THIS WEEK'S UNMISSABLE TV

ALISON GRAHAM TV EDITOR AND PPA COLUMNIST OF THE YEAR

'A new year, a new clutch of TV jewels'

A New year dawns and television sloughs off the duvet, dusts cake crumbs from its pyjamas, clears the festive detritus from the living room and gets back to normal.

It's the week when lots of viewer favourites return... Death in Paradise (Thursday BBC1), Grantchester (Friday ITV), Silent Witness (Tuesday and Wednesday BBC1) and Catastrophe (Tuesday C4). The big drama event, though, is Manhunt, which, in a bold move for a difficult subject, is stripped across ITV from Sunday to Tuesday. Martin Clunes is impressive as real-life Det Chief Inspector Colin Sutton, who helped to bring serial killer Levi Bellfield to justice. Though I have big reservations (see my column on page 39) it's an accomplished piece from Ed Whitmore, who wrote 2016's excellent Rillington Place.

If you really don't think you've heard enough about Brexit, there's the one-off Brexit: the Uncivil War (Monday C4) with Benedict Cumberbatch as Vote Leave strategist Dominic Cummings. My colleague David Butcher has seen it (his review is on page 62) and was slightly underwhelmed. But I'll be interested to see how a drama treats a topic that is still, oh so very much with us.

This is my first chance to point you in the direction of Black Lake on Saturday (BBC4). You might remember the first series, where a group of not very nice people was trapped by snow in a ski resort and bad things happened. The second series traps yet another group (though one man gets stuck in both series), this time on a remote island during a hellish bonding exercise.

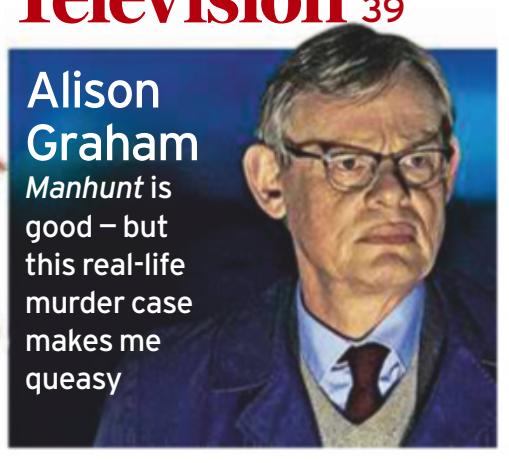

It's primarily a Scandi crime drama but there are daubs of the supernatural too, and it's not afraid to use horror-genre cliches – flickering lights, static noises – to good effect. Ideal winter viewing, I think.

Film 30

Stan & Ollie
A brilliant new biopic celebrates the much-loved duo

Television 39

Alison Graham
Manhunt is good – but this real-life murder case makes me queasy

Radio 112

Lauren Laverne
She's one of the busiest presenters on radio – how does she do it?

This week

FROM THE EDITOR MARK FRITH

This week, we have a very special treat for you: we're previewing the best of 2019's TV. The year starts with a bang with Les Misérables (see page ten for our interview with cover star Dominic West) but, as you will see, there are many other shows worthy of your interest, from Jed Mercurio's eagerly awaited new Line of Duty to series four of Catastrophe, and from Professor Brian Cox's flagship BBC series The Planets to the return of Alan Partridge on BBC1. We hope you enjoy the issue.

If your New Year's resolution is to make sure you don't miss a single week of RT, our subscription offer on page three may be just the ticket – especially as our cover price rises slightly this week.

I would like to take this opportunity to wish all Radio Times readers a very happy New Year.

WHAT I'M WATCHING...

SHEILA DILLON

'I'm catching up on the BBC4 series Secret Life of Farm Animals," says the presenter of Radio 4's The Food Programme and, from next week, RT's food columnist. "I've been fascinated since visiting a farm in Worcestershire where cows and sheep are kept in family groups. I'm also listening to Radio 4's Sketches: Stories of Art and People and the podcast The Ratline. Great radio.'

The Forum 9.05am/ 12.05am BBC World Service
Sophocles's play Antigone was written almost 2,500 years ago but is still performed today. Is this because it is the ultimate display of civil disobedience?

More or Less
4.30pm Radio 4
At last, an economist who can clarify the tidal wave of statistics and figures we are hit with. Tim Harford is back for a new series and this year he takes no prisoners.

BEST OF 2018
HOW OUR CRITICS VOTED

Alison Graham and the RT critics choose their top 20 shows of the year – did your favourites make the list?

WORDS BY JACK SEALE

20 The Assassination of Gianni Versace BBC2

The American Crime Story franchise followed up its bravura re-imagining of the OJ Simpson trial by profiling... not Gianni Versace, at least not in the main, but the man who murdered him – raging serial killer Andrew Cunanan. Previously known for the toothy fizz of Glee, Darren Criss (above) was mesmeric as the lead, bringing out the lonely shame of a man who despised himself and everyone else.

19 Mark Kermode's Secrets of Cinema BBC4

The king of film reviews on radio has never been given his own proper TV vehicle – until now. The encyclopaedic knowledge that sits behind every good critic's verdicts surfaced as Kermode deconstructed his favourite genres, looking at classic movies afresh and making connections even hardened cineastes hadn't noticed. From heists to horror and from romcom to sci-fi, Kermode's blend of personal taste and sharp technical acumen told us how film really works. Available on iPlayer

18 The Bridge BBC4

So long, Saga Noren. The Scandi noir departed with a final series that was as compelling and kookily entertaining as ever. Sofia Helin still enchanted as the cop with the leather keks and lack of interpersonal subtlety: while her visits to a therapist were uproarious, they also satisfyingly clarified the issues behind Saga's eccentricity. Meanwhile, she cracked another case of cold vengeance. She's one of the great TV detectives.

17 Succession Sky Atlantic

From Peep Show writer Jesse Armstrong, the year's most withering comedy drama introduced us to a family of dysfunctional media moguls, jostling to carry favour with and/or usurp their ailing billionaire patriarch, played by Brian Cox (above). What could have been merely an amusing study of hateful people became a fascinating study of pitiable empty souls. A stealthy slow-burner.

16 Doctor Who BBC1

A solid thumbs-up for the first episodes by new showrunner Chris Chibnall, starring new Tardis pilot Jodie Whittaker (below), and in a new Sunday slot. Amid all that change, a series of all-time-greats was too much to hope for, but the overtly educational historical episodes were a welcome innovation and, crucially, Whittaker was exceptional: like she'd always been there. It became more reliable family viewing, too. Available on iPlayer

15 Dynasties BBC1

Like 2015's The Hunt, this Attenborough-voiced masterclass of wildlife film-making gave the lives of animals a narrative power that felt cinematic. That series was a fast-moving thriller; this was pure drama, with lions, penguins and chimps starring in fables about families trying to survive – in circumstances made harsher by the selfish actions of humankind. Available on iPlayer

13 Save Me Sky Atlantic

An instantly engaging idea for a thriller: a south-London geezer is shaken out of his easy-going existence when he's accused of abducting his 13-year-old daughter. Actor/writer Lennie James (below with co-star Suranne Jones) thoughtfully developed the premise in three dimensions, sketching out a community of marginalised strugglers. Available on NowTV/Sky Box Sets

12 Love Island ITV2

The cult reality hit of last year became the mainstream reality hit of 2018, drawing in unheard-of ratings for ITV2 as another clutch of randy, tanned young adults shared a villa. You could see it as a valuable study of millennial sexual politics; or more likely, you could feel slightly guilty as you enjoyed gossiping furiously about the contestants as if you knew them.

14 Ordeal by Innocence BBC1

The latest dark wonder from writer Sarah Phelps, the modern master of Agatha Christie dramatisations, had an outstanding cast: Anna Chancellor, Matthew Goode, Bill Nighy, Eleanor Tomlinson and others shone in the tale of a family rocked by the news that the wrong relative was jailed for the murder of their matriarch – meaning the killer was still in the house. It was a parade of cruelty, suspicion and appalling characters being beastly to each other. Lush.

11 Derry Girls C4

The year's surprise sitcom hit came from writer Lisa McGee, whose rampant teens in Northern Ireland in the 1990s had the reckless energy of a coming-of-age comedy and, as a distinctive backdrop, the Troubles. Bombings, checkpoints and stories about someone's uncle being tied to a radiator by the IRA added an extra note of absurdity, although McGee's scripts were too smart and agile to belittle the anguish of the times. Available on All 4

10 Inside No 9 BBC2

Steve Pemberton and Reece Shearsmith (above) pulled off their most audacious trick with Death Line, the apparently malfunctioning "live" Halloween episode that comprehensively wrong-footed even IN9's savvy audience. Some months before that, the (relatively) ordinary series four of the horror-comedy anthology had delivered several classics. Available on iPlayer

9 The Cry BBC1

This taut four-parter was never quite what it seemed: it shifted from a bleak picture of new motherhood to a disturbing baby-kidnap nightmare to a subtle, bristling psychodrama about the power struggle within a marriage. All the way through, Jenna Coleman (above) excelled in a role made up mostly of moments and reactions rather than luxurious chunks of dialogue.

8 Mortimer and Whitehouse: Gone Fishing BBC2

With no The Trip this year, a new pair of comics arrived to provide a sunnier take on kinship between funny middle-aged men. Bob Mortimer and Paul Whitehouse simply went fishing and chatted as they sat by the river: notes of wistful, mortal vulnerability gave their conversations depth to go with the endless laughs. Available on iPlayer

7 Ozark Netflix

The drama nobody can write about without making a Breaking Bad comparison got even more darkly involving in series two. Jason Bateman (below) and Laura Linney excelled as the couple who, having been more or less forced into a life of crime, have discovered a set of hidden skills – this year, a quickening of the pace gave them a stream of life-or-death situations to work with. Available on Netflix

6 Patrick Melrose Sky Atlantic

Benedict Cumberbatch (right) is as good at choosing projects as he is at acting in them: here he popped up in a dramatisation of Edward St Aubyn's novels that allowed him to show his prowess at both raucous, substance-fuelled comedy and dark drama, as Patrick Melrose became a vivid study of an addict. Available on NowTV/Sky Box

5 This Country BBC3

Two Baftas meant Charlie and Daisy May Cooper's mockumentary could no longer be called underrated. Could it cash those expectations with a better second series? Yes. The snapshot of two wastrel cousins in a knackered Cotswolds village welcomed newcomers with a fresh torrent of stupid antics and twisted one-liners. It was sturdier, too, with stronger pathos as we saw what matters to young people who are so hilariously careless on the surface. Available on iPlayer

4 They Shall Not Grow Old BBC2

November was full of fine programmes commemorating a century since the end of the First World War, but there is only one that people will be watching again ten or perhaps even 100 years from now. Peter Jackson's stunning documentary, stitched together from archive film, interviews with veterans and, ingeniously, new sound synced to the colourised silent footage, put us there in the trenches.

3 Bodyguard BBC1

RT's writers didn't think it was quite the best drama of 2018, but in terms of social media buzz, office chat and good old ratings, Jed Mercurio's outrageously engrossing series was by far the year's biggest show. Richard Madden cruised to the top of the "Next James Bond" betting, playing a traumatised war veteran tasked with protecting a hard-nosed Home Secretary (Keeley Hawes): as conspiracies swirled, knickers dropped, main characters were suddenly killed and Mercurio fully exploited his talent for complex plots and hypertense stand-offs, ten million viewers sat happily agog. Sunday nights in September were a pure thrill. Available on iPlayer

2 Killing Eve BBC1

Although she wasn't in it, you could tell instantly that this wildly original comedy thriller was the work of Fleabag creator and super-hot writing talent Phoebe Waller-Bridge. Backed by scripts that sparkled with clever energy and sheer cheek, the star was Jodie Comer (above, left) as Villanelle, the funniest, most ruthless assassin in the world. Her assignments took her all over Europe, always dressed to kill. A second outstanding performance from Sandra Oh (below, left), as the bored secret-service analyst stepping out of the office and her comfort zone to try to bring Villanelle down, underlined that Killing Eve was a spy caper like no other. Available on iPlayer

1 A Very English Scandal BBC1

A perfectly judged script by Russell T Davies told the unbelievable true story of how a secret homosexual affair, and some crazy schemes to try to cover it up afterwards, ruined the esteemed Jeremy Thorpe MP in the buttoned-down Britain of the 1970s. Ben Whishaw was typically excellent as mercurial interloper Norman Scott, while a career-best Hugh Grant (above) brought out the vulnerability and tragedy of Thorpe without losing the motif of an establishment figure who would brook no challenge to his privilege. The shifts from farce to tenderness to sly satire were masterfully handled by the cast, and by Davies – who, even in a television career as long and illustrious as his, has never written a bolder, richer drama than this. Available on iPlayer

‘Valjean is like Spider-Man’

DOMINIC WEST FIGURES he’s played his share of awful people. The serial killer Fred West in Appropriate Adult? Jimmy McNulty, the Baltimore cop in The Wire? A lovable rogue, but a rogue nonetheless. Noah Solloway, the lead in The Affair? “He’s deeply silly,” West contends. “Just a silly man!” In the film Colette (out this Friday), he plays a sadistic husband who locks his gifted wife (Keira Knightley) away and makes her write books for which he claims credit.

“As an actor, you do live with these people and experience what they’re feeling,” sighs the actor, 49. “If they’re as, it’s exhausting and ultimately degrading. So it was such a relief to play someone who’s great.” And he smiles that irascible smile, the one that makes you root for West even when he’s playing murderers and pretentious, adulterous novelists.

Jean Valjean, West’s character in the BBC’s adaptation of Les Misérables, is not only “great” in the actor’s eyes. He is nothing less than the “greatest hero in all literature”: a superhero ex-convict who has spent 19 years in prison being tortured by Inspector Javert (David Oyelowo) for stealing a loaf of bread, but who determines on his release to be the best possible man he can be… with heartbreaking results.

West considers Victor Hugo’s French revolutionary epic to be the “greatest novel ever written”, too – “much better than War and Peace!” – and certainly much better than the famous musical (he’s not a fan).

“Valjean is not just a good guy, he’s an amazing guy. Like Spider-Man!” he beams. “He climbs up the sides of buildings to rescue kids. And he has the legitimacy of intense suffering; he’s done 19 years of hard labour. That knocks Iron Man into a cocked hat! Then you get into the humanity of Valjean, his demons, his desperate need to redeem himself… He’s trying not to be the brute that the prison has turned him into. You become a better person by spending time with someone like that.”

He has asked me to his home, a converted brewery in Wiltshire, that he shares with his wife, Catherine FitzGerald, and four children – Dora, 11, Senan, ten, Francis, nine, and Christabel, five – “I’m trying to cut down,” he jokes. (He has another daughter, Martha, from his first marriage, who is studying English at Oxford and wants to act.) “I think all households should have a five-year-old girl running round,” he says. “I just think it’s better for children. Stops them from becoming little princesses. It’s much harder to be a spoilt brat as one of four.”

THE HERO
Dominic West as Jean Valjean in Les Misérables. Right: Valjean at his darkest time, as a prisoner sentenced to hard labour

HE OPENS THE door unshaven and unkempt with a general air of bohemian bonhomie. He puts on a succession of silly voices as he leads me through to his kitchen. “Teas? Light refreshments? Do we want hot milk in our coffees? Yes?” He’s such a chameleon as an actor that even his own accent sounds as if it’s put on. He was educated at Eton, but his family isn’t proper posh. His Irish father owned a plastics factory in Sheffield, his mother was an actor and he’s the sixth of seven children.

The Wests have been doing up the house for about three years, but only moved in last summer – there are paintings waiting to be hung, pieces of Lego, mugs, antiques scattered around… The house used to be a “very manageable” cottage next to a derelict brewery, but having decided to connect them all together they’re only now getting used to the layout. “There are about five different doors to choose from. I didn’t realise how spread out it would be. It’s enormous!” They moved from west London to give the kids more space to range around when they’re teenagers: “I want my kids to be around trees and animals more.”

We take refuge in his office, up in the rafters of the old brewery, where he sinks into an armchair and resumes recounting his love affair with Les Misérables.

THE BBC VERSION is written by Andrew Davies and picks up more or less where his adaptation of War and Peace left off. It opens on the field of Waterloo in 1815 in the aftermath of Napoleon’s defeat. Back in Paris, the royalists are resurgent – but can’t quell the forces unleashed by the Revolution.

In the first episode, we follow Valjean’s ill-starred attempts at redemption after his nemesis, Javert, releases him; meanwhile, the grisette Fantine (Lily Collins) falls for a cad (Johnny Flynn) and becomes pregnant with little Cosette – whose path will cross with Valjean’s in the future. Six episodes, much heartache and many improbable coincidences will take us all the way up to the 1832 June Rebellion in Paris.

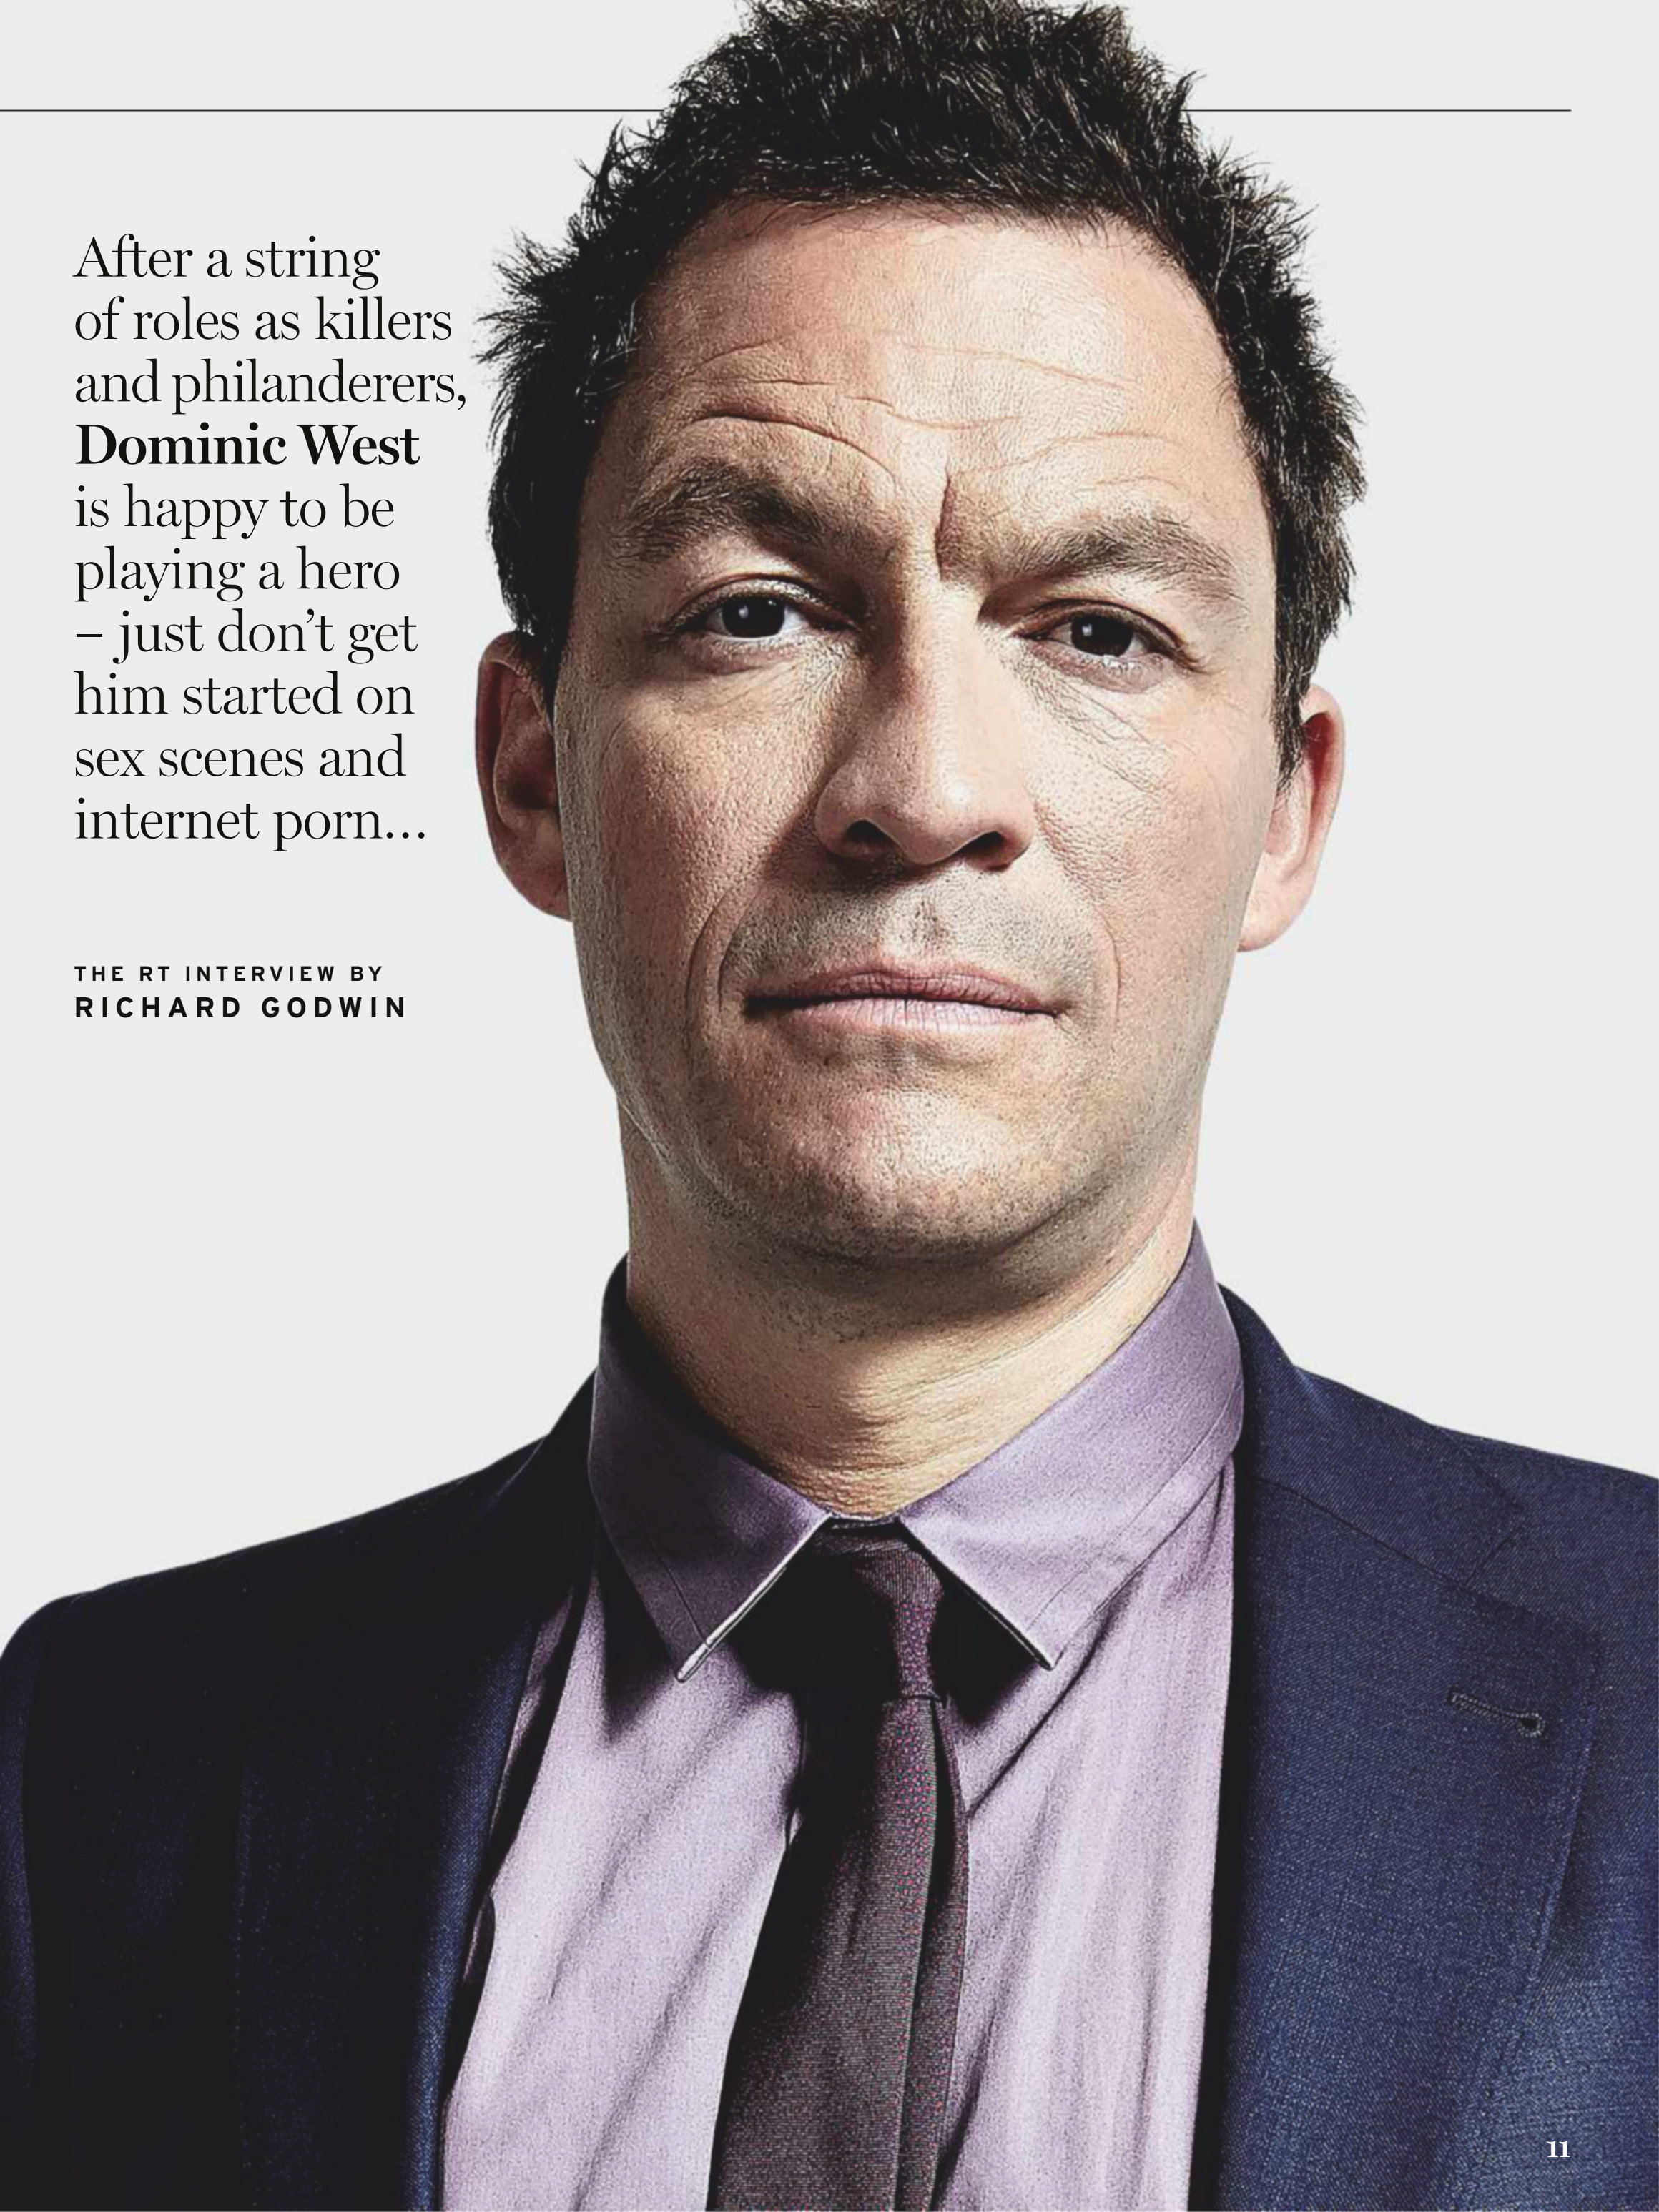

West hadn’t read the epic novel, but now that he has, he’s a convert. He even loves Hugo’s digressions into the design of the Paris sewers. “Actually, I’d have loved it if we could have made six seasons out of it,” he says. “There’s more than enough material and it’s all important and relevant. As with any great classic, it’s big enough to handle any amount of interpretations.”

Javert’s antipathy to Valjean is one of the engines of the plot – but it’s also something of ▷

◁ a mystery. Why does Javert hate him so much? "I always like to trace motivations to sex," West says. "I said to David, 'Javert obviously fancies him!' But he thought that was crass."

Did the rivalry extend off-set? "You're never quite sure where the character ends and the actor starts," he laughs. "But the key to David is that he's actually royal. He's a prince in Nigeria. And he doesn't drink. He's very religious. He's been married to his wife since he was 19 and they have four beautiful children. I hadn't realised people like that existed in the acting world! He's a very inspiring guy."

The co-stars decided it was the shared trauma of being institutionalised that set their characters against one another. "Valjean doesn't think he deserves anything other than brutality. Javert is constantly reminding him he's just a common criminal who breaks rocks and murders people."

Oyelowo is one of a number of non-white actors in the cast, marking a departure from traditional costume-drama casting. West jokes that he really wanted to do it all with 'Allo 'Allo accents, but: "Like any classic, it's not a museum piece. It has relevance to modern life. Éponine and the girls all talk like modern London girls. And therefore it looks like modern Britain, too."

THE BAD GUY
West as unfaithful husband Noah Solloway in The Affair, with Ruth Wilson as his lover, Alison Bailey

The production looks likely to make Collins, as Fantine, a star. "She's incredible," says West. "It's an exhausting part. So harrowing. Any actress who goes for it deserves all the accolades she gets…" The first scene they shot together was Fantine's death, filmed in a freezing manor house outside Brussels at 5am. "She really went for it. I was like, 'Oh my God! How did you do those spasm things?' She said, 'I just made it up'."

I imagine it's reassuring to have West on set: he is very experienced, but doesn't take himself too seriously. Do the younger actors come to him for advice? "Pfah! No. I'm jaded and lazy."

The Wire was the show that brought him fame, as well as a credibility not usually open to Old Etonians. But originally he didn't want to be in it. "And it turns out to have been the one thing that everyone knows me for and it was one of the best shows ever made! I think [creator] David Simon is almost the Victor Hugo of our time… certainly the Charles Dickens."

The Affair offers more escapist pleasure, its marital rows interspersed with good-looking people having sex (even if he doesn't think much of Noah). The Wests are about to decamp to LA for the filming of the final season, but it will be without Ruth Wilson this time. Last February, she disclosed in a Radio Times interview that she was "sure" she earned less than West. "I don't want more money, I just want equal money," she added. Not long after that her character Alison Bailey was killed off. What was all that about? "Oh, not related!" West yelps.

He remains good friends with Wilson. The main point of contention on set was whose behind would be visible in the sex scenes. "We used to fight about it. 'You're on top this time', 'No! I was on top the last three times!'"

He'd never given much thought to who was paid what, he says. "I never asked what the money is on a show. It was more a question of if I wanted to do it. So it woke me up to the issue. I never realised the disparity and the injustice."

It's one of a number of changes he has noticed since the #MeToo movement gained ground. "One thing that's happened is a positive discrimination in favour of female directors. But the main thing is that unacceptable behaviour from male directors or actors is now either not possible, or you can call them out on it. There was one guy in particular whose behaviour was disgusting. Particularly to young females in minor roles. I tried to counter it on several occasions. But now, it wouldn't be so hard to get rid of them."

'Treatment of women has taken a big step back in television'

He twists his face in derision at those who feel the feminists have gone "too far". "Treatment of women has taken a big step back in the past 20 years," he says, his voice rising. "Particularly in television, which has become more pornographic and the burden of that falls squarely on young women. Things like Game of Thrones, where you get a pair of bare breasts every five minutes… I mustn't say this, but…" Say it!

"I'm fairly sure that 20 years ago young actresses would not have had pressure put on them to take their clothes off. The parts young actresses get, particularly pretty ones, involve violent rape. When I think about my daughter going into the profession… I'm just really glad that #MeToo has started to counteract what has happened in the past 20 years."

He puts it down to internet porn – "It's made boys feel that women are sex objects who are easily available" – as well as social media. "If you can swipe someone's face because you don't think they're pretty and it costs you that little… I haven't done it myself, but it cheapens it."

He's concerned at the turn the world is taking: he mentions Trump, climate change, teenage boys becoming addicted to the online game Fortnite. A wariness of modernity seems to have inspired the move to the countryside; he and his wife are "luddites", he confesses. "I'm not one of those people who say, 'How can you bring children into this world?' But I do want to spend a lot more time hanging out with my kids and running around in forests."

Once he has finished filming the last season of The Affair, he plans to hire an enormous camper van, bundle the entire family into it and spend a few months driving around the States.

"It's the last chance we have," he explains. "They're nearly teenagers, so they're not going to want to spend that much time with their old man for much longer. I've spent a long time away from them. So we're taking six months, four months of it travelling. I've taken them out of school – there are no big exams. We'll home school them. They'll read. No screens. You're not going to get a better education than that. If you travel with as little as possible, you get much more interesting experiences."

Sheridan Smith says losing her father led to a breakdown. But now she's happy, engaged – and the proud owner of four donkeys

The Funny Girl is back

INTERVIEW BY LIBBY PURVES

In the first episode of Cleaning Up, Sheridan Smith – as Samantha, an office cleaner – sneakily tries to cover up the stubborn stain of someone's careless al-desko lunch. From that moment you're on her side all the way, as she necks the leftovers in wine glasses on a conference table, begs for extra shifts and heads home through the glass jungle of Canary Wharf, worrying about her kids and her debts and playing roulette on her phone.

Not perfect, not a squeaky-clean role model; a problem gambler, but crackling with intelligence and mischief. The writer Mark Marlow's heroine is one of the invisible: a humble cleaner in a tabard, the woman swanky bankers don't notice, but who might beat them at their game.

Sheridan enthuses, "She's someone you immediately fall in love with: massively flawed, but you're on her side. Morally there's a lot she does wrong," says the 37 year-old, "but it's for her family – she doesn't want to lose her girls and her house. She's got a gambling head on her, so might get that big win. And there are these big rich companies cheating – why should they get away with it, and not some poor cleaner?"

She wins your heart quickly, Sheridan Smith. I met her first in 2011, when her star suddenly rose. She moved from her Lincolnshire village at 16, had a well-noticed debut appearance at the Donmar Warehouse and then a run of sitcoms like Two Pints of Lager and a Packet of Crisps and Gavin & Stacey. "Chavs and slappers a speciality!" she cries.

'Every event, Dad was my date... He took me up the red carpet'

The leap to West End stardom was a hilarious performance in Legally Blonde, in which a chihuahua jumped into her pink handbag with flawless timing, seven shows a week: "I had bits of meat tucked down my bra. I smelled!" Trevor Nunn spotted her for a stunningly moving part in Flare Path, and that was when I found her in her flowery dressing room, with a second Olivier on the shelf and reviews she did not dare read: "Superb... Impish charm... Stunning... Brilliant technical acting".

That nonplussed her: an ongoing anxiety is that she never went to drama school. "Learning on the job for me is like trying to be a sponge, taking it all in. I'm really grateful to directors, and actors. Like Dustin Hoffman saw me in Flare Path, and put me in his film [Quartet] with Michael Gambon, Maggie Smith... acting royalty. I was so, so nervous, but Maggie took me under her wing. I like taking direction... nuggets of genius, they've got!"

She grew up dancing and singing with her parents, a country and western duo, which feels relevant – the music is about simple, strong emotions, hearts that break and women who soldier on: "My mum always says the show must go on."

Alongside stage stardom, there were plum TV parts in the Great Train Robbery drama Mrs Biggs and as Cilla Black in Cilla, a Bafta, then an OBE. But soon after her visit to the Palace in 2015, her father Colin was diagnosed with terminal cancer. She had lost a brother the same way, and always felt her success could help make up that loss to her parents. The diagnosis knocked her sideways, just as she was starring in Funny Girl. Again she had audiences on their feet, turning easily from brash jokey confidence to self-doubt and anxiety that was, in fact, close to her real state. "I've always had impostor syndrome: 'Oh God, what if I can't do it, what if this role is the last one?'"

Those interludes of desperate anxiety, unseen by audiences, had haunted her for years, and in 2016 broke down her composure entirely. The impending loss of her dad was too hard a blow, not least because she was working flat-out 170 miles away. She faltered during Funny Girl, and withdrew for two months with stress, exhaustion and grief.

"My anxiety levels started getting a lot higher; it was that fear of failing, I guess. It came out of nowhere and got gradually worse and worse and came to a head. And Dad dying. It wasn't that I chose to take the time off, but you know, it was better that I had time with him. No one's as good as your dad, are they? He used to say, 'No one's good enough to take you up the aisle, I'll take you up the red carpet!' Every event, he was my date. Since he passed away I don't go to many things any more."

Throughout her rise she had no long-term partner, and family is vital. "I lost my eldest brother when I was eight, my other brother Damian's in a band now and plays up north. I've always got that solid family and go home as often as I can."

There were snide press reports about her collapse, and in a flurry of unwise, unhappy tweets, she protested. Sometimes angry: "They don't give a f about my dad!" More often regretful and loving towards her fans: "Sorry I'm not strong enough".

Being open to heartbreak, anxious to learn and unsure of her abilities are the qualities that make her so mesmerising to watch. But they leave her vulnerable. "When I was in Hedda Gabler, the director Anna Mackmin said my skin was paper thin. And it is, yeah."

Less mentioned in the reports of her collapse during Funny Girl is something she proudly ▷

◁ reminds me of now. "I came back after caring for Dad, and finished the run. Then I did the tour. I wanted to do the tour, I felt I had let people down. It was cathartic to finish it that way."

Meanwhile, though, she had taken one eccentric route in defiance of all the grief and shame. She has a mass of tattoos: a Daddy's Girl, a This Too Shall Pass, a C'est la vie. "I was not in a good place. My mum went berserk! Maybe in my head I just wasn't going to act any more. I was in this mad little world. Why should the whole world have a right to look at me? But then I got better and thought: 'Oh, I'm an idiot! Of course I'm going back to acting!' Now my make-up artist has ordered a product from America that covers the tattoos. And I wear cardigans a lot!"

WEST END GIRL
Smith in Funny Girl

Psychiatric care has helped her: "Various specialists. It took a couple of years to get right, and to get over the social phobias. I recently got a great doctor, and I think I'm finally back. I decided to talk about it because it's an illness like any other illness. I was ashamed and embarrassed and now I need to be an advocate, to say: 'It's OK to not be OK. Ask for help.'" She's frequently approached by fans experiencing similar struggles: "Girls come to gigs, message me, talk to me about anxiety, being too fat or not pretty enough."

Music is growing more important – she's just released a second album, and sang a song she wrote for her father at the British Legion Festival of Remembrance in November. "Such an honour! Music is therapeutic, I can get all my emotions out, tell a story in three minutes, not three hours."

We talk some more about Cleaning Up, and how they sent her "for office-cleaning lessons – I learned that you don't rub a stain, you dab it, and there are lots of different cloths for different jobs." As for Sam's gambling addiction: "Well, I know people who've had similar situations. Look at telly now, every ad is gambling. And women, at home with kids, no chance or time to go out and get more money. Why wouldn't you?"

The gamble of her own career is gradually paying off in a calmer, more level way. "I don't have big ambitions any more – as long as I'm working and my mental health's good. I'd like to get married, have a kid." She told me back in the summer that she was engaged. James Horn, reports say, is a quiet and courtly city worker. "I need to come home to someone caring, understanding. Normality. But someone who'll put up with the madness of this industry."

I rang her recently and asked about a wedding date; she responded with a torrent of happy giggles. "No rush! I'm booked up filming all next year, we're just enjoying the engagement." Other plans, however, move fast: she at last has what she's longed for for years, "A little farm out in the country. I've just got four donkeys. Got another dog now, too. My fella wants chickens, fresh eggs. I've realised how much I missed the countryside."

The other 2019 plan is setting up her own production company. "I'm super excited about finding people I want to work with all the time, looking for fresh talent, maybe giving some young people who don't have the money to train a chance to perform. I'd love that."

Any New Year's resolutions? "No more dogs, no more tattoos, I promised my mum. But I will probably break it. More dogs, anyway." And she is still resolved on a hen party at Dollywood, Dolly Parton's theme park in Tennessee. We had shrieked together at our first meeting when she found out I'd been there. "Hen party! Yes! With all my girls! You coming?" Too damn right I would, if still wanted when the day dawns.

‘Brexit? It’s no yawn’

Benedict Cumberbatch says we might be suffering from Brexit fatigue – but this story of Vote Leave is explosive drama

IT MAY BE one of the defining moments in our nation’s political history, but Brexit has dragged on, day in, day out, for two-and-a-half years now; a stream of endless squabbles over backstops, hard borders, customs unions and trade deals. And while it has deeply divided the country, there’s one thing upon which we can all agree: it hasn’t been much fun.

So it seems perverse that Brexit: the Uncivil War is, in many ways, the perfect antidote. It’s drama doing what drama does best: taking a step back and breathing life and pace into real events, with a fantastic cast of colourful characters and a careful mix of pathos and humour. Oh, and there’s also Benedict Cumberbatch.

He says it’s the “ability of drama to distil things into a highly compact, entertaining and engaging narrative, taking you out of the eternal echo chamber of the media cycle” that appealed. “It’s rare you get to do a drama that has such an immediate relevance to your life and your country,” he continues, when we meet between takes during filming last June. Cumberbatch is transformed physically (with balding head and receding hairline, as you can see in the picture, right) and, to an extent, mentally, into Dominic Cummings, the controversial political adviser who was at the heart of the Vote Leave campaign, and now this drama.

“You have these incredibly complex ideas condensed into beats and moments of realisation,” says Cumberbatch. “I think it’s fascinating. You can go, ‘Oh, a drama about Brexit, that sounds like a right old yawn’. Well actually, no. It’s one of the most explosive, extraordinary, funny, desperately sad and provoking moments in our lifetime and to convey that in an hour and 20 minutes makes for very good television. And in James Graham’s hands it’s a winner – one of the best scripts I have read in a long time.”

Graham was a key reason Cumberbatch agreed to the role. The writer has been lightening and livening up politics on stage and screen for the past ten years. Plays such as This House, The Vote, Labour of Love and TV drama Coalition have cemented his reputation as one of the finest political playwrights of our age.

It’s hardly surprising that he saw an irresistible opportunity in Brexit. “I have always believed,” Graham says, “that drama has to engage with the world; that art has a function in helping us make sense of, interrogate and understand the world around us. And there’s nothing more urgent to understand than Brexit.

“There’s been a reticence and a nervousness from my industry to engage with it because it feels so controversial, messy and dangerous. We have kind of absolved ourselves of responsibility – instead trusting journalists, pundits and political commentators to try to make sense of it. But even though the story hasn’t finished yet we have a responsibility to try to engage a popular audience in the chaos.”

BENEDICT CUMBERBATCH

The specific chaos that Graham chose is the EU Referendum campaign in the months leading up to the vote on 23 June 2016, following Cummings, and his counterpart in the Remain camp, Downing Street communications director Craig Oliver (played by Rory Kinnear). The focus is on the tactics they employed in their frenzied attempt to win over hearts and minds.

“Everyone knows who won,” says Cummings in the opening sequence, “but not everyone knows how.” The “how” is at the centre of the drama. How a campaign machine is run in the 21st century: the conversations, the plotting, the battle plans, the dreaming up of slogans and all that happens behind closed doors, in bars and on WhatsApp groups. It’s something Graham says he developed a “geeky fascination” with: “How do you distribute a message to people?”

THE DRAMA EXPLORES everything from focus groups and campaigning on doorsteps to the more shadowy but critical role of data harvesting. In the years since the referendum, a lot of information has emerged on the use, by the various Leave campaigns, of organisations such as Cambridge Analytica and AggregateIQ to mine the data of millions of voters through social media, especially Facebook. Investigations into whether spending on this breached legal limits are ongoing, with questions still being asked about the ethics of such tactics and the extent to which they influenced the result.

“I don’t think we fully understand quite how much the data-driven nature of these platforms is changing our frame of reference and our concept of reality and truth, and how that can be targeted and abused by people," Graham says.

LOOK FAMILIAR? Benedict Cumberbatch as Dominic Cummings, flanked by Boris Johnson (Richard Goulding) and Michael Gove (Oliver Maltman)

In the drama, Cummings meets AIQ CEO Zack Massingham and is intrigued by the huge power of data electioneering to reach millions of, as yet, unregistered voters. These people, he decides, are the ones he must win over. Soon after, Massingham and a small team move their equipment into a back room in the Vote Leave office. "If anyone asks, say you're an intern," Cummings tells him. The way they monitor and influence people's online lives serves as a sharp contrast to goings-on over at the headquarters of the Stronger In camp.

Graham and his lead actors were fastidious in their research, frequently meeting with key characters and politicians at the heart of the campaigns, and the script is based on two books: All Out War by Sunday Times political editor Tim Shipman and Craig Oliver's Unleashing Demons: the Inside Story of Brexit.

The actors, casting directors, make-up artists and costume directors have made a triumphant attempt at replicating real-life characters, though Graham insists the intention was not to create something too "Spitting Image" or to imitate people.

"I met Cummings," says Cumberbatch, "which is important because he is very far from me and I needed to know more about him, about his previous history, and also observe him physically. There's very little about him out there – a hitherto unknown character who was so instrumental in the way things went. He's very much a strategist, someone who has worked in the corridors of power but not in the limelight of power."

Could Cumberbatch empathise with him? "You have to when you play a character. Of course you do. It doesn't matter what I felt at the time or what I feel now. It's all about how he feels and why.

"His frustration is all to do with the dominance of Westminster – the disconnected careerism that he felt drove and still drives political discourse – just being removed from what people really think and feel. He felt it all needed to change. That things needed to shift."

Was there ever a concern the drama might be taken as the whinge of an arts industry perceived to be predominantly liberal and pro-Remain?

"It's not about creating heroes and villains – and it's absolutely not about going, 'Were we right or wrong to leave the EU?' That doesn't interest me as a writer," Graham says. "It's not my job to preach or judge. For most of my playwriting life I've taken a lot of pride and time ▷

TEAM LEAVE

MASTERMIND
Cumberbatch as Leave campaign director Dominic Cummings

◁ to play devil's advocate with that view [of the arts industry], trying to interrogate the other side, and humanise them. I think that's the power of drama. Twitter, with its 280 characters, or an article shared online doesn't have the space or the nuance or empathy sometimes to fully walk through the footsteps of someone you don't agree with."

What it isn't, Graham acknowledges, is a journalistic endeavour. "I don't want it to feel like a literal truth," he says. "It is by definition a contrivance: artists, actors and directors applying a creative choice to it. It's a version of the truth, a piece of creative expression. And Cummings is a gift of a character," adds Graham. "Like almost all of the great stage and screen characters, he's a disrupter. He took a system that did things in a certain way, put a virus into it and exploded it. Whether you agree with the outcome or not, it's compelling to watch people who don't give a st, hack a system, reboot it and recharge it."

And what does Graham say to the idea that you can't dramatise a story that's still being lived out? "Brexit is not going to end for years and years," he says. "It's nonsense and highly irresponsible to suggest that there must be a quarantine around art. For the past 2,000 years theatre and drama have been able to interrogate the stories of the day.

'Cummings is a gift of a character... he's a disrupter'

WRITER JAMES GRAHAM

"Drama is uniquely placed to attract a popular audience into a space where it feels possible and safe to slightly, briefly turn off the noise and some of your own political tribalism and ask sophisticated questions about what went right and what went wrong in our politics. We're not saying this is the definitive history of Brexit. It's the first of many. People are welcome to keep adding to it, but we had to start at some point."

Brexit: the Uncivil War is as thought-provoking and emotive as it is enjoyable and hilarious. And while it will leave you questioning and curious, at least – joy! – it comes to a timely end. Politicians take note. HANNAH MacINNES

NEW FOR 2019

Manhunt Sunday–Tuesday
9.00pm ITV

Catching a killer

Manhunt writer Ed Whitmore says he was right to revisit a real-life tragedy

On 19 August 2004, 22-year-old French student Amélie Delagrange was attacked and left for dead while she was walking home through the west London suburb of Twickenham.

On 24 April 2018, residents woke to discover police tape once again sealing off Twickenham Green, the place of her murder. Men in white protective suits, posters pinned to trees and "Can you help?" witness appeals all pointed to a gut-wrenching case of déjà vu.

Except this time they were just props, used by the makers of ITV's drama Manhunt in their depiction of the police investigation into Amélie's death and the subsequent conviction of Levi Bellfield for her murder, and also the murders of Milly Dowler and Marsha McDonnell.

"We took the decision to try to be as authentic as we possibly could," says writer Ed Whitmore. "If you decide to be authentic about A, B and C, then why not D, E and F? If we had filmed somewhere else and called it Twickenham Green people would have said, 'That's not Twickenham Green'. If you call it something other than Twickenham Green you're starting to stray away from the real story you're telling. Then you're in more treacherous waters because you could be accused of playing fast and loose with the truth, which is serious."

The truth about what really happened on Twickenham Green is, of course, appalling, and Whitmore accepts that a script so closely mirroring an awful, and still familiar, reality risks triggering renewed pain for the families of those involved, although the show's executive has insisted it would never have gone ahead if any of them had objected. "Whenever you base a drama on real events you run that risk," says Whitmore. "But if you can look yourself in the eye and say that you're telling the story for a good reason and you're doing so with integrity, respect and sensitivity, then I think it is legitimate."

The "reason" cited by Whitmore is an important one. For it's right to point out this thoughtfully made drama is not a murder re-enactment. Based, as it is, on the memoirs of the detective who led the investigation, DCI Colin Sutton (Martin Clunes), it tells the story of one man's tenacious pursuit of Amélie's killer, a manhunt that led him to connect Bellfield to two previous murders.

"This is not a thriller," says Whitmore. "We took the decision very early on to take any melodrama out of it. Our fundamental aim was to put the audience in the shoes of Colin Sutton. When he got the case he said it would be the most important thing in his life. Whatever it took, he was going to bring

PRIME SUSPECT Martin Clunes plays DCI Colin Sutton, the man who helped solve the murders of three young women

Amélie's killer to justice. It was a heroic line to take in many ways, and obviously there were repercussions to that." Sutton's marriage, shown to be under pressure in the drama, later collapsed.

It's true, also, that the retelling of this story – across three consecutive nights – will have repercussions for the three families involved. All have been consulted about the drama and consented – or rather didn't dissent – to it being made. All three have been sent the film to watch and RT understands that the McDonnells and Dowlers have seen it, though have yet to comment.

It's reasonable to assume, however, that Milly's family wouldn't have been happy about a film crew returning to the precise spot in Walton-on-Thames where the 13-year-old was last seen, almost to the day of the 16th anniversary of her disappearance.

Whitmore accepts that was wrong. "It's unfortunate if you are insensitive in any way when making a drama like this because there is already the potential to cause upset. That was unfortunate timing, definitely." He hopes, though, that the families and viewers will see the drama for what it is, a vindication of one man's tireless pursuit of a brutal killer. "My overwhelming sense is that the families were supportive of seeing Colin's story told, because to them he is a hero. He's the man who caught Levi Bellfield, and that's a story worth telling." TERRY PAYNE

WHO WAS THE GREATEST?

ENTERTAINERS

DAVID BOWIE • MARILYN MONROE • CHARLIE CHAPLIN • BILLIE HOLIDAY

KATHLEEN TURNER "Over the course of this series, several very respected broadcasters will try to convince you that the greatest icon of the 20th century must be a politician, a scientist, some great intellectual – but I'm here to tell you they're wrong. To me it's absurd that the greatest icon of the 20th century could be anyone but an entertainer. They may not be leaders – but they still led the way. They may not be explorers or scientists – but they were still pioneers. These are the people that we hold in our hearts. They make us laugh or cry, inspire us and offer us ways to reimagine our world."

ARTISTS & WRITERS

VIRGINIA WOOLF • ALFRED HITCHCOCK • ANDY WARHOL • PABLO PICASSO

LILY COLE "I am passionate about art, especially in the 20th century, because I believe good artists (whether painters, sculptors, film-makers or writers) push the boundaries of our culture. Virginia Woolf, for example, was a revelation for me: I have fallen in love with her politics, writing and character. I've also enjoyed having the excuse to watch lots of Hitchcock films! It has been interesting to really consider the effect African art has had on Picasso (and therefore much of Western modern art) and to re-see Warhol's work as a critique of Western culture in many ways. Without art, life would be so dull."

ACTIVISTS

EMMELINE PANKHURST • MARTIN LUTHER KING JR • HELEN KELLER • MOHANDAS GANDHI

SANJEEV BHASKAR "The four icons I've looked at were complex people – dogmatic, single-minded, solitary, dangerous and at times even unlikeable. They were trailblazers who gave dignity to the debased and helped move power from the few to the many. They didn't just stand for what they believed in; at great personal cost they inspired millions to do the same as them. It's through their sacrifice that we enjoy the protections and freedoms we have today. None were the first to highlight their cause, but they stand out as true icons, and remain instantly recognisable: shorthands for the battles they fought."

LEADERS

WINSTON CHURCHILL • NELSON MANDELA • MARGARET THATCHER • FRANKLIN D ROOSEVELT

SIR TREVOR McDONALD "Icons celebrates the best of what we all are and can be. I really think that we are more in need of icons today than perhaps we ever were, though we perhaps use the word too often because true icons are rather special. This category urges us to lift our eyes beyond the banality of current politics and to look at people who, by their generosity of spirit, really desired to give service to their nation. It's inspiring to think of what they did. That desire to serve, despite adversity, requires an enormous generosity of spirit. I think that's the key that truly makes an icon."

EXPLORERS

GERTRUDE BELL • ERNEST SHACKLETON • JANE GOODALL • NEIL ARMSTRONG

DERMOT O'LEARY "Exploration is a subject that's fascinated me since I was a kid. Explorers have taken us from an era of conquest to a greater understanding of our planet. The work of explorers has changed how we see our world and ourselves. Where explorers lead, we all follow. They have shown us that we must all take responsibility for our world, if we are to have any future. For me, that is the point of exploration and that's why these four explorers are my icons of the 20th century. Each had the courage and determination to push the benchmark of human achievement to staggering heights."

SPORTSPEOPLE

PELE • TANNI GREY-THOMPSON • MUHAMMAD ALI • BILLIE JEAN KING

CLARE BALDING "Sport is about far more than kicking a ball or running a race. At its best, it's a true meritocracy that rewards achievement without favour or judgement. There are a few individuals in the last century who made the most of their moment in the spotlight to change the world around them and they made a difference to millions of others. I came away from interviewing Billie Jean King determined to do more to fight for the things I believe in – equality, diversity, opportunity for all. It has also made me even more aware of the power of sport to reach people in all countries and from all backgrounds."

SCIENTISTS

ALAN TURING • TU YOUYOU • ALBERT EINSTEIN • MARIE CURIE

CHRIS PACKHAM "All four scientists are outsiders who fought against the system, propelling humanity forward. My hope is that somebody watching this programme, some young scientist, will be inspired by the icons' passion, drive and determination to succeed. We need these qualities more than ever as we find ourselves, once again, amid a global catastrophe. Climate change, population growth and damage to the environment threaten us all. These problems are not going to be solved by politicians or sportsmen or sportswomen or rock stars, but by scientists. We had better pray that they're out there."

'I'D TAKE A BREAK AND JUST GO CRY'

His two-year-old son Henry died last year – but somehow Rob Delaney managed to keep making comedy

TIM DOWLING

This is the third time I've interviewed Rob Delaney, on each occasion just before the launch of a new series of Catastrophe, the scabrously funny sitcom he writes with his co-star Sharon Horgan. But we won't be meeting under these circumstances again: he and Horgan have confirmed that this fourth series will be their last.

"We're incredibly proud of it," says Delaney, 41, sitting on a blue sofa in a west London photographic studio, a black coffee going cold in front of him. "I think four series is a wonderful number, perhaps the ideal number to say what we wanted to say about marriage and having young kids and the minefield that that is."

When Delaney, an American comedian previously best known in Britain for being funny on Twitter, first relocated his young family to London to film Catastrophe in 2014, he didn't know if there would be a second series, much less a fourth. Five years later he finds himself fully embedded in London life, the star and writer of a wildly successful, very British show.

"It is decidedly a British sitcom, even though

I'm very obviously American and Sharon is Irish," he says. "It's on a British network, it's made with British money and most of the people in it, who aren't Sharon and myself, are British. Sharon has a British passport – I should stress she's allowed to live and work here, in case the Home Office reads this. I also have a visa, which allows me to make sitcoms." His future writing plans are, however, on hold for the moment.

"I'm just taking a second before I create something out of whole cloth again, because of everything that's changed. I want to let it gestate because I'm a different person now. And Catastrophe was so personal, for better or worse."

THE CHANGE HE speaks of is the death of his youngest son, Henry, last January at the age of two. In a heartbreaking Facebook post, Delaney revealed that Henry had first been diagnosed with a brain tumour in 2016, undergone surgery that left him with significant physical disabilities, only for the cancer to return in the autumn of 2017. Up until that point fans of the show had no idea what Delaney and his family had been going through; he'd guarded their privacy fiercely and continued to work. How, one wonders, was it possible to create comedy during that time?

"Shoots were hard," he says. "Sometimes I'd need to take a break and just go cry." Delaney's normal speaking voice is bright and booming, the kind you can hear through walls, but now he speaks softly, treading carefully over his words.

"Writing them, logistically, was difficult," he says. "We rented an office right by Great Ormond Street Hospital so I could duck in and out as needed on series three. So that was challenging." ▷

PHOTOGRAPHED EXCLUSIVELY FOR RADIO TIMES BY RICHARD ANSETT

BRACE YOURSELVES Sharon Horgan and Rob Delaney return for a final run of Catastrophe

◁ To his surprise, Delaney discovered that his ability to be funny remained somehow unimpaired. "I found incredible sadness and confusion and anger not incompatible with work," he says. "I found grief not incompatible with work. I can't return emails any more, or do basic admin, and my memory is fundamentally damaged. So there are things that I'm much worse at now. Joking around and imagining stories has not suffered. Maybe because it's almost like a vital sign."

Or it could be, he thinks, that humour and sadness – which have always sat side by side in Catastrophe – also coexist in real life: "I know, for example, my wife and I really enjoyed movies and TV shows, even in the worst times. We found Getting On right after Henry died." Delaney and his wife, Leah, had never seen the BBC comedy created by Jo Brand, Joanna Scanlan and Vicki Pepperdine and set in an NHS geriatric ward. "We were just intoxicated by it," he says. "We know bleak now, so for us it was just like water finding its own level or whatever."

"Generally, people who've lost a child like to talk about their child." In those circumstances, curiosity is usually more welcome than embarrassed silence. "Of course, you're curious," he says. "Ask. I'll talk about it. Because I'm proud of Henry. I'm not ashamed of him. I'm not gonna be cast aside because the thing you least want to have happen to you happened to me."

TWITTER

Last September, he published a fuller account of Henry's illness – harrowing and raw, sad and joyful, impossible to read without crying. It started out, he says, as a sort of acknowledgement of the other parents of sick kids out there: "I just wanted to say hi there, I know what you're going through, and to talk about it in a way that might help the world at large understand what it is that you're dealing with." The piece was to be the basis of a book, one Delaney thinks he now won't write, although he intends to continue to speak out, aware that he's in a position to help destigmatise death, particularly the death of a child.

Delaney recalls a recent conversation with the six-year-old daughter of a friend. "She said, 'Did your son die?' and I said, 'Yeah, he did.' And she goes, 'Oh my God! I can't believe that! That's terrible!' And I said, 'Yes, it is! Thank you!' I really appreciated that direct, open honesty. It's better than some acquaintance at the supermarket not able to meet my eye because they don't know what to say."

Delaney's experiences have made him a tireless champion of the NHS, a campaigner for Medicare for All in the US and a keen supporter of a number of charities, including Noah's Ark and the Rainbow Trust. Last year he became the first person to read one of CBeebies' Bedtime Stories in Makaton – a language programme combining signing with speech, designed for children and adults with communication difficulties. "That I did explicitly in memory of Henry, and for other kids and families who use Makaton," says Delaney. After surgery, Henry's tracheotomy left him unable to speak, but he became so proficient at signing that his parents had to take an intensive course to catch up with him.

"There had never been a two-day period where, from 9am to 5pm, one of us wasn't with him. So for two days in a row we weren't there, and we were sick about it, but we came back way better at Makaton and he exploded with joy. He was like, 'Finally!' "

Delaney may not be rushing headlong into the future at this point, but that's not to say he hasn't kept busy. Last summer his fourth son was born. He's been doing stand-up, and he's acted in, by his reckoning, five or six films imminently to be released. "Catastrophe has put me in good stead," he says. "It opens doors and then once I get in the door, I know what to do."

'Ask. I'll talk about it. I'm proud of Henry, not ashamed'

There's also a line in his CV I'd never noticed in the course of our previous interviews: when he graduated from NYU's Tisch School of the Arts in 1999, his degree was in musical theatre. Does that mean he can sing and dance?

"I don't dance well," he says. "Although I did study it very seriously, I'm bad at it. But I do sing well. I'm classically trained, show tunes, all that business." In fact, he says, he has plans to do a musical in the not-too-distant future. "I'm talking to some people now about that. Yeah, I love to sing and want to and will. Dance… let's hope I don't do that."

Has the BBC found another hit dance show for Saturdays?

How do you replicate a hit like Strictly? It's been running on BBC1 for 14 years, attracts around ten million viewers and has been sold to more than 50 countries, making the BBC £500 million. Every year the BBC tries to find a new format but, as yet, they've failed to grab viewers in quite the same way – from The Voice UK, which cost the BBC £20 million before being poached by ITV, to gymnastics-themed show Tumble, which struggled to win over both audiences and critics.

The BBC's latest attempt to find a Saturday-night, shiny-floor hit is The Greatest Dancer, and given that it's from Simon Cowell's production company Syco – the first time one of Cowell's shows has appeared on the BBC – it has a decent pedigree. The format is familiar and simple: aspiring dancers will audition in a wide range of dance styles, from ballet to hip hop, in a nation-wide search for the UK's next dance star. Strictly pro dancer Oti Mabuse will swap the dancefloor for the judging panel, alongside singer and onetime X Factor coach Cheryl and actor and former Glee star Matthew Morrison.

"Making an entertainment format work is a really skilled job," says Kate Phillips, controller of BBC entertainment, whose roster of hits includes Strictly, Top Gear, The Apprentice and Would I Lie to You?. "Often drama is based on a book or a real-life story. With entertainment, you're creating a format from scratch.

"I always say that entertainment is the most loved of genres – and the most criticised. If you launch a new drama or factual show and it doesn't do well, it doesn't tend to make a headline – but an entertainment show will.

"When we don't know what's happening politically or economically, entertainment will always have a place, because people just want a bit of escapism," she adds. "Although it's very hard to get entertainment right, I'm determined to keep finding new ideas." FRANCES TAYLOR

The best by smiles

He hugs, he grins, he tells you you're brilliant – what young footballer wouldn't want to play for Liverpool's Jürgen Klopp?

FA Cup: Wolverhampton Wanderers v Liverpool Monday 7.30pm (k/o 7.45pm) BBC1; 7.45pm Radio 5 Live

I'd like to be young and a brilliantly talented footballer – just so that I could play for Liverpool boss Jürgen Klopp. I'm sure that somewhere there exists a photo of him where he's not smiling, but it would take an army of picture researchers several days to find it.

How many hugs a day does Klopp dish out? He got fined a few weeks ago for over-zealous hugging: when, at 0–0 in the Merseyside derby, Liverpool scored a 96th-minute goal, but with the match unfinished, he ran on to the pitch to embrace his Brazilian goalkeeper Alisson Becker (known as Alisson). That hug cost him £8,000 and it was worth every penny. Were I that goalie, I'd think only of what further heroics I could do for this smiley bear of a boss.

Klopp has made all the Liverpool players feel great about themselves and their team, and that is a good half of the battle. I remember, back in my local paper days, working for a man who kept telling me I was useless. I got transferred – and worked with Bill Woodhatch at the Surrey Mirror, who kept telling me I was great.

'That hug cost him £8,000 – and it was worth every penny'

It was like rain in the desert. Of course, I did my best for Bill, never stinting for a second, and he changed my professional life. "Brilliant work, brilliant – and you know, this piece would be even better if you…" Buoyed by encouragement, my education continued at breakneck pace.

And that's what playing for Klopp must be like. One of the greatest skills in management is making the players lower in the hierarchy feel important: crucial in the bigger picture. Klopp makes believers of his entire squad, or so it seems. For him, a laugh and a hug never compromise total commitment to the cause.

Toughness is essential, but intense, effective football doesn't have to be a joyless business of white-faced, life-or-death seriousness. Liverpool aren't madcap adventurers, however.

There was, perhaps, a bit of that last season, but the team has moved on. The main improvement has been in defence: after 16 Premier League games this season, Liverpool had conceded just six goals. Alisson, who joined the club last July, has been the main difference: Sky Sports' Monday Night Football had a stat showing that, after 16 games the previous season, Liverpool's ratio of saves to shots was 64 per cent. This season it was 86 per cent.

The frenzied, high-pressing game – harrying the ball-carriers who try to play out of defence – has been less of a factor this season as opposing teams counter the ploy. But the team is evolving and, as a result, reached the top of the Premier League in December. Now, as Liverpool travel to Wolves in the third round of the FA Cup, a good run in the Cup would delight many – especially those who like good football and don't subscribe to Sky.

It's a fact of modern footballing life: you can't rule players by fear any more: players have more money and more control over their lives than they have ever had. Consequently, that old type of manager is becoming extinct. Klopp has created a new dynamic with his team: which is fun to watch and surely the best fun to play. Before Liverpool's critical Champions League match against Napoli last month he said, "I know it will be difficult, but I cannot help think about this game without a smile on my face." Liverpool won.

TWICE TWO
Stan & Ollie stars Steve Coogan (far right) as Stan Laurel and John C Reilly as Oliver Hardy

Me and my pal

Andrew Collins takes his hat off to two giants of comedy who are celebrated in a touching new drama

ONE OF MY favourite Laurel and Hardy two-reelers is County Hospital. In it, Hardy – for the uninitiated, the round one – is in traction with a broken leg, and Laurel – the not-so-round one – comes to visit him in the infirmary, bearing the inappropriate gift of hard-boiled eggs and nuts. From this modest premise, surreal slapstick chaos ensues. It made me howl with laughter as a boy and has the same effect now. It was made 86 years ago.

Despite the duo's popularity, which grew through the late 1920s, 30s and 40s until Hardy's failing health and contractual niggles eventually slowed them down, Stan & Ollie is the first major biopic of the world's most famous double act. Starring Steve Coogan and John C Reilly, Stan & Ollie is a five-star triumph and is released in cinemas on Friday 11 January.

In 1953, as the clock ticked past their prime, the pair undertook a UK tour, reproducing their greatest skits – including "Hard-Boiled Eggs and Nuts" – on stage at the Victorian theatres of the UK and Ireland. And it is this melancholic chapter that Stan & Ollie homes in on, lending a profound sense of past glory to the British-shot film.

I meet Coogan (back to his default shaggy-haired look) and Reilly at the Savoy in London's West End, which looks every inch as if we're still in the 30s, never mind 1953 when Stan and Ollie stayed here with their wives, played in the film by Nina Arianda and Shirley Henderson.

'It's like an arranged marriage; they learn to love each other'

As Reilly fondly mimics Hardy's look of despair that he perfected for their County Hospital re-enactment, Coogan, who's never far from a cross-reference to Alan Partridge, finds common ground in Laurel and Hardy's timelessness. "When I write Partridge, I'm really careful not to make contemporary references, in the hope that the comedy will have a long shelf life."

Both actors have been in ad hoc double acts, Coogan with Rob Brydon, and Reilly with Will Ferrell (currently in cinemas in Holmes & Watson). Off duty, Coogan is the more analytical while Reilly plays the part of the goofy sidekick to perfection, getting up to demonstrate the Oliver Hardy walk for my benefit.

An admirer of the duo's innocence, Coogan says, "Laurel and Hardy transcended class. They were intergenerational. The common denominator between our film and their comedies is that both are accessible to people from different cultures. Archenemies can sit down next to each other and laugh at Laurel and Hardy."

Coogan and Reilly have had plenty of time to analyse the relationship they're portraying. "It's a bit like an arranged marriage," offers Coogan, "where they eventually learn to love each other." Reilly jumps in: "Like you and I. We were put together to do this film and it was, like,

COMMENCE YOUR DANCING

'Find some chemistry now! Figure it out!' That's what they had to do." Coogan warms to the theme. "There's an artifice to that, but they come to a realisation when they look around and think, the only two people left in the room are themselves." Reilly quotes Jeff Pope's screenplay: "It's so eloquent when Stan says, 'When you look at our films, there's only ever us.'"

Jon S Baird, who directs the film, echoes Reilly's thoughts: "What really attracted me to the script was that it was a love story. Reading it made me cry." Coogan and Reilly were grateful that the Scottish director insisted on setting aside three weeks for rehearsals. Reilly was in make-up for up to three hours a day ("It was like wearing a mask on your whole body"), while Baird brought in Toby Sedgwick, the man who choreographed the horse puppets in the stage version of War Horse, to help fine-tune the stars' mannerisms.

Two days before the decisive first clap of the clapperboard on Stan & Ollie and that hospital sketch, it was Baird who found himself hospitalised after being struck down by appendicitis. "The doctor told me that I had to have my appendix removed and I said, 'Could you do it now? I'm shooting tomorrow!'" The shoot was pushed back by a week, with Baird consoling himself that his two lead actors would get more time to rehearse the dance routine from Way Out West, one of the many re-creations essayed in note-perfect imitation.

Coogan explains: "John and I got the train to the Lake District where I've got a place near Ulverston." From there, they made a pilgrimage to the town's Laurel and Hardy Museum, which he carefully describes as "charmingly homespun" and where museum staff let Reilly put on one of Ollie's jackets. He marvels: "It was the middle of a wet weekday and there were people there sitting and watching Laurel and Hardy movies! Teenage boys!"

So, after an 86-year delay, these timeless, much-loved comedy giants are back in a mock-up of County Hospital and a whole new generation is invited to visit.

Spellbinding

Suspension of disbelief, a concept originally coined by the poet Samuel Taylor Coleridge in 1817, is an essential part of the TV or cinema experience. And this primal act of self-deception becomes doubly relevant when regarding that tricky creature, fantasy.

Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them is the first in JK Rowling's blockbuster prequel franchise to Harry Potter, inspired by her Comic Relief booklet published in 2001, which was credited to "Newt Scamander". The Easter egg-like publication arrived between The Goblet of Fire and The Order of the Phoenix, an amuse-bouche for the readers who were about to witness the first movie The Philosopher's Stone (Monday ITV2).

Fantastic Beasts, an ersatz textbook, can't have been easy to adapt into a satisfying beginning-middle-end format but, in her first credited feature-length screenplay, Rowling spawned a creative and commercial monster.

MAGIC MAN
Newt Scamander, played by Eddie Redmayne

The tweedily shoe-gazing Scamander is embodied by Eddie Redmayne, cast as if by mathematical theorem like so many of Rowling's creations. A "magizoologist" passing through 1920s New York with a Tardis-like suitcase full of CGI beasts, he is soon entangled in an administrative to-do with Katherine Waterston's demoted witch, Dan Fogler's muggle (or "No-Maj" in US slang) and various acolytes and foes of the Magical Congress of the United States of America.

Directed and produced by Potter trustees Davids Yates and Heyman, the establishing Fantastic Beasts feels different to the scholastic Potter saga with its Jazz Age syncopation and transatlantic sass. Yet the magical mood remains comfortably familiar, with a finale that sets up first sequel The Crimes of Grindelwald. You must also suspend your disbelief when you learn that Beasts won the Potter franchise's first and only Oscar – for costume design.

DID YOU KNOW? Ken Loach won his second Palme d'Or at Cannes in 2016 after the film's premiere received a 15-minute standing ovation

FILM OF THE DAY

P I, Daniel Blake ★★★★

9.45-11.25pm BBC2 15

DRAMA When the Tories were voted back into power in 2015, film-maker Ken Loach came out of a planned retirement, fired up for another film. His and regular writer Paul Laverty's comeback, I, Daniel Blake, went on to be Loach's most successful work. Tyneside club comic Dave Johns makes a warm-hearted screen debut as the Newcastle joiner of the title, who's recovering from a heart attack. He's judged fit to go back to work by the Department for Work and Pensions but not by his doctor. As he's plunged into the Kafka-esque benefits system, which requires him to apply for jobs he's not fit to do in order to qualify for Jobseeker's Allowance, his honest desire to work is thwarted by computer forms and arcane rules. He kindly takes a single mother (Hayley Squires) under his wing after she has a breakdown in a food bank, and cracks start to appear for both of them. A righteous treatise for our times. (UK/Fr 2016, swearing, HD)

DAYTIME

The Lady Vanishes ★★★★★

1.00-2.30pm BBC2 U

THRILLER A close second behind The 39 Steps as the best film of Alfred Hitchcock's British period, this sublime comedy thriller was co-scripted by Alma Reville (Mrs Hitchcock) and the dynamic duo of Frank Launder and Sidney Gilliat. There isn't a wasted frame, as Michael Redgrave and Margaret Lockwood search a Balkan express train for dotty Dame May Whitty. Basil Radford and Naunton Wayne drew all the plaudits as the cricket-mad Charters and Caldicott, but Paul Lukas, Mary Clare and Cecil Parker are also first class. Followed by Talking Pictures: Hollywood's Great Directors. DP (UK 1938, BW, HD)

Step Up ★★ 1.10-3.10pm ITV PG

DANCE DRAMA Love blooms between unlikely dance partners in this teen romance from choreographer-turned-director Anne Fletcher, but the moves are achingly predictable. Co-writer Duane Adler lazily reworks his 2000 film Save the Last Dance here, with Jenna Dewan playing a privileged ballet dancer opposite Channing Tatum as a hip-hopping petty criminal. They may be full of energy on the dance floor, but their intimate scenes together are awkward and stiff. SP (US 2006, may be edited for violence, language, HD)

EVENING

Catch Me If You Can ★★★★

5.15-7.30pm BBC2 12

COMEDY DRAMA Director Steven Spielberg backtracks to the 1960s for this slice of effortless entertainment. Leonardo DiCaprio exudes movie-star charisma as Frank Abagnale Jr who, while still a teenager, charmed and cheated his way across America, posing as an airline pilot, doctor and lawyer in order to cash forged cheques. Tom Hanks plays a dogged FBI agent on his trail, and Christopher Walken is superb as the conman's father. There's a deft blend of comedy and suspense, great period detail and sheer directorial class. IF (US 2002, edited for content, HD)

Star Trek into Darkness ★★★★ 8.00-10.35pm C4 12

SCI-FI This thrill-a-minute blockbuster from returning director JJ Abrams stars Benedict Cumberbatch as the rogue Starfleet officer who turns intergalactic terrorist, prompting the Enterprise crew to track him to the Klingon homeworld. The story is built around the friendship between Kirk (Chris Pine, more relaxed in his iconic role) and Spock, which means other key characters are either sidelined or weakly drawn. Abrams pulls out all the action stops, though, and propels the warp-speed spectacle towards an epic finale in San Francisco. AJ
(US 2013, some violence, swearing, HD)

P The Last 5 Years ★★★

9.00-11.00pm True Movies (Freeview 62, Freesat 302, Sky 321, Virgin 424) 12

MUSICAL Based on an off-Broadway musical, this three-tissue tear-jerker traces the rise and fall of the relationship between a struggling actress (Anna Kendrick) and her novelist lover (Jeremy Jordan, who made a name for himself in musical theatre). What distinguishes the film, apart from the perky performances, is that it's almost entirely dialogue-free. Almost everything is sung, with Jordan's songs looking ahead in the relationship, and Kendrick's songs looking back on it. Even if this doesn't go down in history as a great musical, it's certainly well worth a watch. DA
(US 2014, swearing, sexual/drug references)

True Lies ★★★★

10.35pm-1.10am C4 15

ACTION This knowing spy yarn reunited Arnold Schwarzenegger with his Terminator director James Cameron and sees Arnie play a secret agent who is always saving the world in time to get home for dinner with his wife and kids. Aside from the spectacular action, there's exceptional comedy support from Tom Arnold and a winning performance from Jamie Lee Curtis, who transforms from timid housewife to confident heroine. It may be wildly implausible and a trifle misogynistic, but, for pure excitement, Cameron's blockbuster is unbeatable. AJ
(US 1994, violence, swearing, HD)

First Blood ★★★

10.50pm-12.35am ITV 15

ACTION The jingoistic sequels reduced Vietnam War veteran John Rambo (Sylvester Stallone) to an indestructible cartoon figure, but this first film in the series is an involving action drama about an ostracised loner pushed too far. Brian Dennehy is on fine snarling form as a bigoted small-town sheriff, the catalyst for a woodland cat-and-mouse chase with his battle-hardened quarry. The warfare is tautly assembled by director Ted Kotcheff and Stallone portrays Rambo with enough wounded conviction to forgive some of his increasingly far-fetched escapes. JC
(US 1982, violence, swearing, nudity, HD)

LATE NIGHT

Safe Haven ★★

11.25pm-1.15am BBC2 12

ROMANCE Director Lasse Hallström followed his hit adaptation of Salmon Fishing in the Yemen with this slick, solidly acted but daftly plotted romance. Julianne Hough stars as Katie, a "person of interest" in a crime case, who flees Boston and the cop (David Lyons) obsessively hunting her. She holes up in a sleepy coastal town where, predictably, she falls for the hunky Alex (Josh Duhamel), a widower-with-kids who runs the local store. Despite early promise, the film is over-egged and the final plot twist doesn't convince. DA

FILM OF THE DAY

Bridesmaids ★★★★★

10.15pm-12.30am ITV 15

DID YOU KNOW? After appearing in the movie as housemates, Rebel Wilson and Matt Lucas decided to live together for real in a house in Los Angeles

COMEDY Judd Apatow has invested a lot of capital in female comics since Bridesmaids broke the hairy-palmed fratboy mould of comedies that helped forge his empire. In 2015, he helped turn TV stand-up and sketch queen Amy Schumer into a film star in Trainwreck (which he produced and directed), having co-developed HBO's Girls with Lena Dunham. Bridesmaids, which he also produced, platforms the talents of Kristen Wiig and Melissa McCarthy in a rip-roaringly bawdy, foul-mouthed comedy of social manners. Its matrimonial story revolves around Wiig's dorky singleton and accident-prone maid of honour, who locks horns with the more capable Rose Byrne in the run-up to Maya Rudolph's wedding. McCarthy brings the raunchpot energy, while Chris O'Dowd plays the token likeable bloke. Further down the cast, Rebel Wilson, Terry Crews and Paul Rudd (albeit cut) did OK out of it, too. (US 2011, swearing, sexual references, HD)

DAYTIME

The Secret Garden ★★★★

10.45am-12.50pm ITV3 U

DRAMA Originally filmed in 1949, Frances Hodgson Burnett's enchanting children's classic was given a new lease of life in this imaginative adaptation by Polish film-maker Agnieszka Holland. Always a skilled director of children, she draws a spirited performance out of Kate Maberly as the orphan who sweeps away the cobwebs from Misselthwaite Manor. Scripted by Caroline Thompson (who wrote Edward Scissorhands and directed the 1994 version of Black Beauty), the film retains the gothic atmosphere of the book and looks amazing, thanks to Roger Deakins's scintillating photography. And stealing the show is Maggie Smith as beastly housekeeper Mrs Medlock. DP (US 1993, HD)

The Incredible Hulk ★★★★

1.20-3.25pm ITV 12

ADVENTURE Director Louis Leterrier pumps some adrenaline back into the Marvel character after the mixed reception that greeted Ang Lee's brooding Hulk in 2003. A typically intense Edward Norton plays Dr Bruce Banner, the scientist whose exposure to gamma rays has made him a danger to his girlfriend Betty (Liv Tyler) and a target for her dad, military honcho General Ross (a steely William Hurt). Banner is prodded into "hulking out" with satisfying frequency, but as well as delivering thumping action, the giant is sympathetic. Unlike in Lee's film, there is a real sense that Banner and the beast inhabit the same tortured mind, which makes it easier to stick with him through to the earth-shaking finale. SP (US 2008, may be edited for violence, HD)

In Which We Serve ★★★★★

1.40-3.35pm BBC2 U

WAR DRAMA This wartime propaganda film is a thinly disguised take on the maritime exploits of Lord Mountbatten. Co-directed by the debuting David Lean and Noël Coward, it has matured to become a paean to a lost world. Told in flashback, as a group of stranded sailors await rescue after the sinking of their ship, the film is immensely moving and contains definitive performances from Coward himself and Celia Johnson, all chintz, beauty and stoicism in her film debut. Watch out, too, for screen bows from Richard Attenborough, Daniel Massey and an 11-week-old Juliet Mills. A box-office hit in its day, the film was awarded a special Oscar, to Coward for his "outstanding production achievement". Preceded by Talking Pictures: Richard Attenborough. TS (UK 1942, BW, HD)

EVENING

Snow White and the Huntsman ★★★

6.25-9.00pm Film4 12

FANTASY Twilight star Kristen Stewart seems ideally cast in this gloomy retelling of the Snow White story, but Charlize Theron makes a deeper impact as the queen who wants her dead for fear of being usurped. The queen's inability to come to terms with her fading beauty makes her an interesting, tragic figure. The visuals paint a picture of a sumptuous fairy-tale world, and the dwarves (including Ray Winstone and Ian McShane) add a welcome dash of humour. The overall look is seductively stormy, but looks are skin-deep – this is just a bit of fun dressed up as something more. Showing in a double bill with sequel The Huntsman: Winter's War. SP (US 2012, edited for violence, HD)

A Surrey fairy tale, p60

Elysium ★★★

9.00-11.10pm 5STAR 15

SCI-FI South African writer/director Neill Blomkamp alerted the world to his talent in 2009 with District 9, a sci-fi thriller with a political message about a two-tier society challenged by a mechanised everyman. He followed it with more of the same, except with star names and thrice the budget, swapping a Johannesburg township for an impoverished Los Angeles barrio in 2154. The super-rich have decamped to a man-made paradise in space, and a gym-pumped Matt Damon is set on gatecrashing this tranquil utopia in full-metal armature. Despite a carefully mapped narrative, Blomkamp's stirring fable about social inequality is lost under textbook lock-and-load sci-fi bluster. AC (US 2013, violence, swearing, HD)

And Soon the Darkness ★★★

10.10pm-12.15am Talking Pictures TV 15

THRILLER The "missing person" mystery receives nerve-jangling attention in this atmospheric British chiller. Pamela Franklin and Michele Dotrice star as English nurses on a cycling holiday in rural France, whose stop-off in a local wood is a prelude to one of them disappearing. As with similarly themed thrillers like The Lady Vanishes (1938) and Changeling (2008), the frantic, isolated heroine struggles to persuade people to believe her, only here a creepy local or even a scooter-riding hunk could be a killer lurking in the area. This tale of escalating terror is well served by a taut script from small-screen pioneers Brian Clemens (The Avengers) and Terry Nation (Doctor Who). JA (UK 1970)

LATE NIGHT

While We're Young ★★★★

10.50pm-12.25am BBC2 15

COMEDY DRAMA Middle-aged anxieties are explored to amusing effect in this insightful, well-observed comedy drama from indie film-maker Noah Baumbach. The story follows the exploits of 40-something couple Ben Stiller and Naomi Watts, whose lives have become rather stale and unadventurous. Things change, however, with the arrival of Adam Driver and Amanda Seyfried, a disarming, free-spirited pair in their 20s. One or two scenes feel like they've wandered in from a slighter broader comedy, but each member of the cast is terrific – Stiller, in particular, has never been better – and the film is filled with witty exchanges. Highly recommended for anyone feeling wistful about their youth. SC (US 2014, swearing, drug abuse, HD)

Big Eyes ★★★

12.55-2.45am C4 12

DRAMA Director Tim Burton turns his sorcerer's sights on this real-life story, adding a smattering of the fantastic to a tale of fraud and female subjugation in the 1950s and 60s. Amy Adams stars as artist Margaret Keane, whose paintings of doe-eyed children were phenomenally successful, and Christoph Waltz plays her exuberant conman husband, manipulating her in order to take credit for her work. Burton's directorial style is a good visual match for the subject matter – the film has the soft, cartoonish look of one of Keane's paintings. It's also kitsch and amusing, albeit shallow, trivialising the abuse that Margaret must endure. Still, it's a fascinating story told with flair. EAS (US 2014, swearing, HD)

FILM OF THE DAY

Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone ★★★★ 6.00-9.00pm ITV2 PG

DID YOU KNOW? Rik Mayall was cast as mischievous poltergeist Peeves but didn't make the final cut, as he claimed he kept on making the kids laugh

FANTASY Rupert Grint, now aged 30, went head to head with John Malkovich in TV's The ABC Murders at Christmas; Daniel Radcliffe, 29, was last seen playing a drug-smuggling pilot in American movie Beast of Burden; and Emma Watson, 28, has replaced Emma Stone in Greta Gerwig's upcoming screen adaptation of Little Women. Not bad for a trio of stage-school brats signed at around the age of 11 to launch JK Rowling's Wizarding World. ITV2 is rolling out the series again over the next week, from the first day of term at Hogwarts to the final showdown with Voldemort. How young the three leads look in this maiden outing! And it's all so new! Platform 9¾; the rules of Quidditch; the sorting hat; the Dark Arts... hop aboard and enjoy it all over again. (US 2001, may be edited for violence, HD)

Pork Chop Hill ★★★★
2.55-5.00pm 5Spike PG

WAR This is the definitive Korean War movie from director Lewis Milestone, who dealt with the Second World War impressively in A Walk in the Sun and the First World War unforgettably in the classic All Quiet on the Western Front. Bleak and grim, it boasts a superb all-male cast headed by Gregory Peck at his glummest. Watch out for the young Martin Landau and Harry Dean Stanton (billed here as plain Dean Stanton) amid all the shrapnel. As with Milestone's other war films, the action sequences are terrific. TS (US 1959, violence, BW)

The Hunger Games ★★★★
6.15-9.00pm Film4 12

ACTION This impressive thriller is set in a future where a failed revolution has led to the creation of 12 downtrodden districts that serve a wealthy hierarchy. As penance for the uprising, every year two young people from each district fight to the death in a combat spectacle. Although pitted against stronger rivals, resourceful heroine Jennifer Lawrence fans the flames of unrest with her iron will to survive. Director Gary Ross keeps the sci-fi themes relevant and the action thrilling, while Lawrence gives a magnetic performance in the lead. The series plays out in full this week, with Catching Fire on Wednesday and Mockingjay Parts 1 and 2 on Thursday. AJ (US 2012, violence, HD)

Secret Window ★★★
8.05-9.00pm Sony Movie Channel 12

THRILLER After adapting Richard Matheson's Stir of Echoes, director David Koepp tackles Stephen King's novella Secret Window, Secret Garden with this middling psychological thriller. Johnny Depp stars as a successful author whose writer's block is nothing compared to the hell that he encounters when John Turturro accuses him of plagiarism. Although the film unfolds in a similar fashion to another King book, The Dark Half, Depp's emotional seesawing and Turturro's furrow-browed intensity are entertaining in themselves. SF (US 2004, violence, swearing)

A Civil Action ★★★
9.00-11.15pm Paramount Network 15

DRAMA John Travolta stars in this fact-based legal drama from writer/director Steven Zaillian, playing an ambulance-chasing attorney who takes on potentially lucrative cases so he can settle out of court and collect his cut. Travolta's miraculous metamorphosis from cynical manipulator to self-destructive righter of wrongs may be a little hard to swallow (even if the events did actually happen), but there's compensation to be had in the classy performances, especially from Robert Duvall as Travolta's level-headed legal opponent. JC (US 1998, edited for some of its language, violence, HD)

The Ice King ★★★★
10.00-11.25pm BBC4 12

DOCUMENTARY One Night in Turin and From the Ashes director James Erskine reinforces his reputation for sporting documentaries with this profile of Olympic figure-skating champion John Curry. Erskine barely dwells on the gold medal performance at the Innsbruck Games in 1976 before plunging into the fallout after Curry was outed as gay by a reporter who had seized upon an off-the-record remark. The rare footage attests to Curry's uniqueness as both choreographer and dancer, but the story takes a tragic turn, as Erskine explores Curry's unhappy private life and tragic early death. DP (UK 2018, HD)

Nomads ★★★ 11.00pm-12.50am
Talking Pictures TV 18

THRILLER Receiving a rare showing, this fascinating directorial debut from John McTiernan (Die Hard) bypasses the 1980s fad for excessive gore and sex, and focuses instead on atmosphere and visual scares. A pre-007 Pierce Brosnan gives a restrained performance as an anthropologist working in Los Angeles who is drawn to a gang of street punks (led by Adam Ant) who are in reality nomadic demons roaming the earth. Robert Sellers (US 1985, violence, swearing, sex scenes)

Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery ★★★★
9.00-11.00pm Comedy Central 15

COMEDY This Swinging Sixties spy spoof expertly mocks every groovy fad, psychedelic fashion and musical style of the period. Mike Myers is brilliant as the secret agent-cum-fashion photographer, cryogenically frozen so he can foil the world domination plans of his arch enemy, Dr Evil (Myers again), in the 1990s. The sequels The Spy Who Shagged Me and Goldmember are also showing over the coming nights. AJ (US 1997, swearing, nudity)

The Usual Suspects ★★★★★

11.25pm-1.35am ITV4 18

THRILLER Named after a line in Casablanca, The Usual Suspects is a crime movie that's unusual for not relying on big names to sell it. Written by Christopher McQuarrie and directed by Bryan Singer, it's one of those puzzle movies that refuses to neatly slot into place until the very last frames. Although Kevin Spacey's stock is now down, his sly performance helped nudge this cult neo-noir to must-see status in 1995, alongside similarly offbeat casting choices such as Stephen Baldwin, Gabriel Byrne and Kevin Pollak. With its unreliable narration, this is a dark tale told with mordant wit and fizzing invention. (US 1995, violence, swearing, HD)

DID YOU KNOW? Describing his character and his strange accent, Benicio Del Toro said: "I felt like he's half-German, half-Chinese and grew up in Harlem"

The World's Fastest Indian ★★★★

4.35-7.00pm AMC (Sky 192, BT 332) 12

ADVENTURE This uplifting biopic from writer/director Roger Donaldson, with an endearingly eccentric performance from Anthony Hopkins, is an inspirational portrait of ageing New Zealander Burt Munro who, in 1967, followed his dreams and became a motorcycle legend. After a lifetime of perfecting his classic Indian Twin Scout bike, the plucky pensioner travelled to the US, where he set a still unbroken, world land-speed record on Utah's famous Bonneville Salt Flats. Older viewers in particular will be charmed by the traditional values the picture extols, while the cheeky comic edge and exciting racing sequences offset any feelings that it's all just rose-tinted nostalgia. SF (NZ/US/Jpn/Swi 2005, edited for language, drug references)

The Man Inside ★★★

6.10-8.00pm Talking Pictures TV

CRIME DRAMA Old-fashioned yarn with Nigel Patrick on the lam with a priceless diamond and Hollywood hunk Jack Palance as the private eye in hot pursuit. Directed by John Gilling, it dashes from one eye-catching European capital to the next, picking up the statuesque Anita Ekberg en route. (She, in her way, is as unreal-looking as Palance.) With Anthony Newley as a Spanish cabby, Donald Pleasence as an organ grinder and Sid James as an American plain-clothes cop, the cast alone makes this worth watching, even if the plot is as old as the hills. AT (UK 1958)

50 First Dates ★★★

9.55-11.50pm 5STAR 12

ROMANTIC COMEDY This sweet comedy is a simple and undemanding story, with genuine warmth beneath the slapstick. Drew Barrymore plays a car-crash survivor whose short-term memory loss means she wakes up every morning with no knowledge of the day before. For her laid-back, would-be suitor (Adam Sandler, at his least goofy), this means repeating their first date over and over again, an amusing concept laced with poignancy. Both leads are likeable and the balance of humour and heart really lifts the film. SF (US 2004, swearing, edited for language, drug abuse, HD)

Scott Pilgrim vs the World ★★★

10.00pm-12.10am Syfy 12

COMEDY Shaun of the Dead director Edgar Wright based his Hollywood debut on a series of graphic novels. It's a wacky tale of youth angst that plays like a surreal video game, as slacker Scott (Michael Cera) does battle with the seven evil exes of new-girl-in-town Ramona Flowers (Mary Elizabeth Winstead) to win her heart. The visuals are wildly inventive and, though the fast-cutting works against the romance, it's still strangely endearing. SP (US/UK/Jpn 2010, violence, swearing, sexual references)

Calling all iPad or Android Tablet owners...

If you ever find your tablet frustrating, aren't quite sure how to do things or just think you might not be getting all you should from it, read on...

Tablets are becoming hugely popular. And no wonder - they're lighter and easier to carry around than a PC. You can sit in a comfy armchair and browse the web or even video call your family around the world.

They're easier to use than PCs in lots of ways, too.

But there's a catch. In fact, two

Catch number 1:

They're different from PCs. So if you already know how to use a PC, you have to start again.

Catch number 2 (the big one!):

There are lots of important features that are "hidden". There's no button for them, saying "click here". And you simply can't work it out. You need to know to slide the screen from the left, or drag the thingy-me-bob to the right.

Someone needs to tell you these things – it's just not possible to work it out as you wouldn't even know they're there!

If I ran the world...

If I ran the world, these devices would come with a proper manual. But when they do come with a manual, it's on the device, so you can only get at it if you already know how to use the thing! And when you do get at it, it's usually written assuming you already know how to use it - which makes it a bit pointless.

That's why I've written these books: iPads One Step at a Time and Android Tablets One Step at a Time (ideal for all Android tablets).

Plain English - that's not all...

They explain how to use the device, in plain simple language, with pictures of the screen showing exactly where to tap or slide your fingers. No jargon!

Only Half the Story...

That's only half the story, but I don't have room to explain what I mean by that here. So I've put together full information on the books - who they're for, what they cover and so on.

What's more, the books also come with a small free gift – no room to explain that here, either!

"Better than WHSmith's Best"?

As soon as these books came out, I started getting comments like...

"Thank you for producing such a superb book – it is really helping me. I had bought one (a book) in W H Smiths a short while ago and couldn't get on with it at all!" - J.S.

and "I am delighted with the new book on tablets, so many things I didn't understand before, being of the 'retired brigade' it's a great help." – Doreen Wadsworth

Don't buy now, do this instead

Anyway, don't buy now. Instead, you can find out the full details about what's covered, who they're ideal for and what you might be missing out on, then decide. Just ask for a free information pack.

FILM OF THE DAY

P The Beaver ★★★ 5.00-6.55pm Sony Movie Channel 12

COMEDY Jodie Foster directs this oddball offering, starring Mel Gibson as a depressed toy executive who begins to repair his wellbeing by using a furry puppet to speak through. Foster co-stars as his long-suffering wife, whose performance mirrors our own disquiet. Stella Papamichael (US 2010, brief swearing)

Jodie in the chair, p100

Three Cases of Murder ★★★
6.00-8.00pm Talking Pictures TV PG

MYSTERY A compendium of three tales of the not-entirely-unexpected variety, which is notable mainly for a typically larger-than-life performance from a visiting Orson Welles. He gets his teeth into the role of an aristocratic politician who undergoes a disturbing penance for a wrongdoing he perpetuated on a colleague. The other stories feature able performances from a reliable British cast including John Gregson, Elizabeth Sellars and Alan Badel. JF (UK 1953, BW)

Fools Rush In ★★★ 9.00-11.15pm True Movies (Freeview 62, Freesat 302, Sky 321, Virgin 424) 12

COMEDY Ignored on its cinema release, this romantic comedy is well worth seeking out. Friends star Matthew Perry plays a New Yorker on business in Las Vegas who has a one-night stand with a beautiful Mexican woman (Salma Hayek), only for her to reappear three months later with a baby on the way. Her traditional parents (and his snobby Wasp-ish ones) are the butt of many of the jokes, and the likeable leads make an attractive couple. It all makes for an unexpected treat. JB (US 1997, swearing)

FILM OF THE DAY

The Blues Brothers ★★★★
9.00-11.40pm ITV4 15

COMEDY It's quite hard to shake the love of a film you saw as a teenager, when devotion goes beyond critical appreciation into somewhere hormonal. Hence my own late-1970s/early-80s soft spot for Animal House, 1941, Ghost Busters and Airplane. Perhaps the most important movie was The Blues Brothers, a musical as well as comedic education. Designed as a showcase for John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd's Saturday Night Live soul revival band, it grew into a $30 million orgy of destruction. The wired Belushi was destined to burn out rather than fade away and did so, sadly, in 1982, leaving director John Landis's movie as his swansong. He's a force of nature throughout, while Aykroyd maintains a baritone cool – and the combination is unique. It's a wacky, Chicago-wrecking chase caper with evergreen musical numbers by the late, great Aretha Franklin and Cab Calloway. The teenage me is still right. (US 1980, may be edited for language, HD)

The Green Man ★★★★
2.35-4.10pm Talking Pictures TV PG

COMEDY If you ever doubted that Alastair Sim was the finest British screen comedian of the sound era, then here's the proof of his immense talent. As the assassin with the mournful smile, he gives a performance of rare genius that more than makes amends for the longueurs in the script. The sequence in which he persuades three old dears to cease their recital so that his radio bomb can finish off politician Raymond Huntley is a masterclass in the lost art of farce. Huntley also excels as the pompous target, but George Cole is overly bumbling as the vacuum-cleaner salesman who uncovers the plot. DP (UK 1956, some violence, BW)

Dodgeball: a True Underdog Story ★★★ 9.00-10.55pm Film4 12

COMEDY In this slight and silly comedy, Vince Vaughn owns a run-down gym that fitness tycoon Ben Stiller wants to buy up, and it's only by forming a dodgeball team and going to Las Vegas to win $50,000 in the national championships that Vaughn and his ragtag band of underachievers can save the day. Along the way, the team is whipped into shape by Rip Torn's insane coach ("If you can dodge a wrench, you can dodge a ball!") and challenged by a variety of bizarre opponents, including a David Hasselhoff-obsessed German team. It's even dafter than it sounds, but it also has a simple-minded charm. GM (US/Ger 2004, swearing, sexual references, HD)

Mad Max: Fury Road ★★★★
9.00-11.25pm 5STAR 15

ADVENTURE Mad Max creator George Miller brings the futuristic franchise thundering back to life, more than three decades after Mel Gibson donned the leathers. Miller puts a feminist spin on it, too, by placing Charlize Theron in the driving seat as Furiosa while Max (this time played by Tom Hardy) is her wingman. They embark on what is essentially one big, bone-rattling chase through the desert. Refreshingly, Miller keeps CGI to a minimum in favour of breathtakingly choreographed stunts, but he does exploit modern cameras to weave between vehicles as they roar, crunch and groan with thrash-metal musicality. SP (Aus/US 2015, violence, HD)

Ted ★★★★ 9.00-11.10pm ITV2 15

COMEDY Imagine Bernard Manning as a teddy bear – that's the essence of this off-the-wall and very vulgar comedy from Family Guy creator Seth McFarlane, who also provides the voice for Ted. The filth that spills from this pot-smoking bear's furry mouth is balanced by his deep devotion to his owner, a 30-something slacker played by Mark Wahlberg. The fact that Ted can walk and talk (and swear) is the least astonishing part of the story; it simply adds a hilarious twist to a conventional battle of wills between Wahlberg and girlfriend Mila Kunis over his refusal to grow up. SP (US 2012, swearing, sexual references, drug abuse, brief nudity, HD)

Copycat ★★★★
9.00-11.35pm Paramount Network 18

THRILLER In this inventive, stylish and gripping thriller, tough detective Holly Hunter teams up with agoraphobic criminal psychologist Sigourney Weaver to hunt down a serial killer who duplicates the crimes of his most notorious predecessors. Thanks to the unbearable suspense created by Jon Amiel's imaginative direction (the bathroom-set climax is a crackerjack shocker), the smart script and confident lead performances, this mimic murder mystery gives the same year's Se7en a run for its money. AJ (US 1995, violence, swearing, brief nudity, HD)

Ginger Snaps ★★★★
10.45pm-12.50am Horror Channel 18

HORROR In this highly sophisticated and disturbing Canadian horror movie, director John Fawcett transcends the banality of the werewolf formula with verve, well-paced action and genuine terror. When teenager Ginger (Katharine Isabelle) is attacked by the legendary beast, she goes from being a death-obsessed Goth to a sexually charged dominatrix. Fawcett expertly puts the werewolf myth into the tortured adolescence melting pot, and keeps the suspense high and the humour engaging, as the film hurtles to a lyrical and powerfully bleak climax. AJ (Can 2000, violence, swearing, sex scenes)

Out of office

P Searching ★★★★ 12

From Mon 7 Jan on Sky Store/Virgin Movies (also on DVD and download)

THRILLER This gripping story follows a man who is trying to find his daughter. The plot is conventional, but it unfolds in an unconventional and original way, because all we see of the daughter is her computer screen.

John Cho plays David Kim, a single father whose life is rocked by the mysterious disappearance of his teenager (Michelle La). We watch as he breaks into her laptop, makes video calls to question her friends and combs through her social media accounts for clues. This approach might sound dull and restrictive, but it works really well, and there are touches of humour (one suspect's alibi is particularly amusing) as well as some effective twists.

There are some moments that don't ring true. But mostly this is a smart film that keeps you guessing. Stephen Carty (US 2018, violence, swearing, drug references, HD)

PICK OF THE REST

P Cold War ★★★★ 15

*From Mon 7 Jan Virgin Movies

DRAMA Beginning in 1949, this story of an intense affair sees pianist Wiktor (Tomasz Kot) become smitten by the free-spirited Zula (a luminous Joanna Kulig), and their fractious romance takes them from the austerity of their Soviet-controlled homeland to bohemian 50s Paris. Director Pawel Pawlikowski's film is based on the relationship between his parents, and it's mesmerising and utterly entrancing. JA (Pol/Fr/UK 2018, swearing, HD)

...OR A NIGHT AT THE CINEMA

The Favourite ★★★★★ 15

Plenty of awards noise already for this tale of shenanigans at the court of Queen Anne (Olivia Colman). Also stars Emma Stone and Rachel Weisz.

An Impossible Love ★★★★ 15

The fraught relationship between a man, a woman and their illegitimate daughter caught in the middle.

Life Itself ★★ 15

As years pass, the ups and downs of life for former college sweethearts. Oscar Isaac and Olivia Wilde star.

Welcome to Marwen 12A

Steve Carell stars as the victim of a brutal attack who finds a therapeutic outlet by building a miniature town in his garden.

DVD OF THE WEEK

Alpha ★★★ 12 Released 7 January on DVD, Blu-ray and download

Young warrior Keda (Kodi Smit-McPhee) forms an unlikely friendship with a wolf in this prehistoric story of survival. What starts out as a standard rites-of-passage tale from director Albert Hughes becomes an elegantly told fable that infuses themes of friendship and resilience into Keda's journey. We follow our two- and four-legged heroes as they endure harsh conditions, wince-inducing injuries, and terrifying foes that threaten to cut their adventure short. Smit-McPhee is terrific in a performance that relies more on movement than dialogue, tugging at the heart strings at the right moments, and his canine co-star is adorable. James Luxford RT Offer To order the DVD for £14.99, call 0844 848 7300 (charges apply), quoting reference RT1689. TEMPERATURE FACED BY SYRIAN REFUGEES IN LEBANON, WINTER 2017.

The kit contains essentials such as a heating stove, thermal blankets and a tarpaulin for insulation. It could mean survival for a family like Khitam's.

Across Lebanon and Jordan, six of the last seven winters have brought heavy snowfall and temperatures regularly drop below 0°C.

This winter, the lives of the most vulnerable refugees: young children, pregnant women and the elderly, are at grave risk from hypothermia, frostbite and diseases like pneumonia.

ALISON GRAHAM
PPA COLUMNIST OF THE YEAR

Leave Milly alone

Manhunt is a good drama but it's too soon, says Alison Graham

DEADLY PURSUIT
Martin Clunes plays DCI Colin Sutton in the ITV drama Manhunt

THERE ARE SOME names that we all know. They are the victims of crimes that convulsed the nation, that made us all turn a harsh and piercing spot-lit glare upon ourselves. The result, often, is that as a society we have been found wanting.

These are, invariably, the names of children and young people... Stephen Lawrence, James Bulger and Milly Dowler. I feel considerable conflict and unease at mentioning Milly's name. She was a 14-year-old girl not only robbed of her life, her dreams and her promise by the man who murdered her, Levi Bellfield, but she was also robbed in death of every last vestige of her privacy when her diaries were read out at her killer's trial.

Her family suffered and continues to suffer incalculably after losing her in the most brutally arbitrary way imaginable. They faced hideous indignities at Bellfield's trial and it would later emerge that blameless Milly was at the epicentre of the phone hacking scandal that changed the face of newspaper reporting in Britain.

But there you go, I'm doing it, I'm bringing up Milly Dowler's name, which shouldn't be bandied about by strangers like me, it should be left quietly with her family, to treasure.

I hope, though, that my reason for doing so is a valid one – the arrival on ITV this week of Manhunt, Ed Whitmore's three-part drama (Sunday to Tuesday) based on the memoirs of the detective, Colin Sutton, who linked Bellfield with the 2002 murder of Milly as he investigated the murder of French student Amélie Delagrange. Amélie was attacked on Twickenham Green in south London in 2004 as she walked home after a night out.

MANHUNT IS REALLY very good, Whitmore has deliberately made sure that he didn't write a thriller (see our feature on page 21) and the entire three hours are understated in the best sense. It actually feels like an authentic police procedural as Sutton (Martin Clunes, who is excellent) and his team become embroiled in a complex inquiry based on hard slog – combing hours and hours of CCTV, checking thousands of vehicles, going through statements.

'Some things just can't be touched and made entertainment'

So this is my problem – Manhunt is a good drama made with the utmost respect for the real-life victims and their families. But I feel that despite all of this it's simply too soon, even though we are 16 years on, to insert the name of a young girl who harmed no one and who became a totem for so much she never asked for, into a drama. Maybe the time will never be right.

Some things just can't be touched and made entertainment, because that's what dramas are. It took more than 40 years before television drama was prepared to go near the Moors Murderers Ian Brady and Myra Hindley with See No Evil in 2008 and looking back now I think those killings, which still hang over this country, should have been left alone.

Similarly, Appropriate Adult, about the Fred and Rose West murders in Gloucester, was a good piece of drama, but it simply couldn't get anywhere near the scale of depravity and horror inflicted by those two on their victims. If you can't paint the truest of true pictures, then what's the point?

Milly should be left quietly to her family. Although she's by no means at the centre of Manhunt, she's a vital, unseen figure who is much discussed. I just feel that it's simply wrong to put the name of a girl about whom we already know so much that we are not entitled to know, into a primetime drama.

OLD NEWS IS GOOD NEWS?

You'd think BBC News had more than enough actual proper news to fill its various bulletins without needing the padding of a few big plugs for a film. Yet there were lengthy items about Mary Queen of Scots on the Today programme (twice within a week) and the BBC News at ten o'clock.

Presumably the attention is because Mary Queen of Scots is an historical figure and not an action hero saving the universe, so news programmes can pretend there's some sort of relevance and seriousness. But there isn't. A new film isn't news, it's showbiz.

5 Peaky Blinders

Netflix

The inter-war gangster drama was on its finest form yet in its fourth series, which aired on BBC2 last year and has now joined Netflix. Cillian Murphy's mercurial Birmingham mob boss Tommy Shelby found himself in a deadly war with his New York counterparts, while at the same time dabbling in boxing promotion and dealing with the usual betrayals, sudden deaths and Tom Hardy's avowed intention to steal every scene. Majestic.

2 Tidying Up with Marie Kondo

Netflix

Four years ago, Japanese lifestyle guru Marie Kondo became the flavour of the middle-class month with her divisive bestseller The Life-Changing Magic of Tidying Up. Now she takes her mantras about jettisoning objects that bring no joy to America, and a series of families for whom clutter is causing emotional issues.

Available from 1 January

THE ULTIMATE STAND-UP SHOW?

6 Comedians of the World

Netflix

Netflix already deserves credit for the ethnic and gender diversity of its stand-up comedy specials: now that goes up a gear, with a new showcase featuring 47 comedians from 13 regions in eight different languages. Representing Britain are Nish Kumar, Joel Dommett, Mae Martin and Ellie Taylor.

Available from 1 January

LIVE IN CONCERT

3 Taylor Swift: Reputation

Netflix

Colossal pop spectacle combines with intimate singer-songwriterly performance on guitar and piano, in an impressive film shot in Dallas on Swift's 2018 global stadium mega-tour.

Available from 31 December

TAKE A TRIP

4 Britain by Boat

My5 (Channel 5)

Old BBC muckers Michael Buerk and John Sergeant make for a pleasantly matey duo as they vaguely help to steer a 50-foot yacht around some of Britain's coast, from Suffolk to Cornwall, concentrating more on anecdotes and light banter than they do sailing. A relaxing jaunt backed by superlative scenery.

TOUGH EURO-DRAMA

7 Point Blank

Walter Presents

Told in two taut parts, this German cop drama follows an undercover officer sent to infiltrate a betting syndicate. When he does too good a job of befriending the vulnerable nephew of the Serbian crime lord he's tasked with bringing down, some awful dilemmas loom and there's a gripping feeling of events spiralling out of control. Also on Walter Presents from Germany is Deadly Money, a thriller set within the financial sector.

ROM-COM, FRENCH STYLE

8 The Hook Up Plan

Netflix

A delightful French comedy drama about a romantically self-destructive Parisian woman whose more daring friend, to the shock of the pregnant/burdened third pal in their gang, sets her up with an escort. Naturally the hired man turns out to be a potential Mr Right, leading to naughty but essentially fluffy romcom shenanigans. An ideal wintry binge. And yes, the Chris Lang credited as series creator is the British writer who did Unforgotten.

SEE ALL THREE EPISODES

9 Death and Nightingales

iPlayer (BBC2)

Allan Cubitt, creator of The Fall, helms this dramatisation of Eugene McCabe's novel, set in 19th-century rural Ireland. Ann Skelly is the woman who sees a way out of her miserable existence, trapped with a drunken stepfather (Matthew Rhys), when her eyes settle on a handsome tenant farmer (Jamie Dornan). Fine performances and a misty, brooding tone overcome the stateliness of the storytelling.
Available until 11 January

10 Mrs Wilson

OUTSTANDING DRAMA

iPlayer (BBC1)

Telling her family's real story – she's playing her own grandmother – brings an even more powerful performance than usual out of Ruth Wilson, as the incredible tale of a double (triple, quadruple...) life, and the emotional consequences for all involved, unravels in a moodily realised 1940s and 60s.
Available until 10 January

YOUR NEXT BINGE

Who says there is nothing funny about death?

The first series of the aterlife-based sitcom The Good Place is now airing on E4, but it's worth heading over to Netflix and catching up with the whole thing because it gets so much weirder – and better.

After leaving behind the pastel perfection of the titular Good Place they resided in for two series, the third run of episodes has found our deceased heroes – Kristen Bell's shady call-centre worker Eleanor (pictured above), William Jackson Harper's ethics professor Chidi, Jameela Jamil's heiress Tahani and Manny Jacinto's lovable idiot Jason – brought back to life and on Earth, with no memory of their previous adventures as they're watched over by divine beings Michael (Ted Danson) and Janet (D'Arcy Carden).

As has regularly happened every time this show gets into a groove, though, it's not long before that set-up is imploded as "Team Cockroach" find each other again, travel the world and beyond and face more existential questions about life, death, "goodness" and the nature of time itself (it's neither cyclical or linear, it turns out, instead forming a twisted shape that spells out the words "Jeremy Bearimy").

To say much more would give away a lot of brilliant plot twists (and how many comedies can you say that about?), but the whole thing culminates in a superb episode where nearly the entire cast is played by Carden's Janet in different outfits, while Ted Danson has an intense argument about morality with The Office's Stephen Merchant – just one of several excellent guest stars in series three.

The Good Place continues to be the most imaginative, thoughtful, moving, educational (thanks to Chidi's regular ethics lessons) and downright funny comedy out there. With a fourth run already confirmed, I can't wait to see where it goes next. HUW FULLERTON

DOCTOR DIGITAL

Make some tech resolutions

A new year is a new chance to make your tech life healthier.

Smartphone overload is making us sad. Consider deleting your social media apps: it's drastic, but Facebook and Twitter are easily accessible through your internet browser, and that won't badger you with notifications. Doctor Digital has taken the further step of deleting the email app from his phone, only checking messages on his laptop. It sets boundaries between work and free time.

Next, look at your phone's wellbeing settings (Settings – Screen Time on iOS; Settings – Do Not Disturb on Android). These let you set limits on how much you can use certain apps, and Android in particular has some clever options. "Wind Down" slowly desaturates and dims your screen as you get closer to bedtime.

But your phone can make you healthier. For example, the app Zombies, Run! (free, with additional story purchases) combines a run tracker with pulse-quickening storylines to turn you into the hero of a horror movie.

And finally, yes, you really do need to change your passwords. Hackers can guess your pet's name in 0.1 seconds, and it's as easy as using the "suggested password" option when it appears on your phone. Don't leave it until 2020! JONATHAN HOLMES

SATURDAY Choices The pick of today's TV

BEST FEET FORWARD
Matthew Morrison, Cheryl and Oti Mabuse help to find the greatest dancer. Alesha Dixon and Jordan Banjo (behind) host

PICK OF THE DAY The Greatest Dancer 8.00pm BBC1

ENTERTAINMENT New series Strictly Come Dancing professional Oti Mabuse (a revelation here), pop star Cheryl (trained in ballet, tap, modern, jazz, no less) and former Glee actor and Broadway star Matthew Morrison head up this new hunt for the country's best dance talent.

The trio are billed as "dance captains" and not – repeat, not – judges. This is because the contestants perform behind a walled screen and their fate is in the hands of the studio audience, who vote via keypads for their favourites. Win 75 per cent or more of the audience vote, and the doors open, meaning they're through to the next round (this all makes sense when you watch it).

A full-bodied odour of The X Factor and Britain's Got Talent lingers in the air, owing to the fact that Syco – Simon Cowell's TV production company – has made The Greatest Dancer for the BBC. This means that, yes, there are inane staged comments from the audience and emotion is wrung from every conceivable source. But it's also a fun, slick, and well-produced entertainment show that has the potential to be a hit. FRANCES TAYLOR

FA Cup Third Round

From 12 noon BT Sport 2

SPORT The FA Cup third round is all over the place this weekend, with just ten out of the 32 fixtures kicking off at the "traditional" time of 3pm on a Saturday.

Manchester United v Reading (k/o 12.30pm) starts things off. If the tie sounds familiar it's because these two last met in the third round in 2017. United came through easily as 4–0 winners that year; by contrast, nothing feels easy for the club under José Mourinho this season. After that it's Arsenal's turn to try to avoid a giant killing, with what could be an awkward away tie (k/o 5.30pm).

Match of the Day has all the highlights of today's fixtures at 10.20pm on BBC1. JAMES GILL

Sport: page 29

Pointless Celebrities

6.10pm BBC1

QUIZ At first glance, it looks like a real ragbag of celebs this week. There are sportsmen and women, Doctor Who assistants, soap stars, a news presenter and a comedian.

But we're promised a battle of the titans because two – Shaun Williamson and Bonnie Langford – have done rather well previously. And indeed, there are impressively low scores in the geography round, with a total of 22 points scored between the three competing teams. Not bad considering there were only three pointless answers possible.

Shakespearean plays, human biology and songs about rain are among the other subjects testing their knowledge of the obscure. JANE RACKHAM

Michael McIntyre's Big Show

7.00pm BBC1

ENTERTAINMENT One of these days, surely, Michael McIntyre will be greeted with an expletive from a sleep-befuddled victim when he surprises them with his Midnight Gameshow? Not from Peter Andre though. Although he can barely keep his eyes open, he's a remarkably good sport: politely offering everyone coffee and worrying what's happened to H from Steps.

Also suffering at McIntyre's hands tonight is Cheryl, who bravely gives him her mobile for the Send to All segment. I'm never sure which is more entertaining: learning who's in the celebrity's contacts list or hearing the totally serious responses to the outrageous text McIntyre sends. JR

Tony Robinson's Time Travels

7.00pm Channel 5

HISTORY "I want to shine a light on the moments when history changed for ever," explains Tony Robinson before fast-forwarding through all sorts of important places, events and periods. It's a blink-and-you'll-miss-it history lesson as he zips through stories of oppression, injustice and discrimination and the rebels who made a stand against them.

In the twinkling of an eye he moves from Queen Boudicca's violent rebellion against the invading Romans in AD 60 to Kate Sheppard's campaign to win women the vote in New Zealand in the 1880s and the site of the first gun shot to be fired just two hours after war was declared in 1914. JR

FA CUP COVERAGE

■ FA Cup matches are being broadcast on either the BBC or BT Sport this season. For those with a BT Sport subscription, BT Sport 2 is the go-to channel, with live matches and highlights throughout the weekend.

■ A preview of today's matches, including Manchester United v Reading and Arsenal's away tie, will air at 12 noon today with Football Focus on BBC1, while the results as they come in will be rounded up during Final Score (4pm BBC1) and, in Scotland, on Sportscene Results (4.30pm). There will also be highlights on Match of the Day at 10.20pm on BBC1.

■ Sunday, too, has Newport County v Leicester City live on BBC1 (4.05pm) and third-round highlights on Match of the Day (10.30pm BBC1) including Manchester City v Rotherham United. Meanwhile on Monday, there's live coverage of Wolves v Liverpool at 7.30pm on BBC1. FT

The Voice UK

8.00pm ITV

ENTERTAINMENT Your starter for ten... name a previous winner of The Voice UK. It's a strange phenomenon that despite an average of more than five million people tuning in each week to the TV talent show, the eventual champ is perennially forgettable. Incidentally, it was Ruti Olajugbagbe who sang her way to victory last year.

A new consignment of hopefuls step up in tonight's first blind auditions with the dream that they, too, could squeeze a number 14 in the charts – just like Ruti. Returning coaches Tom Jones, Will.i.am, Jennifer Hudson and Olly Murs are poised, hovering over that red button to spin their chairs for the auditioning vocalists who captivate and fascinate. FT

Cutty Sark: 150 Years of War and Speed

9.00pm Channel 5

DOCUMENTARY There's one difficulty with Rob Bell's portrait of a great ship. He's good at pacing the decks of Cutty Sark – now rebuilt after the 2007 fire and berthed at a beautiful museum in Greenwich – telling stories from its past. But however vivid a picture he paints of the great days of sailing, this is TV, so we can't help wanting to see what a tea clipper looks like flying along in a stiff breeze. And we can't, because there's no footage.

So, when Bell tells us the ship at its fastest could cover 300 miles in a day, running across the South Pacific with a cargo of Australian wool, we just have to use our imaginations. It's still a stirring story of "the most beautiful sailing ship ever built". DAVID BUTCHER DRAMA Discipline among the staff at Holby hospital is abysmal. New nurse Jade is lazy, stupid and insubordinate, while her fellow newbie Marty makes inappropriate jokes in front of gravely sick patients. I blame Louise, she hired both of these halfwits.

Casualty

9.10pm BBC1

Then there's Iain, the lost soul, the deflating balloon bouncing along in the gutter, seeking redemption and at the same time mortification as he struggles with the death of drug addict Mia. Tonight, he picks a fight with a total stranger in a pub and gives him a right old pasting. Iain, you should be sacked.

It's probably best to concentrate on Charlie and Duffy, two people with a sense of duty who are both in crisis. ALISON GRAHAM TV EDITOR

FACE OFF

Black Lake

9.00pm, 9.45pm BBC4

DRAMA This has to be the oddest, most sinister team-building course: a group of damaged misfits deliberately marooned on an island where they are at the mercy of Uno (Andre Eriksen), the narcissistic leader who bullies, provokes and exploits the emotionally vulnerable.

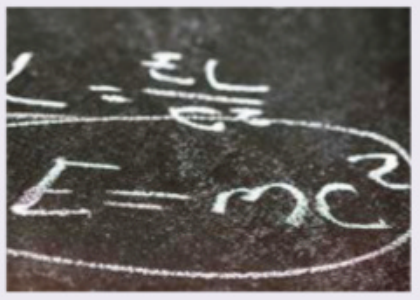

He's taking a particularly unhealthy interest in poor Minnie, a recovering addict who is at the centre of what seems to be paranormal attention from the woman who went missing on the previous year's jaunt.

It's all great fun, of course: Black Lake has just about enough deliciously cheap horror moments – photos leaping from walls, static, flickering lights, a locked room – to keep things ticking along nicely.

In the latest double instalment of the Scandi drama the little group must trail behind the unspeakable Uno, who's driving wedges between the participants, as he takes them on the hike from hell. AG

iPlayer (expires today)

A science doc with a difference, in that it's presented by art critic Matthew Collings. Freely admitting that he knows essentially nothing about the subject at hand, Collings proves to be the ideal layman to look anew at Einstein's theory of relativity and Newton's law of gravity, while identifying the importance of simplicity and elegance in the equations that stick with us. First shown in 2010.

A rocky horror story

P Paranormal Activity: the Marked Ones ★★★
11.40pm Film4 FREEVIEW

Oren Peli wrote, directed, produced and edited the original Paranormal Activity for $15,000 in 2007. It made $193 million, becoming arguably the most profitable film of all time. The franchise now runs to six films (2014's The Marked Ones, showing tonight, is the fifth) with Peli now taking a producer role. Despite his horror credentials, Peli told the Guardian that watching The Exorcist, aged 11, scared him so much he couldn't even watch Ghost Busters. "I didn't see another horror film until I was in my 20s," he said. ANDREW COLLINS

iPlayer cartoon catch-up

Don't worry if you missed some of the BBC's animated entertainment over Christmas, as iPlayer is keeping the party going with extended runs of the cartoon fun. You'll need to hurry to catch Chicken Run, though, as it leaves the service today. How to Train Your Dragon is available until tomorrow, The Croods departs Monday, and those Penguins of Madagascar (pictured) are hanging in there till Tuesday. You can enjoy Shaun the Sheep Movie and the Wallace and Gromit shorts through most of January, however – and there aren't many festive treats that last that long. TOM FOLLEY

More than a game

P Truth or Dare ★★
10.00pm Sky Premiere

Spring break in Mexico takes a deadly turn for six students after they are conned into playing a supernatural version of the game Truth or Dare. Jeff Wadlow's horror movie is not particularly scary and covers no new ground, while the ludicrous plot twists will dare you to laugh, not scream. ALAN JONES

SUNDAY Choices The pick of today's TV

LOOKING FOR CLUES
DCI Colin Sutton (Martin Clunes) is hunting the killer of a young woman

PICK OF THE DAY

Manhunt 9.00pm ITV

DRAMA OF THE WEEK New series Martin Clunes shrugs off his comedy persona to become real-life detective Colin Sutton, whose dogged work and attention to detail would, eventually, lead to the conviction of the man who murdered young Milly Dowler. But the investigation doesn't begin with Milly, it starts with French student Amélie Delagrange, who was murdered on Twickenham Green in south London in 2004.

It's Sutton's first big case as senior investigating officer, and it could make his career. So the pressures are fierce, from his own boss, from a restless, increasingly angry press and from worried locals.

Clunes is excellent and Ed Whitmore's script is sharp, deliberate and respectful, though whether it's simply too soon to include Milly Dowler, albeit tangentially, in a drama, is open to debate (see my column on page 39). Manhunt continues tomorrow and concludes on Tuesday.

ALISON GRAHAM

See feature: page 21

Dancing on Ice

6.00pm ITV

ENTERTAINMENT Dancing on Ice does a half-decent job of scratching that glitterball-sized itch left behind after Christmas. This year there are a few cheeky nods to Strictly Come Dancing, with both Pussycat Doll Melody Thornton (wonder where they got that idea?) and former Strictly professional James Jordan signed up to compete.

As ever, the contestants are a motley crew. There are soap stars in Corrie's Jane Danson, Neighbours' Mark Little and EastEnders' Richard Blackwood, along with singers Saara Aalto (X Factor 2016 finalist) and Westlife's Brian McFadden. But most bizarrely brilliant of the lot is Didi Conn. Yes, Frenchie from Grease is doing Dancing on Ice. FRANCES TAYLOR

Countryfile

7.00pm BBC1

FACTUAL You only need to have caught one episode of Channel 5's The Yorkshire Vet to know that it's tough being a rural vet. So, unsurprisingly, many vets would rather not be routinely called out to some muddy farm in the middle of a freezing cold night to help a cow calve, preferring to work regular hours in a warm veterinary practice treating domestic pets.

Adam Henson explores the pressures of being a rural vet during the winter months and, if you've still not had your fill of all things veterinary, Tuesday's The Yorkshire Vet (8pm Channel 5) marks the 40th anniversary of the start of All Creatures Great and Small on TV. JANE RACKHAM

Antiques Roadshow

8.00pm BBC1

ENTERTAINMENT Art dealer Philip Mould must have wondered if he was on Fake or Fortune? rather than the Roadshow this week, because he's presented with two unknown paintings by Diego Rivera. However, it's not the first time the Roadshow has seen the Mexican artist's work – one turned up on the American version of the show and was valued at $2 million.

It's a day of surprises at Eltham Palace in south London, with Hilary Kay delighted by a collection of Gerry Anderson puppets and Justin Croft intrigued by letters written by an Army officer who'd been held by the IRA, while Ronnie Archer-Morgan is thrilled to see a perfectly preserved mammoth tooth. JR

George Clarke's Amazing Spaces

8.00pm C4

PROPERTY If you know what a Morris Minor looks like, you might not believe it's big enough to have a camper-van body grafted onto the back. But this show is all about small designs with big ambition, and in the series-eight opener George Clarke meets Claire in east London who, having bought a Morris Minor caravanette, discovers it will need rebuilding from scratch.

Clarke and his chum Will Hardie have similar plans for the rusty shell of a 1970s builders' van, which they set about transforming into a luxury camper. Meanwhile, we meet Simon, who hopes to convert a railway cattle carriage into a mobile holiday home for his mum. DAVID BUTCHER

RON COOK'S TV CV

Veteran character actor Ron Cook is almost unrecognisable in Les Misérables (9pm BBC1) playing a sinister cameo identified in the credits only as "Hair and teeth dealer"... but he will be more familiar to viewers from his roles in dramas such as Mr Selfridge (above right), Mrs Biggs and Vera, as well as Waking the Dead, Little Dorrit and last year's mini-series The City and the City.

Cook's acting prowess was first spotted by his school's headmaster, who encouraged him to apply to drama school. "I'd never thought about being an actor, so I was very lucky," notes the 70-year-old, whose first major TV role was in 1978's Will Shakespeare alongside Tim Curry.

"People often ask me if there are any characters I still want to play but I don't really look at it that way," he reflected in 2008. "I'm not ticking them off. Different things come up at different times and you never know what's coming. I never plan anything." FT

Cities: Nature's New Wild

9.00pm BBC2

NATURE The second episode looks at animals who "commute" from the wild suburbs into big cities. And, though the commuting analogy is pushed to exhaustion, it's still a charming look at creatures who share space with humans.

It's incongruous to see African penguins waddling along a road in Cape Town, where they are fed by kindly locals, though the people of Aspen in Colorado aren't entirely welcoming of the black bears who upturn their bins and live under their houses in cosy crawl spaces.

Meanwhile, in St Lucia in South Africa, night-vision cameras catch the glowing hulks of hippos as they head into town... AG

Semi-Detached

10.00pm BBC2

SITCOM This is a curiosity – a 20-minute comedy pilot packed with wacky characters and wackier plot developments. Lee Mack plays Stuart, a wedding DJ whose girlfriend April has just gone into labour. When he seeks help from his neighbour (Patrick Baladi), Stuart finds him naked in the garden, having accidentally severed his thumb.

Another neighbour, Barry (Geoff McGivern), tries to help, while ex-wife Kate (Samantha Spiro) tends to the understandably tense April ("I can't find my good place! I can't find my good place!" she wails). There are a few choice moments as the frantic farce unfolds in real time, like 24 crossed with The Worst Week of My Life. DB

The James Corden Story

10.00pm Channel 5

DOCUMENTARY How did a chubby lad from High Wycombe end up as a chat-show host able to persuade Michelle Obama, Paul McCartney and Adele to sing along with him in a car?

This enjoyable clip 'n' comment profile of James Corden takes us through his early career when, as a teenager, he "bristled with confidence" in Hollyoaks and Tango ads before his triumphant role in Alan Bennett's The History Boys. There were mistakes and career dips, of course, but the critics – including RT's Tim Glanfield and Andrew Collins – speak adoringly of the award-winning Gavin & Stacey, a segment of which inspired his brilliantly clever and mega-viewed Carpool Karaoke. JR

HERE'S MRS T
The unscrupulous Mme Thénardier (Olivia Colman)

Les Misérables

9.00pm BBC1

DRAMA A few years have passed since the end of last week's episode. Poor, abandoned Fantine (Lily Collins) is walking the roads of France when she meets an innkeeper's wife who offers to take care of her child.

The fact that Madame Thénardier is played by Olivia Colman is welcome news for this sturdy dramatisation: Colman breathes life into each scene she's in, and although she's not exactly comic relief, she's some kind of relief as the plot rains misery on Fantine and the other leads.

In theory, ex-convict Jean Valjean (Dominic West) has gone up in the world. He has changed his name and become mayor of Montreuil, where Fantine fetches up to find work at his factory. But Javert (David Oyelowo) also arrives as chief of police, and his obsession with justice will prove bad news for both of them. DAVID BUTCHER

Roxy Music: a Musical History

iPlayer (expires today)

Don't mistake this for a proper rockumentary, of the kind we've been spoilt with for years on BBC4: it's a relatively cheap mash of clips and celebrity talking heads, with some of the latter hived off from the recent sofa-bound ... And Beyond series. Only patchily insightful as it is, though, it's still a big bundle of footage of Roxy Music doing their fabulous thing.

9.10 A Very British Deterrent
Drama documentary exploring the history of Britain's nuclear deterrent, based on declassified top secret files and expert testimonies. The film focuses on tense events during the Cold War, when a series of political crises left the UK without any nuclear weapons. Prime Minister Harold MacMillan was determined that Britain should remain a nuclear power, and was prepared to jeopardise the UK's relationship with the US for the sake of independence. Includes reconstructions starring Simon Williams as MacMillan and Timothy Wallers as Lord Mountbatten.
Director Colin Murray; Executive producer Jo Roe

A Surrey fairy tale

Snow White and the Huntsman/The Huntsman: Winter's War ★★★ from 6.25pm Film4 FREEVIEW

This fantasy double bill is a feast for the eyes, combining CGI with stunning British locations. For the first film (review, p33), the production crew spent two and a half months building a whole fishing village on a pond in Surrey – and then proceeded to burn it down. This wasn't as easy as it sounds, given that the pond in Frensham is both an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty and a Special Site of Scientific Interest. Suffice to say, no newts were harmed. BEN BAILEY

Happy birthday, Rowan!

Mr Bean's Holiday ★★★ 6.25pm Sky Comedy

Many rubbery returns to Rowan Atkinson, who turns 64 today. To celebrate you can enjoy Mr Bean's Holiday, which showcases the comedic Esperanto at which Atkinson excels. Having also branched into animation with 52 cartoon episodes of Bean for CITV, he appears in grander animated form in The Lion King (Sky Disney), voicing Zazu the hornbill in his own inimitably officious style. Many of us will always regard him as a TV superstar – and after Johnny English Reborn, maybe he'll be back. ANDREW COLLINS

Monster laughs

Young Frankenstein
★★★★★ BBC iPlayer

Mel Brooks's loopy send-up of classic chiller clichés is available on catch-up until Tuesday. Shot on sets used in the 1931 original Frankenstein, this loving homage has wonderful performances from Gene Wilder, Madeleine Kahn and Marty Feldman. It's also frightfully funny.

MONDAY Choices The pick of today's TV

TAKING BACK CONTROL
Benedict Cumberbatch plays Leave campaigner Dominic Cummings

PICK OF THE DAY

Brexit: the Uncivil War 9.00pm C4

DRAMA Dominic Cummings is not a household name, but he should be. He was the "career sociopath" who led the Vote Leave campaign to victory in the 2016 Brexit referendum, and this is the inside story of that campaign, with Benedict Cumberbatch, who knows a thing or two about playing cerebral, as Cummings. His Cummings is always the smartest guy in the room, "an egotist with a wrecking ball" as Remain campaigner Craig Oliver (Rory Kinnear) calls him – or, if you like, Sherlock without the charm.

We follow Cummings's reluctant recruitment to the cause, the evolution of his "Take Back Control" slogan (inspired partly by a childcare book) and his clashes with Euro-sceptic MPs, whom he despised.

Much of the action plays as quick-fire tragicomedy, a whistle-stop tour of how complacency and clever tech released demons the political class is still trying to re-bottle. It doesn't make for cheery viewing. DAVID BUTCHER

See feature: page 18

Father Brown

2.15pm BBC1

DAYTIME CHOICE A new series of the murder mysteries based on GK Chesterton's sleuthing priest gets off to a dramatic start when Mrs McCarthy (Sorcha Cusack) and Lady Felicia (Nancy Carroll) are taken hostage during a bungled train robbery. However, these crooks are quite inept and it's evidently a put-up job.

The plot bears little examination but no matter; it's as entertaining as ever, while the conclusion – with Father Brown (Mark Williams) triumphantly solving the case – is reasonably satisfying. There are plenty of familiar faces among the cast to challenge viewers' TV trivia knowledge, including Olivia Hallinan and Jack Carroll. JANE RACKHAM

Great Alaskan Railroad Journeys

6.30pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY New series

Once again Michael Portillo is greeted with the utmost cheer and courtesy wherever he goes. On his latest jaunt he's in the small Alaskan town of Ninilchik. He meets Nina, the delightful owner of the local Russian café, who, for the required Michael Looks Silly sequence, makes him wear a fur hat and an alarmingly shiny pink silk top, before getting him to pose for a photo in front of a huge Russian nesting doll.

These are small moments in a land of BIG scenery. Even the windows of the trains Portillo travels on are enormous, allowing full-on views of vast lakes and forests. Nightly until Friday. ALISON GRAHAM

Only Connect

8.00pm BBC2

QUIZ Can you be too clever for Only Connect? Impossible, you might think. But one team here seems to have a habit of hovering around an answer, overthinking their response and failing to grasp the salient fact that will snare them the point.

A pity, but Victoria Coren Mitchell does her best to keep spirits high by channelling some other famous TV quiz shows. Check out her Countdown riff as she explains a tricky number-related puzzle and note the moment she releases her inner QI by revealing that the origins of a classic school-playground taunt lie in the poetry of William Blake. Here's hoping we get a homage to The Chase next week.

How to Lose Weight Well

8.00pm C4

FOOD Another diverting series where folk road-test a variety of diets and we see what works. Answer: all of them, but to varying degrees. The biggest surprise comes from the daftest sounding regime – the potato diet, where you eat nothing but spuds, boiled, baked or mashed (but no chips), for a week. As crash diets go, it's crashingly dull but it does seem to work for guinea pig Caroline, whereas her sister has less joy eating cabbage soup for a week.

Presenter Xand van Tulleken (him again) sees if swallowing sweetcorn without chewing is the answer and Dr Helen Lawal looks at the role our eyes play: why do we eat less when it's pitch dark? DAVID BUTCHER

Is it just me or is Emmerdale (7pm ITV) acting like it's 1996? First, we had Kim Tate turning up to dole out some bitchy putdowns. Now, Mandy Dingle (Lisa Riley, right) bursts through the door in the middle of Marlon's latest wedding ceremony. What next? Dave Glover returning from the dead? Babylon Zoo back at number one? As you'd expect, Mandy isn't going to be a wallflower at the celebrations – in fact, by close of play all hell has broken loose and she's been attacked by Chas.

TODAY IN SOAPLAND

Wishing Well Cottage is also the scene of drama when Belle receives a delivery of dead flowers. It sounds to me like the kind of romantic gesture that twisted teen Lachlan could make...

There now follows a public information broadcast: EastEnders is not on tonight due to Match of the Day Live. Instead, there are episodes on Tuesday (7.30pm) and Thursday (7.30pm), as well as a double bill on Friday (8pm and 9pm). Rest assured, you won't be missing out. DAVID BROWN

Manhunt

9.00pm ITV

DRAMA The team investigating the murder of French student Amélie Delagrange have identified a strong suspect, Levi Bellfield, after a former partner comes forward with evidence of his hatred of women, particularly young blondes. There are links, too, with the murder of another young victim, Marsha McDonnell.

Again, Milly Dowler's name comes up in connection with the inquiry but officers still have a long way to go in building a case against Bellfield and must trawl through hours and hours of CCTV footage trying to identify vehicles owned by the suspect.

Meanwhile, DCI Colin Sutton's (Martin Clunes) domestic life suffers as he becomes consumed by the case. Manhunt concludes tomorrow. AG

Chris Tarrant: Extreme Railway Journeys

9.00pm Channel 5

DOCUMENTARY While Michael Portillo tours Alaska for BBC2, his rival railway nut Chris Tarrant is in the Alps. On a series of increasingly steep and boldly engineered lines, Tarrant rattles off altitudes and mileages and dates with blokeish enthusiasm, while admiring views any chocolate box would be proud of.

It's all picturesque and informative, as you'd expect, taking in splendid place names such as Bludenz and Chur, and with a stop-off at St Moritz. At the climax, Tarrant gingerly steps onto a snowy ledge from which tunnellers used to hurl their bored-out rock down the side of the Eiger. It must be the most terrifying access hatch in the world. DAVID BUTCHER

Two Doors Down

10.00pm BBC2 (N Ireland: 11.15pm)

SITCOM Simon Carlyle and Gregor Sharp have been writing their eccentric suburban sitcom long enough to know what works best and, for the opener of series four, they're on prize form. The premise is almost always the same: easy-going Beth and Eric (Arabella Weir and Alex Norton) host a gathering of their noisy neighbours that starts convivial but turns ugly.

Tonight, the occasion is a surprise wedding-anniversary party and the way it degenerates is plotted in beautifully judged steps, with chief antagonist Cathy (Doon MacKichan) wafting her vaping pen like a witch's wand and sewing dissent all around. Perhaps a game of Mr & Mrs wasn't the best idea? DAVID BUTCHER

GUILTY
Russell Bishop evaded justice for 32 years after killing two nine-year-old girls in 1986

The Babes in the Wood Murders: the Prosecutors

9.00pm BBC2 (Scotland: 11.15pm)

DOCUMENTARY OF THE WEEK

Some 32 years after nine-year-old friends Nicola Fellows and Karen Hadaway were sexually assaulted and murdered, their families finally found the justice they sought. Russell Bishop was tried for a second time for the killings – he was acquitted in 1987 but found guilty in December, thanks to enormous leaps in scientific investigation.

Cameras followed police, Crown Prosecution Service solicitors and those closest to the girls for two years after Bishop was arrested and re-interviewed when the case was reopened. He maintained that he had nothing to do with the murders. But a speck of his DNA on Karen's left forearm tied him to the killings.

It's a fascinating story that never forgets Nicola and Karen, and the testimony from their surviving parents is heartbreaking. AG

Barbra Streisand: Becoming an Icon

iPlayer (expires today)

Streisand's origin story is the equal of any fictional rags-to-riches tale, as shown by this justifiably excitable profile. Following her from her impoverished childhood in Brooklyn, New York (long before it was cool), it lauds her stratospheric ambition and status as a gender pioneer. Feminist writer Camille Paglia offers bold but nourishing comment on the latter point.

7.30 FA Cup Match of the Day Live
Wolverhampton Wanderers v Liverpool
The third round brings the Premier League and Championship teams into the competition and tonight's all-Premier League clash at Molineux could well be the pick of the bunch (kick-off 7.45).
Liverpool have a solid history in the Cup, having won it seven times in just over 50 years. Their last victory came against West Ham in 2006, which had to be decided on penalties after extra time ended 3–3. Wolves have won the Cup four times, but their last triumph came back in 1960, so they are likely to start as underdogs against a Liverpool side threatening to win multiple trophies this season.
However, Wolves can take hope from the last time the sides met in this competition. In the fourth round in 2017 – and at Anfield too – goals from Richard Stearman and Andreas Weimann were enough to clinch a 2–1 win for Wolves, despite Divock Origi's late consolation strike. Presented by Gary Lineker, with expert analysis from Alan Shearer and Ian Wright. Watch with 5 Live commentary via the red button.

FA Cup Football

When Liverpool entered the FA Cup at the third-round stage last season, they faced a tough derby against Everton. Luckily they had just signed defender Virgil van Dijk from Southampton for a record £75 million. He proved his worth by scoring the decider, as the Reds won 2–1 in the 84th minute, becoming the first Liverpool player since 1901 to score on their debut in a Mersey derby.

DOCUMENTARY OF THE WEEK

9.00 The Babes in the Wood Murders: the Prosecutors
In October 1986, nine-year-old Karen Hadaway and Nicola Fellows were found dead in Wild Park in Brighton. Both had been strangled and sexually assaulted. Russell Bishop was put on trial for their murders in 1987, but the jury took less than two hours to acquit him. Under the law at the time, he could not be retried even if new evidence was found, and the families had to endure the prospect of never getting justice for their lost children. But when the double jeopardy law was abolished in 2005, the hopes of the bereaved were rekindled. After police and scientists used the latest methods to uncover new evidence, hopes were once again raised of a fresh prosecution. This documentary follows the culmination of a 32-year fight for justice. See p63.

You saw him here first

City Slickers ★★★★

4.45pm Sony Movie Channel FREEVIEW

As an adult, Jake Gyllenhaal dominates the screen in his leading roles. But his movie debut came at the age of ten in 1991 comedy City Slickers, playing Billy Crystal's son Danny. Gyllenhaal admitted to Entertainment Weekly that he can't remember much from his childhood, but has perfect recall of everything from City Slickers, from auditioning in LA to flying out to Montana. On discovering his calling so young, he said: "There was something about feeling comfortable expressing myself that was always there." ANDREW COLLINS

Dimes in the jukebox

P Bad Reputation ★★★ Sky Store/Virgin Movies

This lively documentary tells the story of Joan Jett, the trailblazing rock star known for barnstorming anthems like I Love Rock 'n' Roll. Filled with archive footage, the film also includes glowing interviews with the likes of Iggy Pop, Debbie Harry and Kristen Stewart (who played Jett in biopic The Runaways). Happily, though, most of the talking is done by Jett herself, who is passionate, likeable, and admirably defiant. "Tell me I can't do something," she says, "and you'll make sure I'm gonna be doing it." STEPHEN CARTY

A father with flaws

P An Actor Prepares ★★ 6.15pm Sky Premiere

If you can stomach the swearing, you may enjoy this father-son bonding comedy. Jeremy Irons (right, with Mamie Gummer) plays a dissolute Hollywood star who goes on a road trip with his estranged son, Jack Huston, to attend a family wedding. With F-words exchanged from the off, the ribaldry is decidedly one note. AC

TUESDAY Choices The pick of today's TV

CLUES CREW
The forensics team is back: Jack (David Caves), Nikki (Emilia Fox), Thomas (Richard Lintern) and Clarissa (Liz Carr)

PICK OF THE DAY Silent Witness 9.00pm BBC1

DRAMA The opening few minutes of the 22nd series (22nd!) are particularly fetid and unpleasant, even by Silent Witness standards: a young woman desperate to pee after a night out sneaks into a men's filthy loos, only to hear a man in the next cubicle being murdered. If you're as squeamish as I am about the presumed hygiene of public toilets, never mind murder, you'll be rigid with alarm.

Luckily the gang from the Lyell Centre – Thomas, Clarissa, Nikki and Harry – are back, all present and correct, so we are in safe hands because they will investigate the crime while the bumbling, dithering, blinkered cops let the truth slip through their fingers.

Silent Witness also embraces a hot topic – the murder victim is transsexual so there's plenty of preaching from the BBC pulpit. Such as this from Thomas: "Being trans is not an illness". Yes, thank you, I think we know that. The story concludes tomorrow. ALISON GRAHAM

My Million Pound Menu
8.00pm BBC2

FOOD The charming Fred Sirieix returns for a second series of the restaurant startup up show that's a cunning mix of Dragons' Den, The Apprentice and MasterChef.

The so-called "fast-casual" sector is booming and three small businesses pitch for investment from four experts. There are the three friends with their Punjabi takeaways, a couple who sell Filipino food, and a man who cooks and sells nothing but duck.

After each group cooks a signature dish, they discuss their ideas with the would-be investors (at one point the screen is full of tattoos) before the winner is given a pop-up restaurant in Manchester to prove their worth. AG

Icons
9.00pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY New series
Sir Trevor McDonald puts forward a political leader to be voted the greatest icon of the 20th century in this history series designed to ignite controversy and debate.

He certainly has some strong candidates – Winston Churchill, Franklin D Roosevelt, Margaret Thatcher and Nelson Mandela – leaders with very different styles and beliefs who often made unpopular decisions. So viewers may find it tough to pick one, especially as none of them can state their own case. Tomorrow, Dermot O'Leary follows in the footsteps of four top explorers in the hope that one of them will get your vote. JANE RACKHAM

Manhunt
9.00pm ITV

DRAMA Ed Whitmore's excellent real-life drama ends as DCI Colin Sutton (Martin Clunes) and his team reach the final stages of their investigation into the murder of the 22-year-old French student.

But it's not an easy or smooth inquiry as their main suspect is elusive. There's an added complication with intense interest from one particular national newspaper that could torpedo the police's next planned move.

Again and again, the team butts up against a brick wall as there simply isn't enough evidence to make important charges stick. But, just when things look hopeless, someone very bravely comes forward with information that proves crucial. AG

24 Hours in A&E
9.00pm C4

DOCUMENTARY There are no car crashes, no falls, no traumas in this opening episode of series 17, but that doesn't mean it lacks incident. David, 69, has a suspected blood clot in his leg, and comes in with second wife Christine, whom he originally met at primary school; brace yourself for his breathtakingly sad story about his first marriage, and how it ended.

We also meet the winning 90-year-old Annie, rushed in with possible sepsis. Granddaughter Francesca tells how Annie adopted her at the age of two, and how she looked to her as a model of motherhood when she became pregnant at 15. It's a well-paced episode that acts as a stark reminder of pain – and resilience. HANNAH SHADDOCK

TODAY IN SOAPLAND

After rubbing Ric up the wrong way on last week's away day, Tom Campbell-Gore (Denis Lawson, right, with Dawn Steele as Ange Goddard) returns to the actual hospital on Holby City (8pm BBC1; Scotland; 10.45pm), so that he can rub everyone else up the wrong way. Choice putdowns include calling Serena "Bernie Wolfe's arm candy" and labelling Jac as an "irresistible streak of ginger scorn".

But TCG just might meet his match in Lorraine Chase, who's guest-starring as a quirky patient and former Holby nurse Cherie (pronounced "Sherry", though the writers missed a trick in not calling her Campari). She knows Tom of old.

Elsewhere, we have top consultant Ange Goddard (Monarch of the Glen's Dawn Steele) turning up to run a Young Adult Unit. She's a welcome addition and even gets to make one of those stirring "I'm a bloody good doctor so let me bloody show you what I'm bloody well made of" speeches. Even Hanssen looks impressed. DAVID BROWN

Ben Fogle: New Lives in the Wild

9.00pm Channel 5

DOCUMENTARY "Nomad" has become a travel cliché in recent years, but Miriam and Peter are the real deal. In Bulgaria's Rhodope Mountains, which at times resemble a South American rainforest, Mr Fogle joins the couple, whose lives are one huge hike through the wilderness. Their sole possessions on their backs, they forage and bow-hunt for food. Highlights include Ben's face when he's asked to wash his hair in his own pee. "I don't think it'll catch on in the Fogle household," he winces.

There's something hyper-real about these two "refugees from modern life". She should audition for the next Tomb Raider movie, while he'd make a mean Gandalf. GARY ROSE

Living the Dream

9.00pm Sky 1

COMEDY DRAMA When we last saw Brits Mal and Jen Pemberton (Philip Glenister and Lesley Sharp), they'd decided to make a go of the down-at-heel Kissimmee Sunshine RV Park. But crime is rife in Florida (or as camp resident Aiden puts it, "this is a sunny place for shady characters") so, despite Jen's objections, Mal looks into buying a gun for protection.

Mick Ford's comedy drama relies heavily on stereotypes: sexually adventurous neighbours, an ardent but geeky boyfriend, tattooed rednecks, a maybe-not-so-bright cop, jokes about "large weapons" and so on. The gags are signposted well in advance, but there's something likeable about Mal and Jen. JR

Escape at Dannemora

9.00pm Sky Atlantic

DRAMA The lack of action and pace in this prison-break drama is bizarre. So why watch? Because it's also mesmerising, and the slow tempo gives a creeping sense of the malaise of prison routine. That presumably was director Ben Stiller's plan, and it helps that Benicio del Toro, who can be maddening as an actor, perfectly suits the role of a sleepy-eyed prison tough guy, who knows the only way to freedom will need patience and an ability to manipulate prison staff.

The sense of place is oppressive (the series is filmed at the correctional facility in New York state where the real escape happened in 2015) and, as whiny sewing-shop supervisor Tilly, Patricia Arquette is horribly good. DAVID BUTCHER

STUFF HAPPENS Sharon (Sharon Horgan) and Rob (Rob Delaney) are still facing life head on

Catastrophe

10.00pm C4

COMEDY OF THE WEEK Last we saw of Rob (Rob Delaney), his secret drinking had spiralled out of control and he ended up crashing his car. That was April 2017 and we rejoin him in series four facing both community service in a second-hand shop and the unwelcome attentions of Amanda (Julie Hesmondhalgh) from his AA group.

His wife Sharon (Sharon Horgan), meanwhile, is not happy being lumbered with all the childcare and she hatches her own little spate of personal criminality.

The second that high-pitched wail and whistle theme tune starts it feels great to be back with this quick-witted pair who unsparingly face the truth and profound puzzles of middle-aged urban life head on. They're still angry with the world (and each other) at times, but the warmth of their relationship, and the depth of their love, is never in doubt. BEN DOWELL

Bats, Balls and Bradford Girls

from 10am BBC3

Energy and determination bristle on the screen during this documentary about Britain's first all-Asian girls' cricket team. The squad have left school in Bradford after their GCSEs: as they train for one last tournament, they reflect on how sport has helped them challenge assumptions in the British-Pakistani community about what girls can and should do.

Journey's end?

The Mortal Instruments: City of Bones ★★★
11.15pm Film4 FREEVIEW

This adaptation of Cassandra Clare's fantasy series didn't do the business to warrant a sequel. It transferred instead to TV under the name Shadowhunters (available on Netflix), although the show is to be axed after the end of the third season, due for broadcast in the coming months. But viewers have been strident in their call for a stay of execution, so who knows. After all, it was fans of sci-fi series Firefly who helped bring about the Serenity movie. TOM FOLLEY

Classics on iPlayer

How many old movies did you get to see this Christmas? If all those big premieres got in the way, or if you simply snoozed off after sipping too much of Santa's brandy, don't worry, as many classics are still available on iPlayer. The Titfield Thunderbolt doesn't leave until tomorrow, and Angels One Five and The Happiest Days of Your Life are there until Thursday, with The Lavender Hill Mob at large until Friday. You have most of January to enjoy Dunkirk (1958) and Dickens classic Great Expectations (1946), both of which benefit from the starring presence of John Mills. TF

Keep on burnin'

Proud Mary ★★★
7.20pm Sky Thriller

In this recent addition to the Sky Cinema roster, a hitwoman sparks a war between her boss and a rival crime lord after she steps in to protect a young boy. Hidden Figures star Taraji P Henson delivers a multifaceted performance in the lead, pivoting between sass, steel and maternal concern.

WEDNESDAY Choices The pick of today's TV

RISKY BUSINESS

PICK OF THE DAY Cleaning Up 9.00pm ITV

DRAMA *New series Sheridan Smith plays another downtrodden everywoman, similar to the downtrodden everywoman we saw recently in Care. Yet again she's on her emotional and financial uppers: she was deserted by her husband after he had an affair and she's struggling to bring up her children. But in Cleaning Up, Smith's character Sam's problems aren't exacerbated by having a mum in a care home, but by her addiction to online gambling. Time and again we see her desperately trying to get rich quick by playing roulette on her phone... largely unsuccessfully, and the money keeps dribbling away.

In a highly unlikely plot twist, Sam – who tries to make ends meet with cleaning jobs – is emptying the bins at a huge city trading firm when she hears one of the staff up to no good. He's insider trading, maybe it's something she could try. And all her problems will be solved! I told you it was unlikely. ALISON GRAHAM

Tom Kerridge's Fresh Start

8.00pm BBC2 (Wales: 8.30pm)

FOOD Tom's volunteers are doing well, making three times as many meals from scratch as before, and they're starting to save money. So step two in the Kerridge Master Plan is to be more organised with their cooking. He wants them to plan menus, shop from a list and do batch cooking from now on.

The recipes are certainly simple – fishcakes, butternut squash curry, pasta puttanesca – but, in any case, it's hard to imagine anyone resisting Tom's culinary enthusiasm. One of his puds sounds intriguing, though – chocolate mousse, made with banana and avocado. JANE RACKHAM

Bradley Walsh and Son: Breaking Dad

8.00pm ITV

TRAVEL This kind of easy-going travel series can seem like lowest-common-denominator TV, assembled by rote, but when it works, it works. And Bradley Walsh motoring across the southern USA with his son Barney in a giant Winnebago has all the right elements, stitched together with a voiceover from Alexander Armstrong.

This week their road trip takes them through Arizona, where they visit a town called Amboy (population: three) and hook up with some bikers, before visiting London Bridge in Lake Havasu and having a go at waterskiing. That doesn't end well for Bradley, but he fares better at cowboy school, lassoing like a pro. DAVID BUTCHER

The Twinstitute

8.30pm BBC2 (Wales: 10pm)

HEALTH Even without Xand and Chris van Tulleken fronting it, this would be a neat idea, well put together and full of useful pop science. With the two of them, it's hard to fault, though it may test your tolerance of "we'll see which is better at the end of the show"-type experiments. It would be mean to give away the results, but one that you can see coming is the IQ test, where one set of twins have their phones removed, while the other group has them sitting on the desk next to them. They can't touch them, but just the small mental effort of ignoring your phone makes people perform less well, amazingly.

Also: sleep-banking versus power-napping – which is better? DB

TODAY IN SOAPLAND

Leonine-maned stylists Audrey and Claudia (Rula Lenska, right) are at each other's throats again in Coronation Street (7.30pm, 8.30pm ITV) as accusations fly about Archie Shuttleworth's missing £80,000. The last time this pair clashed was at those hilarious hairdressing awards where Aud lobbed a bouquet at Claud from across a function room. So I can't wait to see how they up the ante this evening.

At the local prison, meanwhile, it's all getting a bit fraught for Sally, who gets beaten up. Honestly, six months ago she was mayor of Weatherfield, now she's re-creating scenes from Scum. How the mighty have fallen.

Over on Hollyoaks (6.30pm C4), the powerful football-abuse plotline continues with Buster's trial as we reach the point in all soap courtroom dramas when a key character considers lying on the stand. Here, it's Damon wondering whether it'd be better not to tell the truth. You can expect a result in the case this Friday. DAVID BROWN

Silent Witness

9.00pm BBC1

DRAMA Whenever a police officer gets into trouble in a crime drama, he or she always says, "My job is on the line here!"

And so it is with the shifty, deeply unpleasant detective chief inspector who talks with inappropriate mateyness to just about everyone as he investigates the murders linked to the trans helpline.

"I need a distraction," he tells his subordinate, but in the sense of a scapegoat – he doesn't want to go to the circus to take his mind off the terrible mess he's in.

But none of us should worry that the police are in chaos because Nikki, Jack and Thomas are investigating and piecing the evidence together, so all is well with the world. AG

Icons

9.00pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY That well-known historical expert, the personable Dermot O'Leary, presents the second clutch of contenders in this very odd personality contest. The whole thing borders on the fatuous – who on earth knows enough about anyone to vote him or her the most important man or woman of the 20th century?

O'Leary introduces us to four explorers – ice-bound hero Ernest Shackleton, Middle East pioneer Gertrude Bell, first man on the Moon Neil Armstrong and anthropologist Jane Goodall. The latter is still alive and well, still travelling across the globe with her conservation message and, in conversation with O'Leary, it's clear age hasn't dimmed her in the slightest. AG

General Magic

9.00pm National Geographic

DOCUMENTARY A documentary about a little-known technology company from the early 1990s would seem to be only of interest to IT geeks. Yet that firm, General Magic, was working on a product that could be described as the first smartphone. At a time when most people didn't have email, these Silicon Valley visionaries were developing touchscreens, USB technology – and creating emojis.

While the roll call of the company's staff reads like a who's who of the tech world, it's the story the film tells of how Apple stole a march on the "Magicians" that is most instructive. They may have been geniuses, but they couldn't compete against hard-headed businessmen. DC

FORCE OF NATURE
Rev Peter Owen Jones explores the beauty and wildlife of the New Forest

New Forest: a Year in the Wild Wood

9.00pm BBC4

NATURE The Reverend Peter Owen Jones continues his hymn to the national parks of southern England with a wander around the varied landscapes of the New Forest across the seasons. It's a place of exquisite natural beauty, from the gnarled ancient woodland to the purple heathland and the boggy mires, home to iridescent insects. Yet while Owen Jones lays on the superlatives in highlighting the importance of the forest's ecosystem, he is equally at pains to impress on us the importance of the commoners who hold the right to graze their animals on the land.

His intense earnestness can be irksome, but is tempered by the majestic sights in which he delights: a goshawk hunting through the trees, a red stag bellowing for mates, and the striking autumnal patchwork of colour in the forest canopy. DAVID CRAWFORD

Everyday Eden: a Potted History of the Suburban Garden

iPlayer (expires today)

You know the drill: by charting the history of a specific thing, we chart the social history of the nation as a whole. Writer and historian Michael Collins fulfils that brief with more erudition and spark than most in a documentary first shown in 2014, finding both banality and eccentricity in ordinary people's small patches of land.

The best of Sky, iPlayer, Netflix and beyond

Paltrow's Austen

Emma ★★★★ BBC iPlayer FREE TO VIEW

Before she won an Oscar for her role in Shakespeare in Love, Gwyneth Paltrow made her mark in this convincing period romance as the quintessential Jane Austen heroine. Ever the matchmaker, Emma entangles her friend Harriet (Toni Collette) in hopeless passion while seeking her own true soulmate. With a host of fine supporting performances (Jeremy Northam, Alan Cumming, Juliet Stevenson), this bright and breezy adaptation weaves a magical spell, with Paltrow at its charming centre. ALAN JONES

New to Netflix in January

Looking at the movies new to Netflix in January, you could be forgiven for thinking the service is taking a breather after Christmas. But there are still some eye-catching films for all tastes. Available now are action movie Pacific Rim (with Idris Elba, pictured), Sandra Bullock's Oscar winner The Blind Side, plus daffy comedy Austin Powers: the Spy Who Shagged Me. Next week, you can enjoy Christopher Nolan's mindbending Inception and weepie The Fault in Our Stars. Later in the month, watch out for Bafta winner Lion, Fifty Shades Darker and Assassin's Creed. TOM FOLLEY

On point, off pitch

P Mario ★★

11.00pm Sky Premiere

This Swiss drama centres on the developing relationship between two young male footballers. Director Marcel Gisler's film offers some keen insights into the mindset of aspiring athletes and has interesting things to say about dressing-room rivalries, but the action on the pitch is less convincing.

THURSDAY Choices The pick of today's TV

BACK ON THE BEACH BEAT Commissioner Patterson, DI Jack Mooney, DS Cassell, Officer Hooper and Catherine Bordey

PICK OF THE DAY Death in Paradise 9.00pm BBC1

DRAMA At one point in tonight's first case of series eight, DI Jack Mooney (Ardal O'Hanlon) retrieves what might be a key piece of evidence in his murder case – a pair of men's swimming trunks.

You might not have realised quite how funny some skimpy swimming trunks are, but once you've seen the comedy value the episode wrings from them (and the hilarious term "budgie smugglers"), you'll be in no doubt. Imagine the embarrassment when the terrifying commissioner (Don Warrington) finds them on Jack's desk! If that weren't enough, there's a similar sight gag when JP (Tobi Bakare) is clearing out the absent Dwayne's desk drawer and finds, to his horror, a posing pouch with the letter D on!

Men's smalls aside, the opener is a typically well-grooved murder puzzle, set in our Caribbean death trap of Saint Marie, where a visitor is found stabbed on a bus in baffling circumstances. Rebecca Front and Robert James-Collier play two of the surly suspects. DAVID BUTCHER

Britain's Fat Fight: the Battle Continues

8.00pm BBC1

DOCUMENTARY Just what we need at the start of the new year – a jolly good ticking off for being the fattest country in western Europe. So put down those selection boxes and pay attention, because Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall is back and he's not going to stand any nonsense.

In the latest instalment of his quest to get us all to eat more healthily, he looks at claims made for so-called "healthier" products, gets to the bottom of why we're a nation of dedicated snackers and challenges a volunteer family to reduce their portions. And he and Jamie Oliver go to Westminster to talk to MPs and government officials about the UK's obesity crisis. ALISON GRAHAM

Back in Time for School

8.00pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY The First World War is over in episode two of this social history experiment, but although the authorities are putting more emphasis on education, having realised how many soldiers couldn't read or decipher maps, there's been no radical change. Girls are still taught mothercraft, while the boys learn physics. Interestingly, depriving the modern-day female students of a subject such as science or football makes them even keener to do them.

There are glimmers of a more modern approach ("forest school" and Esperanto), but as one teacher concludes, most postwar education was very regimented, reflecting army life, perhaps. JANE RACKHAM

The Secret life of Four-Year-Olds

8.00pm C4

REALITY Three girls, part of the new intake at the nursery, are given electronic tablets to play with. The effect is extraordinary: the previously ebullient trio are insular and silent for 20 minutes, failing even to clock teacher Kate bringing in marshmallows and chocolate.

The first in the new series looks at how the first truly digital generation interacts with technology. There are a few Steven Spielberg moments as little Archie bonds touchingly with a robot, fist-bumping as they part.

There are sweet little glimpses of friendships forged and social minefields navigated, particularly with Max, who has spent more than half his life in hospital. AG

Morecambe and Wise in America

8.00pm Gold

DOCUMENTARY There's a reason programmes are still made about Eric and Ernie. As stand-up Shappi Khorsandi says: "They got half the country to watch their Christmas specials – no one else will ever do that again." This warm glow of a series ends by showing the genesis of those glitzy extravaganzas.

In the late 1960s the colour TV and big production numbers of their US appearances opened their eyes to new possibilities. And interaction with guest stars handed them the winning formula. By getting Bassey, Previn, Rigg et al to park their egos at the door, they made ever-growing UK audiences fall – and stay – in love with them. MARK BRAXTON

TODAY IN SOAPLAND

I can't help but feel that Bernadette's efforts to save Tiffany from a life of crime in EastEnders (7.30pm BBC1) are going to massively backfire. Bernie (far right) is so good and virtuous that she's bound to end up taking the rap for some horrible drugs deal. I can just see her getting led away in handcuffs while Tiff and Evie are off their faces in a nightclub, waving glow sticks in the air. (Do teens still wave glow sticks? Sorry, I haven't been to a club since 1999.)

Emmerdale (7pm, 8pm ITV) pulls off its second shock of the week (see Mandy's return on Monday for details of the first) when Vanessa confronts a hooded figure who's deliberately splashing petrol around the bins outside the Woolpack, only to then get stabbed.

As the perpetrator makes a getaway in Vanessa's car, little do they realise that young Johnny is strapped into the back seat. Is Vanessa going to die? Who's got Johnny? And is the pub set to catch fire? Questions, questions! DAVID BROWN

The Orville

9.00pm Fox

COMEDY DRAMA After being pushed as a larger-than-life parody of Star Trek, The Orville – from Family Guy creator Seth MacFarlane – turned out to be something a bit different during its first series. This sci-fi comedy drama has real heart, and it's the closest thing on TV to Star Trek: the Next Generation since Patrick Stewart handed in his phaser in 2002.

Now, in the first episode of the second series, we see a riff on some classic Next Generation holodeck episodes when one crew member becomes obsessed with the "simulation room", while Captain Mercer (MacFarlane) and the team race to rescue citizens of a planet doomed to be destroyed by its own sun. HUW FULLERTON

Flirty Dancing

10.00pm C4

ENTERTAINMENT New series You just know this was pitched as "First Dates meets Strictly", and although it doesn't quite have the appeal of either, it has real charm: Diversity's Ashley Banjo teaches two singletons a dance routine, separately, then they meet for the first time to perform it together. Afterwards, they decide whether they want to meet again.

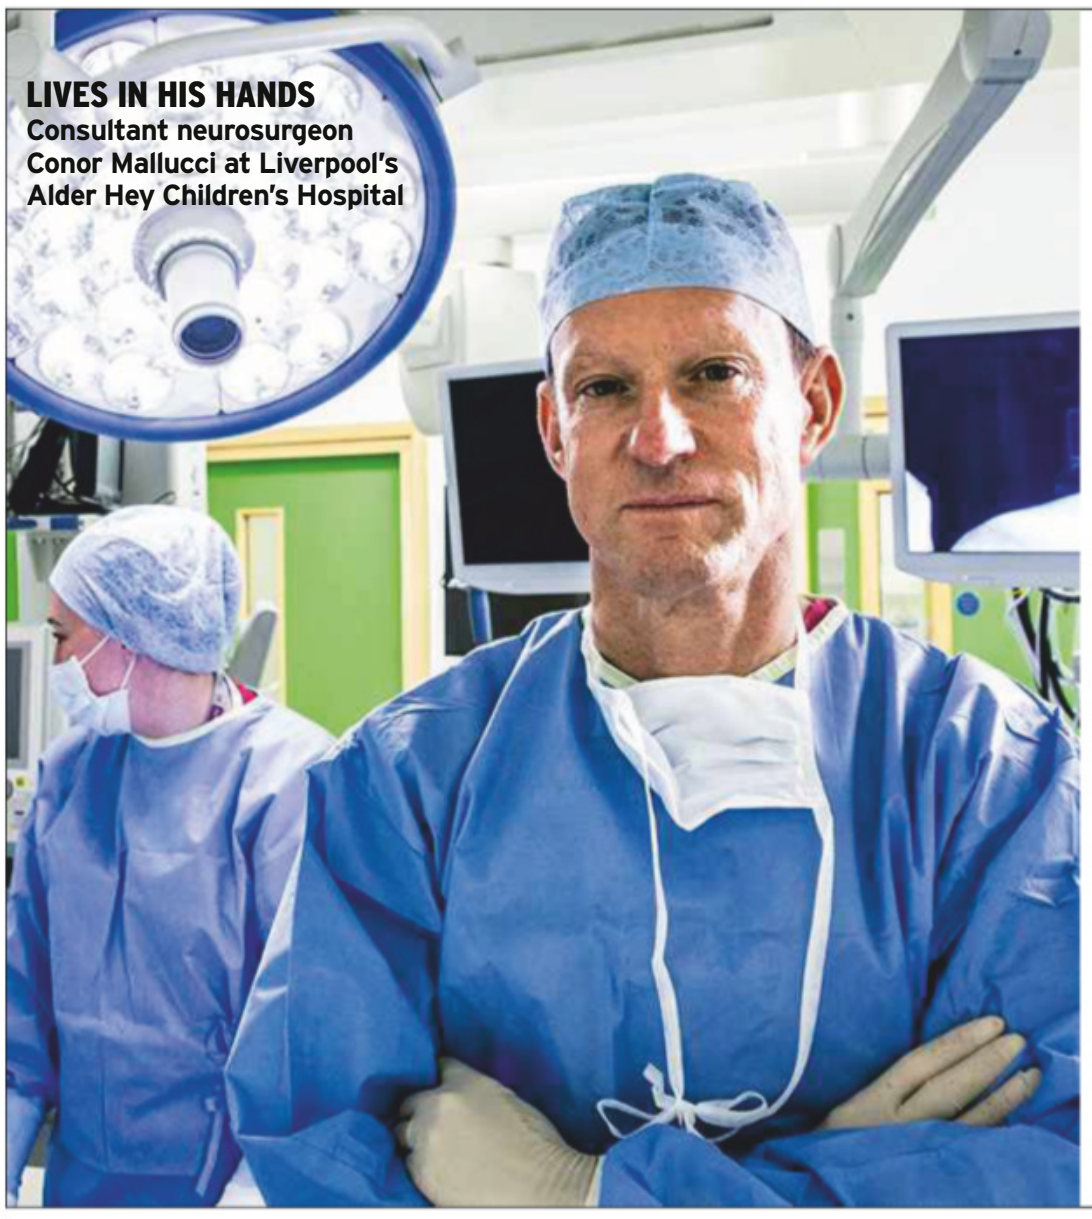

In this first episode, Hannah, 30, branded "too fussy" by her mum, takes to the roof of an observatory with James, 31, who's "completed Tinder"; and Dan, 34, and Luke, 29, perform an energetic routine in an art gallery. There is something irresistible about the La La Land-esque set pieces, which may not lead to love, but are a lot of fun. HANNAH SHADDOCK

Question Time

10.45pm BBC1

CURRENT AFFAIRS Fiona Bruce chairs the political debate for the first time tonight. She takes over a broadcasting institution that at its worst descends into a chaotic tribal bunfight – just at a moment when politics is more chaotic and tribal than anyone can remember.

So it won't be easy: an ugly shouting match, with armchair referees on Twitter, is only ever a Brexit question away. But Bruce brings to the job her classy blend of coolness and warmth: coolness to deal with panellists' pomposity (her predecessor David Dimbleby's occasional magisterial put-downs were one of the show's pleasures) and warmth to make it all, with any luck, a bit more civilised. DAVID BUTCHER

LIVES IN HIS HANDS
Consultant neurosurgeon Conor Mallucci at Liverpool's Alder Hey Children's Hospital

Hospital

9.00pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY The fourth series of this fascinating look at the cogs of the NHS focuses on healthcare in Liverpool. For the opener, we visit the city's oldest hospital, the Royal, which has what its managers call "estate issues" – a polite way of saying that it's falling to bits.

Next door stands the gleaming £335 million building they should have moved into. But when it was almost finished, contractors Carillion collapsed – and so did the private finance funding it.

As the trust's chief executive works out how to patch up his existing facilities, you wonder how he copes with the maddening shambles of it all – he doesn't sound like Carillion's biggest fan.

But as always, there are moving patient stories, too: three-year-old Charlie is at Alder Hey Children's Hospital, with a tumour growing deep into his brain stem. Only one surgeon is prepared to take the risk of operating... DAVID BUTCHER

The Naked Truth

from 10.00am BBC3

There might be a trend for seeing ordinary people naked on TV, but this series has greater claims to having a good reason for all that skin than, say, Naked Attraction. Following a pilot episode about obesity, the topics explored now are loose skin, missing limbs, tattoos and male body image – discussed by people whose lack of clothes is matched by the intimacy of the thoughts and feelings they reveal.

Jodie in the chair

P The Beaver ★★★

5.00pm Sony Movie Channel FREEVIEW

Some actors dabble in directing, while others make it a second career. Jodie Foster took to the loud-hailer instinctively, having paid attention as a child actor under the likes of Alan Parker and Martin Scorsese. Her directing credits include Little Man Tate, Money Monster and The Beaver (review, p36), plus episodes of House of Cards, Orange Is the New Black and Black Mirror. Next up, a remake of Icelandic thriller Woman at War, in which she has cast herself in the lead – another director's perk. ANDREW COLLINS

New to TCM today

Sahara ★★★ 3.20pm TCM

Humphrey Bogart spent most of the war years playing loners in civilian clothes, who stuck their necks out for no one until Lauren Bacall or Ingrid Bergman forced them to take sides. So it's a bit of a surprise to find him here as a resourceful army sergeant who leads a bunch of no-hopers across the desert in a dilapidated tank, dodging Nazis as they search for a waterhole. Directed by Zoltan Korda and shot by Rudolph Maté, this boasts solid talent behind the camera and a lot of derring-do in front of it. ADRIAN TURNER

A square peg and proud

P Freak Show ★★

6.25pm Sky Premiere

James St James's novel about sexual acceptance is repurposed to poke fun at Trumpist America in this self-conscious comedy drama. Alex Lawther gives his all as a cross-dressing misfit struggling with school and dysfunctional parents. The message is spot on, but the approach is frustratingly skin deep. DAVID PARKINSON

FRIDAY Choices The pick of today's TV

THREE WISE MEN
From left: James Norton as Rev Sidney Chambers, Robson Green as Geordie Keating and Tom Brittney as Rev Will Davenport

Grantchester 9.00pm ITV

DRAMA Good old Rev Sidney Chambers. In times of strife, we can take a trip back to his idyllic Cambridge parish to inhale the 1950s loveliness for a few moments – before the 1950s awfulness lands heavily, with another murder.

This time, though, it's different. Sidney (James Norton) has always been a restless soul, but now more than ever he is chafing against the starched collars and starchy morals of his life. He keeps putting himself in harm's way: "You've got to stop doing this – no more heroics," Geordie (Robson Green) begs him. But when a group of civil rights campaigners from Alabama arrive on a fundraising tour, it's clear their struggle speaks to Sidney in a way organising the village fête never will.

Fans will know that Norton is leaving the series: tonight lays the groundwork for his replacement, and establishes what (or who) might tempt him away. DAVID BUTCHER

On Drums... Stewart Copeland!

9.00pm BBC4

MUSIC Don't worry, it's not a documentary about Stewart Copeland, drummer with the Police; it's one that he presents, tracing the history of drumming, and it's a blast. "This is the device that invented rock 'n' roll," he declares, holding up a bass drum pedal – which in 1890s New Orleans allowed a man called Dee Dee Chandler to combine the drums and cymbals that freed slaves had inherited from Confederate marching bands into a kit.

Copeland paradiddles through the styles and grooves that followed, with contributors including Sheila E (Prince's drummer) and Roger Linn (inventor of the drum machine). Smashing. DB

Delicious

9.00pm Sky 1

DRAMA "What is it with this family?" wails Teresa. "All we do is lie." She's right. But at least Mimi (Sheila Hancock) finally tells everyone about her breast cancer tonight and insists on taking part in her own living funeral. Dashing Mason Elliott continues to flutter his heavy eyelids at everyone (especially Dawn French's Gina) and Sam makes a decision over new squeeze Marc.

This remains a plush, comfortable world, with a glass of champagne always close to hand. But as Mimi's powerful funeral address demonstrates, just when you think the intriguingly addictive show is getting a bit too luxuriant, it packs an unexpectedly hefty punch, biting off life's big subjects and chewing on them delightedly. BEN DOWELL

Kissinger

9.00pm PBS America

DOCUMENTARY At the age of 87, Henry Kissinger is in reflective mood as he looks back over his career as a global statesman in this wide-ranging film from 2010, culled from 25 hours of footage.

But expect no mea culpa from the former US secretary of state: he stands by his decisions over such controversial issues as the secret bombing in Cambodia during the Vietnam War and US interference in Chile. He's rightfully proud of his part in opening talks with China and the Soviet Union, and offers insights into the characters of Chairman Mao, President Brezhnev and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho. DAVID CRAWFORD

TODAY IN SOAPLAND

I have a feeling that Coronation Street (7.30pm, 8.30pm ITV) might have accidentally booked the services of a stunt co-ordinator for two months rather than one. How else to explain Liz getting mown down on Christmas Day and now Duncan (Nicholas Gleaves, far right) getting hit by a car tonight? It's the same cliffhanger! Presumably, our stuntman-for-hire just had to ditch the lycra and Bonnie Tyler wig for a Phillip Schofield fancy dress costume...

Claudia is taken away for police questioning, but Ken is adamant that she is innocent and ends up tearing a strip off Audrey. Maybe he should relaunch the Weatherfield Recorder and start a Justice for Claud campaign? And in the Kabin, we have Brian doing his first shift. Now, he may have Norris's tank tops and the nit-picking ways, but that's where the similarities end. First Beth and then Roy end up calling in to complain that they've had the wrong magazines delivered. Just don't let him start weighing out the cola cubes, is all I can say. DAVID BROWN

Would I Lie to You?

9.30pm BBC1

COMEDY It's obvious that someone is really posh if they regularly get their bacon sarnies delivered, but did Georgia Toffolo really decide to cancel her Deliveroo account because she was eating too many greasy breakfasts?

The truth of the matter is almost irrelevant because her throwaway mention of "Tommy K" (no, I hadn't, either) sparks a terrific back-and-forth between Lee Mack and Rob Brydon as they try to show they're just as cool as she is.

Slightly less classy than Toff is Rhod Gilbert, who claims that he once slept rough in Spain for four weeks and washed his underpants in the waterjet from the local dustcart. Delightful. JANE RACKHAM

QI

10.00pm BBC2

QUIZ The grim and grey weeks of January are finally here for us all to suffer through, so what better QI theme than Painful Punishments to kick off this bleak part of the year?

Jimmy Carr, Lee Mack and Alice Levine join Alan Davies and Sandi Toksvig in discussing such cheery topics as deadly ancient Assyrian parking fines, a surprising way to force punctuality and where the panel would all end up within the circles of hell.

Despite the topic, it's a lot of sparkling good fun from start to finish, and sure to bring a smile to any viewers' face.

And who knows? You might even learn a thing or two.... HUW FULLERTON

Reginald D Hunter's Songs of the South

11.30pm BBC4

MUSIC African-American stand-up Reginald D Hunter is not one to shy away from controversy, so you'd expect his 2015 exploration of the white music of the American South to be a prickly affair.

But while there are hints of tension – the "Keep Calm and Carry Guns" T-shirts; the good ol' boy yelling "What the hell!" when he spots Hunter in his open-top Cadillac – on the whole he's greeted with open arms. His ability to down shots of 105° proof moonshine probably helped.

Hunter gives nuanced views of country, bluegrass and fiddle music, and is even fairly sanguine about "black face" minstrelsy – the first form of popular mass entertainment. DC

TIME TRAVELLERS
Presenter Anita Rani with judges Keith Brymer Jones and Patch Rogers

The Victorian House of Arts and Crafts 9.00pm BBC2

HISTORY New series Six craftswomen and men re-create the Victorian Arts and Crafts Movement ideal of living together in a harmonious commune, connecting with nature and each other, while making beautiful objects. Easy! But there is trouble in paradise from the off when designer Ilsa, who must make William Morris-ish wallpaper for the parlour, takes against metal worker Rod when he tells her to "shut up". If there wasn't some friction, Victorian House of Arts and Crafts would be a bit dull, although the craft-working is beautiful – woodwork designer Abdollah spends hours working on a Sussex chair, while silversmith Bryony crafts a stunning CR Ashbee silver bowl.

Judges Keith Brymer Jones (from The Great Pottery Throw Down), Patch Rogers and presenter Anita Rani decide their Object of the Week. ALISON GRAHAM

Lawrence of Siberia

P Red Sparrow ★★★★ 8.00pm Sky Premiere

This complex espionage thriller stars Jennifer Lawrence as a former ballerina who becomes a "sparrow", schooled in the art of seduction by the shadowy military of post-Cold War Russia. However, her superiors suspect she may be acting as a double agent, collaborating with the very CIA operative she is assigned to entrap, setting the scene for an intriguing series of cat-and-mouse plot twists. There's a solid supporting cast, but it's Lawrence who shines in one of the most demanding roles of her career. TERRY STAUNTON

A date to remember

Man Up ★★★★ BBC iPlayer FREE TO VIEW

This comedy from director Ben Palmer (The Inbetweeners Movie) sees Lake Bell steal someone else's blind date (Simon Pegg) from under a clock at Waterloo Station and create mayhem as she tries to perpetuate the lie. The script is snappy and there's a screwball rhythm to the action, plus winning support from Rory Kinnear (as Bell's oddball school chum) and Olivia Williams (as Pegg's weird ex-wife). Set against buzzing London streets, it feels like a frisky romantic version of After Hours. KAREN KRIZANOVICH

Sky's feel-good factor

For the next fortnight, Sky Comedy becomes Sky Feel Good in a bid to battle those back-to-work blues. Those contemplating a sickie might pick up a few tips from Matthew Broderick's skiving student in Ferris Bueller's Day Off (pictured), and there's more escapist fun to be had in Groundhog Day, Mean Girls, Mamma Mia! and Pitch Perfect.

Food Sheila Dillon on thinking about the food we eat YOUR RT P136

Lauren Laverne
Weekdays 7.30am BBC 6 Music

Lauren Laverne has had a busy morning, even by her never-stand-still standards. Her BBC 6 Music programme (10am-1pm) was an outside broadcast, with Laverne hosting from London's Tobacco Dock. With Gaika and Soak playing live, plus an on-the-spot Desert Island Disco mix from Riton and Kah-Lo, the show was a packed one. Before that, she managed to squeeze in a voiceover.

Laverne is also the stand-in host of Desert Island Discs while Kirsty Young takes some time off due to fibromyalgia, she presents Radio 4's Late Night Woman's Hour, narrates Tee and Mo on CBeebies, hosts awards ceremonies and BBC events, writes columns and does all the prep required to do such jobs properly...

Laverne, 40, remains unfrazzled. She arrives at the photographer's studio with a let's-crack-on attitude, chatting with photographer, stylist and make-up artist, grabbing a vegetarian sandwich before sitting down for our chat, jokey but efficient. She's in the moment and time, as ever, is of the essence.

We're here to talk about her new gig: 6 Music's breakfast show, which she will present from 7 January. 6 Music, along with Radios 1 and 2, has had a schedule shake-up, resulting in Laverne moving to the weekday breakfast slot; Mary Anne Hobbs taking Laverne's old morning show; Shaun Keaveny, the current breakfast-show host, moving to weekday afternoons; and Mark Radcliffe and Stuart Maconie shifting to weekends. It's a refresh that gives 6 Music's women presenters more airtime. Does Laverne think that's important?

BRITPOP STAR
Laverne was lead vocalist and guitarist with the band Kenickie

"Well, it's not for me to make decisions about who goes on air," she says. "But yes, it's really exciting to have Mary Anne there. For there to be two of us is great. Personally speaking, I feel that it's important to reflect the audience that you're talking to. The BBC is a public service... So, in terms of what I do, I make sure my show is diverse and engaging in all sorts of different ways: genre, era, ethnicity, gender."

This hasn't gone unnoticed: her 6 Music show has long been admired for its welcoming eclecticism. She's as happy playing West African jazz as she is German experimental rock. But no matter how open-minded 6 Music listeners are, the reshuffle will change the station's feel... "If people get upset, I can understand it," she says. "Live radio is such an intimate medium. If someone you're not keen on comes on a TV channel, you switch over and don't think anything about it. But it's not like that on the radio, is it? It's a personal affront: 'I don't like this record!' It's like someone coming into your house and swearing at you."

Still, Laverne is quietly confident about her new job: "I'm excited!" She does her homework, she knows her stuff. She's presented "all across the dial", and indeed, all across the clock: she's hosted on Radios 1 through to 6, presented breakfast and drivetime in the five years she worked at XFM, as well as late-night programmes. So her new 6 Music show won't be exactly like her old one, though some existing features will transfer.

'I'd get beaten up if Desert Island Disco didn't come with me'

"I'd get beaten up if Desert Island Disco didn't come with me," she says. "I want listeners to be able to feel like it's an easy listen. I don't want them to turn the radio on and be bashed over the head with loud, honky, brand-new things. That's going to just feel like hard work."

How does she do it?

Multi-tasking Lauren Laverne is about to wake up the 6 Music breakfast audience. With disco...

INTERVIEW BY MIRANDA SAWYER

JANE ANDERSON

Anyhow, if the show doesn't gel at first, she can cope. Her general approach is to be as prepared as possible (she looks at listening data, programmes the music with her team), but also flexible enough to throw preparations into the air if something changes; for instance, when David Bowie and Prince died, and 6 Music responded by playing their records all day. "It's like any DJ," she says, "you read the room."

Laverne has been a presenter for over 20 years, moving from being in a band (Kenickie) to TV presenting "for shoe money". She still loves hosting telly – "It's like going to a great party, putting your glad rags on, loads of people" – but in radio, she says, she "found my people, my tribe". Still, being a music radio DJ is very different from her other gig presenting Desert Island Discs. Laverne has a couple of analogies for being asked to step in. First, she likens it to house-sitting Buckingham Palace; then she says, "It's like being a cab driver and Prince gets in the back. I mean, you know how to drive and you know the routes, your competence isn't a big deal, but it's not an ordinary day at work."

Luckily, she has the ability to see the bigger picture while focusing in on the details: "It's not about how you feel, it's about what you are here to do." This pragmatism serves her well, as does her curiosity about the world. "I'm the kind of person who will walk past a building and think, 'Oh, that's interesting', so then I Wikipedia it, and find out the architect, and before I know it, I'm deep into the architect's life."

HER CURIOSITY COMES from her upbringing. She was born and raised Lauren Gofton in Sunderland, Laverne's parents came from working-class families; her dad, Lesley, one of six, her mum, Celia, one of nine. They both passed their 11-plus and went to grammar schools, and Laverne and her younger brother Pete were brought up in a house they call "the culture Tardis": full of books, music and philosophical ideas. "Son House would be playing on the stereo, and your mam's off to Greenham Common… it was a house full of ideas."

A few days after we meet, Laverne's dad dies, and she puts up a lovely tribute on Instagram: "His life was unusually and extraordinarily rich in the things he cared about – music, ideas and us… small in number but infinitely and endlessly meaningful." It reminds me of something she says when we meet – that her dad taught her not to be intellectually intimidated. "I've never felt not good enough to try and understand something," she says.

Laverne is exceptionally well-informed, but wears her knowledge lightly. She's not a show-off, she's a sharer – someone who tells you about interesting things because they're interesting, rather than to score points. In the past, she's likened her job to a dinner-party host, the person keeping everyone happy while hiding the carnage in the kitchen.

I'VE SEEN HER present in a hectic live situation, and her calm and humour never deserted her. In fact, the only time she's seemed uncomfortable, work-wise, was during her 2011–14 stint on Channel 4's late-night politics show, 10 O'Clock Live, when she had to do rant pieces about her political opinions. "It was tricky for me," she says, "because nothing I've ever done has been about me."

After coming out of that show, Laverne set up the online women's magazine The Pool with ex-Red editor Sam Baker. "The Pool came out of that experience," she says. "I thought, well, I could continue working as part of big organisations, or I try something where I have more control." Both she and Baker have now stepped back from day-to-day control of The Pool, but Laverne is "proud" to keep co-founder on her Twitter bio.

'TV's like going to a great party. In radio, I've found my tribe'

I press her on why they left, but Laverne won't give much away. Certain things are off-limits (she's careful not to reveal too much about her two sons, aged 11 and eight). So I ask her about her broadcasting heroes.

"Oh, I've had so many! Annie Nightingale – sensational and pioneering. John Peel: he changed my life twice. Because he played our records on the radio and then the first big TV job I got was working with him at Glastonbury. In one of the breaks he said, 'You're made for this s, aren't you?' And I thought, 'I must be, because John Peel has said so.'

"I adore Jo Whiley for how she broadcasts and how she lives her life. When I had my first son, I was thinking, 'I can't imagine how I'm going to do telly jobs after having a baby.' And Jo was there, going, 'It's going to be all right, don't worry.' Vanessa Feltz, who I worship. And, obviously, Kirsty Young. Sometimes I go back to my favourite Desert Island Discs, and every time I'm like, 'How did she do that?'"

Laverne sits back, happy. She loves talking about other people's talents. So it remains for me to say: Laverne is very good at what she does. Long may she continue.

JANE ANDERSON
PICK OF THE WEEK

Drama: The Canterbury Tales
Saturday 2.30pm Radio 4

In theory, this should be a disaster in the making: some very familiar voices from The Archers performing eight of Geoffrey Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, "adapted" for the stage by Ambridge's am-dram impresario Lynda Snell (Carole Boyd, below, shot in costume for our Christmas edition). Instead, it's an absolute triumph.

This success, without a doubt, owes a huge debt to playwright Nick Warburton for incorporating the tragi-comic nature of both The Archers and Chaucer, and updating the ancient language and stories into tales of courtly love and morality that strike home not just to an Ambridge audience but to 21st-century Britain as a whole. Compliments must also go to director Kim Greengrass for permitting the actors to stay in character off-stage while allowing them free rein when they're in tale-telling mode.

We are used to slapstick events and occurrences at the more typical Lynda Snell pantomime, but this is a brave venture into doing something a little more serious and it really pays off. Archers fans should keep their ears open for a "special guest appearance" by an actress who is not credited in our cast list but whose voice will be familiar to all – particularly long-term listeners.

What next, one asks? The cast of EastEnders performing King Lear in 2019 or the Corrie crew taking on Ibsen? I do hope not.

AMBRIDGE DIARY

The Archers this week…

Belts are being tightened at Brookfield, which prompts David to ask Kenton to repay the loan. But will David get the response he needs, or will the family be looking at a bleak 2019?

Following her change of circumstances, Jennifer is continuing to struggle. Hence Brian hatching a plan to cheer her up by throwing an impromptu birthday celebration. But with tensions rising between Adam and Alice, might the party plans go awry?

Meanwhile, the cast of The Canterbury Tales are celebrating the end of the production with a party. Be prepared for a certain amount of jostling among the stars of the show when it comes to an award for best performer… DAVID BROWN

I'm not telling

You can't have my inside leg measurement

HELLO? IS IT me you're looking for? We're always told to think twice before giving out personal information on the phone and I urge you to do the same. The money pages of the newspapers are full of perfectly sensible adults who unwittingly let clever crooks raid their bank accounts. Don't give any personal information to people who ring you out of the blue, no matter how plausible. I had this not long ago when someone claiming to be from my bank was up to no good. I avoided catastrophe, but it's easy to be conned.

My question is: why do legitimate companies still phone customers demanding personal data?

I recently had a problem with a well-known airline. It wasn't terribly serious, but irritating enough to want to say something. Complaining was not as easy as buying a ticket. As you know, companies craft their websites so you can spend hundreds of pounds at the touch of a button, but if something goes wrong, you must take a day off work, buy a Sherlock-style hat and pipe and turn detective to identify how to contact the customer relations department. I was told to write an actual letter with my complaint. I took another day off, bought a writing pad and quill, and spent time describing my saga in excruciating detail. I posted the item in a postbox.

'You must take a day off work and buy a Sherlock hat'

Several weeks passed and there was no sign of a letter in response. How rude. Then, today, a call on my mobile with no caller ID. I did what I always do in those circumstances, channel Wilberforce Clayborne Humphries and say in my deepest, butchest voice: "Menswear."

The lovely-sounding woman said she was from the airline and wanted to talk to me about my letter. "I just have to go through some personal details before I can talk to you. What's your home address and email address?"

I said I wasn't happy giving such information over the phone out of the blue to an anonymous number. Was there any way round this? She said she understood and offered to send an email to prove who she was, and would stay on the line. Again, alarm bells rang. Scammers do this kind of thing. An email appeared and I was asked again for my full address. I offered my postcode.

"No, I must have the full postal address."

"Well, we can't do this, I'm afraid," I told her. "Why not send me a letter?" I asked.

"We don't send letters."

NOW I UNDERSTAND that companies must identify the person they're calling for data protection reasons. And perhaps I was over-cautious. This was just a complaint letter, not some vital financial transaction. It would be a pretty dedicated criminal who would somehow intercept a letter to an airline, arrange for a call to be made and then, I don't know, make sure I never got a window seat again.

But companies should stop phoning people out of the blue and demanding our addresses, email details, blood group and inside leg measurement. I'm about to compose a letter of complaint to the airline about their complaints procedure... oh no, wait.

Honestly, this won't wash!

I saw a dry-cleaning store the other day, Honest Dry Cleaners, and resolved never to use them. Why are they so keen to tell me they can be trusted? What is it they're trying to hide?

Eddie Mair's show is on LBC, weekdays at 4pm

SOUND BITES

BY DAVID HEPWORTH

Revelling in those past Radio Times

The BBC Genome Project is a fine and a beautiful thing. It's a digitised searchable database of five million programme listings in Radio Times from 1923 to the end of 2009 for you to enjoy and for historians to consult. The elves behind it have also scanned all the pages from RT, and recently unveiled the collected editions from the 1940s. They're a joy, not just for material about programmes but also for the small ads, which always betray the secret heart of any publication.

Tommy Handley's dental cream

The edition I'm looking at, from January 1949, which is 70 years ago, has ads for the Mentmore pen, which at four shillings and sixpence was clearly aimed upmarket; the Erasmic shaving stick with its double-dense lather; Symington's thick soups, which promised to supply body-building protein; the Toni home permanent wave, which at 16 shillings and eight pence was a lot cheaper than the salon variety; and Kolynos, which readers were assured was the choice of stars such as Tommy Handley when it came to dental cream.

Afraid of past "offences"

It's difficult to imagine a more innocent pleasure than browsing such fodder. So why then does this rich vein of cosiness have to be preceded by a trigger warning: "This historical record contains material which some might find offensive"? Is this what the Tyranny of Now has reduced us to? Are we so petrified that we'll come across an old joke about how Chinese people talk funny that we have to warn people that they're about to be exposed to the past, the foreign country where they do things differently?

You can't future-proof content

It's odd how the old and quaint is now suddenly naughty and provocative, whereas the new and edgy has been carefully sanitised to save modern sensibilities. You do realise, don't you, if you have to put this kind of health warning on the products of bygone decades, you're going to have to do the same thing in perpetuity? In time, some editor of the late 21st century will be having to apologise for the fact that some readers may find elements of a page from 2019 upsetting because it merely reflects the attitudes of the period. We should stop it now. There was never a time in the past when we were uniquely wicked. We aren't uniquely virtuous now.

Today's Choices

RICHARD GRASSIE

The Arts Hour
8.05pm BBC World Service

David Attenborough (above) half whispers to host Nikki Bedi that he's actually rather fond of snakes. This confession follows that unforgettable clip from Planet Earth II in which a baby iguana is chased by racer snakes across hot black sand in the Galapagos. Bedi also looks back at his earlier career, as a studio manager learning his trade in the 1950s at the BBC's Alexandra Palace, through to his most recent series, Dynasties. It's an affectionate trawl through the master's work – but there is a point where he gets riled. He strongly objects to attributing human responses to animals. With the exception of chimps and gorillas, this is simply not true, he explains.

Tchaikovsky: the Man Revealed
9.00pm Classic FM

Following on from his popular series of The Man Revealed biographies of Beethoven, Mozart, Verdi and Johann Strauss, Classic FM's morning show host (and former ITN newsreader) John Suchet turns his attention to Pyotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky. This is a composer whose life was dogged by artistic self-doubts, personal problems and sexual guilt – especially over his obsessive interest in teenage boys. Yet he created much of the most tuneful, memorable and inspiring music in the classical repertoire, from Swan Lake and The Nutcracker to Eugene Onegin and the 1812 Overture. MARK PAPPENHEIM

12.15pm Concerto: the One and the Many
Actor Simon Russell Beale is fascinated by the concerto and how the role of the soloist has evolved since the Baroque era. He explores the complex dynamics between soloist and orchestra, drawing parallels between the world of the concerto and that of the stage, and asks whether the concerto really is a competition between the soloist and the orchestra or a deeper musical communion. Contributors include violinists and period-performance experts Margaret Faultless and Simon McVeigh, violinist Nicola Benedetti, conductor Marin Alsop and composer and clarinettist Mark Simpson. Beale also hears from musicians from the Philharmonia and pianist Lucy Parham. First broadcast last March.
Producer Elizabeth Arno (R)

1.00 Inside Music
Series in which musicians offer an insider's take on various works. Viola player Nadia Sirota specialises in contemporary classical music and discusses her wide-ranging tastes including Mozart, Bach, Brahms, Nico Muhly, Caroline Shaw and Berio. She also talks about how the music of Stravinsky influenced US singer/songwriter Sam Amidon, reveals some unusual lyrics to accompany Berlioz's Symphonie fantastique and discusses how multitracking her viola with a viola da gamba produces beautiful and crystalline consort music. In the Must Listen feature at 2.00 she chooses a piece of music she describes as being from another planet.

3.00 Sound of Cinema
Matthew Sweet meets Justin Hurwitz, who has composed scores for four films, all directed by Damien Chazelle, including La La Land (for which Hurwitz won two Academy Awards), Whiplash and last year's First Man. He discusses his working relationship with Chazelle and his love of the film musical.

Today's Choices

Drama: Graeae's Amy Dorrit 3.00pm Radio 4

The concluding part of this visceral re-working of the Charles Dickens novel sees pint-sized Amy Dorrit (played by Audrey Brisson, above) return to a crumbling estate in London. Her family and friends have called her back from university to lend her support to their campaign to save their homes, while the local councillor and co-investor in the tower block's redevelopment (the inimitable Liz Carr) is equally eager to shut down Amy's skills when it comes to social media. No spoilers involved, but circumstances change radically within minutes of Amy's arrival when the actions of her, let's be frank, pathetic father push things to extremes. Congratulations to the writers, cast and director of this drama for taking what could so easily have been a sob-story and making it into a tale of our times. JANE ANDERSON

Private Passions

12 noon Radio 3

A versatile actor, singer and writer, Clarke Peters devised the Olivier Award-winning revue Five Guys Named Moe, has appeared in many films and TV shows – notably as Lester Freamon, the avuncular detective, in David Simon's long-running drama The Wire – and has performed on stage in everything from Chicago in London's West End to the title role in Shakespeare's Othello in Sheffield. In today's Private Passions he talks to Michael Berkeley about his early days as a backing singer for Joan Armatrading, his love of guitar, and the art of making doll's house furniture while on camera. MARK PAPPENHEIM

In this walking, talking Sunday Feature, Fiona Stafford sets out to show that far from being a consumptive weakling who never left Hampstead, he was a strapping, fit young man who resigned as a doctor and undertook an amazing journey on foot which was to inspire his greatest poetic works. Producer Turan Ali See also Monday–Friday 10.45pm
7.30 Drama on 3: Victim Sarah Wooley's drama about the making of Basil Dearden's 1961 film Victim, the first British release to break the taboo and seriously address homosexuality. The film, with matinée idol Dirk Bogarde taking the gamble of his career, is often credited with helping to change public attitudes to homosexuality. The drama follows the mixture of bravery and pragmatism involved in getting this enterprise off the ground.

Today's Choices

Book of the Week: We Are Displaced

9.45am/12.30am Radio 4

Malala Yousafzai (above) is destined to become one of the foremost heroes of the 21st century. Shot in the head by a Taliban extremist who believed that girls should not be educated, the Pakistani student became in 2014 the youngest Nobel Peace Prize laureate. Last year her latest book, We Are Displaced, dealing with "what it means to lose your home, your community, and the only world you've ever known", was widely praised. It records the experiences of young women who, like Malala – now resident in Birmingham where she was treated – have been forced by conflict to become refugees. This week's adaptation is graced by a prologue recorded by Malala. DAVID McGILLIVRAY

The Essay: An Ode to John Keats

10.45pm Radio 3

Poet Alice Oswald is a perfect choice to kick off this week-long look at John Keats's great odes – the lyrical poems that he penned in 1819 shortly after giving up his medical career. Oswald's mellifluous, lyrical prose perfectly complements Ode on a Grecian Urn to create a beguiling, dream-like listening experience. And she delves into paratextual discussion of Keats's personal history. In the remaining essays, Sean O'Brien, Frances Leviston, Sasha Dugdale and Paul Batchelor will examine other works from Keats's 1819 odes, including those to autumn and to a nightingale. HUW FULLERTON

12.00 Composer of the Week: Felix Mendelssohn (1809–47)
1/5. Mendelssohn in Mozart's Shadow. Donald Macleod explores the life and work of Berlin-raised composer Felix Mendelssohn, with special attention to his influences, beginning with Mozart, with whom he had much in common. Both were brilliant performers on the piano and the violin, and both started composing at a very young age. But whereas Mozart's father was very much the driving force in his son's life and career, for Mendelssohn this authority largely came from his teacher Carl Friedrich Zelter, who encouraged his pupil to learn from the music of Mozart. This comparison with Mozart would continue throughout Mendelssohn's life and beyond.

Today's Choices

Carte Blanche – Michel Legrand

9.00pm Radio 2

Apparently working his way through France's greatest living celebrities, "popera" singer (is that really a thing?) Vincent Niclo reaches – quel bonheur! – Michel Legrand (above). The film composer will always be remembered for The Umbrellas of Cherbourg (1964), although his 200-plus film and TV credits also include the Oscar-winning song The Windmills of Your Mind, from 1968's The Thomas Crown Affair. Tonight he'll talk to Niclo not just about the movies but also his career away from the big screen. He was a child prodigy who switched from classical to jazz, particularly interesting because his tutor Nadia Boulanger taught both Aaron Copland and Quincy Jones. The versatile Legrand has collaborated with everyone from Miles Davis to Gene Kelly. He reveals that he never listens to his own music.

DAVID McGILLIVRAY

I Feel for You

11.00am Radio 4

Jolyon Jenkins makes some of the most original documentaries on Radio 4, and this one is typically counterintuitive. It looks at empathy – a quality much in vogue – and asks whether it's all it's cracked up to be. Where's the evidence that feeling someone else's pain, or even understanding it, actually does any good is his question. Doubtful as to whether getting delegates at Davos to put on VR goggles has done much to end the Syrian war, Jenkins talks to a self-described "intuitive empath", who says she can sense the feelings of strangers in a room and in the street.

9.00 The Long View
1/4. New series. Jonathan Freedland returns with a look at Conservative prime ministers trying to reconcile seemingly irreconcilable divisions within their party. In 2019, it's Theresa May, in the early 1900s it was Arthur Balfour. At that time the party was split over "imperial preference" – a system of tariffs – and free trade. Led by Joseph Chamberlain, advocates of imperial preference were dubbed "whole hoggers", and viewed not unlike the so-called "hard Brexiters" of today.

Today's Choices

We Need to Talk about Death 8.00pm Radio 4

Have you decided what kind of care you would prefer to receive at the end of your life? Most of us haven't but, just like getting a will organised, it is something that spares our nearest and dearest pain at one of the most diffuclt times, as Joan Bakewell reveals in this considered and informative documentary-cum-discussion. We hear from a heartbroken woman whose mother collapsed in her arms in the bathroom and how the "do not resuscitate" form she had signed never made it into the ambulance or to the hospital staff. Rather than having a peaceful, dignified death, CPR was performed and, on the funeral director's advice, the daughter was advised not to view the body because of the work that had been conducted on her rib cage. So, what's the answer, asks Bakewell. Certainly, sharing such key information electronically rather than relying upon paper. And, something we can all do, preparing advance care planning so that everyone is clear about our intentions. JANE ANDERSON

Engelbert: 60 Years of Song 9.00pm Radio 2

Apparently, Engelbert Humperdink has the largest fan club in the world. He's been referred to, with his approval, as "adorably vain" by the writer Deborah Ross, while one of his contemporaries, Tom Jones, called him a four-letter word in an interview three years ago. To mark 60 years in showbiz, Nicky Campbell conducts a relaxed and candid interview with the multimillion-selling balladeer. JANE ANDERSON

9.00 Engelbert: 60 Years of Song
RT Nicky Campbell celebrates the 60-year career of Engelbert Humperdinck with an interview in which the superstar easy-listening crooner discusses his friendship with Elvis Presley, being a scratch darts player and much more. Born in India and raised in Leicester from the age of ten, as Arnold Dorsey, the singer took his name from the German composer who died in 1921. Appealing to a somewhat similar pop demographic as Tom Jones, Humperdinck achieved seismic success with each of his first three hits, all among the decade's 25 top-selling singles : the 1967 ballads Release Me, There Goes My Everything and The Last Waltz. Other defining recordings include Am I That Easy to Forget, A Man without Love, Les Bicyclettes de Belsize and the US 1976 comeback Top Ten After the Lovin'. He recently released a holiday album. Producer Julie Newman

Today's Choices

The Forum
9.05am/12.05am
BBC World Service

There's a lasting potency to the story of Antigone (above, as portrayed by the 19th-century English artist Frederic Leighton) of which its recent appropriation by Kamila Shamsie for her novel Home Fire – winner of the 2018 Women's Prize for Fiction – is just one illustration. The dilemma at the heart Sophocles's 5th-century BC drama – private truth vs public duty – is eternal, and here, along with the history of the play itself, it is explored by a quartet of international experts under the guiding hand of Rajan Datar. Leaving aside Antigone's ongoing moral and political relevance, the best answer to why it is still so widely performed comes from French theatre director Olivier Py. "Because it's a fantastic play!"

SIMON O'HAGAN

Great Lives
6.30pm/12.30am
Radio 4 Extra

With Jon S Baird's Laurel and Hardy biopic Stan & Ollie about to hit cinemas, a Great Lives from 2013 when Ken Dodd, who died last year, nominated one half of the famous comedy duo. Aided by expert Glenn Mitchell, this episode provides a brief but tantalising insight into Stan Laurel, a towering figure in 20th-century comedy who got his big break as an understudy to Charlie Chaplin. Dodd, arguably the last torchbearer of the British music-hall tradition, is sympathetic towards his hero's love life and financial situation – parallels that presenter Matthew Parris can't help but seize upon.

FRIDAY Radio

Today's Choices

More or Less
4.30pm Radio 4

After the fuzziness of the festive splurge it's time for some clarity, with a cold hard look at some of the numbers that affect our daily lives. But as Tim Harford (above) and co return for an 18th year of explaining the truth behind the statistics that are often bandied about, perhaps they will be stuck on still trying to bring some sense to all the claims being made about Brexit. Though there should also be some kind of light relief – last series answered such vital questions as whether there are more statues of goats than women in the UK, and what would have been the most efficient way to get to Mordor in The Lord of the Rings? It's good to have them back (though that's not been empirically proven). DAVID CRAWFORD

The Trouble with Social Mobility
11.00am Radio 4

In David Dimbleby's final edition of Question Time last month, Green Party co-leader Caroline Lucas observed that the 30 regions identified by the Social Mobility Commission's 2017 report as the worst "coldspots" in the UK all voted leave in the EU referendum, citing "a fracture line running deep through our labour and housing markets and our education system – those on the wrong side are losing out and falling behind" as a reason for their lack of hope for the future. Poet and mental-health campaigner Byron Vincent, who had no easy start to life in what he refers to as "the cloying conurbation of various northern sink estates", examines the good, the bad and the ugly behind social mobility. JANE ANDERSON

BBC Local Radio — South East, Midlands, Anglia

Face behind the voice

Mary Anne Hobbs BBC Radio 6 Music

Age 54
Current job The new presenter of BBC Radio 6 Music's weekday morning show (10.30am). Also presents 6 Music Recommends (Wednesdays, 12 midnight). She is artistic advisor and curator of both the BBC 6 Music Festival and the Manchester International Festival, and also works as an international DJ.
CV Born and brought up in Lancashire, she ran away to London at the age of 18 – to live with a band in a bus in a car park. Wrote for Sounds, the NME and Loaded, before broadcasting for BBC GLR, Xfm and then Radio 1 (1996–2010). Joined 6 Music in 2013.
Best moment "My BBC Prom at the Royal Albert Hall in 2015 – undoubtedly the greatest moment of my life. We changed the history of the Proms by introducing music from a new generation of musicians with classical roots – Nils Frahm and A Winged Victory for the Sullen."
Worst moment "Taking Radio 1 off the air twice, with a band I absolutely adore, Mogwai. They were playing live in session for me, but the level of sound fell so low that the network crashed."
Off air "I live in a small terraced house in Manchester and I share my life with my music. I have recently begun to teach Syrian refugees how to tell their stories with radio."
First radio memory "The Shipping Forecast on Radio 4 – there's a lyricism and poetry that's unique."
Favourite broadcaster "John Peel. My father banned records from the house when I was a kid but he didn't find my little radio – and I found John. He stood at the gateway to a whole new universe and I remember thinking 'That's the place I want to be'."
Ambition "To be kind."
Dream job "My new show gives me the opportunity for the first time in my life to re-imagine what a daytime radio show can be like – discovery is at our epicentre. And to be a motorcycle stunt girl for Tarantino."
Secret skill "I can ride any motorcycle you can park in front of me."
DAVID GILLARD

BBC Local Radio

South, West and South West region

Face behind the voice

Mary Anne Hobbs BBC Radio 6 Music

Age 54
Current job The new presenter of BBC Radio 6 Music's weekday morning show (10.30am). Also presents 6 Music Recommends (Wednesdays, 12 midnight). She is artistic advisor and curator of both the BBC 6 Music Festival and the Manchester International Festival, and also works as an international DJ.
CV Born and brought up in Lancashire, she ran away to London at the age of 18 – to live with a band in a bus in a car park. Wrote for Sounds, the NME and Loaded, before broadcasting for BBC GLR, Xfm and then Radio 1 (1996–2010). Joined 6 Music in 2013.
Best moment "My BBC Prom at the Royal Albert Hall in 2015 – undoubtedly the greatest moment of my life. We changed the history of the Proms by introducing music from a new generation of musicians with classical roots – Nils Frahm and A Winged Victory for the Sullen."
Worst moment "Taking Radio 1 off the air twice, with a band I absolutely adore, Mogwai. They were playing live in session for me, but the level of sound fell so low that the network crashed."
Off air "I live in a small terraced house in Manchester and I share my life with my music. I have recently begun to teach Syrian refugees how to tell their stories with radio."
First radio memory "The Shipping Forecast on Radio 4 – there's a lyricism and poetry that's unique."
Favourite broadcaster "John Peel. My father banned records from the house when I was a kid but he didn't find my little radio – and I found John. He stood at the gateway to a whole new universe and I remember thinking 'That's the place I want to be'."
Ambition "To be kind."
Dream job "My new show gives me the opportunity for the first time in my life to re-imagine what a daytime radio show can be like – discovery is at our epicentre. And to be a motorcycle stunt girl for Tarantino."
Secret skill "I can ride any motorcycle you can park in front of me."
DAVID GILLARD

Face behind the voice

Mary Anne Hobbs BBC Radio 6 Music

Age 54
Current job The new presenter of BBC Radio 6 Music's weekday morning show (10.30am). Also presents 6 Music Recommends (Wednesdays, 12 midnight). She is artistic advisor and curator of both the BBC 6 Music Festival and the Manchester International Festival, and also works as an international DJ.
CV Born and brought up in Lancashire, she ran away to London at the age of 18 – to live with a band in a bus in a car park. Wrote for Sounds, the NME and Loaded, before broadcasting for BBC GLR, Xfm and then Radio 1 (1996–2010). Joined 6 Music in 2013.
Best moment "My BBC Prom at the Royal Albert Hall in 2015 – undoubtedly the greatest moment of my life. We changed the history of the Proms by introducing music from a new generation of musicians with classical roots – Nils Frahm and A Winged Victory for the Sullen."
Worst moment "Taking Radio 1 off the air twice, with a band I absolutely adore, Mogwai. They were playing live in session for me, but the level of sound fell so low that the network crashed."
Off air "I live in a small terraced house in Manchester and I share my life with my music. I have recently begun to teach Syrian refugees how to tell their stories with radio."
First radio memory "The Shipping Forecast on Radio 4 – there's a lyricism and poetry that's unique."
Favourite broadcaster "John Peel. My father banned records from the house when I was a kid but he didn't find my little radio – and I found John. He stood at the gateway to a whole new universe and I remember thinking 'That's the place I want to be'."
Ambition "To be kind."
Dream job "My new show gives me the opportunity for the first time in my life to re-imagine what a daytime radio show can be like – discovery is at our epicentre. And to be a motorcycle stunt girl for Tarantino."
Secret skill "I can ride any motorcycle you can park in front of me."
DAVID GILLARD

Face behind the voice

Mary Anne Hobbs BBC Radio 6 Music

Age 54
Current job The new presenter of BBC Radio 6 Music's weekday morning show (10.30am). Also presents 6 Music Recommends (Wednesdays, 12 midnight). She is artistic advisor and curator of both the BBC 6 Music Festival and the Manchester International Festival, and also works as an international DJ.
CV Born and brought up in Lancashire, she ran away to London at the age of 18 – to live with a band in a bus in a car park. Wrote for Sounds, the NME and Loaded, before broadcasting for BBC GLR, Xfm and then Radio 1 (1996–2010). Joined 6 Music in 2013.
Best moment "My BBC Prom at the Royal Albert Hall in 2015 – undoubtedly the greatest moment of my life. We changed the history of the Proms by introducing music from a new generation of musicians with classical roots – Nils Frahm and A Winged Victory for the Sullen."
Worst moment "Taking Radio 1 off the air twice, with a band I absolutely adore, Mogwai. They were playing live in session for me, but the level of sound fell so low that the network crashed."
Off air "I live in a small terraced house in Manchester and I share my life with my music. I have recently begun to teach Syrian refugees how to tell their stories with radio."
First radio memory "The Shipping Forecast on Radio 4 – there's a lyricism and poetry that's unique."
Favourite broadcaster "John Peel. My father banned records from the house when I was a kid but he didn't find my little radio – and I found John. He stood at the gateway to a whole new universe and I remember thinking 'That's the place I want to be'."
Ambition "To be kind."
Dream job "My new show gives me the opportunity for the first time in my life to re-imagine what a daytime radio show can be like – discovery is at our epicentre. And to be a motorcycle stunt girl for Tarantino."
Secret skill "I can ride any motorcycle you can park in front of me."
DAVID GILLARD

Face behind the voice

Mary Anne Hobbs BBC Radio 6 Music

Age 54
Current job The new presenter of BBC Radio 6 Music's weekday morning show (10.30am). Also presents 6 Music Recommends (Wednesdays, 12 midnight). She is artistic advisor and curator of both the BBC 6 Music Festival and the Manchester International Festival, and also works as an international DJ.
CV Born and brought up in Lancashire, she ran away to London at the age of 18 – to live with a band in a bus in a car park. Wrote for Sounds, the NME and Loaded, before broadcasting for BBC GLR, Xfm and then Radio 1 (1996–2010). Joined 6 Music in 2013.
Best moment "My BBC Prom at the Royal Albert Hall in 2015 – undoubtedly the greatest moment of my life. We changed the history of the Proms by introducing music from a new generation of musicians with classical roots – Nils Frahm and A Winged Victory for the Sullen."
Worst moment "Taking Radio 1 off the air twice, with a band I absolutely adore, Mogwai. They were playing live in session for me, but the level of sound fell so low that the network crashed."
Off air "I live in a small terraced house in Manchester and I share my life with my music. I have recently begun to teach Syrian refugees how to tell their stories with radio."
First radio memory "The Shipping Forecast on Radio 4 – there's a lyricism and poetry that's unique."
Favourite broadcaster "John Peel. My father banned records from the house when I was a kid but he didn't find my little radio – and I found John. He stood at the gateway to a whole new universe and I remember thinking 'That's the place I want to be'."
Ambition "To be kind."
Dream job "My new show gives me the opportunity for the first time in my life to re-imagine what a daytime radio show can be like – discovery is at our epicentre. And to be a motorcycle stunt girl for Tarantino."
Secret skill "I can ride any motorcycle you can park in front of me."
DAVID GILLARD

Face behind the voice

Mary Anne Hobbs BBC Radio 6 Music

Age 54
Current job The new presenter of BBC Radio 6 Music's weekday morning show (10.30am). Also presents 6 Music Recommends (Wednesdays, 12 midnight). She is artistic advisor and curator of both the BBC 6 Music Festival and the Manchester International Festival, and also works as an international DJ.
CV Born and brought up in Lancashire, she ran away to London at the age of 18 – to live with a band in a bus in a car park. Wrote for Sounds, the NME and Loaded, before broadcasting for BBC GLR, Xfm and then Radio 1 (1996–2010). Joined 6 Music in 2013.
Best moment "My BBC Prom at the Royal Albert Hall in 2015 – undoubtedly the greatest moment of my life. We changed the history of the Proms by introducing music from a new generation of musicians with classical roots – Nils Frahm and A Winged Victory for the Sullen."
Worst moment "Taking Radio 1 off the air twice, with a band I absolutely adore, Mogwai. They were playing live in session for me, but the level of sound fell so low that the network crashed."
Off air "I live in a small terraced house in Manchester and I share my life with my music. I have recently begun to teach Syrian refugees how to tell their stories with radio."
First radio memory "The Shipping Forecast on Radio 4 – there's a lyricism and poetry that's unique."
Favourite broadcaster "John Peel. My father banned records from the house when I was a kid but he didn't find my little radio – and I found John. He stood at the gateway to a whole new universe and I remember thinking 'That's the place I want to be'."
Ambition "To be kind."
Dream job "My new show gives me the opportunity for the first time in my life to re-imagine what a daytime radio show can be like – discovery is at our epicentre. And to be a motorcycle stunt girl for Tarantino."
Secret skill "I can ride any motorcycle you can park in front of me."
DAVID GILLARD

The stories of many female explorers have been lost – now Mariella Frostrup is putting their names back on the map

Voyages of discovery

EVERY TEENAGE GIRL should know about explorers Freya Stark, Gertrude Bell and Mary Wollstonecraft," declares Mariella Frostrup. So in her forthcoming book, Wild Women and Their Amazing Adventures over Land, Sea and Air, Frostrup has selected writing by more than 50 intrepid female travellers from the 1700s to the present day.

The anthology is a bold, eclectic mix. Readers may have encountered the travel writing of Cheryl Strayed (of Wild fame), Dervla Murphy and Jan Morris, all of whom Frostrup includes, but who knew that 16-year-old African American Juanita Harrison took off on a self-funded world tour in the 1900s, only 40 years after slavery had been abolished? Or that Canadian teenager Aloha Wanderwell hopped into a Model T Ford and whizzed across 75 countries in the 1920s. "Stranded in Brazil, she lived with the Bororo people. When stuck for fuel, she ingeniously combined bananas and animal fat to power her car," says Frostrup.

These women made epic, record-breaking journeys, often pitted against greater odds than their male contemporaries, but many of their names are lost in time. Wanderwell was dubbed "the world's most travelled girl", but who remembers her now? Frostrup, 56, is on a mission to put female explorers back on the map. "I can't believe there haven't been more movies made of their lives," she says.

In Wild Women, there are tales of cross-dressing (Sarah Hobson navigated Iran in the 1970s disguised as a man); broken marriages (in 1917 Rosita Forbes dumped her husband, pawned her wedding ring and tried to return from South Africa to Britain alone on horseback, before detouring on a trip around Asia with a female friend, visiting 30 countries along the way); affairs (Beryl Markham was the first woman to fly solo over the Atlantic from east to west and her many lovers included an English prince) and near-death encounters (skiing across Antarctica alone in 2012, Felicity Aston risked plunging down a snow-covered crevasse).

Each woman's voice sings off the page as they journey from Constantinople to Crimea, from Antarctica to the Andes, up Everest and down the Amazon. "What struck me is how many of them were unconventional. The only way they could experience a degree of freedom was to step away from the confines of the lives they were leading and travel," Frostrup says.

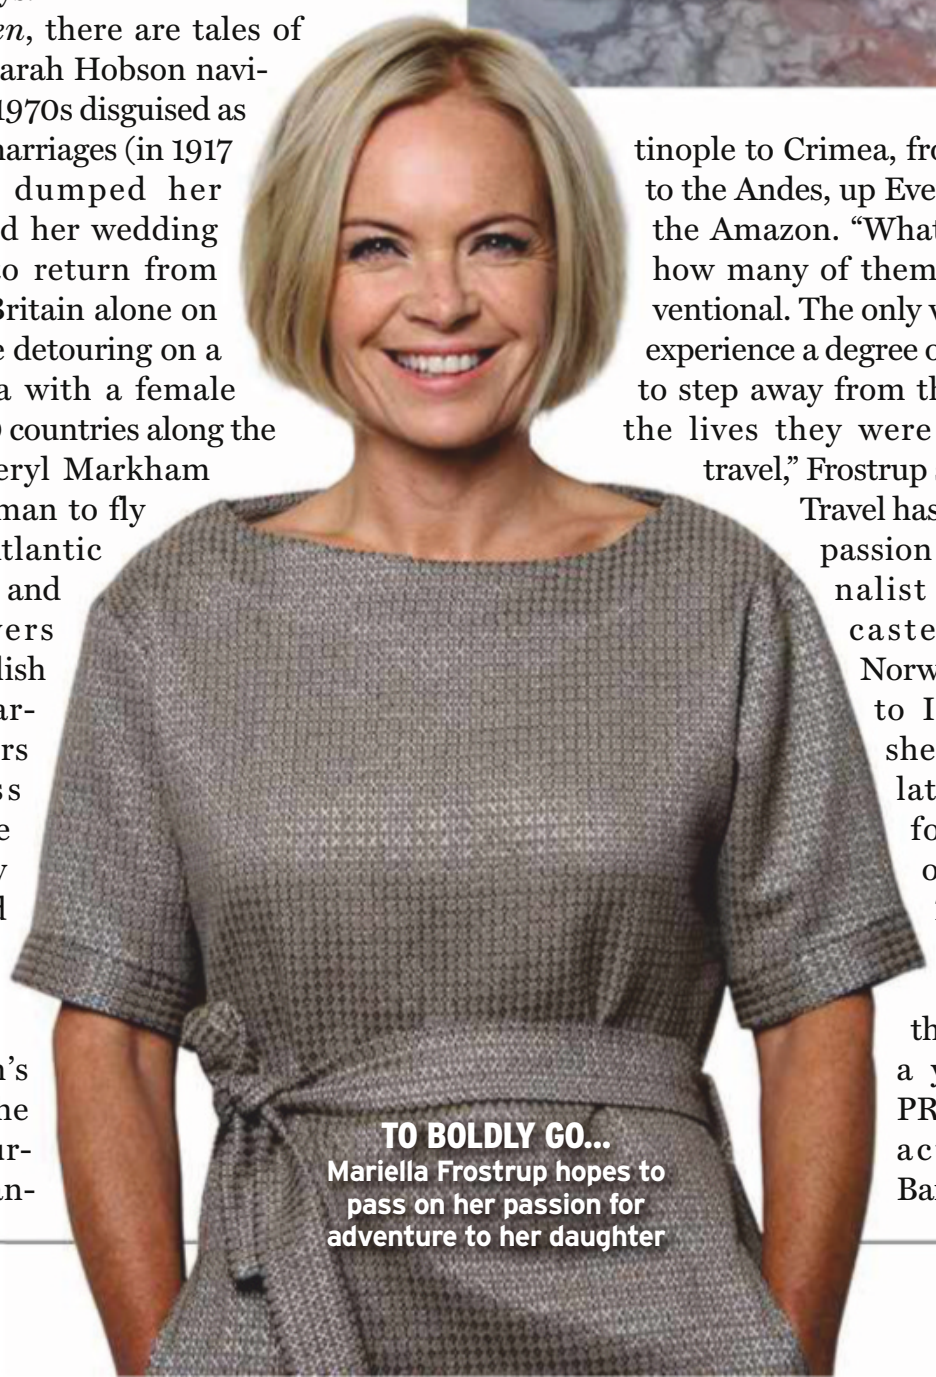

Travel has always been a passion for the journalist and broadcaster. Born in Norway, she moved to Ireland when she was six (her late father was foreign editor of The Irish Times), before leaving for London at the age of 16. As a young music PR (touring with acts such as Bananarama and Tears for Fears), she drove journalists across the US. In 2002, nearly 20 years after a brief marriage to musician and presenter Richard Jobson, she met her second husband – human rights lawyer Jason McCue – on a charity trek in Nepal. They live in Somerset with their two children, Molly Mae, 14, and Danny, 13.

In her young adulthood in London, Frostrup spent weekends in Notting Hill's then-famous Travel Bookshop (immortalised in Richard Curtis's film Notting Hill), deciding where to journey next. She read masters of the genre, from Patrick Leigh Fermor and Eric Newby to Wilfred Thesiger. "It didn't occur to me to stop and wonder whether women, too, had ventured forth and lived to tell similar tales." So now she's making amends.

Main picture: Felicity Aston, who skied alone across Antarctica in 2012; below: Gertrude Bell in Iraq, 1909; bottom: pilot Beryl Markham, with the Vega Gull in which she flew the Atlantic, 1936

she spotted a sepia-tinted photograph of 19th-century British artist and explorer Adela Breton – "dashingly dressed in equine velvets, sitting proudly on her mule" – in a Somerset newspaper. Breton's unusual life story got Frostrup wondering about how many other female writers' tales might be gathering dust in out-of-print publications and museum archives.

INSPIRED BY THE SUCCESS of Good Night Stories for Rebel Girls, last year's uplifting collection of tales of 100 great women, she pitched an anthology "for mature women" to publisher Head of Zeus with a list of 20 names. In turn they sent her "an avalanche" of travelogues written by women. "My criteria included, 'Are they readable?'" she laughs.

The extracts are arranged by continent, rather than chronologically, so Times journalist Mary Barker's 1867 account of running a sheep farm in New Zealand is followed by Robyn Davidson's 2,700km trek with camels across the Australian desert in 1975 (her 1980 book about it, Tracks, was later made into a film of the same name).

Frostrup's book is dedicated "For my daughter Molly Mae and the adventures that lie ahead".

Do women travel differently from men? Frostrup thinks they downplay danger. When the Japanese mountaineer Junko Tabei became the first woman to reach the summit of Everest in 1975, she says she thought in relief, "Here is the summit. I don't have to climb any more." Frostrup chuckles. "That's so understated and so female," she says. "Whereas men who climbed Everest – like Edmund Hillary – talked about owning the mountain, and even described themselves as being pitted against the mountain as if it were a woman."

She notes that women travellers often feel guilty for endangering their guides: "They're consistently apologetic to the driver or the man who lets them use their tent for the night." But they also take great pleasure in food, animals and life's little luxuries, like coffee and decent bed linen.

In light of the current turbulent political landscape, Frostrup mourns the freedom and hospitality experienced by Freya Stark and Gertrude Bell in countries such as Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Syria and Afghanistan, "where today civil war and fundamentalist religion have, in some places, driven women's position back centuries". All the explorers in Wild Women are incredibly brave, she says. "On top of the obvious dangers that either sex would experience, there's this deep-rooted fear of being alone as a woman. Every man is a threat until he proves himself not to be. And putting together this book made me reappraise my own fears. I'd be terrified to be on a mountainside on my own. I don't mind climbing the mountain, it's the alone bit that really frightens me."

However, women shouldn't see themselves as vulnerable, she says. "It's good to remember that all of these women went out and did these things and came back in one piece. They hadn't been raped or tortured or locked in a basement."

FROSTRUP CARES PASSIONATELY about women's issues. But, she jokes, "Anyone my age has been in and out of fashion for being a feminist about 15 times." At 50-plus you have to make your own adventures. So she is currently pitching a Wild Women TV series to the BBC. "After decades of watching white, male, middle-class comedians travel the world on TV adventure budgets, it would be exciting to send a cast of contemporary women off in the footsteps of some of these intrepid gals to chart the changes that have taken place, or not, and celebrate their pioneering bravery!" LIZ HOGGARD

The original food fighter

Celebrity chefs have joined the fight, but it was Sheila Dillon who first made us think deeply about the food we eat

The Food Programme
Sunday 12.30pm BBC Radio 4

LONG BEFORE TELEVISION chefs started campaigning against food waste, our overuse of plastic and promoting sustainable, organic food, there was Sheila Dillon. Pushing the politics of food to the forefront of her work as a journalist on Radio 4's The Food Programme, she and her colleague Derek Cooper (who died in 2014) were leading the way and unearthing, amongst other things, the BSE scandal, the rise of GM foods, irradiation and the importance of going organic.

Dillon is passionate about food, but her work as a journalist didn't begin in the culinary world. She grew up in the small Lancashire village of Hoghton in the 50s and 60s – her mother was a weaver and her father a barber, but the family had a big farming background.

"When I look back, I loved food as a child. My mum was a really good cook, as was my grandmother. It sounds like a privilege, but it was perfectly normal to be good cooks then, and it was before supermarkets, so food was delivered by the fishmonger and greengrocer, all around the village. And we had Preston Market nearby, so food was very much part of my growing up."

Dillon moved to Midwest America for a job with Indiana University Press after graduating from Leicester University, but ended up working as a journalist in New York. One incident that happened while she was living in Manhattan sparked her curiosity about the link between diet and health, changing her career path. "I was living in New York and thinking the American food system was a bad joke. And then, while I was weaning my baby, there was a pesticide scandal on Long Island," she explains. "There is a big potato growing area there and they were putting pesticides on the potatoes that I was feeding my young child. The environment agency said there was nothing to worry about, but water was being tanked in to communities on Long Island and wells were being closed and it awoke me to the politics of food. I knew something wasn't right."

In the late 1980s her journey to becoming a presenter of The Food Programme began, first working as a reporter on the show before becoming a producer and then, when Cooper retired, the show's main presenter in 2001. Along the way she has won several awards including the Glaxo Science Prize, the Caroline Walker Award and several Glenfiddich Awards, most recently for a documentary about the American meat industry.

BETWEEN THEM, SHE and Cooper covered many ground-breaking stories. She is particularly proud, she says, of "getting discussions going about the relationship between diet and health, which was seen as bonkers in the 1980s and 90s".

"We looked at a huge study of diet and cancer rates, so I rang the main cancer hospitals and talked to senior oncologists about whether they were thinking about diet to help prevent recurrence and that wasn't something anyone was really considering. What does it matter if you eat chips and drink coke? Now we know that's of considerable consequence."

The organic movement (for food grown without the use of pesticides, synthetic fertiliser or genetically modified organisms), is now very much a part of the mainstream, but it wasn't a consideration when Dillon started to investigate its virtues: "I wanted a chef to make a dish with organic food and explain why it was different, but I had to ring five chefs before I could get someone to do it – a lot of people just didn't see the need to eat that way."

Dillon's interest in the link between diet and health became personal following her diagnosis of multiple myeloma, a cancer of the bone marrow, in 2011. "I'm interested in this relationship between medicine and what you eat," she says. "People say we are at a tipping point. There are those pushing against Type 2 diabetes and obesity through a new model, because the model of handing out a pill clearly isn't working. We've been doing it since the war but it needs to change. It's obviously inadequate because 10 per cent of the NHS budget is now going on Type 2 diabetes and by 2035 that number is projected to reach 17 per cent."

Dillon's own diet is extremely healthy and she enjoys pilates. She describes herself as an

"omnivore, which is necessary when you present The Food Programme," for which she has eaten sheep's eyes ("Fine as long as you remove the gritty cornea") and brain ("Cooked, obviously"). She enjoys a glass of a wine or two several days a week and eats, "Mostly organic food, except for red meat from my local butcher; I know where his stuff comes from". Of course, she is aware that she'll never know "if it's my diet or the curcumin [a herbal supplement from turmeric] I take every day combined with occasional chemotherapy that's helped keep my multiple myeloma at bay for the last seven years".

Dillon is pessimistic about the future of food: "I'm scared that Brexit will end with us having a free trade deal with the US. I lived there long enough to know it has one of the worst food systems in the world."

So who today is a pioneer for change that she respects? Who does she feel will bear the standard in years to come? "Yotam Ottolenghi is pretty inspiring. I like his style but I like his intelligence, too. I'm a big admirer of Jamie Oliver. He's done enormous amounts for food and got a generation cooking. And Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall, too. His programmes on waste and fish have been hugely important." CASS FARRAR

Hidden cost of children

There are just days to go for you to pay outstanding tax on child benefit, says Paul Lewis

If you have an annual income above £50,000 and are in a couple where child benefit is claimed but you have not been paying tax on it, you have just a few days to declare it through an online self-assessment form and pay the tax by 31 January.

The tax on child benefit for those on high incomes began in 2013, but tens of thousands of those who should be paying the tax have not done so. This year HM Revenue & Customs sent out 100,000 letters to people who should have paid it in 2016/17 or 2017/18 but did not. It also announced in November that it would waive all penalties for late payment, back to 2013/14 in some cases.

'Tax on child benefit began in 2013'

The High Income Child Benefit Charge – as it is officially called – is due from a person who has an income above £50,000 in a tax year – in a couple it is the higher earner who counts if they or their partner claim child benefit. It does not matter if the higher earner is the parent of the children or not. So someone who moves in with a single parent and who has an income above £50,000 is liable to pay it.

The tax is paid on a sliding scale between £50,000 and £60,000 and once income reaches £60,000 it is equal to 100 per cent of the Child Benefit received. In those cases the person who gets the child benefit can cancel the child benefit. More than 500,000 parents have chosen to do that.

If your income has topped £50,000 in any tax year back to 2013/14 and you received child benefit or lived with someone who did, you should contact HMRC and register to pay it. That will be expensive. Child benefit is £20.70 a week for the first child and £13.70 for every extra child, which is £2,501 a year for three children. Multiply that by up to six years and the sums are very large. Interest will be charged but penalties for late payment should be waived if your income was below £50,000 in 2012/13 and no new claim for child benefit has been made since.

For further information, go to gov.uk and search "high income child benefit".

HOW TO HELP BOOST YOUR RETIREMENT FINANCES

Request your free guide to unlocking the cash in your home, written by Radio Times money expert Paul Lewis

The good news is that we're enjoying longer retirements. However, for many, our pensions are struggling to pay for the retirement we always dreamt of. As a result, many of us are looking for ways to boost our finances.

This is where equity release comes in. It allows homeowners aged between 55 and 95 access to some of the tax-free cash locked in their homes. It's become an increasingly popular option in helping fund a better retirement.

The money released from your property is tax free and can be used to spend as you wish. That might be to pay for home improvements or holidays, clearing existing debts or even helping others. Many people decide to use their tax-free cash to make a gift to their loved ones, so they can see the benefit now. There are also a range of plans that let you guarantee an inheritance for your children, so giving now doesn't mean they have to miss out later.

WHAT IS EQUITY RELEASE?

The most popular form of equity release is a lifetime mortgage which is a loan secured against your home. Plans include a range of different options to suit your needs; for example, you can choose to take a single lump sum or start with an initial lump sum and have the option of taking out more cash in smaller amounts later on.

With a lifetime mortgage there are typically no monthly repayments as the loan plus roll-up of interest is repaid when the plan comes to its end, usually when your home is sold after you pass away or move into long-term care.

Equity release will reduce the value of your estate and may affect your entitlement to means-tested benefits.

Unless you decide to go ahead, Key's service is completely free of charge, as their usual advice fee of 1.99% of the amount released would only be payable on completion of a plan, subject to a minimum advice fee of £1,499.

You should always think carefully before securing a loan against your home.

GOOD ADVICE IS KEY

If you're considering equity release to help fund a better retirement, we can help guide you through your options. There is no obligation to go ahead if you book an appointment with Key. We provide expert advice and the information you need to make the decision that meets your individual needs.

Features:

- FCA accredited independent advisers we are not tied to any lenders
- Face-to-face appointments in the comfort of your own home
- Whole of market comparison we consider ALL providers

After talking you through all your options, we will make a personalised recommendation, and if equity release isn't right for you, we'll tell you.

Dictionary corner Susie Dent

People against anti-animal language cite the term "guinea pig". Were guinea pigs the original "guinea pigs"? Susan Davies Gloucester

In 1913, George Bernard Shaw wrote of the "folly which sees in the child nothing more than the vivisector sees in a guinea pig: something to experiment on with a view to rearranging the world". Indeed, guinea pigs were once widely used in the fields of medical and scientific experimentation.

An antitoxin for diphtheria, vitamin C and the hormone adrenaline were all discovered thanks to guinea pigs, while blood transfusions and kidney dialysis were also developed through their use.

Today, rats and mice have largely, though not entirely, taken their place, but it's from this medical past that guinea pigs came to be used as a metaphor for any subject of scientific experimentation.

LETTER OF THE WEEK

We loved their journey

GREATEST DANCERS
Stacey Dooley and Kevin Clifton won over the viewers

I was delighted by the result of the Strictly final (15 December BBC1). Stacey Dooley and Kevin Clifton were worthy winners. Perhaps the makers of the show will, finally, take note of what it appears the public are telling you – we like to see non-dancers improving week-by-week and, eventually, possibly winning the show. It's too boring, predictable and even unfair for anybody who has any dance training whatsoever to compete against those who have never danced before.

Yes, people like Ashley Roberts and Faye Tozer are great to watch, but it's so much more entertaining to see a contestant who at the start of the series is considered weak go on to win! Take note, BBC.

Jan Salkeld Durham

Jan Salkeld wins a Bose SoundLink Micro Bluetooth speaker, in either orange or black. This small but powerful speaker delivers unmatched sound for its size. With up to six hours' battery life, a silicone rubber exterior and a tear-resistant strap, it's portable, rugged and waterproof. RRP £99.95. bose.co.uk

SPORTING HIGHLIGHT

Congratulations to the BBC on Sports Personality of the Year (16 December BBC1). For the first time since they took the show "on the road", they got it right! Not a wasted interview, positive messages from all the contributors, and a perfect selection of winners.

Richard Frost Montbarbat, France

LIFE AFTER CHRIS

Knowing Chris Evans is leaving his Radio 2 show in December I'm wondering if Vassos Alexander is having to find other employment? He would be a great asset to Zoe Ball, giving us all the sports news. And what will happen to the story competition, 500 Words, which the children look forward to? That has been a successful annual event. And CarFest?

Wendy Hards Crediton, Devon

Vassos has decided to go to Virgin Radio with Chris Evans. Lewis Carnie, head of Radio 2, tells us: "As Vassos Alexander is leaving Radio 2, we will welcome Mike Williams, who is currently a sports presenter across the BBC radio networks, to the Zoe Ball Breakfast Show. We're delighted that 500 Words will be launching in January 2019 and look forward to reading the thousands of incredibly creative stories. CarFest will be continuing as an event. Radio 2 wishes Chris and the CarFest team the very best of luck with it next year."

WHO KNEW?

I'd almost forgotten that I'd written to Radio Times in 1996, regarding Doctor Who, until a friend pointed out that my letter was mentioned in "From the RT Archive" (RT, 1 December). As the column said, I had to wait nine years before the show came back, but it was worth the wait. I've enjoyed all the 21st-century doctors, my favourite being David Tennant, but Jodie Whittaker won me over from the moment she crashed through the roof of the train. Long may she continue!

Chris Warrell London SE9

GARY'S GOT THE NEWS

Give Gary Lineker the job of hosting Have I Got News for You (BBC1) – when he guested on 14 December, he was the best yet.

Diana Parish Singleton, West Sussex

CLOSE TO HOME

Once more Jimmy McGovern broke my heart with a poignant drama, Care (9 December BBC1). Both my sister and I felt as if he could have been sitting in the room with us as we followed the same path with our own mother six years ago. For the most part there is no lack of compassion among care-home staff – just understaffing and the lack of resources to do the job they would like to do.

Six years on and the generation to whom we owe so much is still being let down at the time they need us most. Let us hope that the wise words of the writer and the heartrending performances by both Sheridan Smith and Alison Steadman prick a few consciences.

Sue Karstens via email

THANKS, DOC

I was dismayed to find that my iPad was too old to be compatible with the new BBC Sounds app. But, thanks to the advice of RT's Doctor Digital, I'm able to access the app at bbc.co.uk/sounds.

I think this should be advertised more by the BBC. Please include this fact on Feedback to assist others whose iPads have been usurped by younger models.

Sally Shears Lancaster

THE FINAL CLOSE-UP

Is the BBC committed to a new run of Film 2019 or are they going to let the programme die?

Nick Smith Pulborough, West Sussex

A BBC spokesperson tells RT, "In 2019 we will be creating an enhanced offer for lovers of film both on television and online, which will be a more consistent approach across the year and will replace the film show. We will have more news about what this will look like soon. Those interested in film can also watch BBC News' weekly The Film Review and listen to The Film Programme and film features on Front Row on Radio 4, and Radio 3's Sound of Cinema."

HOT OFF THE PRESSES

In Dictionary Corner (RT, 15 December) Susie Dent was asked about the origin of the expression "mind your ps and qs". I know of another explanation of its origin, going back to the days of hot-metal printing. The compositor had to pick the letters from the type tray with one hand and insert them into the composing stick held in the other. You had to make sure that the ps and qs were put in back to front and upside down, or they would print wrongly.

Shirley Marsland Ashtead, Surrey

TO THE DEATH

What a gem Death and Nightingales was (BBC2). Brilliant acting, beautiful settings, fantastic music, dialogue just right. I've run out of superlatives.
M Gething Stockton-on-Tees

GO, SUSAN!

I have been a fan of The Archers (Radio 4) since it began and I love Susan Carter. She may be a gossip, but she's a fiercely defensive mother and friend, and in a subtle way we have been made aware of her healthy libido, too! Charlotte Martin, who plays Susan, is to be congratulated.
P Evans Haverfordwest, Dyfed

SECRET SPROUT LOVER

Like many, I drowned in TV Christmas ads. But there was one I particularly liked. It's the Tesco ad in which people discuss their food likes and dislikes. Who was the grumpy, gorgeous Scotsman with a beard who, on shutting the door on carol singers, says, "No sprouts"? I'm smitten!
Lynne Rendell Aberystwyth

The RT detective agency discovered he's called Jamie Buchanan (below) and we passed on your letter. Jamie replies to you: "I'm flattered

by your comments. It's very warming to know that all the hard work that goes into making adverts for the festive season doesn't go unnoticed. However, to be honest, I'm actually a big fan of brussels sprouts! Wishing you and your family a very happy new year, the grumpy Scotsman."

ALL WRAPPED UP

CONSOLATION PRIZES

All the "fired" contestants in The Apprentice (BBC1) shuffle off to the taxi wearing a scarf, even on warm and sunny days. I cannot recall anyone ever wearing a scarf as they arrive, full of enthusiasm, at the beginning of the series!

Could it be that Lord Sugar secretly gives each fired contestant a scarf by way of consolation?
Stewart Blunt Solihull, West Midlands

‘I couldn’t watch Dynasties’

But the actress is a huge fan of appointment-to-view dramas

What’s the view from your sofa?
In front of me is a table with my specs for watching TV. I’ll light a fire if I have the time and I’ve an elderly border terrier who hobbles around and lies at my feet. The other one sits next to me on the sofa while I drink a cup of tea.

Have you got a big fancy telly?
Definitely not. It’s very basic.

And what are you watching?
I’ve been enjoying MasterChef: the Professionals. I’m watching the final season of House of Cards and after that I’m moving onto Trust. And I love RuPaul’s Drag Race. The people taking part have amazing stories, and the costumes, hair and make-up are brilliant.

You’re not a telly snob, then?
Not at all! Years ago when I worked with Russell T Davies we used to talk about telly all the time. Film and theatre were seen as the high-end art forms but we both agreed that we loved – LOVED – telly. And now loads of fantastic actors and actresses want to be on TV so everybody has finally caught up with what we were on about all those years ago.

What do you love about it?
There’s such a variety, and I like the feeling that everybody is looking forward to watching the same thing at the same time. It doesn’t happen as much now but you still get it with those amazing Jed Mercurio shows like Line of Duty and Bodyguard, where you can’t wait for next week.

Is Mercurio somebody you’d like to work with?
Oh I think he’s extraordinary, yes!

Is there anything you won’t watch?
I love animals and I campaign for the RSPCA. I won’t watch the Grand National, and I can’t watch natural history shows, either. I know that sounds like heresy but I find them terribly upsetting. I can’t bear seeing zebras pulled down by lions. I heard about the chimpanzee episode of Dynasties and I just couldn’t watch that. I can’t watch too much human violence either. I’ve become more sensitive about that.

Have you ever turned down a part because of too much violence?
No, it’s different when you’re filming it. When I did Afterlife with Andrew Lincoln years ago, where I played a crazy medium, it was great fun, but people said they had to watch with their hands over their eyes.

There were rumours that you were going to be Doctor Who…
No, no. Whenever the Doctor regenerates, things get cooked up, do you know what I mean?

What do you think of Jodie Whittaker as the Doctor?
It’s wonderful – she’s such a fantastic actress. It’s such a brilliant idea to get a woman in to do it. I cried when I read that. I think there were probably quite a lot of male Whovians who were very sceptical about that transformation so I’m thrilled it’s been received so well.

On the subject of brilliant women on TV – is there any chance that you and Suranne Jones will come back in Scott & Bailey?
Absolutely none! It’s done. It’s much better that things end when they are supposed to rather than they keep on going and become, you know… EMMA COX

Lesley Sharp stars in Living the Dream, returning to Sky 1 on Tuesday at 9.00pm

Dare to dream

Make your next holiday more than a quick break – make it truly memorable, says RT's travel expert Claire Webb

Welcome to the Radio Times 20 Best Trips of a Lifetime. Over 24 pages, you'll find 20 brilliant destinations ranging from Australia to Alaska, Cuba to Kenya.

What makes a trip of a lifetime? Well, it might be a holiday that marks a milestone – a big birthday, a wedding anniversary or retirement. It probably requires more research than usual, a bigger investment, a longer flight. Maybe it involves stepping out of your comfort zone. But above all, it's special – a trip where you make memories that you'll treasure for ever.

Last year I took three months off work and travelled around Central Asia. I slept in shepherds' yurts while hiking in the hills of Kyrgyzstan and drove over unearthly moonscape peaks in Tajikistan. I marvelled at madrassas in Uzbekistan's Silk Road cities and climbed a singing sand dune in Kazakhstan. Not once did I wish I was back at my desk in London, staring out at a grey Tuesday. It took ten years to pluck up the courage to make that trip, and I don't intend to wait another decade until my next adventure (especially as my bucket list is longer than ever after compiling this guide).

Most people won't have three months to spare, but two weeks is enough to experience something new, change your outlook and sustain you for years to come. We hope the following pages provide some inspiration.

If you enjoy cruises, why not swap your usual berth for a journey down the Mekong River? It's by far the most relaxing way to witness the striking contrasts of Vietnam and Cambodia: buzzing cities, ancient temples and villages that have barely changed in centuries. If train travel is more your thing, consider booking a seat on Canada's Rocky Mountaineer – just as Michael Portillo does in his new series of Great Railroad Journeys.

Always wanted to see a big cat in the wild? Make 2019 the year you finally go on safari and sleep in a luxurious tent in the savannah, serenaded by animal calls. Alternatively, nature lovers could jet off to see Sir David Attenborough's favourite place on earth – northern Queensland in Australia, where you can snorkel on the Great Barrier Reef and explore the Daintree rainforest on the same day.

Don't forget that a trip of a lifetime doesn't have to mean long-haul. Iceland is one of the best places to see the northern lights and it's less than a three-hour flight from Manchester, while Madeira's wonderful walks and fertile landscape can be reached from Gatwick in under four hours.

What are you waiting for?

1 TRY TIGER-SPOTTING IN RAJASTHAN

Spying a tiger in the wild is an electrifying experience. Ranthambore National Park in Rajasthan is one of the best places to encounter the elusive and endangered Bengal tiger. It's also one of the most picturesque: this 500-square-mile reserve was formerly the hunting ground of maharajas, and overgrown ruins are dotted around its hills and lakes. Visitors stay in the park in luxurious tents or heritage hotels and go searching for its 70 tigers on jeep safaris.

DON'T MISS No matter how knowledgeable your guide is, tiger sightings are not guaranteed, but you are sure to spot plenty of other wildlife. Ranthambore's residents include sloth bears, crocodiles, turtles, mongoose, wild boars, hyenas, leopards, jackals and over 200 species of birds.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Rajasthan translates as the "Land of Kings" and is famous for its forts, palaces and cities. In the Pink City of Jaipur, admire the dusky-rose City Palace and the Palace of Winds, a flamboyant salmon confection. In the Blue City of Jodhpur, the old town is every shade of blue. Marvel at the palaces and marble temples of Udaipur – the City of Lakes – on a sunset cruise. You can even stay in a palace – many have been turned into hotels.

IN THE PINK

TIGERS ON TV

A film crew spent months tracking a tiger and her four cubs in Bandhavgarh Tiger Reserve in central India for Dynasties (available on BBC iPlayer)

2 TAKE IN THE VIEWS ON AN ALASKA CRUISE

Sail past fjords, mountains shrouded in mist, glaciers and arctic tundra – an Alaskan cruise takes you through the Inside Passage, a waterway that threads between the islands of the Pacific coast, which are home to sea lions, orcas and humpback whales. While the scenery is the main attraction, the ports reveal Alaska's turbulent history: the Gold Rush town of Skagway, Norwegian-feeling Petersburg, Russian-influenced Sitka and Native Alaskan totem poles in Ketchikan. Smaller ships afford better wildlife-spotting and excursions. You can work up a sweat on a guided hike or kayak tour, or simply sit back and enjoy a bird's-eye view on helicopter and float-plane tours.

DON'T MISS In Skagway, follow in the footsteps of the people who flocked to Alaska in the Gold Rush of the late 1890s. Take a trip on the narrow-gauge White Pass and Yukon Route Railroad, which snakes through mountains, skirting glaciers, gorges and waterfalls.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Most cruises start from Vancouver or Seattle. If you really want to push the boat out, combine a cruise with a train journey through the Rockies on the Rocky Mountaineer.

3 ENJOY THE ROMANCE OF THE TAJ MAHAL

Legend has it that the Emperor Shah Jahan's favourite wife made him promise to build her the world's most beautiful tomb when she died. Whether it's true or not, he did just that.

It's said that architects, masons, stone-cutters and painters came from as far away as Iran, and it took 20,000 labourers and artisans 20 years to build India's most fêted building, which was completed in the mid-17th century. The interior is adorned with calligraphy, intricate carvings and semi-precious stones and is also the resting place of Jahan, who was interred beside his queen. The marble dome shifts in colour, fading from pearly white to rose as the sun rises and sets, while the lush riverside gardens are a marvel in their own right.

DON'T MISS The city of Agra also boasts one of the finest Mughal forts in India: the Red Fort. This vast sandstone and marble structure was the principal resident of the dynasty and built as a military fortress, but Jahan transformed it into an ornate palace. After his son seized the throne, he was imprisoned here for the rest of his life, within sight of his beloved wife's mausoleum.

Other popular stops are Amritsar's Golden Temple, one of the most revered sites for Sikhs, and Udaipur, where Lake Pichola is awash with fabulous palaces.

4 MYSTICAL ULURU

As the first rays of the sun strike Uluru, the sandstone monolith that rises from the outback, it begins to glow scarlet. Sunrise at Uluru (the Aboriginal and official name of Ayers Rock) is a mystical experience. Australia's most famous rock is over two miles long and 350m high, and the crowning glory of the aptly named Red Centre – an otherworldly landscape of desert, burnished orange bluffs and gorges. After an equally spectacular sunset, there's sublime stargazing to be had.

DON'T MISS From October 2019, visitors will no longer be allowed to climb Uluru, which is considered sacred by the Anangu people. Instead, explore its grottos and ancient cave paintings on a range of walks around the base. Watch Anangu artists at work at the national park's superb cultural centre, and be dazzled by Bruce Munro's Field of Light art installation – a collection of 50,000 solar-powered light stems.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Thirty miles from Uluru is Kata Tjuta (which translates as "many heads") – a collection of 36 rock domes that are almost as impressive as Uluru. Admire the sheer red rock faces and lush base of Kings Canyon on foot, quad bike or even on a camel. Further north, the East and West MacDonnell Ranges stretch out from either side of Alice Springs and offer spectacular hikes, drives and freshwater swimming holes.

5 RELAX ON A MEKONG RIVER CRUISE

The tranquil waters of the Mekong are a world away from South East Asia's buzzing cities: glide past bullock carts, fishermen and paddy fields, stopping at a Buddhist temple, a floating market or a village that makes jewellery.

The Mekong flows 2,700 miles from the Tibetan highlands to the South China Sea, the lifeblood of six different nations – China, Myanmar, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam. Steamers sail north or southbound between Siem Reap, Cambodia's ramshackle, endearing capital Phnom Penh and Vietnam's scooter-jammed metropolis of Ho Chi Minh City (which most locals still call Saigon). You can also cruise the Upper Mekong, beginning in Laos's French-colonial capital Vientiane and traversing jungle villages, Buddhist caves and Luang Prabang's glittering monasteries.

DON'T MISS Angkor Wat always tops lists of the world's best tourist attractions. Decorated with Hindu legends and topped with lotus-bud towers, this vast temple complex marked the architectural zenith of the ancient Khmer Empire, and was built in the first half of the 12th century. It's just one of more than a thousand crumbling and tree-entwined temples, shrines and tombs spread over 150 square miles in the jungle near Siem Reap.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Start your trip in Hanoi, Vietnam's beguiling colonial capital. Haggle over silk and souvenirs in the Old Quarter, sample piquant street food and egg coffee, stroll around Hoan Kiem illuminated lake at dusk and see a puppet show – an ancient art form kept alive by skilled musicians and puppeteers.

Hell's Gate, Rotorua, has the southern hemisphere's largest hot waterfall

6 NEW ZEALAND'S GEOTHERMAL WONDERS

Belching mud, shooting geysers, crystalline terraces and technicolour algae gardens... the town of Rotorua on the North Island perches on a long-dormant volcano and is nicknamed "Sulphur City" as it smells of rotten eggs. It's surrounded by volcanic wonderlands: Wai-O-Tapu (Maori for "sacred waters") has boiling mud pools, hot springs and punctual geysers. Hell's Gate, which was christened by George Bernard Shaw, boasts New Zealand's largest mud volcano and hot waterfall. And you can enjoy the therapeutic benefits of Polynesian Spa, which overlooks Lake Rotorua and has more than two dozen pools at varying temperatures.

DON'T MISS The Skyline Gondola provides panoramic views of the steaming landscape, while the treewalk in Whakarewarewa Forest allows you to walk among the giant redwoods. Cruise around one of the region's 18 lakes, or brave the Kaituna river's white-water rapids.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE The North Island's natural wonders don't end with Rotorua. Marvel at the stalagmites, stalactites and glow-worms of Waitomo's limestone caves. Hike up volcanos and past a red crater, emerald lakes and steamy fumaroles in Tongariro National Park. Explore the black-sand beaches of the west coast, or take a boat from Auckland to the lava-encrusted island of Rangitoto, a home to rare birds.

7 VISIT VIETNAM'S IMPERIAL CAPITAL

On the banks of the Perfume River sits an imperial city that has survived two colonial wars and decades of neglect. From the early 1800s until 1945, Hue (pronounced "hway") was the capital of Vietnam and the seat of the Nguyen dynasty. Encircled by thick walls and a moat filled with waterlilies, the sprawling citadel has the remains of courts, temples, pavilions and the Forbidden Purple City, which used to be off limits to everyone but a small army of eunuchs who catered to the emperor's every need. The immense royal tombs managed to escape the American War – as it's known here – unscathed.

CITY SYMBOL The Thien Mu Pagoda in Hue, where Buddhists once gathered

DON'T MISS In 1963, the monk Thich Quang Duc was driven to Saigon where he set himself on fire in protest at the Catholic government's crackdown on Buddhism. The persecuted Buddhists gathered at Thien Mu Pagoda – a seven-storey hilltop tower – and the Austin car that took Duc to Saigon (which can be seen in Malcolm Browne's famous photograph of his immolation) is tucked away in the grounds.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Hue is in central Vietnam and a popular stop-off between Hanoi in the north and Ho Chi Minh City in the south. Don't leave Hanoi without doing a day trip to Ha Long Bay: float in jade waters past limestone pillars crowned with forests.

VIETNAM ON TV

8 DISCOVER THE LOST CITY OF PETRA

After a mile-long amble through a sheer sandstone gorge, the mountain parts to reveal a spine-tingling sight: a towering temple carved into a pink-hued cliff. Al Khazneh – the Treasury – is the most famous landmark of Petra, a citadel hewn from the rock 2,000 years ago by the Nabateans, embellished by the Romans, then forgotten for centuries. Only the Bedouins knew of the Rose City's existence in what is now Jordan.

DON'T MISS There's an amphitheatre that can hold 6,000 people, an innovative irrigation system, and a superb view over the Petra basin from the High Place of Sacrifice.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE See the dramatic desert landscape of Wadi Rum, also known as the Valley of the Moon. Float in the mineral-rich Dead Sea – the lowest point on Earth – and be pampered in its spas. The Red Sea port of Aqaba has warm waters and lush coral reefs, and the 400-mile Jordan Trail offers spectacular hiking alongside the Great Rift Valley.

9 WALK THE GREAT WALL OF CHINA

The Great Wall dates back to the seventh century, but most of what is still intact today is from the 14th-century Ming dynasty – so still pretty ancient by any standards! Steep hills and thick woods form an arresting backdrop to the Badaling section and are within easy reach of Beijing. You can hike quieter sections at Jiankou and find distant traces in the Gobi desert or unreconstructed remains at Jinshanling. Wherever you find them, you'll marvel at the ingenuity involved in building a towering defensive wall over northern China's wild terrain.

DON'T MISS The view from the watchtowers at Mutianyu, where the wall disappears into the forested peaks. If you don't fancy the 4,000-plus steps, take the cable car – and zip back down on a toboggan.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Spend at least three days in Beijing to appreciate what the wall was built to protect. Wander Tiananmen Square, explore the palaces in the Forbidden City and marvel at the gardens of the lakeside Summer Palace, before tucking into Peking duck.

FACT FILE

10 HIKING HEAVEN IN MADEIRA

Gaze out over an ocean of deepest blue as you hike over jagged peaks and glimpse rare blooms in forest-carpeted valleys... Lying 300 miles off the Moroccan coast, Portugal's "Pearl of the Atlantic" is a year-round destination thanks to its eternal spring weather. Two-thirds of Madeira is designated as a nature reserve, making it heaven for hikers. Choose between gentle ambles or challenging treks over mountain passes. The loftiest summit is the surprisingly accessible 1,900m Pico Ruvio; the short sharp climb along a ridge is rewarded with a sublime vista.

DON'T MISS The island is criss-crossed by more than 1,300 miles of narrow stone canals and aqueducts. The levadas were dug in the 16th century to funnel rainwater from the mountainous north to the parched south of the island to irrigate sugar cane and banana plantations. They still provide the island with most of its water and some of its loveliest walks. One of the most spectacular is Levada do Caldeirao Verde, which combines ocean views with a 100m waterfall.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Also known as "the floating garden in the Atlantic", you can admire the fruits of Madeira's balmy subtropical climate at the Madeira Botanical Garden, where the flowers are often arranged in eye-catching geometric patterns, or at the Monte Palace Tropical Garden, boasting 100,000 plant species.

11 CRUISE THE YANGTZE RIVER

Catch a slow boat along a placid emerald waterway, past misty mountains, lush gorges and a giant dam. The Yangtze is Asia's longest river (the Chinese call it Chang Jiang – Long River). It rises in the Tibetan plateau and wends over 3,900 miles, dividing north and south China, before emptying into the East China Sea near Shanghai. Cruise ships ply its upper and middle reaches, traversing the dramatic Three Gorges – a 120-mile stretch of bamboo-covered cliffs – and stopping at the 12-storey Shibaozhai Pagoda and the "ghost city" of Fengdu, where ancient Buddhist and Taoist temples house demonic statues.

DON'T MISS It's impossible to miss the controversial Three Gorges Dam. The world's biggest hydroelectric power station flooded over a thousand villages and towns, and raised the height of the river by 90m. It's not exactly scenic, but the scale of this concrete behemoth is mind-boggling: the five-stage locks take three to five hours to negotiate.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Yangtze cruises typically last three to five nights and are usually combined with a tour taking in Beijing, the Great Wall, Shanghai and the Terracotta Warriors, who have been silently guarding China's first emperor for more than 2,000 years. The brooding karst mountains of Guilin are also a popular stop.

12 GO ON SAFARI IN KENYA

Nothing beats the adrenaline rush of seeing wild animals in their natural habitat, and the plains of East Africa offer the best opportunities of spotting them. The golden grasslands of the Maasai Mara National Reserve are the best place in Kenya to spot lions, cheetahs and leopards, while the wildebeest migration has been called the eighth wonder of the world. From July to October, over a million of these shaggy, ungainly ungulates are on the move. Flamingos and hulking rhinos are the stars at Lake Nakuru National Park, while Amboseli National Park is home to herds of elephants and has a spectacular backdrop: snow-capped Mount Kilimanjaro across the border in Tanzania.

DON'T MISS Bedding down in a deluxe tent. After a sundowner and a slap-up meal under the stars, you'll fall asleep listening to the soft calls of birds and wondering if every rustle is a lion. To really feel as if you've stepped into a David Attenborough documentary, drift above the rolling hills, lush grasslands and meandering rivers in a hot-air balloon.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Island-hop through the Lamu Archipelago off the northern coast, which has been seducing travellers for centuries. Sail between them in a traditional "dhow", catching fish to barbecue on the beach. After exploring car-free, Unesco-listed Lamu Town and the Swahili ruins, relax on pristine beaches or try paddle-boarding in the balmy Indian Ocean.

BE INSPIRED BY BEAUTIFUL MADEIRA

The spectacular Balcoes viewpoint

The Atlantic island of Madeira has won the award for both "Europe's Leading Island Destination" and "World's Leading Island Destination" at the World Travel Awards several times in the past few years. These awards identify best tourism practices throughout the world, and Madeira has shown that it is truly worthy of the acclaim.

The island's spectacular mountainous terrain can be seen whether arriving by sea or air. And thanks to a temperate climate all year round, walking and hiking are some of Madeira's most popular outdoor activities. A network of paths – veredas (trails) and levadas (footpaths) – have been created to ensure all visitors can experience the truly beautiful landscape Madeira has to offer. The trails are easily accessible and suitable for walking, hiking or trekking.

The island also produces the world-renowned madeira wine, and vineyards can be seen in various quaint villages across Madeira.

SEE MORE OF MADEIRA

A tour package consisting of two full days and one-half day excursion can also be booked prior to travel, and this includes a range of visits and activities. Full-day tours are also available, with the option to choose certain parts of the island to discover. The West Tour, for example, includes visits to the seaside town of Camara de Lobos, the Cabo Girao seacliff, picturesque Ribeira Brava, the Encumeada pass, the natural beauty of Sao Vicente and the scenic Seixal and Porto Moniz.

THREE SUGGESTED LEVADA WALKS

Levada da Serra do Faial A relaxing walk along one of the beautiful levadas on the outskirts of the island's capital, Funchal, with a mixture of sea and mountain views

Levada do Norte All year round, this is a superb walk, through landscape rich in cultivation

13 SAIL INTO THE NORTHERN LIGHTS

Dancing green wisps, shimmering red and violet streamers that sweep across the sky – the aurora borealis is a magical, ephemeral and unpredictable sight. The phenomenon arises when electric particles from the Sun enter our atmosphere and can only be seen when the Arctic sky is dark enough, from late September to early April, in Scandinavia, Iceland, northern Canada and Alaska. Nowadays you can book a northern lights cruise to Iceland as well as northern Norway, and combine star-gazing with a trip to Reykjavik, the world's most northerly capital. If it's snow-blanketed landscapes you're after, go in February or March.

DON'T MISS Reykjavik's Hallgrimskirkja church, which is designed in the shape of a basalt lava flow. This tiny city has plenty of snug cafés and excellent museums, or you can warm up in an outdoor hot tub.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Iceland is an otherworldly place to visit at any time. Cruise ships navigate its longest fjord to reach Iceland's second city, Akureyri, where you can see Europe's most powerful waterfall, soak in the hot springs around Lake Myvatn and go whale-watching from June to October.

ARCTIC ON TV

Coming soon is The River, Channel 4's latest foreign drama import, set in a village in the north of Norway. Expect weird happenings.

14 WATCH BIRDS IN COSTA RICA

Spot the green plumage and bright-red belly of the quetzal, the blue-throated and yellow-beaked toucanet and the auburn three-wattled bellbird in virgin rainforest shrouded by a blanket of mist. Spread over the continental divide, the Monteverde Cloud Forest Reserve in northern Costa Rica is home to more than 400 species of birds, along with the country's famous red-eyed tree frog, golden toads, monkeys, jaguars and hundreds of types of orchid. There are well-marked trails and walkways above the canopy, while a 770m zipline affords the adventurous a bird's-eye perspective. Look out for more colourful birds, river turtles, otters and the occasional crocodile on a canoe trip down the shady creeks and lagoons of Tortuguero, a wetland national park where endangered green turtles nest from July to October.

DON'T MISS Spot stripy zebra longwing, the electric-blue morpho, the translucent glasswing and the calico and more in the Monteverde Butterfly Garden.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE The Arenal volcano last erupted in 1998, causing an avalanche of rock and lava to flow down the northern face. Enjoy the views on the cable car to the top, then more bird- and flora-spotting from 3km of suspended walkways. Sloths, armadillos and racoons frequent the trails in Manuel Antonio National Park, where wild tropical beaches are backed by lush forests.

15 TIME TRAVEL ON LAKE TITICACA

Go in search of golden isles on a cobalt-blue lake encircled by snow-capped peaks. Straddling the Peru-Bolivia border, Lake Titicaca is the world's highest navigable lake and the largest in South America. On its islands, you'll encounter an ancient civilisation by visiting ruins and meeting local people whose traditions directly descend from the Incas.

DON'T MISS Sail from the Peruvian town of Puno to Islas Uros – man-made islets constructed from layers of reeds by the Uru people, and first built to escape the Incas. The 1,200 people who live on 60 islands have a distinct culture, despite being just a few miles from the mainland.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Catch the train to the highland capital of Cusco, one of the world's highest cities. Enjoy pisco sours in bars built from stones cut by the Incas and sample ceviche in excellent restaurants. The city's Incan and Spanish colonial history can be seen around every corner. And you can hop on a train to Machu Picchu – the 550-year-old Incan citadel sits high in the Andes and is home to docile llamas.

16 LOSE YOURSELF IN THE ROCKIES

Be dwarfed by colossal mountains and dazzled by glacial lakes... the Canadian Rockies offer the best of both worlds: you can strike out into pristine wilderness while enjoying fantastic comfort in its picturesque resorts. For six months a year, the Rockies are a winter wonderland and a haven for adrenaline junkies. In summer, they're a playground for walkers, campers and fishermen. A more luxurious way to travel is on board the Rocky Mountaineer, a panoramic train that runs from Vancouver, wending its way past precipitous peaks.

DON'T MISS The turquoise waters of Lake Louise, in Banff National Park, which is named after Queen Victoria's fourth daughter. Even at the height of summer it's icy, but you can hire a canoe and paddle across. Built into the bedrock, 280m above the Sunwapta Valley in Jasper National Park, the Glacier Skywalk is a glass-floored observation platform that affords a breathtaking view of the peaks and valleys.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Calgary is the eastern gateway to the Rockies and known as "Cowtown" after its rodeo in July, with chuckwagon races and bareback riding. Alternatively, fly to Vancouver on British Columbia's west coast, with museums, art galleries and a 1,000-acre park and rainforest.

CANADA ON TV

17 COLOURFUL CUBA

Step back in time in a country embracing the future. Cuba's decades of semi-isolation mean its colonial-era cities have been trapped in a time warp. Havana's old town is packed with palaces, forts, churches and grandiose squares. The town of Trinidad is famous for its colourful houses and beautiful, crumbling mansions that are slowly being restored. The city of Camagüey is a lovely place to get lost: its baroque churches, galleries, bars and plazas are tucked away down twisting streets where you might also spy the occasional vintage American car. Cubans are as flamboyant as their cities: why not salsa and listen to jazz until the early hours with locals eager to welcome the outside world?

DON'T MISS Private investment is transforming dilapidated buildings into unique homestays and restaurants, where you can sample the new wave of Cuban cuisine. Forget rice and beans; nowadays you can look forward to lobster and pavé of suckling pig.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE After all that culture, you probably deserve a few days by some white-sand beaches. Head to Playa Ancón near Trinidad, or the eco-resort at Las Terrazas near Havana. Find a hammock and order a cuba libre as you watch the waves roll in. Alternatively, tackle some peaks in the verdant Sierra Maestra mountains, where Fidel Castro took refuge before the revolution.

18 GET AS CLOSE AS YOU DARE TO NIAGARA FALLS

A never-ending torrent of water... the Niagara Falls are the biggest waterfalls in North America, and one of the largest by water flow in the world. The three falls form part of the border between the USA and Canada, between Buffalo in New York State and Toronto in Ontario. The Canadian side offers the best views and you can see them all from the edge of the gorge. This vista is even more stunning at night when the falls are lit by a light show. Stay in Niagara-on-the-Lake: a historic town surrounded by vineyards specialising in the dessert tipple, ice wine.

DON'T MISS Take a boat ride past the American Falls, the poetically named Bridal Veil Falls and into the mist of the Canadian Horseshoe Falls, the largest of the three. You'll be awestruck (and silenced) by their volume and force; the boats run at full throttle just to stay still. Don't forget to pack a raincoat!

FACT FILE Every second, 3,160 tons of water flow over Niagara Falls

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Spend a few days in Toronto. If the weather's clear take the lift up the 553m CN Tower – one of the world's tallest free-standing structures – or if it's cloudy explore the contemporary art scene in funky galleries such as 401 Richmond, housed in an old warehouse. Toronto is one of the most diverse cities in the world, with more than 140 languages spoken, so you can refuel on cuisine from across the globe.

2019 CLASSIC CUNARD NIAGARA DISCOVERY

13 nights, departing April–November 2019 on board Queen Mary 2

From the most famous cityscape in the world, to the epicentre of American power and one of the planet's greatest waterfalls, this tour is perfect for those who want to experience North America's finest cities, the beauty of Niagara Falls and everything in-between.

Embark the elegant Queen Mary 2 and relish the bygone glamour of the golden age of cruising on your way to New York for a two-night stay. Gaze upwards at the famous monuments and skyscrapers that tower above you before climbing them for views across the city. Then enjoy the tranquillity of Central Park or immerse yourself in theatre at a Broadway show.

Leaving New York behind, you'll begin your journey to Washington DC, stopping en route in Philadelphia, where you'll enjoy a brief city tour. With its history, politics, art and culture, Washington DC is a fascinating glimpse into America's epic history. Your tour of Washington DC takes you to the Lincoln Memorial, the National Mall and the White House.

Then it's on to Niagara Falls, where you'll get the chance to view this colossal force of nature up close. Every minute, tons of water pours over the crest, creating a spray that drenches its surroundings. You'll experience the falls on board a cruise that sails past all three of the falls. Watch as the sun glints off the surface and the roaring waters plunge, creating a mesmerising mist that your ship will disappear into.

A change of pace awaits in the town of Niagara-on-the-Lake, a pretty jumble of colonial architecture, boutique ice-cream shops – and even a chocolate factory! Here you'll enjoy a wine tasting, the perfect relaxed end to your North American discovery.

20 ADMIRE THE GREAT BARRIER REEF

In north-eastern Queensland, the Daintree rainforest cascades down mountains and spills into turquoise waters, where the Great Barrier Reef – made up of more than 2,900 reefs – is home to a rainbow of tropical fish. One day you can be snorkelling with turtles and marvelling at colourful coral gardens; the next, you can spot exotic butterflies and birds in a forest that dates back 150 million years. No wonder this stunning corner of Australia is Sir David Attenborough's favourite place.

DON'T MISS The Skyrail Rainforest Cableway affords a bird's-eye view of the colossal trees. The Kuranda Scenic Railway is an astonishing feat of engineering that winds past ravines and waterfalls, chugging over handmade bridges and tunnels. At the Mossman Gorge Centre, you can take guided walks with the Kuku Yalanji people and learn how their ancestors used the area's plants. If you really want to spoil yourself, sign up for a helicopter ride – the Reef is breathtakingly beautiful from above.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE Brisbane used to be considered a backwater, but is enjoying a renaissance. Thanks to a thriving restaurant and arts scene, it's rapidly becoming Australia's hippest city. If you want to put your feet up for a few days, you can't beat the powder-white sand of the Whitsunday Islands – another gateway to the Great Barrier Reef.

19 PICNIC UNDER JAPAN'S CHERRY BLOSSOMS

In springtime, Japan dons a delicate pink coat of flowers... Cherry blossom, or sakura, season starts in early spring in the south, with the pale blooms flowing north like a wave over a six-week period. When darkness falls, the blossoms in parks and gardens are lit by lanterns, so you can enjoy their scent and sight late into the night. For the Japanese, the flower's ephemeral nature is what makes the sakura so thrilling. They celebrate by eating blossom – try blossom cake, drink blossom tea and stock up on cherry blossom Kit Kats.

DON'T MISS Join a hanami, a picnic or party held under the blossoms. Often taking place in specially built cherry-blossom gardens or parks such as Ueno in Tokyo or the Imperial Palace Park in Kyoto, they can get quite rowdy, but it's the best time to see locals let their hair down.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE It's simple and speedy to travel from Tokyo to Kyoto on Japan's hushed, punctual bullet trains. Kyoto is the heart of Japan, with 17 Unesco World Heritage sites, Buddhist temples, Shinto shrines, Zen gardens, wonderful craft shops and palaces. In Tokyo, be sure to visit its oldest quarter for a bowl of ramen: Golden Gai is a maze of narrow alleys lined with little cafés, bars and restaurants, some only large enough to seat two people.
