It was with considerable surprise that I discovered my results published in the above paper. The design, development of the Craven (Evanescent waveguide)-type filter published in the forementioned paper was solely my effort. The required testing was done mainly by M. Noyes, presently with RCA Astro Electronics, Princeton, NJ. Mr. Noyes also contributed to the mechanical changes necessary for both the ease of tuning, the reduction of loss from the filter. The work was completed on April 16, 1982.
