Training Fellowships

The Education Committee of ESSO is pleased to offer training fellowships to support trainees in surgical oncology. The aim of these fellowships is to allow young surgeons to stay in another specialist centre to either expand their experience or learn new techniques. These fellowships are competitive and applicants require support not only from their own Head of department but also from the Head of department of the centre which they wish to visit.

- Each year, up to four European fellowships of 2.500 euros each are proposed for short periods of training i.e. 2-3 weeks.
- Each year, one major international training fellowship of 10.000 euros is proposed to support a three-month period in one or more specialist centres to develop clinical or research experience in surgical oncology.
