

TPS-59 ARRAY ELECTRONICS

Richard C. Litty
General Electric Company
Syracuse, New York

Abstract

The requirements for a transmitter-receiver that is distributed spatially on an array are reviewed and the design of the RF and the power supply packages are described. Details of the major RF components are discussed as well as overall parameters such as cost trade-offs and array signal and power distribution problems.