

Announcement

The Editorial Office of the EJC has moved!

© Michael Hurley

The Editorial office of the European Journal of Cancer has recently been relocated to The Royal College of Surgeons of England, situated in the heart of London, with the Imperial Cancer Research Fund as neighbours. The origins of the College can be traced back to 1540 and Henry VIII, and it received its first Royal Charter in 1800 from King George III. Today, the College is internationally recognised as one of the world's leading authorities in the field of surgery. Its primary interests are to ensure the highest standard of surgical care for patients, and the best training for surgeons, with many of its Research Fellows involved in cancer research. Its current President is Sir Rodney Sweetnam KVC O CBE. Our previous Editor-in-Chief, Professor Sir Michael Peckham, has recently been made an Honorary Fellow at The Royal College of Surgeons.

For anyone wishing to submit a manuscript to the EJC, please address all correspondence to our new address:

European Journal of Cancer
Royal College of Surgeons
35-43 Lincoln's Inn Fields
London WC2A 3PN
U.K.

Tel: (+44) 171 430 0100
Fax: (+44) 171 430 0072

Professor Hans-Jörg Senn (Editor-in-Chief)
Dr Delphine Purves (Scientific Editor)