New Drug Approval Process: Second Edition, revised and expanded

Edited by Richard A. Guarino

Published by: Marcel Dekker, Inc. 1993

496 pages, hard cover, $150 or $65 for five or more copies for classroom use only

The first edition of this book was well received and the object of favorable review. It has been used as a reference text by many scientists and regulators in the pharmaceutical industry. This second edition, which contains consideration on additional topics such as biotechnology continues the tradition established by its predecessor. The book is well-organized and generally clearly-written, although different chapters in this multi-author book do have different styles and levels of treatment.

This book has some fascinating data which should be of value to anyone interested in the preparation or evaluation of NDA's. It is likely to prove a great asset to the pharmaceutical industry.
