will be based on 2010 Vantage's and will be very unique. The customer will order a brand new Vantage in any color offered by Aston Martin with any options. The Vantage is then picked up and sent to Florida where the work will be performed. The exterior can be painted the factory color or a custom color at an additional charge. The interior can be assembled in any color of the customers choosing since all the surfaces will be covered in new Alcantara. Elite is currently seeking an Aston Martin dealer in the US to be the exclusive dealer for these 30 cars. The package price is estimated at $173,000 plus the cost of the Vantage. These will be very special and unique cars and more information on deposits can be requested by Elite's exclusive distributor, Exotica Motorsports. www. Exotica-Motorsports.com

2010 NISSAN 370Z YELLOW

It's already the one bright spot in the affordable sports car market, but now Nissan is going for gold with a special version of the storming 370Z coupe. Not for shrinking violets, the new 370Z Yellow lives up to its name in spectacular fashion.

Ultimate Yellow is the paint job and it signals a 370Z with everything that people expect of the 331PS sportster along with a rare exclusivity – there will be a limited number of Yellows available – and a potent visual impact that takes the 370Z's muscular looks to new heights. Some cars were just born to be yellow.

The 370Z Yellow gets design cues that nod at the racing 370Zs from the European GT4 series. The wheels are 19-inch RAYS forged alloys and along the flanks are special 370Z graphics, both items setting off the gleaming yellow body to perfection.

Inside the contrast could not be greater: the theme here is black leather and suede. There's an integrated satellite navigation system, illuminated entry plates, special mats and a BOSE audio with eight speakers and a six-CD autochanger. The sophistication continues with heated seats, cruise control, speed limiter and all the other features from the 370Z GT Pack on which the special Yellow model is based.

The 370Z Yellow is, like all the new-generation versions of this world famous sports car dynasty, powered by an enthusiast's delight of a V6 engine. It pumps out 331PS at 7000rpm backed up by a meaty 270lb ft of pulling power.

SPLINTER WOODEN SUPERCAR

(from Joe Harmon at Joe Harmon Design) We aren't really all about mission statements around here; too often, they are phoney and superfluous. That said, here is ours. We are building a high-performance, mid-engined supercar from wood composites as a graduate project at North Carolina State University. Wood will be used whereever possible, including the chassis, body, and large percentages of the suspension components and wheels. The car has a target weight of 2500lbs and a power goal of over 600 horsepower. We aren't trying to sell anything; we aren't trying to save the world, and we aren't advocating that everyone should drive a wooden car. This project is a scholastic endeavour in which are simply trying to explore materials, learn, teach, share ideas, and stimulate creativity. This section details who we are and what we are doing. We hope you enjoy checking out what we are working on.

2010 SMS 460 MUSTANG

The SMS 460 Mustang's striking design separates it from any other vehicle in the market. Chief Creative Officer of SMS, Phil Frank notes, "Steve Saleen's new SMS 460 Mustang is a dramatic, timeless and iconic visual statement that confidently leads the pack, continuing the evolution of the image of the Steve Saleen brand." The SMS 460 Mustang is in final tooling and prototype testing stages and the market launch is planned for later this year.

The SMS 460 Mustang will offer a 4.6 liter V8 engine featuring 470 hp and 427 ft-lb of torque, while the even more powerful SMS 460X Mustang engine with all new internals and extensive headwork pumps out 655 hp and 600 ft-lb from the enlarged 5.0 liter V8. Both use the new (patent pending) SMS 296 Supercharger for their incredible horsepower and torque gains. Transmission options are a 5-speed automatic or 5-speed manual on the 460 or a 6-speed SMST manual on the top of the line 460X. Performance for both cars is striking.

The SMS 460 Mustang accelerates from 0 to 60 in under 4.5 seconds, while the 460X manages the same in closer to 4. In addition to engine output, handling, road holding and braking improvements, the 2010 SMS 460 Mustangs will feature Steve's signature Watt's linkage suspension with all-new geometry. New SMS 15" six piston front and 13" four piston rear brakes deliver impressive stopping power to match the jaw-dropping acceleration. The SMS 460X Mustang will also feature the unique (patent-pending) Steve Saleen Red Butterfly Induction System. The interior with all-new Alcantara and leather SMS performance seats features the patented Signature Series chevron stripes. Multiple seat chevron and SMS unique exterior colors are available through the SMS Tailor Made options.

2009 GEIGERCARS HUMMER H2 LATTE MACCIATTO

One major enthusiasm of the Bavarian is and remains customizing, and once again Karl Geiger has achieved a masterpiece with this Hummer H2 conversion. The paintwork answers to the name "Latte Macciatto" and is a mix of a noble brown as the base color with many contrast elements in crème-beige. The combination of wheels and tires is exclusive, with 315/30R30 tires on gigantic 30-inch chrome wheels. Behind the almost full wheel rims are Brembo brakes with 380 X 34 mm riveted brake discs and 4-piston calipers at the front, and 380 X 32 mm discs with 2-piston calipers at the back. The chassis receives additional stabilizers, rear axle struts and adjustable sports shock absorbers, including lowering, which is certainly a good idea in view of the extremely high performance of the Geiger Hummer H2.

As is traditional, Geiger has fitted the Hummer motor with a supercharger, which increases the power to a full 547 PS at 5900 rpm and the maximum torque to a brutal 763 Nm at 4500 rpm. So the US giant covers the classical sprint from 0 to 100 kmh in slightly less than 7 seconds, and the forward urge is only gently held back by the air resistance at 228 kmh. In order that the outside world notices the H2 not only visually but also aurally, a special in-house stainless steel sport exhaust system gives out a real thunder.

The inside is pure luxury, because Karl Geiger lines every square centimeter with the finest leather in brown and crème beige. Dashboard, steering wheel, central console and door panels, all glisten in the same color combination as the outside paintwork, which makes the "Latte Macciatto" Hummer absolutely unique. Also remarkable is the fact that Geiger has refinished altogether 400 small parts in the interior with piano lacquer. The A, B and C columns and the underside of the roof have also been lined with finely structured Alcantara. A pioneer sound system including SatNav supplies the passengers with perfect sound and all important information, while a roof-mounted monitor in the back is ideally suited for playing DVDs.

2008 DECO RIDES DECO LINER & SCOOT

The DECO LINER 1939 Lincoln Sedan Delivery took three years to build and is the realization of a dream owner Terry Cook of Long Valley, NJ has had since 1999. The unique front-wheel drive chassis was designed by Gary Brown, who owns the firm that did the majority of the construction of the car. Starting with a new DECO RIDES fiberglass Zephyr sedan delivery body, the car and bike was finished for the 2008 summer season in a six month marathon thrash by Gary and Dylan Brown and Robert Winningham of BROWN'S METAL MODS in Indianapolis.

Cook conceived the concept of tucking a '92 Harley Sportster inside the delivery after designing the car's body shape with artist Frank Nicholas of Illinois. It required the use of a front-wheel drive platform to eliminate the rear differential so a minimum height rear floor could be attained to house a 39.5 inch tall motorcycle. Because a low cross member was required for a 9-foot long ramp holding a lowered bike to fit inside, for rear suspension Gary chose a Fat Man Fabrications front suspension setup with Air Ride Technologies air bags. Short tie rods attached to the frame prevent the spindles from steering in the rear. A nine foot long aluminum U-channel ramp, powered by an electric motor that turns an equally long threaded screw, moves in and out of the back of the car at the touch of a switch. The bike is rolled onto the ramp, strapped in position, and the ramp is electrically moved into the car.

Several FWD platforms were considered including GM's Eldorado-Toronado-Riviera and Lincoln's 1996-'98 four door Continental. Brown selected the mid 90's Chevy S-10/Blazer or GMC Jimmy/S-15 four-wheel drive, partially because they are plentiful and inexpensive in wrecking yards. The rear half of the S-10 frame, the driveshaft and the 4WD rear was eliminated, the rear of the transfer case sealed off, and the V-6 replaced with a 350 Chevy small block V-8 that bolted right up to the Chevy 700R4 automatic transmission. Cook feels this car presents two new concepts to the rodding world. He insists it is not about the bike, it is about the concept of the bike in the car. The second is the decorative metal trim. Actually this is not a new concept as mid-30's Paris coach built cars

Pro panelbeater Tommy Caruso of CONTOUR METALSHAPING in Plainfield, NJ hammered the majority of the steel that decorates the exterior of the delivery. Cook and Caruso worked together to lay out the designs in masking tape. It was then transferred to chipboard patterns and then to sheets of 19 gauge .040 cold rolled steel. Tommy hand-shaped the contour of each piece. Despite the trim bridging the botttom of the front fender wheel well openings, the tires are able to steer lock to lock.

Another metal man involved in the project was Denny Jamison of AUTOMOTIVE HAMMER ART in Gasoline Alley in Indianapolis. After Juan "Motyme" Rice of Chicago started the '92 Harley Sportster construction, Denny hand-shaped both the streamlined aluminum body for DECO SCOOT as well as the metal trim for the bike and the back door of the delivery. Chrome plating for the trim was done by The FINISHING TOUCH of Chicago. Prior to this project, Cook never realized how much work and artistic talent is involved in achieving a really top quality chrome finish. As is the case with a great paint job, surface preparation is the key to top quality plating. Juan Rice also fabricated the three matching tail light lenses for the car and bike by hand from 2 x 2 x 12 pieces of clear Lucite.

Roberto Giolito, creator of the Fiat 500, had this to say about the Mattel-Fiat partnership scheme: All-American Ms Barbie already has a number of transport solutions available, like thundering GTs and motor homes with endless accessories. So if shes spotted a 500 and wants one as a gift for this landmark birthday, its a signal typical of modern times that theres a renewed need for dreaming the simple things in life, which give so much, allow us to lighten up, thrill whos born beautiful or just feels beautiful, but doesnt have to prove anything. After all, Barbie already has everything. Sleek Barbie is a looker, smart enough to listen to everyone, a universal ambassador opting for a car that never divides but frees everyone from having to declare their social status. The new 2009 version celebrates her birthday with a model that offers a better view of the sun and the stars, all the better for continuing to dream, especially daydreams.

RUST-OLEUM UNIVERSAL SPRAY PAINT

Forget trying to figure out which paint to use for your next project - just pick up a can of Rust-Oleum Universal Spray Paint ($10) and go. The first and only allsurface spray paint, Universal features a new paint formula that adheres to any interior or exterior surface, including wood, metal, plastic, concrete and more, expands and contracts with changing temperatures to reduce cracking and chipping, offer's the company's legendary corrosion resistance and rust preventive protection, and provides superior one-coat coverage, so you can tag buildings finish your project with less paint and in less time.

DENALI 5-PIECE OUTDOOR UTILITY AND EMERGENCY KIT

Pack everything you need in a pinch into one small bag with the Denali 5-Piece Outdoor Utility and Emergency Kit ($42). It includes a shovel, hatchet, flashlight, pruning saw, and multipurpose tool that has a pair of wire-cutting pliers and 10 different foldaway blades. All that packs into a zippered carrying case that measures about 3 by 12 by 13 inches, making certain you'll have the tools you need should you end up stranded out on the trail.

Be prepared no matter what the circumstances with the Lifeline Ultralight Survival Kit ($15). Weighing in at only 7.5 oz. and only taking up as much space as a stack of postcards, this handy all-in one kit includes waterproof matches, an 80" x 50" emergency blanket, 50 ft. of fishing line with four hooks and sinker weights, a surgical blade, five wound closure strips, a map compass, emergency whistle, three feet of duct tape, and more, all in an included waterproof carrying case.

CRAFTSMAN AXS TOOL CHEST

Store your tools in style with the Craftsman AXS 13-Drawer 27-Inch Combo, available in Black Pearl ($1,200), Midnight Blue ($1,200), Red ($1,050), and Titanium Metallic ($1,000). The AXS combo consists of a 6-Drawer Chest and a 7-Drawer Roll-Away, and features two slide-out LED lights, Master Lock One-Key learning lock system, a heavy-duty, slide-out worksurface, multi-function message-center with LED, and a 6-outlet 120-volt power strip.

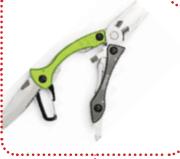

MAINE GUIDE DUCT TAPE

We all know how handy duct tape is, but even we grow tired of its old grey look. Maine Guide Duct Tape ($13/2-pack) solves this problem by adding a stately green or red plaid pattern to the legendary fix-all, and while it's supposed to be for "sportsmen," we think it'll work just as well for fashion-conscious homeowner handymen.

GERBER CRUCIAL

A good multitool is a great thing to have around, but it'd be nice if they looked a little better. The Gerber Crucial ($45) takes care of this problem with a handsome grey and green color scheme, but still offers plenty of utility, featuring v-cut wire cutters, philips and flat head screwdrivers, a blunt tip for plying and scraping, a liner lock, bottle opener, carabiner clip, thumb stud, and a half-serrated, half-fine ed ge knife.

GERBER ARTIFACT POCKET KEYCHAIN TOOL

The Gerber=2 OArtifact Pocket Keychain Tool ($10) packs in quite a punch into such a little package. Made of stainless steel with a titanium nitride coating, the Artifact features an exchangable/removable #11 hobby blade, bottle opener, cross driver, small and medium flat drivers, wire stripper, pry bar/paint can opener, and lanyard/keychain attachment hole.

PIAGGIO MP3 HYBRID

he Piaggio Group presents the MP3 Hybrid, the world's first hybrid scooter, a vehicle destined to revolutionise urban mobility. This is not just a "scooter with two powerplants", but a highly advanced vehicle supplements a low environmental impact conventional internal combustion engine with a zero emissions electric motor, summing the advantages of the two units.

Adopting uniquely exclusive technology - this is the first vehicle in the entire automotive sector using lithium ion batteries, which can also be charged from the mains - Piaggio MP3 Hybrid reduces both fuel consumption and carbon dioxide emissions by more than 50%, complementing the already enviable attributes in terms of technology, safety and rider enjoyment that make the Piaggio MP3 - the revolutionary three-wheeled scooter - such a hit

As well as giving the scooter its impressive performance, while it runs, the internal combustion engine also recharges the batteries used to power the electric heart of the vehicle. However, the symbiotic relationship between the two powerplants of the Piaggio MP3 Hybrid does not end here: whenever the rider calls for particularly brisk acceleration, such as when setting off from a standing start, for example, the electric motor kicks in, supplementing the petrol unit to provide up to an 85% boost in performance, offering more immediate and responsive pickup during the first few metres - which is precisely where it is most needed in city use.

MP3 Hybrid is more than just another hybrid system: where other scooters have to stop, Piaggio MP3 Hybrid keeps on going swiftly and quietly, as it can also run on electric power alone. Simply press the button on the handlebar to disengage the petrol engine and turn MP3 Hybrid into a totally ecological scooter, a zero emissions vehicle that can circulate freely in areas restricted to internal combustion engines. The electric motor also offers the Piaggio MP3 Hybrid an ultra-quiet reverse mode, which is handy for parking and for manoeuvring out of tight spaces.

So much technology hidden out of sight. Visually Piaggio MP3 Hybrid is identical to the conventional engined version it is based on: and offers the same safety features and rider enjoyment that make the Piaggio MP3 family such a hit.

Piaggio MP3 Hybrid is the first vehicle in the world to combine plug-in charging from the mains with lithium ion batteries which – with their superior energy density and reliability – offering higher performance, greater lightness and increased longevity than the technologies currently in use. The battery pack, with integrated control electronics, is hidden away in the compartment under the saddle, which still has enough room to accommodate a helmet and other objects. An indicator integrated into the dashboard lets the rider keep a constant eye on the battery charge level. The vehicle is charged easily from the mains with a normal electrical cable, plugged into the relative socket with the panel switched off. The full charge cycle takes approximately three hours , although 85% charge is achieved in just two hours.

DESIRESCOPES

CAPRICORN: DECEMBER 22- JAN 19

Fortunate experiences and displays of generosity are in abundance. General good fortune and successful financial gains are obtained through expanding your creative or career goals. Your personal needs and caretaking abilities are in tune with your loved ones, and great strides can be made in fulfilling family needs. This is a time when legal affairs should prove to be beneficial, and there is a possibility of an inheritance or of receiving much needed financial assistance at this time. The sharing of household responsibilities and nurturing needs are cooperative and easily handled. Health matters may improve under this astrological influence. Benefits may also come through your involvement with children, or a desire to expand your family unit could be felt at this time.

AQUARIUS: JAN 20- FEB 18

This is a very promising time for mental, creative, educational, and spiritual pursuits. Your studies and personal aspirations are likely to lead you to new personal growth, influential contacts, and wider horizons. You will greatly benefit from opportunities to travel, higher learning, or legal and professional matters. If you have a skill or talent in a particular area, this would be a good time to improve or enhance this ability. Intuitive flashes or hunches may reveal insightful ideas or useful ways to plan and strategize new methods or creative enterprises. Networking with people who share your intellectual and creative interests will also work out to your benefit now.

PISCES: FEBRUARY 19- MARCH 20

This is an upbeat, refreshing time period. Progressive changes in your life and relationships make this an enjoyable, exciting time. The changes are not likely to be extraordinary in scope, but a definite enlivening of your relationship to others and the world in general is evident. You meet people who are interesting and really alive. You are likely to visit places that inspire you, and you feel more excited about your daily life and the things you do. Most obvious is the change in relationships to others. Drab and dull interactions seem to evaporate as you find exciting ideas and interests to share. This is an excellent time to investigate new clubs, groups, or individuals that you previously have not taken the time to become familiar with. Creative hobbies or interests that you have forgotten about or never seriously considered before may also come into view now. Take advantage of this time period to make your life more interesting and stimulating.

ARIES: MARCH 21-APRIL 20

You are in a swinging mood and you seek fun and excitement. If your spouse or partner is not responsive to your urges, you will see him/her as boring, stuck-in-the-mud, and too serious. You are so interested in having a good time that you often overlook little chores and obligations, and you find it hard to understand why someone else should hold up the party because of some insignificant chore. Why mow the lawn on Saturday morning when you can go to the beach? Why eat at home when you can eat out? Why sit and watch TV when you can plan an exciting party? Why work when you can use vacation time to visit a romantic, exciting place? It seems very clear to you that now is the time to really enjoy a good time, and hopefully your spouse or partner feels the same way.

TAURUS: APRIL 21-MAY 20

This time may be spent trying to iron out the wrinkles in a close love relationship or marriage. Your spouse or partner may be a source of disappointment when their behavior falls short of your expectations. Although you may think you are being obvious about your wants and needs, your mate may not have a true understanding or be able to read your intentions. It is likely you will feel some resentment toward your partner if you feel you are not being appreciated and respected. Even if you do not see eye to eye with your mate, reflecting on the more positive qualities of the relationship will help smooth over minor difficulties.

GEMINI: MAY 21-JUNE 21

Opportunities arise for you to turn your creative imagination and knowledge into tangible achievements. This would be a good time to draw, paint, write or design plans, as other people are inspired by your ideas and sensitivity. You have distinct impressions which prove remarkably accurate. Even if you feel a bit introspective or reclusive now, your instinct will direct you to bring form to your inherent talents. You also have much to offer to people who are confined or hospitalized now in the form of guidance and compassion.

CANCER: JUNE 22- JULY 22

You may find yourself at an impasse regarding a concern at work. Although a minor setback or delay is possible, you may do best now by maintaining a low profile. Conflicts of interest may arise between you and a superior or co-worker, leaving you feeling you do not get the respect or approval you seek. Your own leadership qualities may not be noticed or appreciated in ways that support your professional interests. Try not to assess your self-worth only on the basis of what you can accomplish at work now. Hold on to your self-confidence and take this time as an opportunity to gain further understanding of your vocational purposes and directions.

LEO: JULY 23- AUGUST 23

Relationships with others are harmonious and stable now. Someone older than yourself, more experienced, or in a position of authority is likely to assist you now in the things that are important to you. Government agencies and businesses also respond positively to issues and ideas that concern you. This is a good time for any communications with authorities or persons of social prominence. You are feeling confident and the serious-mindedness and maturity of your communications is appreciated by others. You have a greater rapport with others now, especially on issues that deeply concern you. Others seem less superficial and irresponsible to you, and you feel greater respect for them. Actually, others haven't changed as much as it would appear; you are better able to communicate with others and see the more mature side of their personalities.

VIRGO: AUGUST 23-SEPTEMBER 23

This is not a favorable period for handling legal affairs or transactions with professionals and persons in authority. There will be complications and entanglements requiring you to apply sound judgment and rational thinking in managing these affairs. Others may not be straightforward and honest in your associations with them. For example, you may be overworked at your job, because your boss or superior has higher than usual expectations of your abilities. You take on the additional pressures without the assurance of a promotion or higher position in the organization and therefore you are in a dilemma over whether or not you are being exploited or manipulated. You must use this period to tap into your own inner guidance and wisdom to steer you toward success.

LIBRA: SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

Try to avoid stirring up controversy when stating your views and opinions now. You may be eager to put your ideas and thoughts into operation, but lack cooperation on several fronts. Finding other people who support your position may seem impossible now. It may be best to let someone else take the lead now, even if you are not willing to go along with their plans. Your sense of pride can be wounded if you allow others to get the best of you. You are better off waiting for a more opportune period to advance your personal and professional interests.

SCORPIO: OCTOBER 23- NOVEMBER 21

Bonds of affection strengthen in your romantic or marital partnership. The relationship with your mate is mutually supportive and encourages you both to see each other as unique and special individuals. You share mutual trust, devotion and admiration as a couple and are secure in the understanding that your partner will be at your side through thick and thin. There is a likelihood that a deeper commitment will take place in your relationship. Or if you are without a "significant other", a brand new attraction may come into your life, and you might form a alliance based on complementary personalities and mutual interests.

SAGITTARIUS: NOVEMBER 23 - DEC 21

Some adjustments in the way you express yourself and treat others are required now. Others may complain that you are not sincere with them, or that you are too domineering or passive or unfair in some respect. You may also find yourself feeling the need to approach others about the way they express themselves and treat others. This is the time to evaluate whether you are guilty of any hypocrisies, insincerities, or laxness in expressing the ideals and beliefs that are important to you. You may find yourself feeling disappointed in others or losing confidence in yourself but do not allow yourself to wallow in self-pity and negative feelings. Instead, try to see clearly where changes are needed and make them. You can find ways to be more sympathetic, understanding, and honest now and break old habits of indifference and negligence to others.
