There is not a list of capitol spares at this time so this a non issue, the focus now is on the consumables that will compliment outages. The client will probably pool the capitol spares, should they now be able to source something then they will request a quote.

See the part numbers that were provided and quote accordingly.

The units the client has is in the attachment

Dallas

Yes this is a standard list of consumables for whatever model gas turbine they are for, I assume they are for a FR9E.

Where is the list for capital parts?

Is this the same proposal you was telling me about that is due within one week which you have had for more than a month now?

What comment do you want me to make about being able to supply the attached which will not be a problem?

However if you want me to supply firm prices for the attached within the next few days that will be next to impossible.

In addition the capital parts list if you have it will be harder to get a quote on.

Jim

Jim

Please review the enclosed consumable parts list for GE units.

We are preparing a proposal for a 5 year contract for parts repair, consumables and capitol parts.
