CME Accreditation

The 22nd EORTC–NCI–AACR Symposium on “Molecular Targets and Cancer Therapeutics” has been accredited by ACOE.

What does it mean for you?

The ACOE accreditation label provides delegates with a guarantee of a high quality and unbiased educational activity. ACOE accredited events are awarded an agreed number of CME credit points (1 CME credit per educational hour), with a maximum of 6 credits per day.

The 22nd EORTC–NCI–AACR Symposium on “Molecular Targets and Cancer Therapeutics” Scientific Programme has been designated a maximum of 18 hours of European CME credits (ECMEC’s). The Conference operates an honour system implying that each medical specialist is expected to claim only those hours of credit that he/she actually spent at the Conference (with a maximum of 6 credits per day, 3 for a half day).

ACOE works in conjunction with the European Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (EACCME) operating under the umbrella of the European Union of Medical Specialists (UEMS). EACCME acts as a clearinghouse, facilitating the accreditation endorsement by the national CME regulatory bodies.

CME credits gained through participation at the 22nd EORTC–NCI–AACR are recognised by most of the national CME authorities in Europe, which have agreed to cooperate in this European system.

Through a mutual agreement between the UEMS and the American Medical Association (AMA), the European CME credits are also recognised towards the Physician’s Recognition Award (PRA). To convert European CME credits to AMA PRA Category 1 credits please contact AMA at: www.ama-assn.org.
