Pharmacy introduces some new features to our journal. We are now publishing a new type of paper designated as

"Communications". Such papers have a limit of five pages.

It is hoped that this type of paper will provide a mechanism of more rapid publication than can be achieved for a longer paper.

Research papers for which, in theory at least, there is no limit for length, will continue to be the vehicle for longer reports. Unfortunately the number of papers which we are now receiving has resulted in a greater proportion being rejected and, in many cases, a longer wait between acceptance and publication.

Review articles have proved to be well-appreciated by our readership. Those interested in submitting a review are strongly advised to discuss the project with the Editor before starting work on the manuscript.

Book Reviews will continue to be published on books which we believe are likely to be of interest to our readers.
