EDITORIAL NOTE

AT the conclusion of their work, the Editors desire to express their hearty appreciation of the valuable assistance rendered to them throughout the three and a half years of its progress by many eminent authorities, in addition to the invariable consideration and the loyal co-operation which they have received at the hands of the Departmental Editors and the contributors. In organizing and editing a work of the magnitude of the Encyclopædia Britannica, and endeavouring to maintain in this further instalment the standard of preceding editions, it was necessary to frequently call in the aid not only of experts who could give special advice on technical details, but also of experienced men of affairs, whose judgment served to fortify that of the Editors themselves in the responsible task to which they were committed. Such advice and help have always been most willingly and generously given. It is impossible to describe here the different occasions on which such services were required, and to give the names of all those who have rendered them; but the Editors cannot close this record of their labours without acknowledging in this brief form their indebtedness in this respect to a wide circle of amici curiæ, among whom may be specially mentioned the LORD CHANCELLOR (Earl of Halsbury), Lord KELVIN, the late Lord ACTON, the late Bishop CREIGHTON, Lord RAYLEIGH, Lord ROBERTS, Lord WOLSELEY, Lord REAY, the Japanese Minister in London (Viscount HAYASHI), Sir W. S. CHURCH, Bart. (President of the College of Physicians), the late Sir WILLIAM MACCORMAC, Bart. (President of the College of Surgeons), Sir W. T. THISELTON DYER (Director of the Royal Gardens, Kew), Sir GEORGE BIRDWOOD, Sir J. G. FITCH, the Rev. Dr. T. FOWLER (President of C.C.C., Oxford), Professor THOMAS CASE, the late Sir W. PRIESTLEY, Dr. RAY LANKESTER (Director of the National History Museum, South Kensington), Sir FREDERICK POLLOCK, Bart., Mr. HENRY GANNETT of the Geological Survey, Washington, Professor W. C. UNWIN (who arranged with the writers of the articles on engineering), Mr. EVERARD GREEN (Rouge Dragon), the Hon. VALENTINE BELL, Dr. T. LEAL, Mr. JOHN MURRAY. The Editors also thank those owners of pictures who kindly allowed reproductions to be given, and the various publishers and newspaper editors and proprietors who have freely allowed the use of material of which they held the copyright.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

FIGURES printed in bold face type (e.g. 29) refer to the number of the volume, those in light face type (e.g. 375) refer to the number of the page, and the letters a and b, c and d to the upper and lower halves of the left and right hand columns of the page respectively.

In the case, however, of references to Volume 34 (the Atlas Volume) the first number in light face type refers, not to the number of the page, but to the number of the map. For example, the entry "Sedal 34 20 E5" shows that in Volume 34 map 20 contains the name Sedal, and that Sedal lies in the vertical division E and the horizontal division 5.

An entry thus: 29 xiv, refers to the 14th page of the introductory essay to the 29th Volume.

A rule or dash denotes a repetition of the preceding index-word. In the case of compound names printed without a hyphen, it denotes the repetition of the first word only, e.g.:—

Caesarea Augusta 24 770c.
— Philippi 4 640a.

The prefix St (Saint) and the articles Le and La, however, have been treated as inseparable from the word which they precede; here, therefore, the rule denotes the repetition of both words, e.g.:—

St Albans: town, Me., U.S. 34 65 E6.
—, town, N.S.W. 34 51 J4.

La Vega, F. 11 724b.
—, R. de 32 764a.

Surnames of foreigners beginning with the prefixes shown below have been indexed as indicated by these instances:—

Del Rio	has been indexed under		Del.
Della Cassa	„	„	Della.
Des Cloiseaux	„	„	Des.
Du Blois	„	„	Du.
La Condamine	„	„	La.
Le Sage	„	„	Le.

D'Abbadie	has been indexed under		Abbadie.
Da Silva	„	„	Silva.
De Croitrai	„	„	Croitrai.
De La Place	„	„	La Place.
Von Humboldt	„	„	Humboldt.
Van Beneden	„	„	Beneden.

The prefixes Mc and M' and St have, for the purpose of alphabetization, been treated as if they were written Mac and Saint.

For the purpose of differentiation, the word town is used in this index to describe any inhabited spot, irrespective of its size or importance.
