5. If recommendation five of subject report can be interpreted as authority for an officer to be the director of Central Intelligence, then objection two is not serious. However, objection two (b) is serious and will have very deleterious effect on the CIG and its activities of vital interest to the Navy.

4. It is recommended that the Secretary of the Navy request members of the House Military Affairs Committee to make a statement to the press as follows:

"The report on the system currently employed in the collection, evaluation, and dissemination of intelligence affect the war potential of the United States released to the press on 17 December has not been adopted by the House Military Affairs Committee and the press release relating thereto was not authorized by the committee".

5. In connection with the recommendation in paragraph four above, it is desired to state that appropriate legislative authority for the C.I.G. is desired. Therefore, if the Secretary believes that the above recommended action will adversely affect enactment of desired legislation then no action is recommended.
