PUBLISHER'S MESSAGE

FLORIDA'S LUXURY LIVING COAST TO COAST

IN NEARLY 30 YEARS, ONE thing has remained constant ... good design is always in style. Over the years, we have showcased the outstanding talents of Florida's design industry. In this issue of Florida Design, no two homes look alike and no two design statements repeat. We take pride in offering a glimpse of different eye-catching styles around the state.

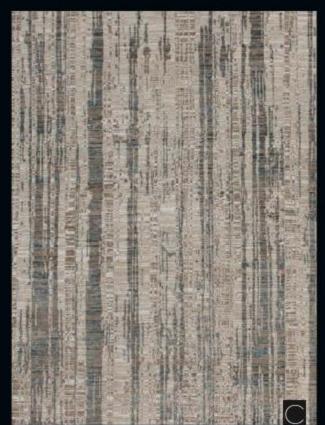

Why is this important? When readers want to buy Florida home and design-related products, our title qualifies as having a sincere interest throughout the state. In turn, our content inspires affluent readers and high-end buyers, both nationally and internationally, to purchase locally.

We hope you enjoy this issue as we invite readers to take a look at some of Florida's most spectacular homes — as well as the best sources for furnishing your home.

To create truly dynamic interiors, I'm constantly on the hunt for both the latest in innovative design from talented, emerging furniture and textiles designers as well as tried and true artisans who have been perfecting their craft for years. While the options available to the interior design trade not only far exceed what's available in the retail market, there's also an art to expertly blending these finds to achieve a layered and lived in look that perfectly exemplifies my clients' personalities. When you work with an interior designer, you benefit not only from their trade resources but from their years of experience creating unique designs.

With over 42 years of experience serving an international market, our talents in various fields of design (residential, high-rise properties, & yachts), have resulted in hundreds of awards and acclaimed publications. As a small company handing big jobs, our clients enjoy the interiors they desire and are rewarded by working with a firm that is strong in detail and great customer service.

approach when it comes to designing his clients' homes. Close attention to the client's lifestyle and esthetic style is crucial. Equally paramount, the home or environment Brown creates must be comfortable, thus close attention is always paid to fabrics and and other soft goods details. Brown says, "After all, these are the most personal tools when creating a room. They emphasize comfort, and define how we want to to live." Veranda, Architectual Digest, and In Style are just a few of the national publications that have featured Brown's work.

My number one goal in working with clients is to create a comfortable home reflective of their unique and personal style. The flood of online sources has enabled far reaching access to clients, which can be a double edged sword. Clients can find just about anything but don't always know how to put it together or achieve a unique and personal look. Knock offs are everywhere and quality cannot be guaranteed. Our extensive knowledge of local and international sources equips us to discern exceptional quality and combine a broad variety of products in fresh and unexpected ways.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

INSIDE THIS SPRING ISSUE of Florida Design we explore a number of seasonal getaways and sprawling estates that assume the unique characteristics of their natural locales through exotic woods, fabrics and furnishings, and organic palettes inspired by Mother Nature.

The Gulf Coast of Florida sets the scene for a 10,300-square-foot Florida Modern home in Naples. Interior designer Tara Bates along with her husband developer James Bates, joined forces with architect Gerald Yurk to create one couple's contemporary home that is about convenience, love of art and a deep affection for nature.

When it came time for the renowned builder Rial Jones to downsize, he turned to the team at Marc-Michaels Interior Design to help style his own smaller 5,500-square-foot home in an upscale enclave of Windermere known for its winding streams, tropically landscaped ponds and mature vegetation. He chose a contemporary design with an open floor plan, and bigger windows and doors to bring the outside in.

Just down the Florida coastline, interior designer Carmen Alcaraz Gomes styled her own exquisite 4,400-square-foot condominium in one of the two iconic twisted towers of Grove at Grand Bay in Coconut Grove with a nod toward nature. From the entry that excites with a vertical moss garden to walls of glass that appear to turn while capturing panoramic views of Biscayne Bay and the Atlantic Ocean, this relaxing retreat does not disappoint.

As we say goodbye to the winter months and once again welcome the coming spring and summer seasons, we invite you to revel in the warmth of the tropics as you catch a glimpse inside these beautiful homes.

At Rugs by Zhaleh, we conceive of rugs as fine works of art. They should be as stunning to behold as the art on your walls – and just as integral to your home's design. We think of our showroom as an art gallery that exhibits the works of skilled and imaginative artisans.

Avant Blue

According to Julie Emami, the owner of Rugs by Zhaleh, a hand woven rug should be "a breathtakingly beautiful and modern masterpiece that complements the home's unique personality."

Annie Santulli 116 Playa Rienta Way | Palm Beach Gardens, FL 33418 561.630.8976 | www.anniesantullidesigns.com

FOR MORE THAN 20 YEARS, ANNIE SANTULLI HAS routinely exceeded client expectations. But nothing else about her extraordinary work is routine. Her creative process elegantly blends form and function with insight and whimsy, into an artistic palette. Then she uses that to create the client's unique signature style. No two designs in her award-winning portfolio are alike – because no two clients are alike.

"I am inspired by each of my client's individuality," Santulli explains. "It's not about my style, it's about their dreams. My clients hire me because they trust my opinion, integrity, expertise, and talent. They're reassured, knowing that the entire project will be a wonderfully exciting experience." As the go-to luxury designer in Southeast Florida and Hamptons, Santulli is in high demand. But once she accepts a project, she lives and breathes the work 24/7.

Anyone who enters an interior Santulli has influenced with her magic can immediately feel how it resonates with intention. That's because Santulli identifies with every detail with as much care, sensitivity, attention, and joy as her clients do. Designing gorgeous lifestyle environments is not just Santulli's profession – it's her personal passion and purpose.

DAYORIS DOORS

TODAY'S DECOR CALLS FOR SMOOTH CLEAN LINES WITH MINIMAL visual detail. The research and development team at DAYORIS DOORS pride themselves with being innovators of modern door design. Once again, DAYORIS has pushed the limits of available materials and technology. They have created a new method of framing that allows for seamless installation of frameless doors that are both strong enough to withstand the daily functioning of an interior door, yet thin enough to disappear completely after they are skillfully installed. The new DAYORIS FILO MURO line allows the door to lie flush with the adjacent wall, and is available in both Flush In-Swing and Flush Out-Swing models. They are installed with the slimmest aluminum profile on the market today. The doors are fitted with micro concealed hinges and an Italian magnetic mortise system that allows even the doors edge to maintain a uniform profile, unobstructed by a traditional latching system.

A Two-Year Project Culminates In A Sleek And Livable One-Story Contemporary Home Built To Remain One With Nature

FROM THE OUTSIDE, THE SOARING RESIDENCE IN EXCLUSIVE

Aqualane Shores, near downtown Naples, Fla., could be a contemporary two or three-story head-turner. In a neighborhood of traditional structures, only one or two have embraced the geometry of white rectangles. But the balanced scale and proportioned symmetry have allowed it to tastefully bring the future to bear.

And inside, it is indeed stunning. Arranged on one convenient level, its 10,300 square feet of under-roof living is designed for someone who will stay a long time or someone whose access to water is paramount. Interior designer Tara Bates and her husband, developer James Bates, helped their client from the razing of an existing house to the completion of this Florida-modern residence two years later. Personalized touches like an option to install an automotive lift in a bay of its three-car garage, and innovative construction which extends the back deck out and over a spring-fed lake are but a few of the unique elements in a home that is about convenience, love of art and a deep affection for nature.

"Designing a contemporary residence with white as the predominant backdrop is not the challenge it may seem — in fact, I find minimalist projects calming," Tara says. "With spare design and decor, the details become all important. Textures and finishes stand out." The attention to balance and decorative character becomes immediately evident from the front door faced with textured Italian porcelain tiles from Oikos Synva and entry flooring of volcanic limestone by Walker Zanger that continues through to the main social spaces.

Bates divided the main living area into two conversation groupings, one focused around the fireplace, the other facing the deck and sparkling fountain that erupts from the lake beyond. With 30-foot-high ceilings edged with clearstory windows, light floods onto low-profile sofas covered in a flecked ecru weave. A teak cocktail table sets a casual tone, while "Egg Chairs" in a wool flannel add an ergonomic touch. Beyond the sofa table and brilliant blue vase, four white armchairs covered in soft Elmo leather shape another comfortable grouping.

Balance reigns in the kitchen and dining area that combine spare lines with an explosion of color. Sleek Poggenpohl cabinetry wraps the kitchen in soft gray beach-like hues, while molded island stools provide comfortable perches for kitchen helpers. "I like everything to be hidden ... no clutter," says the designer in reference to the streamlined space.

Without interrupting kitchen conversation, a glass-topped dining table and pearl-colored chairs sit mere steps away. Tara introduced an explosion of color along the gallery-like hallway overlooking the lake. The vivid lithographs from Art Gallery Modern merit more than a perfunctory glance with their abstract complexity.

LEFT: With gray striae kitchen cabinetry from Poggenpohl, clutter is hidden behind doors that additionally house a wine cooler, the refrigerator and double ovens. With ample island space, chefs can move between cook top and sinks with plenty of room for prep. The master suite, seemingly spare, is an example of efficient design. A "floor chaise" is clad in a tight houndstooth topped with soft leather-covered cushions. A streamlined bed with its Lucite support appears to float from gray wrap-around leather that morphs into delicate bedside stands. At night, for whimsy and convenience, the under parts of the bed are illuminated, emphasizing a dreamy, air-borne illusion.

Both the master and the guest suites have baths streamlined in white. With floating vanities and textured tile wall coverings from Porcelanosa, the true integrity of artisan-crafted construction is vital. Amid the suggestion of waves, the monochromatic bath becomes a sensual space when textures are carefully curated.

In the guest suite, Tara boldly introduces a brilliant, but unsigned work from Art Gallery Modern depicting a tropical island replete with sailboats and sunbathers in gaudy suits. Another suspended bed sports perky blue accent pillows from Clive Daniel Home.

RIGHT: Blue vases from West Elm add a bold pop of color atop Poggenpohl's streamlined vanity in the guest bath. A freestanding tub from Porcelanosa offers a perfect place for meditation without interference or external reference. Here, the mind and body come clean.

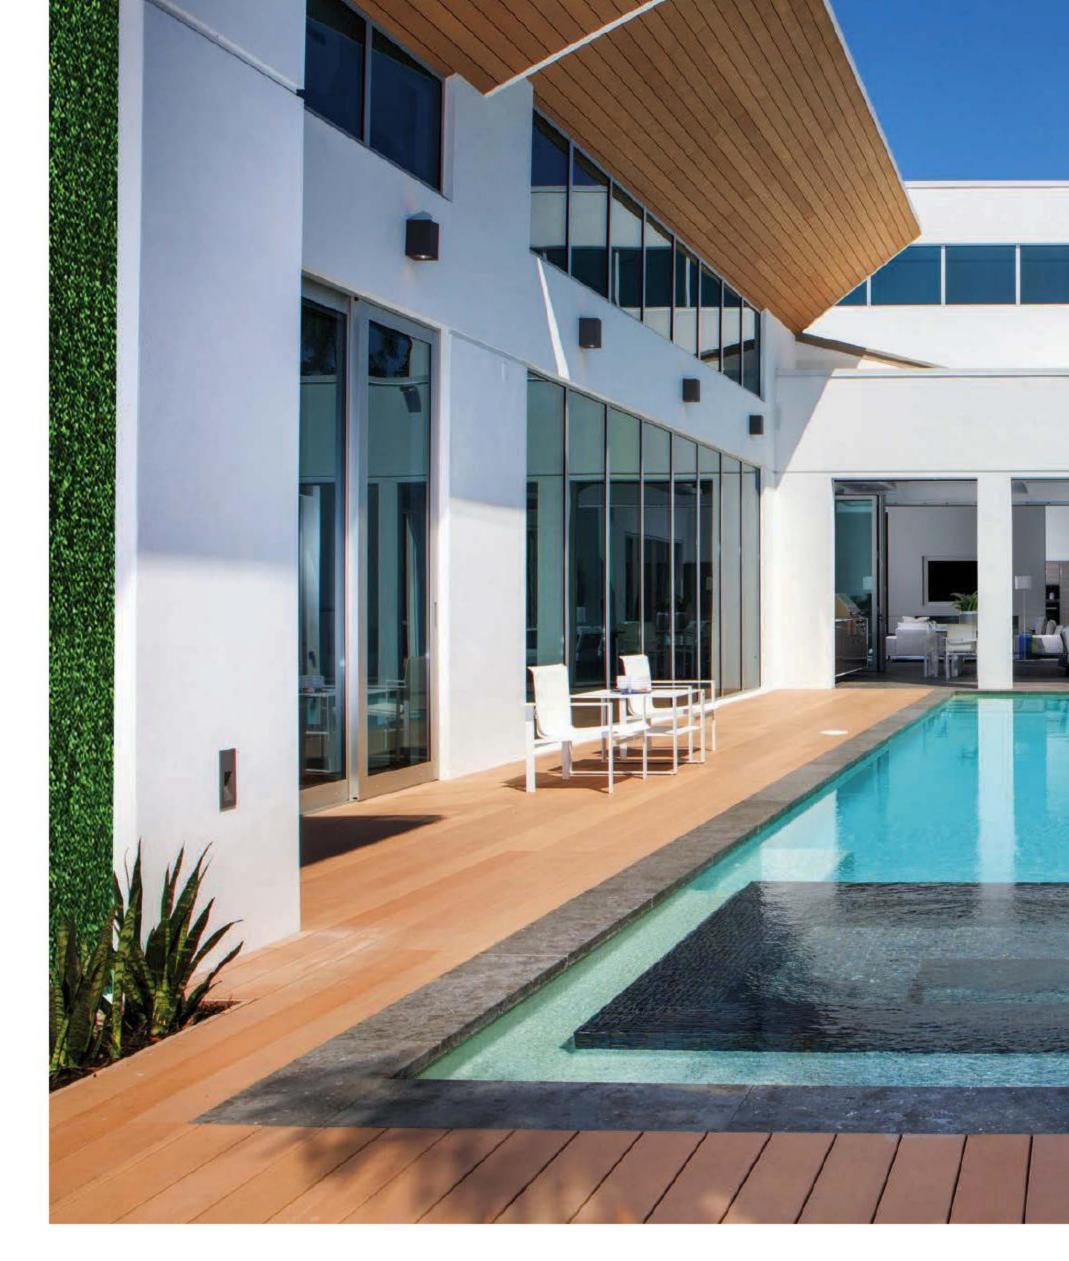

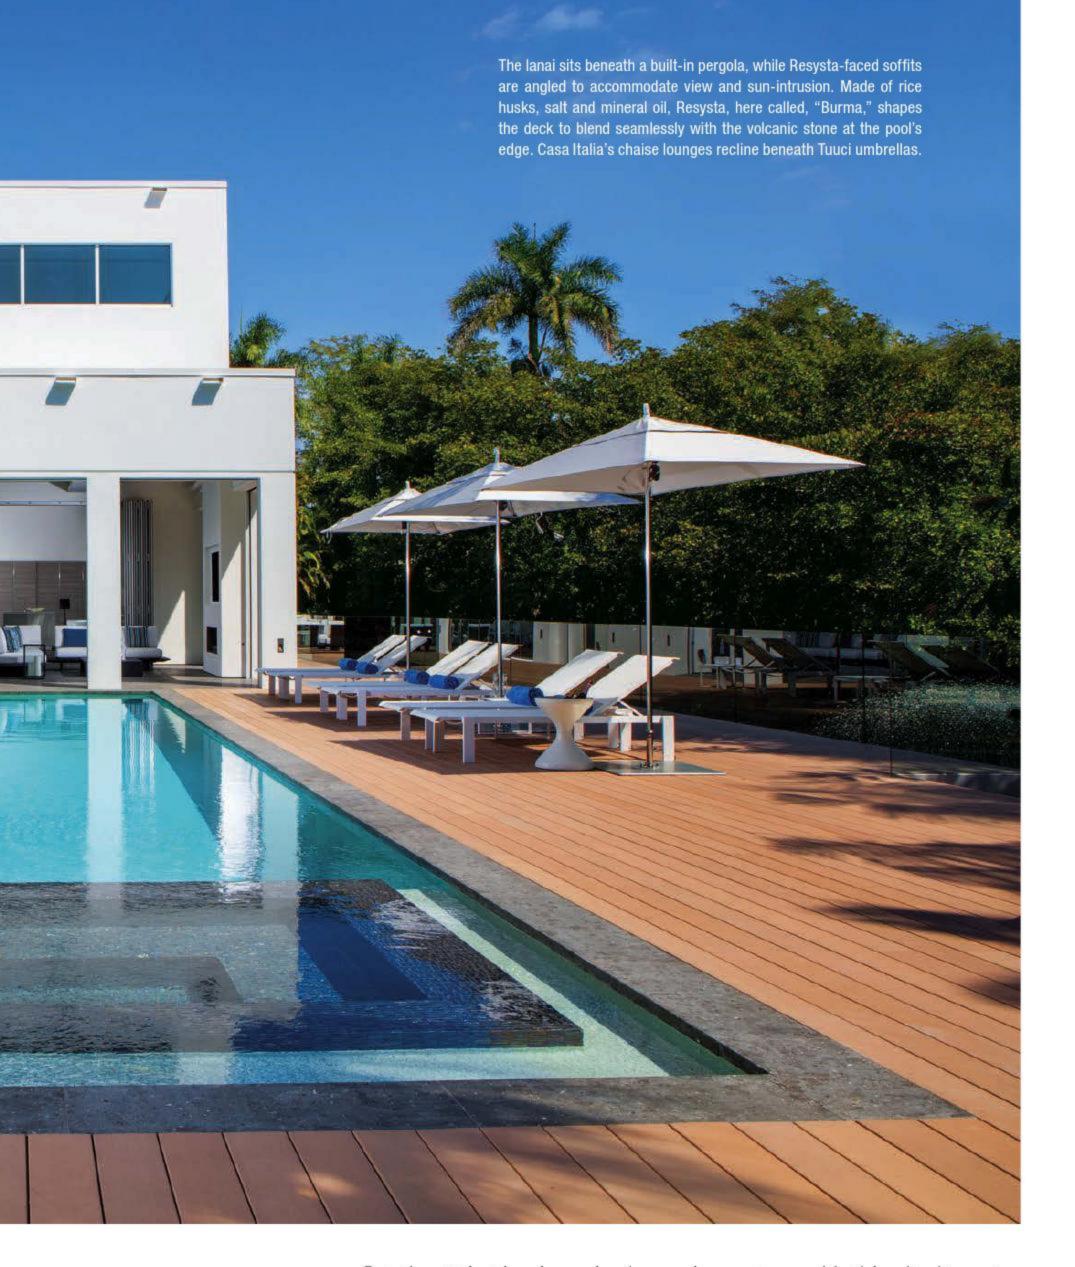

RIGHT: In the "second master" suite for guests, Tara faced a few sections of the cabinetry from Casa Italia with a gray stone that matches the volcanic color of the flooring. A black-and-white area rug from Kravet accents the float of the bed.

"Projects come down to the details," says interior designer Tara Bates, who works closely with developer-husband James Bates. "Whether it is in the actual construction or in the placement of an accessory, the quality comes out with the little things."

Outside, a 50-foot-long lap pool caches a sunken spa at one end, both lined in shimmering glass tiles. "The swimming pool is remarkable," Tara says. But the property's focus on water doesn't stop there ... it extends beyond. "The owner wanted to feel that the house was a part of the surrounding nature and the lake itself." In order to do that, 248 pilings were driven to support the cantilevered structure that extends out and over the water. A glass balustrade makes sure the view with its fountain and the bespoke arrangement of specially chosen trees is never impeded. The end result: convenience, fantasy, and elegant living.

Azhar's Contemporary Collection

Azhar's Contemporary collection has gained great popularity with many of our customers. Originating high in Himalayas, these rugs are outstanding in every aspect. Made from the world's finest wool, silky yet strong, handknotted in fine weaves into rugs of great divinity and subtlety. The colors are made from natural dyes (plants, flowers, fruits & minerals) in muted shades of silver & charcoal grey, pearl, cream, aquas, silver blue, light teals, champagne, sea foam, sunshine, olives, celadon and more...Inspired from the classic antique Egyptian Mamluks, Turkish Oushaks, Persian Farahans, Hotans and more. They are minimalist in nature, calming, subtle and almost meditative in the backdrop effect they create. These rugs work so well on hard wood floors and in todays most contemporary room settings, as well as traditional settings.

A LABOR OF LOVE

This Designer-Building Duo Creates An Inviting Urban Farmhouse In Maitland That Reflects A Functional Timelessness And Refreshing Attention To Detail

ABOVE: Interior designer Brianna M. Sheehan balanced function and aesthetics in the home's design. "Our goal was to create a unique home that reflected our creativity, but would also appeal to any future owners," she says.

INTERIOR DESIGNER BRIANNA

Sheehan and her husband, builder and developer Ryan Sheehan, have had more than a few new beginnings in recent years, and all in fairy tale order. First, a wedding; second, a new home, designed and built by the couple themselves; and third, the birth of their son.

It took six months to design and another 10 months to build this 4,000-square-foot urban farmhouse situated on a corner lot in Maitland, Fla. The surroundings are quaint and quiet, but nearby to shops, restaurants and the farmers market. The exterior of the home is a conglomerate of finishes and textures such as shake, lap siding, board and batten, and steel trowel stucco. Ryan's favorite outdoor element is the entrance tower cladded in Tennessee fieldstone.

Inside, the living area reflects Brianna's affinity for minimalism and casual elegance.

To create more of an urban as opposed to a rustic farmhouse feel in the kitchen, Brianna chose sleek white cabinetry from National Woodworks and a gleaming subway tile backsplash that deviates from tradition with more contemporary elongated lines.

To form an intimate seating area, an off-white linen-blend sofa from Bernhardt, mixes with Jessica Charles swivel armchairs and white linen-clad chairs.

Just steps away is the dining area outfitted with a long, gray concrete table top that appears smooth and cool on a warm oak base. French doors open to the nearby summer kitchen, another dining option that appeals to the couple's relaxed entertaining style.

In the pristine white kitchen, simple Palecek counter stools pull up to a large island topped with natural quartzite that brings weight to the airy room. Overhead, Kichler pendants lend an ethereal feel.

The contemporary custom stairway was designed by the couple. "We chose the glass railing because we wanted the natural light from the windows to filter down into the hallway unobstructed," Brianna says.

RIGHT: The couple had some difficulty matching the stain color of the stairway treads to the oak flooring so they decided to stain it themselves. With a spirited little boy in the house, cleverly designed storage cached under the stairway is essential.

In the tranquil master bath, Kohler's freestanding tub anchors the space along with a chrome handshower, both from Ferguson. "It's about feeling calm and being durable — something you can maintain easily as a homeowner," Brianna says.

The master bath is created with a free-standing tub and brushed porcelain tile flooring. A vanity lends architectural interest with a floating honed Carrera marble top and a farmhouse chic, cast iron trough sink.

In a word, the most dominant feature of the master bedroom is volume. A subtle yet sophisticated space furnished in a palette of white and gray, its ceilings vault to 18 feet and light abounds from high windows. A Hinkley chandelier adds just enough light and scale.

Outdoors, a cypress wood canopy forms a cover over the patio's dining table and rattan chairs. "Because of the lot size we had to get creative with the pool and backyard," Ryan says. "We knew we were going to have a small yard no matter what we did, so we focused on making the most of what we had."

The couple created a playroom for their son utilizing a space that was originally meant to be a formal dining room. "Five months after moving in we found out that I was pregnant, so we made a quick change by adding custom wood and glass doors," Brianna says. The whimsical design is fit for a little boy where the imagination can run free.

This home suits the Sheehan family perfectly. "It was an incredible experience," Ryan says. "Much of the process was very similar to what we go through when designing a home for a client, however, concerning ourselves with only what we favored made it a little more light-hearted."

TIMELESS MODERN MAGIC

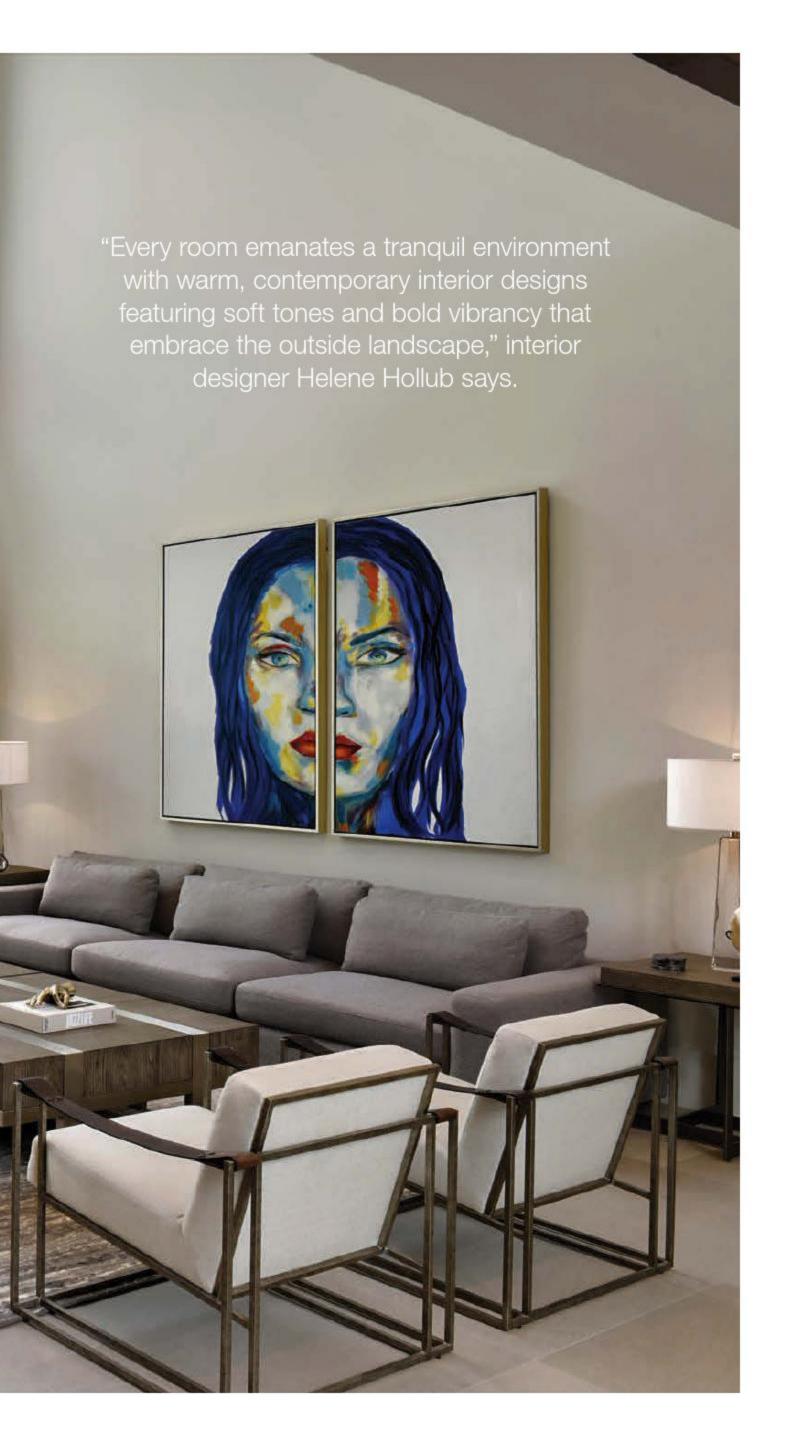

With A Mix Of Contemporary Architecture, Minimalistic Yet Inviting Spaces, Organic Tones And Zen Inspiration, This Exquisite Pinecrest Home Radiates A Unique Modern Glamour

FOR SAVVY HOMEOWNERS WITH RESIDENCES IN MIAMI, OCEAN

Reef and Beaver Creek, finding an expert builder with acute architectural vision and a dream team of designers was essential for their next exquisite house poised within this idyllic setting in Pinecrest, Fla. Drawn to Harry Hollub through his reputation in the community as an outstanding, trustworthy, and innovative boutique builder, the homeowners knew immediately that they were in the right hands.

"This couple came to us with a unique vision, and we worked to turn it into a reality," Harry says. "The goal for a home in this style — a California contemporary modern design — is to warm up the space, so we used different textures, wood, stone, relief, and moving water. Architecturally, we used flying rooflines, cantilevered beams and projected structural edging."

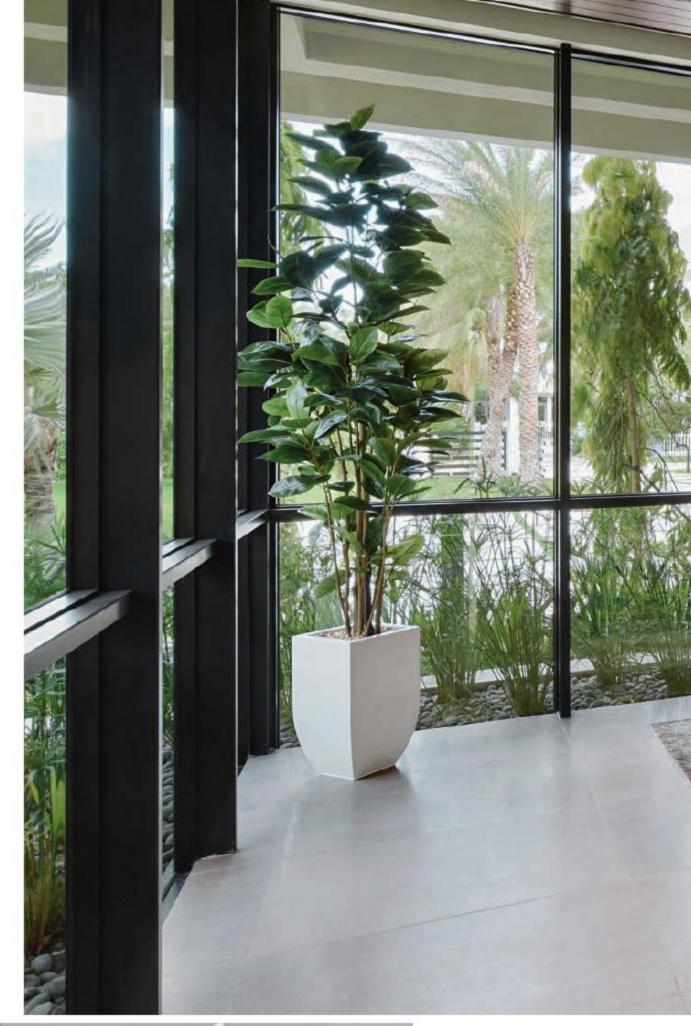

Glass is the key component in this design by architect Pedro Infante. Every room is wrapped with glass walls or windows, allowing the ultimate integration with tranquil natural surroundings. A purely original build, the house emanates a true tropical, contemporary feel in complement to the modern temperate construction. Custom water features in the front and back create a seamless flow of internal-to-external energy.

Step inside, where lead interior designer Helene Hollub along with colleague Patricia Salamin conceptualized the interior scheme with utmost respect to this carefully curated energy by using the finest textiles, warm earth tones and natural stone. "This is a modern minimalist home inspired by the breathtaking scenic garden views and vivid landscaping of the surrounding grounds," Helene says. "We wanted to achieve a timeless look with a minimalist aesthetic, contemporary design, and modern architecture, while focusing on organic elements and Zen vibes."

"The construction of this home is truly a masterpiece and something that we will take pride in for many years to come," builder Harry Hollub says.

"The team hand-picked every material in careful consideration of the company's reputation as well as the quality of craftsmanship."

BELOW: Defined by a modern-minimalistic design, the kitchen features glossy white Leicht cabinetry, built-in Miele, Sub-Zero and Wolf appliances, and a spacious custom-designed island crafted in a warm wood tone and shaped with a Taj Mahal quartzite stone countertop. Pure Edge Lighting's suspension sculptured fixture illuminates the entire space.

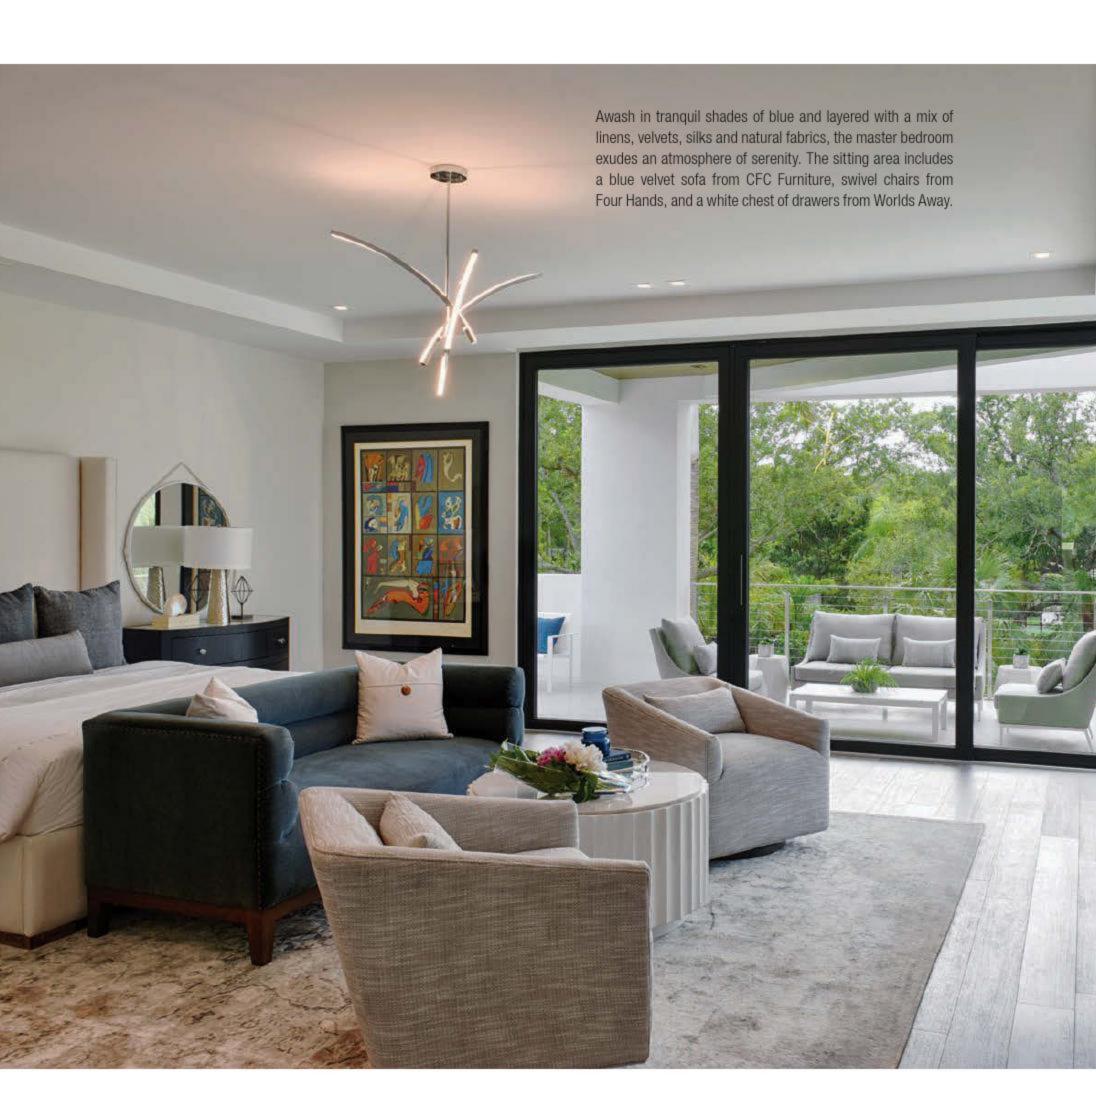

Handmade ceramic stone accents adorning the exterior add to the luxuriously organic essence that is carried throughout the house. A carefully designed pop of color in every room through bold artwork, vibrant fabrics, and intricate lighting fixtures carefully enhances the exterior views of each space. Visible from the living room, the patio exudes a green, earthy atmosphere and includes a custom-designed water feature made with sculptured stones simulating bamboo. In the living room, neutral tones and soft upholstered pieces create an inviting and livable space for family gatherings and entertaining. "We really use all the spaces, but our favorite space is the living room and bar area, where we can enjoy beautiful views of the garden, patio, pool, and landscaping," the homeowner says. "We travel often, and we always look forward to returning home to relax with family and friends."

ABOVE: Floor-to-ceiling windows in the office create a close connection to the greenery outside. A natural oak ceiling, Orient Express Furniture's wood desk with a polished chrome base, a pair of white accent chairs from Century Furniture, and a plush area rug from Jaipur Living infuse the room with a warm, organic aesthetic.

In complementary contrast, the kitchen, with a more modern-minimalist feel, was designed in pure white with wood accents on the island and custom cabinetry. "This keeps the space warm and inviting," Patricia says. "The juxtaposition of materials allows for a transition to modern-inspired, custom-designed lighting fixtures and high-tech integrated appliances."

The master bedroom uses blue tones for a continuous flow of serenity between the different levels of the home. The monochromatic lighting infuses a glow into the open, modern space. Panoramic views of the landscape and lush gardens below from the private balcony make this space a special retreat for the homeowners. Nearby, the luxurious master bath radiates a spa aesthetic with a freestanding tub, silk wall covering, and a wood-grain ceiling treatment.

"Our home is beyond compare — the views from our balcony highlight the amazing landscape and surrounding idyllic neighborhood, which is Florida living at its best," the homeowner says. "We had a vision and the Hollub Homes design team seamlessly took control and made our vision a reality. Every single room is wrapped in floor-to-ceiling glass and the home has a beautiful positive energy."

Architecturally complex to build, this project prompted Hollub to go above and beyond recommended Florida code. The house is all poured concrete, from the foundation to the roof. There are no wood structural supports or wood trusses, which proved to be a significant challenge for the engineers, given the complexity of the structure in a modern style.

"Our home is truly one-of-a-kind," the homeowner says. "The design team created a cohesive breathtaking sanctuary. The technology is top-tier and there are lots of little touches that really elevate our living experience."

SURROUNDED BY NATURE

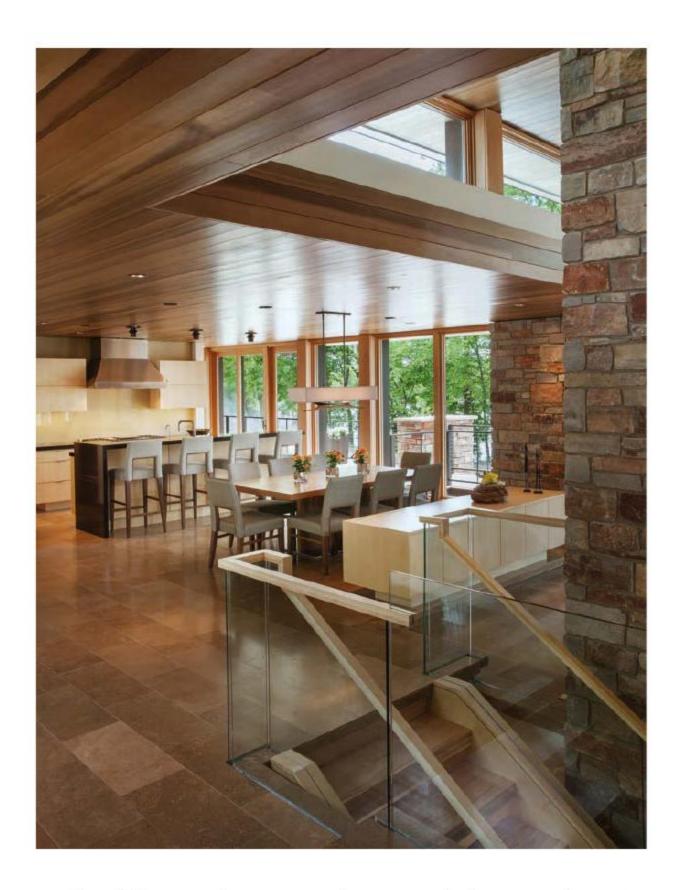

The Comfort Of Nature Has Found Its Way To A Lakefront Home Enriched With Elements That Embrace Organic Beauty

WITH A LOVE FOR ARCHITECTURE AND AN ERNEST DESIRE TO

commission just the right team to design their new residence in Buffalo Lake, Minn., homeowners Nancy and Richard Dehmer knew there was no need to look any further upon meeting architect Charles Stinson on an AIA (American Institute of Architects) tour. "We hit it off right away," Stinson says. Known for his timeless architectural style, and a distinct way of marrying the home and landscape together, Stinson worked with interior designer Kim Streeter and builder Kerry Hage to create this couple's lakefront retreat.

Beautifully situated on 12 acres of scenic wooded property, the project commenced at ground zero, resulting in a sprawling 6,000-square-foot home that edges the rocky shore of Lake Martha. While Stinson's signature prairie-style design with a strong modern influence was a success right out of the gate, the owners remained passionately involved every step of the way.

Emphasizing definition and character, the metal slat roof is expressive and the Chilton and Fon Du Lac stone columns — a tailored blend of warm tones and grays — are organic and striking. "They define the floor-to-ceiling glass walls in between," the architect says. Spanning the entire length of the home and beyond is a deck with an airplane wire railing that creates a floating effect while allowing the house to open up to nature. Inside, Stinson created a flowing space with windows lining the back and a cedar ceiling topping clerestory glass to draw in natural light. Neutral and natural durable materials fill the home, where Streeter carefully selected furnishings to let nature be the main focus.

ABOVE: A custom maple credenza lines the dining area, where an iron chandelier from Hubbardton Forge glows above the table that seats a party of eight or separates into two tables for game night. Blues dining chairs and island barstools from Abitare go hand-in-hand, while maple reappears in the open kitchen to shape Boyd's custom cabinetry topped in Cambria's natural stone from Innovative Surfaces.

"We keep the architecture simple enough so it doesn't get in the way of itself or the view," architect Charles Stinson says. "Nothing we create can compete with the beauty of nature."

RIGHT: With its own stacked-stone fireplace, a seasonal enclosed private balcony offers warmth just outside the master suite. Inside, a custom bed with its acoustical paneled headboard centers the private space, while a classic Eames lounge chair and ottoman — a "must keep" from the owners' collection — corners the space in timeless elegance.

BELOW: An organic palette continues in the master bath with a shower wall of Ann Sacks hi-lo contrasting, iridescent pencil tiles. "I love the reflective quality it displays," interior designer Kim Streeter says.

Echoing all of the natural tones found in the two-sided stone fireplace that is stacked up three stories high, the second-level great room welcomes with a comfortable hearthside social grouping in the living area. "The organic interior palette strikes harmony and balance rather than competing with outside elements," Streeter says. Textures and finishes with movement were carefully chosen to draw the eye naturally and gently through the space to the dining area, kitchen and captivating lake views beyond. "We wanted one area for living, dining and cooking, a place to get together and to stay together," Stinson says. Defining the social spaces from above, vertical clear-grain cedar planks with "zero knots" create a flawless and smooth look, while glass railings with maple handrails give way to the spacious lower level.

Maple makes its way into the master suite, where natural display shelving speaks to the overall vibe of the home. The custom bed appears to float center stage, while glass doors slide open to the private balcony beyond. A modern appeal flows into the master bath styled with cedar panels to continue the sense of serenity.

With natural materials throughout the home, rich texture play and the creative use of light, Stinson and Streeter brought this couple's dream home to life — a year-round retreat filled with the beauty of nature both inside and out.

INTERIOR DESIGN Jessica Lee and Molly Walker with Marissa Fox and Linnette Girau, Marc-Michaels Interior Design, Winter Park, FL BUILDER Rial Jones, Jones Clayton Construction, Orlando, FL ARCHITECTURE Dan DeLong, Origins Residential Design, Oviedo, FL LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE Corey Mills, Mills Design Group, Inc., Oviedo, FL TEXT Deborah S. Hartz-Seeley PHOTOGRAPHY Aaron Flores, Ocoee, FL

in the Orlando area for almost 35 years, lived in a palatial home that he built at "the height of heavy Mediterranean styling when it seemed that every house we worked on had one more layer of molding and one more wall of gold leaf." Now, with his son and daughter grown, he decided that house was too big. So, for his smaller residence in Windermere, Fla., a 5,500-square-foot home set on a quarter-acre in an upscale community known for its winding streams, tropically landscaped ponds and mature vegetation, he chose a contemporary style with an open floor plan and clean lines, including bigger windows and doors.

ABOVE: Plush upholstered furnishings such as Lazar's deep-seated sofa, Bernhardt's hair-and-hide bench and the rich faux-shagreen cocktail table by Lillian August add a touch of elegance to the living room. Here, the eyes are at once drawn to a pair of solid blue-glass Freedom Sculptures (Man) by Shlomi Haziza that provide an artistic focal point in perfect complement to the azure waters of the pool beyond.

For help with this new endeavor, he turned to Marc-Michaels Interior Design, his go-to design firm for work on spec homes as well as private client's residences. "The design of his home went smoothly because we work well together," senior project manager Jessica Lee says. "Although this home has a modern edge, it fits into this traditional community. It feels like it belongs."

Step inside, where an aura of simple sophistication immediately prevails. Emboldened by oceanic hues and warmed by oak accents, the neutral interior palette closely reflects the sensibilities of the homeowner. "Just about every car or shirt I have ever bought has typically been beige, white and blue," Jones says.

ABOVE: In the dining area, the glitz of the buffet from Bernhardt clad in German silver sets off the comfortable dual-toned armchairs that surround the Hickory White oak table. "You can really log some hours in those chairs," senior designer Molly Walker says.

Vibrant blues found in the art and accent pillows pop against the European oak flooring and neutral finishes in the spacious living room. Here, a custom oak stairway appears to float above a Zen rock garden complete with cement spheres.

While fire pits enhance the pool area, the loggia's "Swell" pendants by Pablo Lighting seamlessly blend the line between indoors and out. "I thought it was different and unexpected," Lee says.

Carefully selected design elements create a sense of space in the great room. The family room's high-gloss wall unit designed with a stained wood shelf and base cabinetry works well with the dropped, stained European oak ceiling that delineates the dining area. The 12-foot-high ceiling is covered with woven grass cloth that has a metallic thread to add sparkle, while RH Modern's polished-nickel "Aquitaine Linear" chandelier casts a soft glow. "We knew this fixture wasn't going to cast a lot of light and it doesn't need to," Lee says, who chose it for its scale and definition.

Step outside to the summer kitchen, the owner's favorite space to relax and rustle up meals on the grill to enjoy with family and friends. "I'd much rather cook out here than bang around in the kitchen," he says. On evenings when there's a chill in the air, the custom-designed firepits add a touch of warmth to the pool area.

"I feel we delivered a beautiful home that our client loves and feels proud to share with friends," senior designer Molly Walker says. "Here, he's able to live comfortably but still show it off from time to time."

ABOVE: Avoiding the elevator opening directly to the home, interior designer Carmen Alcaraz Gomes turned a privacy area into a creative entry space with a vertical garden wall illuminated by LED lights. Glass doors pull open to artist Rock Therrien's vivacious story-telling art that intrigues above a zebrawood console from Minotti.

"We entertain a great deal in our home, including Shabbat," interior designer Carmen Alcaraz Gomes says. "We wanted to keep the design simple and uncluttered for our guests as well as for ourselves."

AFTER DESIGNING HOMES FOR HER MYRIAD OF CLIENTS,

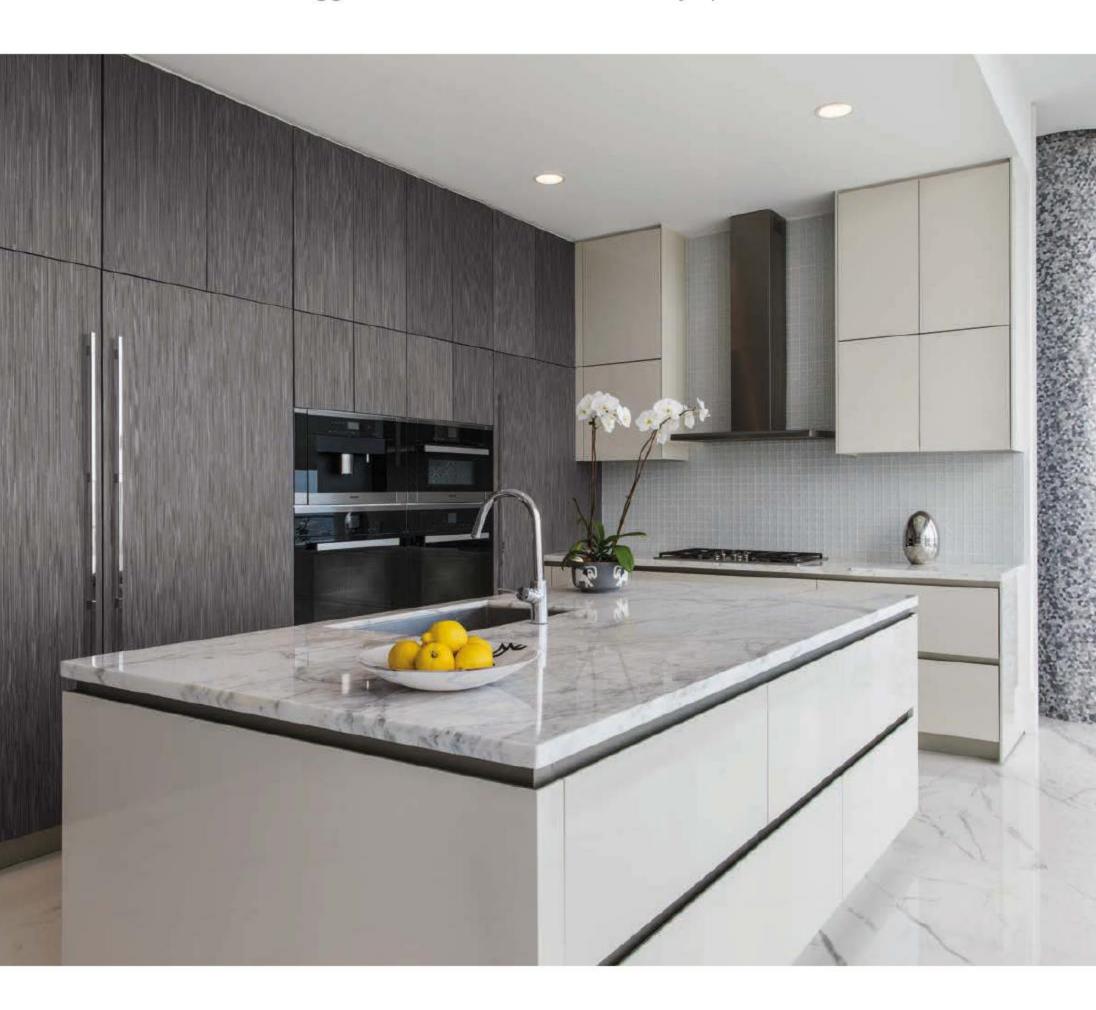

interior designer Carmen Alcaraz Gomes turned a creative eye to her own condo on the 12th floor in one of the two iconic twisted towers of Grove at Grand Bay in Coconut Grove, Fla. She was excited to personalize the 4,400-square-foot space that she and her husband Daniel Berrebi, along with the youngest of their six children, were eager to call home. "We picked this beautiful building because all of the rooms face the spectacular ocean views," Gomes says.

Gomes faced immediate challenges as she began to design her home in the twisting glass tower that appears to turn as it capture panoramic views of Biscayne Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. The condo surprises with lofty 12-foot-high ceilings, expansive walls of glass, deep terraces and about 10 columns spread among various rooms.

Nowhere are these details more impressive than in the main social areas, where the towering columns and architectural illusions command attention. Just beyond an entry that excites with the designer's interpretation of a vertical moss garden, a palette of white walls and Calacatta marble flooring provide a graceful canvas for minimalist furnishings that allows the eye to focus on both the breathtaking vistas and dramatic architectural elements. Crafted of brushed metal and wrapped with Italian hexagon mosaics, the first column makes a big statement in the living area as it leans in perfect complement towards a splashy, contemporary canvas by Brazilian artist Jotape. "I designed the column to look like art while keeping the rest of the interior scheme monochromatic with gray accents to echo nature," the designer says. "The ocean had to be the main focal point."

Snaidero cabinetry topped in Calacatta marble shapes the minimalist kitchen, where state-of-the-art Miele appliances and a silver Christofle egg accessorize the sleek culinary space.

Gomes repeated the mosaic column in the dining area, where gatherings become ethereal experiences as natural light washes over the all-white space during the day, and the clear night sky offers an ever-changing display of twinkling stars in the evening. A vertically recessed white-lacquer panel backs the horizontal "Labyrinth" sideboard to add contrasting visual excitement to the linear space. Here, a glass-topped dining table easily seats a party of 10, while a silver bench sits nearby to provide the perfect perch to watch glorious sunsets over the water.

Although Gomes readily admits her husband does the cooking, she loves the look of her contemporary kitchen beginning with the dominant center island topped in Calacatta marble. Designed to combine style with ease-of-care, this casual culinary space is lined with both dark wood and light-beige lacquer cabinetry that houses top-of-the-line Miele

Gloster's teak-topped dining table from Clima
Outdoor and JANUS et Cie's "Forest" armchairs shape bohemian Coconut Grove neighborhood and the

appliances. "My husband is talented like a chef and cooks for us about four times a week," the designer says.

Nearby, the bright and cheery breakfast area is a favorite spot for the family to enjoy those savory culinary delights morning, noon and night. "I really like this room because it's fresh and airy with great views of the ocean," the designer says.

In the master bedroom, stunning walnut paneling evokes both intimacy and elegance to create the peaceful ambiance Gomes desires for relaxation. "In between the two wood levels, I placed a niche of LED lighting," the designer says. "I also used a simple sheer fabric for the drapery so we can see the ocean."

Outside, the balcony is designed to be calm, modern and practical with an exhilarating shipboard view of the Coconut Grove Marina. Casual furnishings shape intimate groupings for family and friends to enjoy a brisk cup of Joe, midday cocktails, or an early evening flute of champagne while dining alfresco.

The designer gets excited each time she enters her new home because it has all come together like a short sweet dream. "I wanted a chic yet easy and modern space that is also timeless and pleasing to the eye," Gomes says. "The statement is simple yet visually interesting. I love it and my husband loves it. We are very happy!"

ABOVE: Serenity prevails in the master bedroom, where Poltrona Frau's leather-clad bed appears to float in a sea of white. At its foot, another pair of Jonathan Adler's shaggy white Lucite stools adds fun and fantasy. Extra T's globe lighting atop Calliaris' white-lacquer bedside chests from Addison House and the modern "Zeppelin" chandelier by Marcel Wanders pull the scheme together in dream-like simplicity.

IMAGEMAKER

DANIEL LEIVA Owner & President

Q: When did you first realize you had in interest in building?

A: My parents had their home built by a local developer when I was in 5th grade. I became very curious and intrigued by the construction process. Consequently, during my high school and college tenure, I was given the opportunity to intern with the same company who built my parent's home.

Q: Did you have any schooling or mentoring?

A: I graduated from the M.E. Rinker Sr. School of Building Construction at the University of Florida (Go Gators). I have been, and continue to receive mentorship from several industry leading builders and professionals whom I truly admire, and am grateful for their willingness to guide and instruct me.

Q: What's your company philosophy?

A: Qualified. Approachable. Distinct. Aside from our processes and approach, the overarching distinction is our willingness to go the extra mile so we can consistently exceed expectations. It's not just about getting to the finish line, it's about each step it takes to get there.

Q: How do you define a custom experience?

A: We start by building a solid relationship, aligning our interests with those of our clients, even prioritizing them above our own. My team empowers our clients with the knowledge and resources required for meaningful and effective participation. We practice full transparency and always strive to optimize value.

Q: What new trends are you excited by in the home building industry?

A: As a LEED accredited professional, I am excited to see how smart home technology coupled with green building practices will continue to optimize energy efficiency and decrease the impact that construction has on the ecological footprint.

Designer Aaron Taber Blends Elegance With Comfort For A Sublime Sensory Experience In This Transitional Penthouse Condominium Overlooking The Atlantic Ocean

INTERIOR DESIGNER AARON TABER, WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF

colleague Jarett Beckman, designed and completed a full interior renovation of this 5,000-square-foot L'Hermitage penthouse in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with an elegant and sophisticated scheme enveloped in comfort. "We wanted a good flow for entertaining, transitional styling and a color palette that maximizes the ocean views," the homeowner says. "Also, since we live in a beach community, we wanted our condominium to be comfortable." The design team chose tasteful furnishings and luxurious fabrics with textural undertones. "Using pale taupe, off-white, hints of aqua, and sea glass hues, we kept it neutral and light, with finishes in warm natural walnut and platinum accents," Taber says.

"We didn't want to take away from the backdrop of what nature created, but we wanted the look to be sophisticated and soft," interior designer Aaron Taber says.

Emanating elegance and ease, the dining room is furnished with a double pedestal table in natural walnut, paired with traditional oval-back walnut chairs, covered in an embroidered Kravet fabric in platinum and ivory. For light, a half-wall separates the dining area from the vestibule, and on both sides, Hickory Chair demilune consoles, inset with platinum detailing, create mirror images.

A pass-through to the kitchen allows for easy entertaining, but its translucent glass pocket doors can be closed for more formal parties. Light and bright, the linear space features custom, transitional-style Shaker cabinetry painted white, and stunning views of the ocean beyond.

Delineating the main social spaces, the designers created lighted drop-ceiling details. The well-appointed living room feels as tranquil and soft as a gentle ocean breeze. For continuity, flooring is platinum marble; walls are painted a soft shade of oyster; and aqua is used as an accent color. "For contrast, we chose the console with a dark walnut case and a whimsical wood inlay over églomisé mirror insets," Taber says.

ABOVE: Custom-designed Shaker-style cabinetry features Marble of the World's book-matched granite countertops and a backsplash with aqua and caramel striations. Hickory Chair's counter stools pull up to a center island finished in walnut and topped with Cristallo quartzite. A stainless steel Wolf hood completes the space.

"We wanted a little drama in the master bedroom, where the details of the John-Richard chandelier include silk-moray shades and crystal teardrops," Taber says. "It looks like a starry night."

The master bedroom, however, transitions to deeper and darker tones, with a rich walnut flooring and aqua as the dominant color. Incorporating curves, the sculptural shape of the upholstered headboard echoes the organic silhouettes of the Venetian mirrors over the bedside chests. In the sitting area, the tufted linen-clad sofa joins high-backed chairs covered in chenille and the oval glass-topped cocktail table with a platinum-finished frame. "We used curves because we wanted everything to be natural and fluid, and we liked the sweeping walnut lines of the occasional table." Taber says. "It's transitional but not overly done."

The clients were pleased with the end result: a home that gives them the feeling and lifestyle they desired. "We were able to create the home that our clients dreamed of ... and when that's accomplished, I could not ask to be in a better profession," Taber says.

MOUNTAIN LAKE

MOUNTAIN LAKE WAS FOUNDED IN 1915 by Frederick S. Ruth of Baltimore. Ruth assembled 3,500 acres in the hilly, verdant land, which is among the highest in the state and brought in Seth Raynor to design the golf course, which is consistently ranked among the top 100 in America. Mountain Lake was recently honored with Platinum status from Club Leaders Forum and is also a Distinguished Club. In the mid 1920's

Edward W. Bok, the publisher of The Saturday Evening Post and The Ladies Home Journal, was a homeowner at Mountain Lake. He acquired 250 acres of the highest land of the park and created what is now known as Bok Tower Gardens. Since its earliest days, Mountain Lake has kept its original character as a place of great natural beauty with a style of living that is outdoor oriented and unpretentious. The community has been described as "a setting of wondrous isolation from the clutter of commercial life." Golf & Travel magazine named Mountain Lake one of the most attractive golf communities in America. Mountain Lake is an ideal getaway spot for those who appreciate great golf, tennis, and croquet in beautiful natural surroundings, with an atmosphere that is warmly hospitable and relaxed.

ABOUT STALLION MANSION

Stallion Mansion is a magnificent masterpiece located on a 5 acre lot in the premiere Windmill Ranch Estates community. With three gates to enter and complete privacy, this lot is truly a hidden paradise.

Stately brick paver driveway leads to a majestic 3-Story main house with 14 bedrooms, 17 bathrooms, great family and living rooms with endless entertainment areas and a dream gourmet kitchen you won't want to leave.

The house also includes a grand staircase, lavish bar, indoor basketball court, indoor pool and spa with full sauna and steam room, elevator and an outdoor oasis with the largest pool in Broward County.

DESTINATIONS

ABOVE AND BELOW: A $25 million renovation touches every aspect of the Cheeca Lodge & Spa including the main lodge and all 214 guestrooms, suites and bungalows, meeting and event spaces, the serene spa, multiple dining venues and the stunning palm-fringed grounds.

CHEECA LODGE & SPA

Islamorada, Florida

A tropical paradise in the Florida Keys, Cheeca Lodge & Spa, welcomes guests back to a refreshed and reimagined aesthetic that restores its classic moniker of barefoot elegance through a modern-day lens. The iconic 27-acre independent luxury resort in Islamorada reintroduces the seamless blend of oceanside luxury and casual comfort through a $25 million renovation that touches every aspect of the resort.

Award-winning design firm EoA Group was tasked to breathe new life into some of the property's marquee features, including its iconic main lodge. Capturing the charm of the Florida Keys, the newly designed lobby is inviting, understated and speaks to both the essence of the destination and the resort's signature, warm island hospitality. Design firm R.D. Jones oversaw the renovation and redesign of all 214 guestrooms, where hints of traditionalism are paired with modern touchpoints to continue the nature-inspired narrative that begins from the moment a guest arrives at the lodge. For more information, call 800/327-2888 or visit www.cheeca.com.
