COMBINED SATCHEL AND MUFF.

SPECIFICATION forming part of Letters Patent No. 266,354, dated October 24, 1882.

Application filed July 29, 1882. (No model.)

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that I, CASPAR DICKHAUT, of the city, county, and State of New York, have invented certain new and useful Improvements in a Combined Satchel and Muff, of which the following is a specification.

The object of this invention is to combine in a single article for ladies' use the properties of a hand-satchel and of a hand-muff.

The invention consists of a hand-satchel provided at one side with a hand pocket or muff open at both ends, said pocket being suitably lined and wadded.

In the accompanying drawings, Figure 1 represents a perspective view of this combined satchel and muff; and Fig. 2 is a transverse vertical section of the same on line xx, Fig. 1.

Similar letters of reference indicate corresponding parts.

The body A of the satchel or bag is composed of leather or other suitable material, attached in the usual manner to metallic hinged jaws B. The jaws are provided with the usual fastening devices, C, and with a suitable handle, D. The body is preferably adapted to collapse and expand.

A false side, E, of fur or other suitable non-conducting material, is stitched to one side of the body A, along the top and bottom edges thereof. This false side, being open at both ends, forms, in connection with the side proper of the bag or satchel, a hand pocket or muff. The adjacent faces of the body and false side are provided with a wadded lining, a, which serves to retain warmth.

A false side, F, is stitched to the opposite side of the body A along the end and bottom edges thereof. This false side, being open at the top, forms a convenient pocket for the handkerchief or other articles, and is preferably lined with silk. This false side F is composed of fur, plush, or other soft material which will not injure the dress of the user when in contact therewith, as is the case when the article is used as a muff.

This combined satchel and muff constitutes a very convenient and handsome article for ladies' use.

Having thus described my invention, I claim as new and desire to secure by Letters Patent—

A satchel provided with duplicate or false sides, both composed of fur, plush, or other like material, one of which forms a hand pocket or muff, while the other forms a handkerchief-receptacle, substantially as set forth.

In testimony that I claim the foregoing as my invention I have signed my name in presence of two subscribing witnesses.

CASPAR DICKHAUT.
